57 DEAD IN HOLIDAY ACCIDENTS ACROSS CANADA

Risk Exposure Of Radioactivity To Inspect Damage

Forrestal and Adm. Blandy See Cruiser at Close Range

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

(Representing the Combined Press)

Aboard U. S. S. Mt. McKinley, July 2 —(AP)— Navy Secretary Forrestal of the United States, and Vice-Admiral W. A. P. Blandy today risked exposure to radioactivity to inspect atomic devastation in Bikini lagoon on A-Day plus one and witness the final agony of the Japanese light cruiser Sakawa.

Disregarding the radioactivity still lingering aboard ships in the target array's bullseye circle, Admiral Blandy ordered his picket boat "full speed ahead" as soon as he heard the information shouted from a salvage tug that Sakawa was going down.

For a dozen minutes, Mr. Forrestal, Admiral Blandy and others of their party watched from 50 yards away while the Japanese 6,000-tonner gradually gave up the ghost.

Earlier, Mr. Forrestal and Admiral Blandy had braved Gamma radiation for a closeup view of the heavily-hulled submarine Skate — hardest hit of the 73-ship target fleet subjected to atomic violence in yesterday's test burst. She was subjected to an estimated more than 500 pounds' pressure per square inch.

After the picket boat circled the Skate and was lying off alongside, a radiologist reported radiation so intense that the counter was "off the scale" on the meter.

Admiral Blandy laughed and said, "Let's get the hell out of here!"

Admiral Blandy and Mr. Forrestal boarded one ship, the 32-year-old battleship New York. Unlike those nearer the target centre, it bore an "affirmative" flag, a blue-and-white barred banner indicating radiological safety monitors had found it free of harmful radioactivity.

The bomb's blast effects were visible everywhere starboard after where the New York was was hit hardest. They included twisted mast structures, shattered plexiglass and ripped fuselages of exposed planes, and scattered debris.

Phenemenens Observed

One phenomenon was observed aboard the New York. The shadow of a folding chair leaning against the after gun turret had been photographed on the turret by the bomb's super-solar flash.

Admiral Blandy said casualties would have been high had any personnel been aboard the New York.

Mr. Forrestal and Admiral Blandy also inspected, without boarding:

The heavy carrier Saratoga, which suffered only slight damage amidships due to a fire started in army ammunition exposed on deck.

The Pennsylvania, whose catapult planes were put out of commission and where fires amidships left blistered skin, wrecked lifeboats, and charred equipment. However, the blomb flash did not even scorch a bale of hay on the after deck and a pair of goats on the forecastle deck seemed lonesome but otherwise unharmed by slow-acting radiation.

Set Off Bomb's Heat

The Independence whose stern was all but blown off by ammunition explosions set off by the bomb's heat. Her flight deck was buckled and hangar deck gutted and twisted. The hull at the stern was pushed out of shape and the ship as a whole was an unsalvageable wreck.

The heavy cruiser Salt Lake City, whose two stacks were destroyed and whose radio mast was wilted.

The Nevada, whose entire aft topside structure was changed by heat from a gaudy red-orange with areas of white to a dirty, sooty color. Equipment exposed on the Nevada's after deck was chewed up and scorched.

The heavy cruiser Pensacola, whose stacks were knocked over and whose masts were mangled at the top. An airplane was demolished and blown over the Pensacola's side.

The 34-year-old Arkansas, oldest battleship in the United States fleet, whose superstructure showed the hammer-like flattening effect of the bomb. Amidships, the Arkansas was shambles. Wisps of smoke still floated from smouldering fires.

The German heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen, whose bow, forward structures and entire starboard side was scorched, although she was nearly 3,000 yards from the target centre.

Body Recovered In Tug Disaster

Port Weller, July 2 — (CP) — The body of Leroy Stevens, 25, one of six persons drowned Saturday when the tug Dalhousie Rover turned on her side and sank in the Welland Canal here, was recovered today. Efforts aimed at finding the other bodies continued.

The body of Stevens, a fireman on the tug, floated to the surface of the canal near the spot where the 80-foot Dalhousie Rover is submerged in 25 feet of water. Stevens, whose home is in New Brunswick, had been staying with relatives in Thorold.

Fred Randall of nearby St. Catharines, a rigger on the Federal government derrick crew here, sighted the body. He and Eugene Hartleib of St. Catharines picked it up and took it aboard.

Search went forward for the recovery of the bodies of Capt. J. R. McLean of Logieville, N.B., master of the tug; Joe Smith, second engineer, Toronto; Orvil McCormick, mate, Erieau, Ont.; Harry Wheeler, cook, and Mrs. Wheeler (hometown unavailable).

Two government divers searched the sunken tug without finding any bodies. Barney Bristow, Port Colborne diver, spent two hours on the capsized craft, explored the wheelhouse but reported no trace of the captain or the crew members.

LOOT NOT OVER $1,000

Toronto, July 2 — (CP)—Police said today that loot in Saturday night's holdup of an express messenger was "not more than $1,000." It was learned that one of the envelopes marked as containing money held only a bank deposit slip for that amount.

PEACECONFERENCE DATE DECISION SEEN SHORTLY

'Very Great Advance' Made on Monday On Yugoslavia's Western Frontier

(By Joseph Dynan)

Paris, July 2 —(AP)— With an accord on the knotty problem of Trieste apparently within their grasp, the Big Four foreign ministers seemed on the verge today of setting the date for a 21-power general European peace conference.

The council yesterday, in what Western Power sources described as a "very great advance," adopted French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's compromise proposal for Yugoslavia's western frontier. But both State Secretary Byrnes of the United States and British Foreign Secretary Bevin said they wanted more time to consider a companion project for internationalizing Trieste. They said they would give their answers today.

Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov, in one of the most dramatic moments of these conferences, accepted both proposals yesterday, thus agreeing to establish the new Italian-Yugoslav boundary along a line running generally from Tarvisio to Gorizia, then over to a few miles east of Trieste and down to the coast just south of Capodistria.

This line, which generally follows one previously proposed by Britain and the United States, deprives Yugoslavia of the Tarvia railway from Austria to the coast, and the Monfalcone shipyards, which would remain Italian.

Russia's Concession.

Acceptance of this boundary represented an important concession by Russia, as did acceptance of the internationalization plan for Triestee—by which the Adriatic port city would be internationalized for at least 10 years under combined Italian-Yugoslav and Allied control. Russia previously had backed Yugoslavia's claim for sovereignty in the city against Italy's similar claim.

British sources predicted Mr. Bevin's response to internationalization would be favorable, while American sources were inclined to think that Mr. Byrnes would approve internationalization if control were vested in the United Nations rather than the four major powers.

In accepting the suggestion to internationalize Trieste — where rioting involving partisans of the right and left and a general strike were in progress — Mr. Molotov proposed that internationalization be made permanent, instead of a 10-year stopgap Britain also was reported as favoring permanent internationalization.

'There Still Will Be Navies in the Future' Says Navy Secretary

By DON WHITEHEAD

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, Bikini, July 2 — (AP) — Firefighting crews worked on into the second day in atom-blasted Bikini Lagoon today, dousing lingering pockets of flame through the target fleet — five of whose 73 vessels already had been sunk.

That the second test, tentatively scheduled within three or four weeks, may take a far greater toll was indicated in an interview with Navy Secretary Forrestal radioed from the flagship Mt. McKinley. He expressed surprise at the "relatively unimportant" damage inflicted upon the heavier ships by Monday's air drop, but noted that such ships are "difficult to sink unless they sustain underwater damage."

The second atomic blast is to be set off under water, with the sea transmitting a terrific blow to the hulls of the test fleet.

The lagoon at mid-afternoon today still was 'reacting' from blast and lethal radiation of yesterday morning's aerial burst, Brig.-Gen. Roger M. Ramey, air force commander, reported from Kawjalein. He termed the operation "a complete and unqualified success."

Mr. Forrestal warned against premature conclusions, but voiced one generality as the result of his own observations: "There still will be navies in the future."

Whether crews could have lived through the blast remained an unanswered question, but scientists expect to learn much by observing the effects of the rays upon surviving test animals, tethered at battle stations aboard the target fleet.

Fifth test ship to sing was the broken Japanese cruiser Sakawa — a modern warship, welded instead of riveted and consequently much stronger structurally.

Definitely Sunk.

First listed as "missing," the destroyer Anderson later was announced definitely sunk, as were the attack transports Gilliam and Carlisle and the destroyer Lamson. Badly damaged were the carrier Independence, battleship Arkansas, Japanese battleship Nagato, heavy cruiser Pensacola, submarine Skate, and a tank landing ship. Some 25 others were damaged in varying degree, and few — if any — escaped unscathed.

Nevertheless, it was "by no means a test of airpower against the navy, General Ramey announced. The primary task of the airforces was "to demonstrate the flexibility of air power and atomic power," he explained — and "the feasibility of such intricate timing has been demonstrated, even to those of us who planned it while doubting its possibilities."

"Should we have to fight again, I believe that Bikini demonstrated our capability to enter the fight with a precision team of air and atomic power."

Radio reports said that all of the army's B-17 aircraft that flew through the atomic cloud returned Eniwetok "radiologically" and with the lethal rays from two of them particularly intense. Handlers were unable to approach them.

Beaching of wounded ships was being attempted wherever possible, to permit easier damage assessment of the hulls.

NEWSPAPERMEN HONORED BY KING ON DOMIONION DAY

Possible Canadians Have Received Their Last British Decorations

By JACK BRAYLEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 2 — (CP) — Absence of Canada Medal awards in the unique Dominion Day King's Honors list resulted in speculation in capital circles today that Canadians may have received their last British decorations.

In an early war statement, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said decorations to civilians would be suspended until peacetime and announced creation of a distinctive Canada Medal which would be distributed after the war. He also spoke of a distinctive Canadian Order.

As his reason for suspending civilian awards he said the war was in a critical stage it would be inexpedient to take up the question. Before civilian honors were recommended, the situation would be carefully reviewed with the intention of taking appropriate action at the end of the war.

Throughout the war various orders of British origin were given to outstanding Canadian sailors, soldiers and airmen and today's final cleanup of civilians also included only British orders. It was the first time the King has issued an Honors list on a Dominion Day.

Will be Given Canada Medal.

Mr. King, having gone on record as saying distinctive Canadian orders were in prospect, is likely to evolve a plan by which the next Royal Honors List—the New Year's Honors) would contain only the distinctive Canada Medal.

There have been various reports about this new distinctive decoration. One of the most persistent is that it will have various grades with the first grade being restricted to 20 members.

The list was all-embracing and contained rewards for contributions to the wwar effort from all walks of life. This included the wide range of civilian activity from sewing circles to national war-financing and from dollar-a-year administrators to war correspondents.

It was perhaps appropriate that three Canadians who received the highest award — Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George (C.M.G.) — were men of the arts.

They were A. Y. Jackson, Toronto artist, who developed a system for mass reproduction of

HUGE ARMS CACHE FOUND IN JEWISH COASTAL VILLAGE

Jewish Leaders Continue to Denounce British Action

Jerusalem, July 2 (CP)—Jewish leaders continued to heap denuciations on the British government today as British military authorities sifted information on the activites of 2,659 Jewish men and 59 women arrested during the weekend in a drive to restore order to Palestine.

As the result of an emergency meeting in Jerusalem yesterday, Members of the Jewish National Council and other community leaders issued a joint statement condemning the arrests and declaring that "Palestine Jewry cannot maintain relations with authorities" unless the prisoners are released.

They characterized the arrests as "the peak of repudiation by the British government on its international obligations to the Jewish people."

An official British announcement disclosed the discovery yesterday in the Jewish coastal settlement of Mesheq Yagur of a hidden store of munitions so large that British authorities said they had not yet been able to estimate, much less count, all it contained.

The cache was found in an underground chamber in the village, one of a number of Jewish cooperative colonies founded in the Halfa Bay area in the last 10 years.

Trolley For Moving Ammunition

So large was the munitions dump, a communique said, that it was equipped with an overhead trolley for moving ammunition. The store included "many thousands of rounds of ammunition of various types...plus hundreds of grenades, detonators, explosives and other sabotage material."

In addition, the announcement said, "15 subsidiary caches were discovered in various parts of the settlement, all containing arms."

British officials previously had announced the seizure of minor caches of arms during the weekend operations, in the course of which, they said, four Jews were killed and 80 injured while resisting the searchers.

Palestine generally was reported quiet as Zionists leaders urged their followers to remain calm until a course of action had been decided upon.

Lifting of U. S. Price Ceilings Faces Canadian Govt. With Critical Problem

Ottawa, July 2 (CP)—Lifting of United States price ceilings today faced the Canadian government with possibility of the most critical price stabilization problem since price control was introduced in 1941. It was considered likely a formal statement of the government's position might be made later today.

Meantime there were hurried conferences among prices board, finance department and other government officials in an effort to mould a policy which might check the impact of soaring United States prices on the Canadian price structure.

As recently as last week Finance Minister Ilsley, who was away from Ottawa when the lid came off United States prices, had re-iterated the need for continued price control.

The weekend Washington developments brought likelihood of new pressures far beyond those the Canadian price structure faced last week, but just how severe those pressures would be had not yet emerged from the confused American economic situation.

Canadian authorities already had a good deal of experience in meeting increased American prices. For some time the economies of the two countries had been diverging sharply with American prices going steadily up.

It was on that experience that Canadian authorities would have to learn if American prices continued to go out of line. Such a condition would probably mean that hope of reducing subsidies on American goods would have to be temporarily abandoned.

Most important American products now subsidized on entering Canada are coal for domestic use and cotton. The coal subsidy was increased last week to meet advances in the price of American coal and protect Canadian consumers from direct price increases. With cotton prices at a new high in the United States Canadian subsidies which had been reduced had to be pushed back up.

A general advance in United States prices would face Canadians with three fundamental choices. They could go without the American products, pay higher prices, or meet the price advances through increased subsidies.

There were some unconfirmed reports that the changed situation might result in a revision of exchange rates between the Canadian and American dollar.

UNITED STATES TROOPS STONED IN TRIESTE RIOT

City Now Quiet After One Person Killed; Phone Lines Between Rome, Trieste Open

Trieste, July 2 (AP)—Strike-ridden Trieste quieted today after week-end riots in which one person was killed and 45 were injured. Another Venezia Giulia policeman was wounded last night.

Telephone communications between Trieste and Rome, interrupted early in the day, were restored later.

Most of those injured, in what appeared to be a conflict between Partisans of the right and the left, were Slavs. The civil policeman was shot in a working class district.

A funeral procession scheduled for this afternoon by the Italo-Slav strike committee for a Communist worker shot Sunday night was expected to touch off further trouble. The committee said it expected between 10,000 and 20,000 persons to participate.

Military authorities denied permission to the strike committee to stage a demonstration today but were not empowered to forbid the funeral procession. However, both Allied troops and civil police, armed with rifles and carbines, were on hand to maintain order.

United States troops were stoned last night as they broke up a mob attacking Communist Party headquarters, but there was no immediate announcement of casualties. Seven American soldiers and two British soldiers were injured Sunday while quelling outbursts of violence.

One civilian was shot when he stoned an American military police jeep. Others in the crowd hurled bottles and stones at the Americans and British troops sent in to reinforce the Allied garrison. The troops were directed to "act as police unless it gets too difficult. Then you will act as soldiers."

During the night a mob broke into the "progresso" plant where several Slav and Leftist newspapers are printed and did considerable damage to machinery. Earlier, the Communist newspaper Il Lavoratorre was attacked by Italian youths and six men and a woman were injured.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, July 2 (CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.—A cool air mass which had its origin in Northwestern Canada swept through Ontario and the Eastern United States yesterday replacing the warm air which had covered that part of the continent for most of last week. Showers and in some places, thunderstorms occurred as the cool air displaced the warm air ahead of it. The cool air now has advanced almost to the Atlantic coast line and showers and thunderstorms are occurring at the present time from New Brunswick southward to the Carolinas. Throughout most of the continent clear weither prevails.

HOUSE RANSACKED

Hamilton, July 2 (CP)—Thieves yesterday ransacked the home of fAlbert Mason of nearby Dundas and stole $300 cash, jewelry and 3,000 shares of gold stocks.

Grotesque Marks, Etched in Nevada's Paint Point to Where A-Bomb Burst

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Writer

Aboard U.S.S. McKinley at Bikini, July 2 (AP)—On one side of the U.S.S. Nevada's forward 14-inch gun turrets a grotesque hand and finger, etched in the battleship's red paint, points to the exact place in the sky where the atomic bomb exploded.

It was etched by the heat of the bomb. The heat seared the ship black but on the one side of the turret, where a shadow fell at an angle, the red paint retained its color. And a red finger was left pointing aloft past the Nevada's stern.

This and other signs seen today by correspondents indicated almost exactly where the bomb exploded—astern and a little to port of the Nevada. In that area were all five of the ships that sank.

The test did not prove conclusively whether the atomic bomb can sink a battleship from above. It did show that one-inch steel is so much tin in the path of the atomic force, up to several hundred yards, certainly.

It showed that mast structures of the strongest basket build now in use crumple as easily as if they were twigs. It showed that steel canopies break down like a tin can struck with a sledge hammer.

Thirty Drowned And Nine Killed In Motor Crashes

Survey Shows Total Three Higher Than Last Year

By The Canadian Press

A total of 57 persons were reported killed in various mishaps across Canada from Saturday morning until Dominion Day celebrations ended last night.

A survey by The Canadian Press today showed the total — three higher than last year—included some 30 persons drowned, nine killed in motor accidents, four dead in fires, four deaths directly attributed to the warm weather in Montreal and others dead in a variety of accidents.

A highway collision between a packed auto-bus and a motor truck at Woodlands, 17 miles southwest of Montreal, took three lives and injured 32, half of them seriously. Killed were Oliva Lejour, 55, Lachine, Que.; Agnes Poissant, 31, Montreal and George E. Moreland, 47, Chateauguay.

Names of Drowned

The 30 drowned included Vincent Worthington, 41, of Toronto, in Lake Couchiching; Charles Loveing, 80 of Coldwater, at Severn Falls; Marcel Legault, 22 in the Gatineau at Cascades, Que.; Robie Richards, 38, drowned from his launch at Halifax; Fernand Lavalle, 33, Miss Carmen Senecal, 35, and Marcelle Morin, 17, at Quebec City; Claude Charron, 13 in Lake Mercier, Que.; Reginald Mustill, 26, at Rawdon, Que.; Fran Hart of Ottawa, drowned in the Rideau River; Samuel Robidoux, 23, at Chateaguay Basin, Que.; Adrien Desjardins, 12 at Richelieu, Que.; 16-year-old Lucien Goyer, at Montreal; 46-year-old Irwin Mallet at Hudson, Que.; 48-year-old Aldege Levesque, at Missisquoi Bay; 17-year-old Anita Graham, drowned while swimming in the Welland Canal; Jean Rosseau, 36, and Gerard Picotte at Montreal; Joseph Michael, 16, who was drowned at Sydney, N.S.; John S. Redmond, 25, at Pembroke, Ont., and David Peck, 23, drowned at Meis Beach, Que.

Three Fire Victims

Also drowned was 14-months-old Dorothy Mason, who fell into a bathtub at her home in New Glasgow, N.S. Miss Roland Binette, 24, was drowned in the Gatineau at Cascades, Que. The body of an unidentified man was recovered from the Niagara River.

Three fire victims were the young children of Mrs. Gerard Messier, whose home at Montreal was destroyed. Four-year-old Roy Williams of Winnipeg also died by fire.

Other fatalities included Mrs. N. Dardana of Montreal, who died from effects of a fall; Arthur Sawler of Windsor, N. S., fatally burned when a blow-torch exploded; William R. McMoran, gored by a bull near Brockville; Doris Reynolds, 11 months, who fell through an open window at Kirkland Lake; William Fraser, 48, crushed under a load of hay near Brampton; a 63-year-old farmer at Estevan, Sask., trampled to death by horses; Reginald Gourgon, 36, electrocuted when he picked up a wire torn loose by a storm at Ottawa; Susie Thoms, 60, slain in her rooming house at Fort William, and Edward Brown, 57, who died of injuries suffered when he fell in a vat of boiling chocolate at a Toronto factory.

Heat wave victims at Montreal were John Ward, 61, William Turcotte, 43, Theodore Dubuc, 77, and Mrs. Gertrude Elliot, 55.

No New Permits For Car Priorities Issued in July

Ottawa, July 2 — (CP) — Reconstruction Minister Howe announced today that no new applications for new automobile priority certificates will be accepted or processed during July.

Priorities will be issued immediately, however, on applications which were approved between May 7 and June 30 while issue of priorities was suspended.

Whether any priorities will be handled in August would be decided "in the light of further production reports covering June and the first half of July," Mr. Howe said in a statement.

Issuance of priority certificates was suspended on May 7, when the number in the hands of the public far exceeded deliveries on new motor vehicles to dealers.

Bulgar Says Huns Forced Probers To Sign Reports

Nuernberg, July 2 (AP)—A Bulgarian member of the so-called International Commission picked by Germany to investigate the Katyn Forest massacre testified today that he and his fellows had been compelled to sign a report exonerating Hitler's armed forces.

The Bulgarian expert, M. A. Markov, told the war crimes tribuna lthe Germans used psychology to obtain the signatures of legal and medical experts to documents they never had a chance to read, much less to write themselves.

The witness was called by the Russians in an effort to establish that German and not Soviet armies slew 11,000 Polish officers near Smolensk.

Trenton Planes Join in Search

Ottawa, July 2 (CP)— Twelve R.C.A.F. aircraft flying between 1,000 and 1,500 feet through cloudless skies, today pursued the search for a Gloster Meteor jet-propelled aircraft missing somewhere between Kapuskasing, Ont., and Toronto, and its pilot, Flt. Lt., William Hugh McKenzie of St. Vital, Man.

No report has been received of or from the plane since it flew out of Kapuskasing late Saturday.

In the best weather of the three-day search, five planes from Rockcliffe Airport, Ottawa, four from Trenton and three from Kapuskasing combed the skies today and later will be joined by six more. Each plane is covering a strip of between 1 1-2 and two miles.

City and District News

CITY PLAYGROUNDS OFFICIALLY OPENED

Playgrounds at the East and West Hill locations officially opened this Tuesday morning.

The City is fortunate this year that the Y.M.C.A. and the Board of Education who co-operate in the operation of the playgrounds, have been able to employ experienced supervisors for the summer. At the West Hill, Mr. Gordon Hagen is in charge with Miss Kellar assisting him, while at the East Hill Mr. Watson is in charge, with Miss Margaret Taylor as his assistant. All of these supervisors have had experience, and should provide a fine summer program of games, athletics, and crafts for the children between 8 and 14 years of age.

Parents are requested to assist the supervisors by seeing to it that, if children under the age of 8 years are permitted to go to the playgrounds, they must be in charge of older children who will look after them, or adults, as the supervisors can not be held responsible for them in any way.

Some of the equipment is still in the course of being repaired as a safety measure, but sufficient is on hand for a good deal of wholesome fun to be had by the youngsters.

ORANGEMEN ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE AT CHRIST CHURCH

Members of Belleville, L.O.L. 274, L.O.B.A., 350, Girls' J.O.L. 233 and Boys' J.O.L., accompanied by visitors of Foxboro and Point Anne L.O.L., attended morning service in Christ Church, Sunday, June 30.

Rev. Grant Sparling was in charge of the service and delivered an inspiring sermon, stressing the fact that salvation could be had only through the personal sacrifice of Jesus Christ as stated in the answer of Paul, given to his jailer in reply to his question, "What Shall I do to be saved".

Rt. Wor. Bro. H. B. Fetterly, chaplain of L.O.L. 274, read the Scripture lessons, taken from Judges, 7th Chapter and St. Matthew's Gospel, 2nd Chapter.

The parade was conducted by the Marshal, Bro. Jule N. Bentley and marched from the new hall on Church Street, over the Upper Bridge along Moira and Coleman Streets, to the church. After the service the lodges reformed and returnd along Coleman to Bridge, up Front and back to the hall.

WALLET TURNED UP AFTER CULTIVATING FIELD SECOND TIME

Donald Baitley, young Wellington, Ontario, farmer has definite proof that if you work hard enough on the farm, you at least get out what you put in it.

Baitley, who resides in "Gingerville" on the village outskirts, lost his wallet containing $74 in cash and valuable papers the other day while tractor-plowing a field.

A close search of the plowed area by members of the Baitley family proved futile.

Then the young farmer had an idea. He hitched his tractor to a cultivator and carefully went over the ground.

You're right. He found the wallet, slightly soiled, but intact.

CUSTOMS RETURNS SHOW INCREASE FOR QUARTER, MONTH

An increase of $658,646.02 in customs and excise collections at Belleville for the quarter ending June 30th, as compared with the corresponding period during 1945 was reported today by customs collector Lt. Col. E. A. Geen. Collections for the quarter totalled $1,483,561.28, as compared with $824,915.26 for the same period last year.

Collections for June totalled $480,894.08, as compared with $256,142.60 for June, 1945.

Will Play Game On Alemite Field

Due to the fact that the Rotary Club Circus scheduled for the Fair Grounds this week has arrived in the city, the baseball game between the R.C.A.F. Flyers and Kiwanis Juniors scheduled for the grounds has been moved to the Alemite Field. President Don Thomas, Belleville Baseball League announced late today.

Permission of Stewart Warner Alemite officials to use their field was readily granted, and the game will be played there. Fans are asked to disregard advertisements and columnar notes regarding the game being played at the Fair Grounds as the change of locale came too late to have changes made.

Port Hope Pair Hold Branscombe Challenge Trophy

The Branscombe Cup, doneted by William Branscombe of Picton, for a challenge trophy for golfers within a radius of one hundred miles of Picton is held by two players from Port Hope but they had a close shave on Monday when Tommy Carruthers and Dr. George Faulkner lost on the 19th hole after coming from behind to tie the match at the 18th. The rules call for 2 players in match play low ball and Bill Rowden and James Kemlo won the trophy from Picton not over a week ago.

On Monday Carruthers and Faulkner met Bill Rowden and Lloyd Austin and the Belleville team was down three on the 10th. They struggled back from elimination, being one down at the 17th and all four were on the green in one on the par three 18th. George Faulkner was lying 25 feet from the cup and sank his putt to win the hole. On the 19th the Port Hope team got their birdie three to win the match. Austin drove 225 yards off the tee and chipped to the green and nonchalantly knocked down a 40-foot putt.

300 Members Forestell Family From Canada, United States Gather at Madoc For Reunion

Proceedings Opened With Solemn High Mass, Followed by Sumptuous Dinner

School day acquaintances were renewed and relatives not seen for upwards of 50 years were again greeted as on Dominion Day at the Madoc Agricultural Park approximately 300 members of the Forestell family, Madoc township, gathered for their first family reunion.

From as far west as Biggar, Sask., and from the northern United States, members of the family came to greet relatives they had not seen for many years. Two hundred and eighty-six of the Forestell clan sat down to a sumptuous dinner set up in the agricultural building, while many stayed for supper and enjoyed the revelry of the dance in the evening.

Beginning with a note of solemnity, members of the family in the morning gathered at Sacred Heart Church in Madoc where Father D. L. Forestell, C.S.B. celebrated high mass, assisted by Rev. J. G. Hanley, assoc. editor of the Canadian Register, Kingston, and Father F. Quinlan, O.M.I. of Ottawa. Present also were Rev. Father Hyland of Madoc; Father Collins of Campbellford; Father Lesage of Stirling, and Father Farrell of Marmora, who during mass was heard as he sang two appropriate solos.

Toasts Proposed.

Tobias Forestell, Fort Erie, proved his ability as a spokesman as during the dinner hour he acted as master of ceremonies, keeping everyone in a jovial mood with his repartee. Toasts to The King, to the Pope and the Clergy, proposed by Mr. Forestell were responded to by Father Farrell and Father Lesage.

President of the reunion association, Mr. Wilfred Forestell of Madoc R.R. 3, extended the official welcome to the many guests attending the reunion, expressing special appreciation to those who had travelled a distance. Despite inclemency of the weather, Mr. Forestell indicated the reunion had been a success and trusted that other reunions would be held.

Priests Heard in Addresses

All priests attending the reunion were heard in brief addresses following the dinner, while two senior members of the Forestell family, J. O. Forestell and John O'Donnell, extended greetings. Two members of the Madoc Fair Board were also heard, they in turn receiving expression of appreciation for the use of their fair grounds and buildings.

It was a grand reunion for the majority of the older persons who had a busy time renewing acquaintances with family members, but Old Jupiter Pluvius descended in fine style early in the afternoon to put a damper on activities for the younger generation. Ball games and races were planned for the enjoyment of the kiddies but rain falling at intervals throughout the afternoon put a heavy drain on supplies of soft drinks and ice cream as time weighed heavily on the hands of the younger persons.

Oldest on Grounds.

Miss Margaret Forestell of Waukeegan, Illinois, received the prize for the oldest lady on the grounds, she recalling "covered wagon" days as back before the turn of the century she made the trip with her parents by horse and wagon from the Bay of Quinte district to their United States home. Mr. John Forestell, Biggar, Sask., was the winner for travelling the greatest distance, although Mr. and Mrs. James Foley of Mariapolis, Manitoba, possibly ran a close second. Another member of the family who travelled a considerable distance was Mrs. N. Legrow of Duprequet, Quebec. Other family members were present from Rochester and Detroit.

Addresses Secured.

Deseronto Youth Dies in Hospital After Accident

Suffering fatal injuries when the automobile which he was driving left the road and turned over three times in the town of Deseronto, Claude Harvey, age 20, of Deseronto, died early this morning in Belleville General Hospital. The young man was admitted to the hospital at eight o'clock Monday evening when rushed there from the scene of the accident.

Two other men, passengers in the Harvey driven vehicle, were uninjured in the accident, according to reports. The accident was investigated by Chief of Police Noel Langdon but particulars were unavailable at press time. A preliminary inquest looking into the man's death was ordered for Tuesday morning.

In a second accident occurring north of Cloyne on Highway 41 on Saturday, John McPhee, age 39, Campbell Shoots, Ont., was instantly killed when the car in which he was driving was in collision with a truck loaded with cordwood. Driver of the truck involved in the accident was Hillard Cooney of Stirling. Provincial Constable E. E. Bowen of Northbrook and John Hatch, Madoc, investigated the accident.

Refreshing Rain Falls North And South of City

Fickleness of Old Man Weather was never more clearly demonstrated than on Dominion Day as immediate Belleville district sweltered from the result of the protracted heat wave, area both to the north and south were enjoying the benefits of refreshing rain.

Shortly after the noon hour Old Jupiter Pluvius descended in no uncertain fashion in the Madoc district with a veritable downpour drenching crops and sending persons to shelter. According to reports the storm was particularly intense in the Eldorado district and extended in a diminishing quantity as far south as West Huntingdon and Foxboro. At Belleville there were only a few drops of rain, this being just prior to the supper hour.

Accompanying the rain was a brief electrical storm with at least one bolt of lightning being seen, accompanied by a severe clap of thunder.

Picton district was also visited by a rain storm on the holiday, according to farmers attending Belleville market today.

Rain is badly needed in the Belleville area with hoe crops, as well as grain, hay and pastures being in need of moisture.

Mrs. Shan Robinson Awarded Title Enters Hamilton Centennial Contest

Tall and attractive Mrs. Shan Robinson, 19-year-old wife of Roy Robinson, 331 Bleecker Ave., will represent this city as "Miss Belleville" at the Hamilton centennial beauty contest on Thursday, it was decided Saturday evening by a quartette of judges at the finale of the Kinsmen Carnival bathing beauty contest.

Mrs. Robinson was chosen from a group of four contestants, all semi-finalists in the bathing beauty elimination contest held during previous nights of the carnival. As winner of the Belleville contest, Mrs. Robinson receives an all expense trip to the Hamilton centennial, together with a $75 cash award from the local Kinsmen Club, and a Rose Marie bathing creation donated by the Georgia Salon.

Second place winner and who will receive the $50 cash award was Miss Joyce Barnhardt, and third place winner of the $25 cash award was Miss Bernice Lawson. All entrants in the contest received suitable merchandise prizes.

Formerly Miss Shan Brennan, "Miss Belleville" is a bride of only ten months, she marrying her navy sweetheart shortly after his return to Canada after four years' service overseas. A brunette, "Miss Belleville" is five feet, eight and a quarter inches tall and weighs 143 pounds. She and her husband will go to Hamilton on Wednesday.

Approval of persons witnessing the bathing beauty contest was seen as President of the club, Mr. Newton Wilbur, announced Mrs. Robinson as the winner. Mr. Wilbur then formally presented a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Robinson, and cheques to the first three prize winners.

On the whole the carnival was judged by Kinsmen members to be a good success with the various games being well patronized throughout the run of the carnival.

Freak Storm Accompanied By Rain and Wind

A freak storm that checkerboarded this district on a blazing Dominion Day sent perspiring holiday-makers scurrying for cover as wind-driven deluges of rain ripped down out of suddenly darkened skies.

Fierce wind squalls whirling in miniature twisters sent clouds of dust spiralling into the air at the Alemite Field in the city where a baseball game was in progress.

Rain deluged down in the Peterboro area and the northern part of Hastings as far south as West Huntingdon felt part of the brunt of the storm. In its freakish sweep across the district, the storm detoured this city in its main intensity but caught the southern part of Prince Edward County.

Eldorado, in North Hastings, was stormswept for nearly an hour. Reports from other parts of the district state that picnickers and tourists were driven to cover by the brief but severe nature of the storm.

From outside districts reports state that a series of storms ranging up to 70-mile-an-hour gales lashed the Ottawa Valley and the Montreal area, causing at least one death and a number of injuries, uprooted trees and communications and resulted in an undetermined amount of damage in scattered areas.

No serious damage was reported in this immediate district and no injuries were said to have been incurred.

Narrow Escapes

The storm burst almost without warning in the middle of a steaming Dominion Day afternoon as holiday crowds were mostly outdoors. Surprised by the storm, few boating parties were able to keep their craft from upsetting. So far as could be learned, the storm was not responsible for any drownings but there were some narrow escapes.

In the west end of Ottawa, Reginald Gougon, 36, was electrocuted when he attempted to remove a high tension wire which had been blown down near his home.

At Arnprior, Ont., Basil Cunningham, pitcher for the local ball team, was struck by lightning as he sought shelter beneath a tree just as a Dominion Day ball game was getting started. He was taken to hospital where his condition later was reported favorable.

In Hull, Que., Miss Yvette Doucet, 30, was in serious condition with head and arm injuries received when the branch of a tree fell on a tent in which she was taking shelter.

Felt in Gatineau

The main fury of the storm apparently was felt in the Gatineau Valley in the area north of Ottawa. Telephone communication with Ottawa was entirely blown out.

Montreal suffered power failures for periods ranging from 7 minutes to five hours.

Acting with freak intensity, the storm:

Blew a rowboat out of the water near Ottawa, cracking the sides of the boat.

Blew a flag tower on the west end of the Parliament Buildings' centre block from its cement foundations, cracking it to pieces on the concrete below.

Blew two unidentified women to the ground in Ottawa.

Knocked down a cyclist and rolled him some distance along the street.

Writes of Eskimos While POW

New York, July 2 (CP) —Reminiscences of life in Canada's lonely sub-Arctic and observations on Eskimo character form the theme of a book by a Scottish-Canadian author entitled "Where the High Winds Blow."

The book is written by Bruce D. Campbell and based on his experiences before the war as an apprentice and later as a fur post manager for the Hudson's Bay Company. When the war came Mr. Campbell joined the RCAF, was shot down and eventually captured by the Germans and spent three years and ten months as a prisoner of war. While in captivity he jotted down the recollections which make up this book, published by Charles Scribner's Sons in New York.

Mr. Campbell, a Canadian of Scottish parentage, writes of the period from 1934 to 1937 during wihch he spent the winters at Wolstenholme, near the western end of Hudson Strait and at the head of the Labrador peninsula; and at Cape Smith and Port Harrison on the eastern shores of Hudson Bay.

His war experiences were an adventure in themselves. Shot down over Berlin, he bailed out of his bomber, escaped into Holland and was heading for Eindhoven when he was captured by the Germans. From then until the war ended he was in prison camps in Poland, on the Baltic, in Bavaria and in eastern Germany.

During his captivity, Mr. Campbell encountered an English artist, Phillip Bear, who has spent two summer aboard a whaler in polar waters. Mr. Bear has illustrated the book.

The author found early in his days with the Hudson's Bay Co. that he had to learn the Eskimo language in order to trade with the Eskimos. As an apprentice he had to learn the hardships and discomforts of conducting trading operations in the post in bitter winter weather when one's hands stuck to everything.

He learned too that the Eskimos are the possessors of a code and culture better suited to the sub-Arctic country than that of the white man.

His observations on that race—their patience and skill as hunters; their independent sense of values and their feeling that white men are helpless and pitiable people —echo those of such Arctic explorers of Peary, Stefansson and Rasmusden.

TRUCK LOAD BERRIES DISPOSED OF QUICKLY

With the general price asked ranging from 35 to 40 cents per box, a truck load of strawberries from Picton selling at 30 cents was a very definite attraction on the local produce market Tuesday morning. This particular vendor did a rushing business until his stocks were depleted.

Farmers from the immediate district, however, held to the high price with several offering considerable quantity. Gooseberries sold at from 20 to 25 cents with a few boxes of mulberries bringing 25 cents the box. Shelled peas sold at 50 cents the quart, a 10 cent drop from the initial offering on Saturday.

Veteran Men and Women Of Thurlow Twp. Honored With Scrolls and Cheques

Four Hundred From That District Entered Service and Sixteen Paid Supreme Sacrifice

Bronzed, war-hardened young men and women of Thurlow, their experiences in the armed services of their country behind them, received the tangible appreciation of a grateful township and its residents at the Cannifton Public School grounds on Dominion Day when they were presented with handsomely wrought scrolls and personal cheques for fifteen dollars.

While the four hundred young men and women of the township, claimed by a proud reeve to be the "best in Hastings County," who gave their services to King and Country were not all present, the large number, representative of all the districts comprising Thurlow who personally received the gifts, were given a splendid ovation by a large holiday crowd in attendance.

Sixteen Gave Lives

Nor were the "gallant sixteen" sons of the township who paid the supreme sacrifice in the second World War, forgotten. Their names were read to the large gathering prior to its standing in a minute's silence in reverent tribute to their memory. They are Stanley Akey, R. W. Akey, W. Anderson, John McCormick, Frank Howe, Lionel Way, Geo. D. Sharpe, Lyle Armstrong, John W. Hansey, Chas. H. Scott, Jos. Weymark, Robert Burd. Oscar Reid, Ted Wilkins, Vincent Guay and Harry Bradden. The next-of-kin were presented with scrolls and cheques.

The large grassy area in front of the school entrance where the presentations were made, was filled with people and automobiles. The gay uniforms of the Argyll Light Infantry Pipe Band led by Pipe Major Jamie Clark, and which dispensed intermittent selections during the program, added a touch of brilliant color. Adding to the musical program was petite Marie Nash, highland-garbed who offered guitar and vocal music, and step-dancing.

Made From Porch.

The presentations and addresses were made from the porch of the school. Here were Reeve George MacDonald, chairman for the occasion; Deputy Reeve Harry Harrison, Councillors Mitchell, Arthur Clazy and Cecil Ketcheson, all of whom assisted with the presentations, Township Clerk, S. W. Brown and speakers the Rev. Captain Jack Houston, Belleville, Rev. C. P. Heaven, Shannonville and the Rev. J. R. Trumpour who offered prayer at the beginning of the program.

Also present were Messrs. Geo. H. Stokes, M.P. South Hastings and Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., Hastings East.

The young men and women of Thurlow township did not volunteer to go to war because they were sadists, militarists or in love with war and regimentation. Captain Houston, guest speaker told the assemblage, "We are all pacifists in temperament," he said, "and I can imagine all who saw action were after the first hour or so."

"These young people went to war," he continued, "because of a sense of duty. . . . They did not grapple with international complications, but as citizens of the Dominion, they felt it their responsibility to volunteer."

"They made good," he said, "for at the beginning of the war all there was overseas was a channel and a Canadian division. We thank God for both."

Tradition Important Part.

Some people laugh at tradition, "but tradition is an important part of our lives, especially the tradition of freedom. We have a Canadian tradition, one that is British with a Canadian environment, and because of that, our soldiers overseas were unbeatable as shock troops.

Reviewing Canada's part in the war, he said, "In all this, there was in all the services a building of loyalty and friendship to each other. It was a real friendship, practical and often sacrificial."

Men have been known to sink to low levels, "but they have also been known to rise to sacrificial heights. 'Greater love hath no man than this . . .'. In a few short hours, they became matured. They were playing for keeps. There were only two types of individual in action overseas — the quick and the dead."

"If this comradeship was carried on into the years of peace, it would help solve many of our problems. We need today the highest leadership, the best statesmen and more best citizens."

"The citizens of Thurlow," the speaker concluded, "want to thank those now at home. On their behalf I say 'thank you' ".

Suggested Memorial Playgrounds

The names of Thurlow's glorious dead of the Second World War will be inscribed on the township cenotaph with those heroes of the first conflict, Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., said. "That is right and fitting, but I suggest that something more tangible be done than that. There is a great need in this district for children's playgrounds and what more fitting memorial to the dead could we have than these. With a little cost and some effort they could be established here."

"It is our duty to our children to keep them physically fit," Mr. Robson went on, recalling that in the last war the percentage of men called to the colors who were physically unfit was abnormally high. "Our future lies in our youth. We found that out in the last war when the youth of the country saved us from defeat, and maintained our liberties. We must be ready if and when another war comes — for then we may need a million men."

Urged to Prize Scrolls

He urged the returned veterans to prize the scrolls presented to them. "They will grow in value as time goes on," he said. "Too many of our residents forget this grand old township in which we live; one which has the largest population, the highest assessment and the best roads in Hastings. It has a splendid reeve and council and this is one of the proudest moments of my life to stand here and see Thurlow pay tangible tribute to her sons for what they have done for Canada and the Empire."

Brief addresses were also given by Clerk Brown and Mr. Heaven in appreciation of the gallant services rendered by the sons and daughters of the township. Mr. Stokes, who arrived late, due to another engagement, spoke briefly.

Following the presentation of the scrolls and the cheques replies of appreciation on behalf of the veterans were given by Miss Jean Matthews, Drury Denyes and Morley Akey.

Rubber Dispute Probe Report Made Public

Ottawa, July 2 — (CP)—Criticism of the United Rubber Workers of America (C.I.O.) — Union involved in the current strike in 10 Ontario rubber factories—was expressed by Judge C. A. Cameron of Belleville, Ont., in a report made public last night following his investigation of the dispute.

Judge Cameron, as an industrial disputes commissioner held conferences with the union and employees from May 29 to June 21. The strike, affecting more than 11,000 workers, was called three days later. He listed insistence of the union on industry-wide bargaining as the main stumbling block in reaching agreements.

The report recommended the resumption of negotiations on an individual plant basis and included a basis for discussions. Main points of the commissioner's proposals were wage increase of 8 cents an hour, a 44-hour week and payment of a premium of five cents an hour to night workers. The union's primary demands were a 20-cent increase, 40-hour week and 10-cent night premium.

While the report contained criticism of the union's attitude Judge Cameron found some employers had failed to take advantage of earlier opportunities to reach a settlement.

"Notwithstanding my direction that the negotiations should continue on a plant basis, it is very clear to me that the failure to reach satisfactory agreement was due to overall control of each union by the strategy committee," he reported.

"The bargaining committees had, in effect, handed over full authority to the strategy committee and the evidence clearly showed that even if an offer were made by company representatives, the local bargaining committee had no power to accept it or even to negotiate on it without approval of the strategy committee which was in daily session throughout."

The policy was "unwise and unrealistic" and contrary to the federal labor code which requires both employers and employees to bargain "in good faith."

"On the other hand I think it fair to say that some of the companies have not approached the negotiations in a realistic manner," he said at another point.

"The union's program was presented to the companies more than six months ago and in a number of cases concrete counter-proposals were never made by the management. I am satisfied that a more reasoned approach to the problems involved, rather than a mere rejection in toto of all the requests made, would at that stage have brought about satisfactory results on a plant basis in some cases."

Polish Youngster Carried Grenades For Underground

New York, July 2 (CP)—"They told me my mother was dead. I used to walk along the streets in Warsaw and see all those unmarked graves. I couldn't believe my mother was in one of those graves, that she didn't exist any more."

Fifteen - year - old Barbarka snuggled closer to her "Mummy" and tried hard to keep back the tears that always seem to come when she thinks of those dark days of the underground uprising in Warsaw in August 1944 —and of the even darker days when she was separated from her mother and told she had been killed by the Nazis.

Today, Barbarka and her mother—Irena Orska—are safe and together here, and neither one has quite gotten over what they lived through in Nazi-dominated Poland. Madame Orska tells about part of the horror in her first book, "Silent Is The Vistula" —about comrades killed before her eyes, about long tortuous trips from one underground station to another through putrid city sewers, about hunger and bloodshed, and above all, about the heroic Polish underground and its workers and fighters.

Even the children worked for the underground. When Barbarka was 11 she was carrying packages of hand grenades from one underground post to another. "I wasn't thinking about the danger when it happened," the fair-haired, now chubby youngster says in her remarkably good English (she's been here only one year.) "Almost everybody was doing something—all the members of my Girl Scout troop, too. Only when I saw a German soldier I trembled, and when I came home, sometimes I couldn't sleep at night. Even Mummy didn't know what I was doing."

Blue-eyed Madame Orska interrupted with a stream of Polish Barbarka was astounded. "Well, this is a fine time to tell me," she gasped. "My mother says she did know I was working for the underground. Once a lady came to our home and left some packages for me, and my mother opened them and found hand grenades. But she didn't say anything because she was in the underground too, and nobody was supposed to know what you were doing."

Mother Taken Prisoner.

It was during the last part of the 63-day uprising that Madame Orska was taken prisoner, while Barbarka was with friends.

Was the youngest well taken care of when she was separated from me, "Mummy, my dearest friend"? "I guess I was all right," Barbarka says. "But you see I didn't really care what happened to me. Then they told me my mother was dead and I didn't care about anything after that.

"When I was sent to Camp Pruszkow, I thought again wouldn't it be wonderful if there I found my mother. And when I did find her, it was very strange. I didn't recognize her at first. As I walked up to the gate, I saw someone wearing clothes like my mother's and I told myself there must be many with clothes like hers. Then I saw the woman had short hair, and I knew my mother had long hair. And then I got really close, and I knew it was my mother, and it was wonderful."

Barbarka thinks being in the United States is pretty wonderful, too. She concedes she was "naive" when she first arrived ("I wore pigtails and glasses, and curtsied whenever anyone spoke to me.") But now that she's in school in Philadelphia she's learned "all the slang," bought a ready-made dress, and is sure "I could spend the rest of my life in a department store." While Madame Orska is at work on another book about the Polish underground, Barbarka has it all figured out that she's going to study and become a chemical engineer because "it must be wonderful, all those inventions."

Bikini

Scores of millions, no doubt the greatest audience that ever listened to a broadcast, in many lands across the earth, were able to listen and see with the mind's eye the fourth atomic bomb burst over the ships under test in Bikini atoll on Monday morning (Pacific time) Sunday night (Greenwich time) and late Sunday afternoon according to time in America.

The radio hookup was the most impressive possible, showing the intense interest which everywhere has been shown in this test of the power of the A-bomb. It was enough to make people think more deeply and earnestly than ever to listen to the reports preceding the explosion and to hear the reports after the bomb had done its worst.

While radio audiences did not hear the blast of the bomb the descriptions all united to intensify man's awe of this invention which came in the past year to the notice of the world in the dramatic effect of the two bombings in the two Japanese areas last summer To hear and to read of the devastation caused by the latest bomb, to hear the words of experts that the blast at Bikini was an unqualifed success and to realize that many of the results will be of course maintained in secrecy, was enough to make millions ponder deeply.

The first two explosions of atomic bombs against Japan last summer were world-rocking in their effect upon the minds of men but they learned of it after the devastation. This time man was brought as near as it was possible to bring him so that he was virtually a spectator as he saw through the eyes of trained observers, correspondents and authorities what was occurring. As far as it was possible for the world to have a ringside seat at the dropping of the bomb, it was achieved this week at Bikini.

The world will wait for the report on this bomb. Inventions of the past, great as they were in their effect upon history, as in the use of new weapons from age to age, are dwarfed by this titanic force now harnessed which is the force inherent in nature herself. It is everywhere felt that the supreme need is international control of this terrible force so that it may never be used in war — that no doubt, means that there be no more wars. Terrible as are effects of such a missile as far as present invention goes, lack of control might produce new devices to render the bomb still more terrible and devastating. So man's chief aim is to work for adequate control that will prevent use of this weapon for warfare.

No great audience, no vast amphitheatre was like the audience and this world theatre early this week which saw the explosion in the verbal pictures of observers.

It was the human race that occupied seats at this great test at Bikini.

The world is convinced of the need of international control of atomic energy and will hope and pray that it may soon be achieved.

Chinese Tribute

One of the ambassadors of understanding of peoples is the works of the masters in literature, in painting music and sculpture and the other arts. England produced nearly four hundred years ago an outstanding figure in drama, Shakespeare, whose works are translated into many of the languages of Europe and have held the the stage in many theatres on the continent as the greatest dramas of the ages.

The influence of this great artist in words and in the human heart and knowledge of the human soul is also felt in the Orient, where his dramas have been played.

Now the first Chinese translation of the complete works is nearing completion and the first ten volumes are to be published by Inter-Culture Incorporated in Shanghai. The translator is Prof. Tsao Wei-feng, professor of literature at the National Chekiang University, he having spent the last fifteen years on this task for bringing to the people of China, the great English master's plays with their illustration of life, the social setting of the Western World and their immortal poetry. How deeply this work will impress the Chinese can be seen by the profound impressien his theatre has made on mankind in every land and tongue.

Though he spoke in Enlish, this thoughts and his revelations of human motive and character can be understood in all tongues and by all peoples. He is one of the greatest masters of all time.

Chinese are congratulated in having in the near future the master's works to enrich their lives, their knowledge of the world and to give them a true idea of the English or British attitude towards life and all its problems and bringing to China his matchless poetry. For a Chinese master to spend fifteen years on this task reveals clearly enough how deeply Pro. Tsao Wei-Feng has been touched by the people of Britain and her greatest figure in creative literature.

Holidays Begun

Young Canada is enjoying the first flush of the long midsummer holidays. The season has been ushered in auspiciously with tanning heat and the first real holiday was of course Dominion Day for some school boys and girls had been writing examinations on Friday last. Others without having to pass examinations enjoyed their freedom somewhat earlier. But now all are as free almost as the birds for enjoyment of the best that a Canadian summer can provide in the development of health and of a sane enjoyment of vacation.

Monday the holiday which all Canadians, not only the young who go to school but their elder brothers and sisters and their parents and grandfathers and grandmothers and their uncles and their aunts, delighted in, was ideal in this section. West of hereabouts there was a heavy rainfall but none fell here though the temperature moderated somewhat from the oppressive heat in the afternoon. Elders are able to show the young that they too can enjoy a holiday though it is brief, all too brief being but one was as compared with the two months and more of rest from the labor of study and from attendance in school, that the school population enjoys.

Many thousands of Canadians have begun their vacation in the attractive "wilds" of the country and have become transformed into holidayers. With them have joined many thousands of American tourists coming here on a brief holiday or for a long sojourn near some lake.

It is the first full summer vacation since the war's end and millions are going to enjoy it.

Japan is Learning

With amazing alacrity the Japanese are learning the ways of democratic government.

Masaru Mizono, a Social Democrat, didn't like the way members of the Liberal and Progressive parties were heckling his party leader's criticism of Premier Shigeru Yoshida's speech in the Diet.

Mizono believed that Senzo Higai, speaker of the Diet, should stop such talk. When he failed to do so, Mizono rushed at Higai. What started out as a minor scuffle soon became a free-for-all when other Diet members joined in.

Speaker Higai rang his bell officially adjourning the session.

Now the Social Democrats plan to submit a resolution expressing non-confidence in Higai for failing to control the house after they themselves had started the ruckus.

The Japanese are learning rapidly the fine points of self-government, inconsistencies, contradictions and all. There may be hope for them yet.

ACTRESS ELLEN ELIZABETH

"How are things going?" they question, and I,
"Joyously, speedily!" promptly reply
"Though to start boasting about it I'm loath,
I've seen remarkable symbols of growth.
Five years, just over, and this I can say:
Ellen Elizabeth's been in a play?

"How's that for rapture? In costume and all
A sweet Cinderella dressed up for the ball
Robed as a fairy, with star-studded crown,
The dust of the diamond aglow on her gown;
Lines some great actress no better could say.
Ellen Elizabeth's been in a play!

"The school was crowded for such an event,
And proud were the fathers and mothers who went.
But none in the building was prouder than I
Who watched the performance with tears in their eyes.
For the one who had hoped to be there couldn't stay.
Ellen Elizabeth's been in a play"

50 YEARS AGO

JULY 2ND., 1896.

"A great celebration" was an oft repeated exclamation on the streets of Belleville yesterday and never was an exclamation more justified. Not since the city's inauguration has Canada's natal day been so fittingly celebrated in the City of the Bay. The Peterboro Rangers were welcomed warmly, royally entertained and sent home with a store of happy recollections of their visit. To Lieut. Col. W. N. Ponton and the other officers of the 15th. Battalion, belong the glory of the day, for they planned and carried out the celebration. They had the support and hearty co-operation of the citizens generally and it is satisfactory to note that aside from the social and spectacular success of the event, it was also a financial success. The officers "at home" given by the officers of the 15th. Regiment to the visiting officers at the drill shed, which was handsomely decorated was a brilliant success. This social event took place the night prior to July 1st. The bands of both regiments furnished the music. The guests were received in the officers' quarters by Lieut. Col. Ponton and Adjt. McRae and when they reached the drill hall they were received by Captain Osborne, Captain Vermilyea, Captain Muir, Lieut. Hulme, Lieut. Gibson, Lieut. Conger and Lieut. Carter. The military parade, games, sham battle and cook's parade of the 57th. Battalion, and the fire works on July 1st. were all most entertaining. Hundreds of visitors were in the city for the day.

Need Population Minister Warns

Sydney, Australia, July 2 (CP) —Federal government ministers are sounding warnings that Australia must populate to ensure future security.

The deputy Prime Minister, Mr. Francis Forde, sums up the position in this phrase: "Unless the country is populated it cannot be held."

Mr. Forde points out that Australia, which has now a population of 7,000,000 will otherwise reach a population peak of 8,500,000 in 1980, and will then retrogress and perish.

Immigration Minister Calwell says that immigrants are an essential need to the development of Australia.

He points out that the Commonwealth government has already devised "a bold immigration policy" under which 70,000 will come to Australia each year, but that shipping difficulties are holding up implementation of the program.

Mr. Calwell says it is doubtful whether private shipping companies will be moving more than half the 70,000 migrants provided for in the migration plan by the end of 1947, and that the Commonwealth government may have to build its own ships.

Another plan under consideration by the cabinet is government purchase of victory ships, 20 of which are reported to be lying idle in America.

Collaborate By Mail On Book of Cartoons

Montreal, July 2 (CP) — Two former soldiers, one an officer and the other in the ranks, have combined to turn out a book of cartoons and verses, picturing in a light-hearted yet effective way life in the army as seen by those who served in the ranks.

Entitled "Private Reflections," the book is unusual in that the two principals, Paul H. Zemke, of Montreal, and Len Norris of Toronto, have never met. They collaborated on their publication by mail.

The cartoons, by Norris, depict incidents in the life of the average soldier viewed usually from some humorous angle. Zemke's breezy verses and captions provide the verbal amplification to the drawings.

Zemke composed the verses after completing his basic training at St. John's, Que., and some of them appeared in "Khaki" and other army publications. Norris trained as a motorcycle officer and later was made editor of "Cam" magazine, the official organ of the department of military maintenance.

Zemke is a native of the United States but has made Montreal his home and is married to a Canadian girl. Norris, an Englishman, has lived in Canada since 1926. He is with the Maclean Hunter Publishing Company.

VALIANT NURSE

V-I-T-E SPELLS YOUTH

In a region (Southern India) where milk is not available and the diet of the people is in other respects poor in calcium Drs. W. R. Aykroyd, whose book "Vitamins and Other Dietary Essentials," I have often quoted here, and B. G. Kirshman found that children who were given about ten grains of calcium lactate daily showed greater gains in weight and heigth than children who did not receive the supplement.

There is nearly 12 grains of pure calcium in a quart of milk or in ¼ pound of cheese, or say 30 to 35 grains of the dicalcium phosphate and other calcium salts.

When any calcium salt is given either as medicine or to supplement a calcium-poor diet, only a fraction of the calcium is assimilated, how much depending on various factors, including the intake of vitamin D or the amount of exposure to skyshine the individual enjoys.

Thanks to the constant recommendation of milk as the most nearly perfect food and its preference by health authorities as the ideal beverage for growing children, the calcium shortage is not so widespread in America today as it was a generation ago. However, among the children of the health ignorant masses (and these people are generally not poor in pocket) calcium deficiency is still an everyday condition. Especially is this true where children are allowed to indulge in various carbonated sweetened beverages and, worse still, such stimulants as coffee, tea, cocoa, and chocolate. These foods refresh the poor kids or stimulate them for a brief spurt of energy—then let them down again. While the "lift" lasts the normal appetite or desire for food of course is blunted or lost— so the child fails to get the real food he or she needs to maintain good nutrition and normal growth and development. The sugar in these food items and stimulating beverages is food, of course, but the right way for a child or youth to take sugar is with or as dessert AFTER the more essential food the body requires. Children and youths who indulge in these trick drinks almost inevitably get insufficient vitamins and minerals from their regular diet. As for the drug, caffeine, in coffee, tea, chocolate, cocoa and the kola drinks—most adults may u such stimulants with advantage but in my opinion children under sixteen years of age should not.

The sugar or starch in these food items is of course of the same fuel, caloric or energy value as an equal amount of cane or beet sugar, glucose, dextrose, dextri-maltose or other fancy sugar or pure cornstarch. But foods of this type satisfy the appetite or hunger for the time being, so that the natural appetite or desire for real food is dulled, cloyed or spoiled, and consequently the individual fails to eat enough real, unrefined, natural food to supply the vitamins and minerals which are required to maintain normal nutrition, development, growth, health, vite.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Do persons blind from birth enjoy smoking?

Whether persons who have been blind from birth or for many years enjoy smoking is a controversial question.

Many authorities maintain that a smoker must see the smoke to enjoy tobacco thoroughly.

That a great many blind persons smoke pipes, cigars and cigarettes and enjoy them as much as others do is an estbalished fact, but it is said that as a rule persons who have been blind from birth or for many years get very little satisfaction from smoking unless they inhale.

This, if true, seems to indicate that the pleasure derived from smoking is dependent much more on sight and much less on taste and smell than is generally supposed.

A normal person generally does not enjoy smoking in the dark as much as he does in the light, and this is particularly true if he cannot see the fire or smoke of his pipe, cigar or cigarette. It is not uncommon for a person smoking in the dark to continue to pull on his pipe long after it has gone out. Apparently the imaginary smoke gives him as much enjoyment as real smoke would. Any smoker can easily test this in a limited way by smoking with his eyes closed. Not infrequently on a cold day, when a person can "see his breath," a smoker will continue to puff on a pipe, cigar or cigarette that has gone out without his being aware of the fact, the visible vapor from his breath creating a perfect illusion of smoke.

Many persons, though very particular about the brands of tobacco they use, are unable to distinguish between different brands when blindfolded.

A person who has been blind from birth generally must develop a keener sense of smell and taste for tobacco fumes if he desires to enjoy smoking. Generally blind smokers not only inhale but they smoke more rapidly than normal persons do.

EXPLORER FOUND HAMILTON'S SITE TOO SWAMPY

Written for The Canadian Press by A. D. Steubing.

Hamilton, July 1 (CP) — This municipality which celebrates its 100th. anniversary of incorporation as a city July 1 to 7, actually has a longer-dating history than that. As a matter of fact this is the second centennial the Mountain City has celebrated in less than 40 years.

Old-timers are still a bit puzzled about the current centennial celebrations. For they remember 1913, when Hamilton celebrated its first centennial. In that year, it was the observance of the founding of the community and its incorporation as a police village. It wasn't until 1846 with a population slightly in excess of 6,000 that Hamilton became a city.

The city can also lay claim to a tercentenary. In the early 1600's the French explorer Robert de La Salle first sailed into Hamilton's land-locked bay. It is recorded that one of La Salle's associates regarded it as a poor discovery. It had a wonderful harbor, he said, but the fog-bound marshes of the shore doomed it to remain forever a swamp.

The site remained in its aboriginal state for more than 100 years when a party of United Empire Loyalists sought sanctuary under the crown, following the American revolution. By 1791 when the first survey was made 31 settlers with their families were living at the head of Lake Ontario.

Settled by Refugees.

The community remained a huddle of small holdings at the head of the lake until the war of 1812, when George Hamilton moved to the district from Niagara-on-the-Lake to escape the pressing United States forces. He obtained a tract of land which now forms the heart of the city's commercial and financial districts and subdivided his holdings to provide land for other war refugees. The little community that grew up in this area was incorporated in the second year of the war as a police village and Hamilton gave it his name.

That war narrowly missed Hamilton, when General Vincent's forces won a daring victory over the Americans at Stoney Creek.

The community's geographical location made it a hub for rail, road and water traffic, and by the time of its incorporation as a city it was already a thriving industrial community.

The introduction of hydro-electric power by overland transmission from DeCew Falls, 35 miles away, at a time when such an authority as Lord Kelvin said it couldn't be done, was another step in Hamilton's rise to prominence.

United States industry, looking for Canadian locations, soon began to pick Hamilton. Today the city, although only fifth in population and seventh in metropolitan area, is third in industry in Canada.

FOR THEM ... AN Ontario Holiday!

Roughing it in the wilds or basking in the luxury of a summer hotel ... whatever their choice, lots of our friends from the States enjoy vacations in Ontario's northland. We can all give them a real welcome, when they come ... make them want to return, year after year.

WHAT CAN I DO? The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman:

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up—follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS ... it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! The province of Ontario profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.

This diagram shows how everyone benefits from the Ontario tourist income. Every dollar is shared in this way ... 1. Hotels; 2. Stores; 3. Restaurants; 4. Taxes, etc.; 5. Amusements; 6. Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them ... we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday ... so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

WEDDINGS

MAY—MOORE

3rd Sidney.—A lovely wedding took place on Saturday, June 15, in the Tofield United Church, when Hazel E. Moore, became the bride of Mr. Ivan F. May, of Belleville, Ont.

The church was profusely decorated with baskets of peonies, white lilacs and pink carnations. The guest pews were marked with clusters of June rosebuds, tied with bows of white satin ribbon.

The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Stinson. The bridesmaid, Miss Audrey Moore, sister of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of blue net and lace, with shoulder-length veil of the same color. She carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations. Preceding the bride came a tiny couple, the flower girl, Yvonne Blake, cousin of the bride, in toe-length sheer, carrying an old-fashined bouquet, and Glen Moore, little brother of the bride, in white satin coat, and black trousers, bearing the wedding ring on a white satin cushion.

The bride followed with her father, wearing a white satin, floor-length gown, with close-fitting bodice, and sweetheart neckline, with lily-point sleeves, and full gathered skirt. Her flowing veil, delicately embroidered, was fashioned with Mary Stuart headdress. She carried deep red roses and white gladioli, and wore a pearl necklace, gift of the groom.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Vernon May, and the ushers were Alfred Lovell and Jack Francis, cousins of the bride. The bride's mother chose for her daughter's wedding, a blue floral jersey dress with navy accessories.

Measuring Effect Of Atomic Blast

(The following was written in anticipation of the dropping of the Bikini Bomb.)

By EDWIN MISURELL
ntral Press Staff Writer

crushing quiet born of ness and expectancy weighs ily on everyone. Scattered wide and high, in ships and s, thousands of men who worked long, tedious months rd this moment wait for a signal to be radioed.

e huge B-29 Superfortress ying the atom bomb is wing- toward the target in Bikini on. Two minutes before it hes it, the tone signal comes. lic address systems aboard surface and air craft an- nce "Minus two minutes!" e curtain rises on man's ba of the century—of all cen- s—"Operation Crossroads!" lowly, maddeningly, the sec- s drag along. The tone sig- l stops as the address systems pe: "Minus 15 seconds!"

high in the air near Bikini, B-29's bmobardier tersely an- nces: "Bombs away." As it d toward its orange-painted tleship target below, the huge e soars past the atoll.

he bomb explodes with a ding, deafening roar. Hund- s of cameras, operating at a of thousands of photos a nd, start to click. On the d, radio-controlled ground eras atop 75-foot steel tow- photograph the white hot . High above the lagoon and rounding it, radio-controlled lcat and Avenger planes take ures of the explosion, cloud, target area from every con- able angle with a wide var- of still and movie cameras.

s the huge lethal cloud bil- s and mushrooms skyward, pilotless Superforts move rd it. From 25,000 feet down to 10,000, they fly along its outer fringes taking radioactivity measurements with Geiger counters. Other army drone planes, fitted with television transmitters, record and analyze the effect of detonation waves on the operation of aircraft.

Navy drone units from the carrier Shangri-La, fitted with velocity, gravity, time and altitude recorders, move through the sky close to the blast gathering scientific data.

Aboard the ships in the lagoon, instruments record the shock Standard strain and displacement gauges of many varieties record structural and equipment damage. The bomb's force is measured by a more unscientific device—empty five gallon gasoline cans riveted on to decks. Blast pressure will be determined when examination discloses just how much of the tin is crushed.

Meanwhile, as the heat and radioactivity of the blast begin to dissipate, radio-controlled boats, guided by Avenger planes from the Shangri-La, begin to enter the lagoon. They pick up water samples and then are guided back to their "mother" ships.

On the islands around the atoll, seismographs register the development of shock waves through the earth and the effect they have on the coral atoll's geological structure.

A good distance from the blast area, supersonic echo sounders measure the vertical motion of target ships and buoys. At the ocean bottom, special instruments record water depths at frequent intervals by means of hydraulic pressure.

Two hours after the explosion, two Marine bombers fly in over Bikini at 1,000 feet. They make a series of passes at 90 degrees to the wind, covering the area over the lagoon. As soon as they find the atmosphere safe at 1,000 feet, they drop to 500 feet and repeat their flights.

An hour later, two helicopters survey the air over the entire lagoon from 500 feet down to the surface. One drops low and picks up a sample of water as the other hovers over the atoll and gathers a sample of soil.

Meanwhile, surface craft, which had started moving toward Bikini at the exact moment of the blast, begin to reach the lagoon. A destroyer comes across the entrance of the seaward side to pick up a water sample. It moves slowly, keeping a careful watch on a Geiger counter to prevent radioactive water being ter the explosion, six gunboats steam in, two on the downwind drawn into its engines.

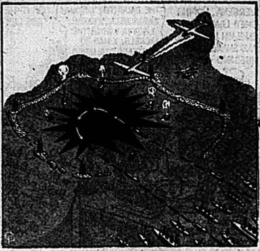
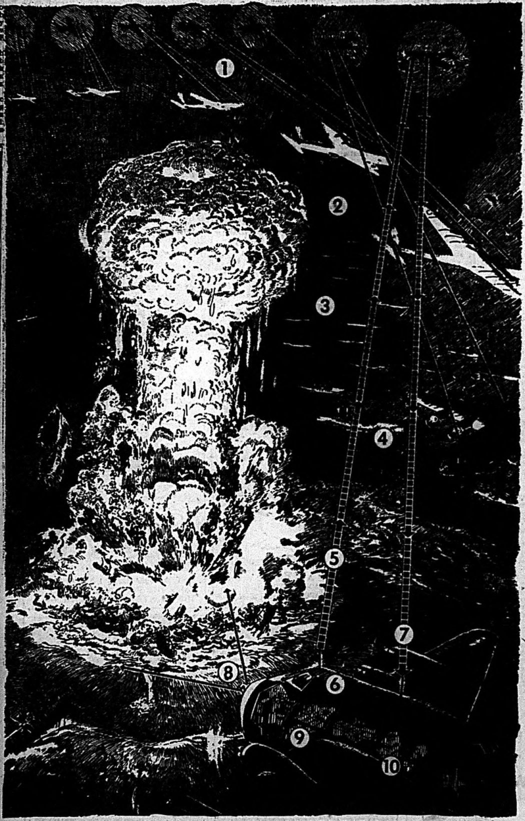
Approximately four hours af- side, two on the upwind side, and two toward the detonation point. They signal back to the radiological safety centre on the "Crossroads" flagship, the U.S.S. Mount McKinley, that certain areas are safe. Landing craft steam toward the central target. On the landing craft are boarding inspection teams accompanied by one or two scientists on these teams will decide whether the ships in the lagoon are safe to board.



Immediately after the blast, radio-controlled B-29's will take radioactivity measurements. Later, helicopters will take water and soil samples. Drone boats will enter the lagoon and pick up water samples.



The dramatic and hazardous sk of recording the results of peration Crossroads is graphcally illustrated in the Above etailed drawing by Artist Louis iedermann. (1) Piloted control r "mother" planes fly 30,000 et above sea level, directing unmanned "drone" planes by radio. (2) Congressmen, newspapermen, representatives of foreign nations and other distinguished observers view experiment from ships 20 miles away. This drawing shows the cloud of radioactive smoke, steam and extraneous matter which rose when the atom bomb was set off over Bikini Lagoon. High-speed cameras recorded every phase of the cloud which the Joint Army-Navy Task Force One believes ascended over 60,000 feet, according to the chart which they prepared.

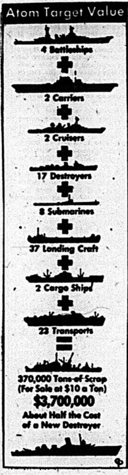
Atom Target Value



Although the target ships used at Bikini were in service during the war, most would have been relegated to the scrap heap. Their scrap value is $3,700,000.

Wartime Corvettes Will Carry Food

Hamilton, July 2 (CP) — Veterans of the Battle of the Atlantic, seven Canadian corvettes will soon head back over the ocean waters they so often prowled in search of enemy submarines.

But, as they depart on this last voyage, these ships of the Canadian Navy will no longer be recognizable as corvettes. They will be bound for Europe as 'tin cans' — metal containers packed with life-saving foods for starving millions.

The ships, purchased recently by the Dominion Foundries and Steel Company from War Assets Corporation, are being torn down and their steel plates melted and re-rolled for peacetime use. High speed automatic machines are turning the former corvettes into sanitary metal containers at the rate of 20,000 an hour on each manufacturing line.

In their steel hulls and deck plates, according to the American Can Company, which turns out millions of food cans each year, there is material for enough cans to provide food for a city the size of Three Rivers, Quebec, or Vitcoria, B.C., for a year. It is estimated the corvettes contain enough metal for 62,000,000 cans, enough to provide 43,000 persons with one can of milk, meat, fruit and vegetables each and every day for a year. Laid end to end, the cans would form, literally, a pipeline of food 4,500 miles long — a distance almost from Halifax to Greece.

The ships are being dismantled in Hamilton Bay after having been moved up the St. Lawrence River, and through Lake Ontario. First to be torn down is H.M.C.S. Brandon, whose fine war record included many thrilling encounters in the Atlantic. Others awaiting salvage are: H.M.C.S. Forest Hill, Galt, Chilliwack, Quesnel, Dawson and Vancouver.

Correspondents Now Librarians

Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., July 2 (CP) — Twenty girls who wrote to merchant seamen on all seven seas during the war now are helping to bring the romance of far-off places to this community through books.

When the Allied Post Club of Fort Qu'Appelle—affiliated with the Allied Post of Montreal sponsored by Princess Alice — was disbanded, the girls decided to continue as a group and form a town library.

To obtain funds they sponsored dances and their financial standing leaped when they won a $50 prize for their float in a sports day parade.

BASEBALL RULES

A FAIRLY DELIVERED BALL

A fairly delivered ball is a ball that the pitcher throws to the baseman while he (the pitcher) is standing in his correct pitching position facing the batter. The ball must pass over any part of the home plate, not lower than the batter's knees nor higher than his shoulders. The ball must not touch the ground. The umpire shall call one strike for every fairly delivered ball.

If there are no runners on base and the pitcher throws a ball, with his foot off the pitchers' slab and the batter swings at the illegal pitch, it will count either as a strike or whatever play that may result.

Phillies Just Another Team To Dodgers Who Keep Pecking Away to Increase Margin

Brooklyn Has Won Six Straight and Hold Lead of 6½ Games

By RALPH RODEN
Associated Press Sport Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies' surge out of the National League cellar and their threatened movement into the first division has gained popular appeal throughout the country. But to the pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers they look like the Phillies of old.

Winners of 20 out of their last 29 decisions, the Phils came into Brooklyn riding a bandwagon that included practically everybody with the notable exception of Lippy Leo Durocher and his battling crew. The Bums lost no time in casting their dissenting votes.

In the first inning at Ebbets Field before 31,913 of the Flatbush faithful last night they ended whatever dreams manager Ben Chapman's aggregation had of gaining their first triumph of the year over the Brooks by blasting Art Lopatko and Tommy Hughes for six runs. Brooklyn continued its blitz with three markers in the second and two more in the fifth to pile up an 11-2 lead and allow Hank Behrman to coast to an 11-6 victory.

The win was the Dodgers' 6th straight and stretched their first place margin over the St. Louis Cardinals to 6½ games as the Red Birds bowed, 5-4 to Cincinnati Reds in 13 innings.

Benny Zientara scampered home from third base with the Reds' winning run in the fourth extra frame.

Sewell Blanks Cubs

Rip Sewell made it two shutout victories in succession for the Pirates by blanking Chicago Cubs, 1-0 on four hits. Two of the safeties allowed by the blooper ball expert were doubles by Stan Hack.

Billy Cox romped in with the only tally of the battle in the second frame when he tripled and scored on Lou Stringer's boot of Bill Salkeld's grounder. The triumph enabled the Pirates to move into seventh place, a half game in front of the idle New York Giants.

In a twilight game before 17,528 fans at Detroit, Virgil (Fire) Trucks of the Tigers whitewashed Chicago White Sox 2-0, to post his ninth conquest of the year.

Jittery Joe Berry, purchased early yesterday by Cleveland Indians from Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, celebrated the occasion by gaining credit for Cleveland's 6-4 triumph over St. Louis browns and batting in what proved to be the winning run.

New York Yankees downed the Giants 3-0 in an exhibition game at the Polo Grounds. Boston Red Sox, Boston Braves, Philadelphia Athletics and Washington Senators were not scheduled.

HOLIDAY HANGOVER

Back from the cool breezes of Lake Ontario; mellow sunshine, well-drilling mosquitoes, golden butter, fresh green peas, snowy new spuds, palatable garnishings for lamb chops and thick steaks, and what happens. Slap bang into as exciting a game of mushball as one could wish to see, if he likes that sport embellished with umpire baiting, hot-blooded fans, argumentative players, plenty of hits and runs, and the immediate danger of getting a sock in the teeth by lady fans who take their summer sports seriously.

Next time these Army and Navy Flashes and the Point Anne squads tangle on the softball diamond don't miss it. There will be plenty of excitement if last night's game between these teams down at Ox Point, where the villagers copped a 10-9 count after leading 8-0 in the fifth, from Frank Sedore's gaily-apparelled young "old sweats", is an example.

The rivalry between these teams, it seems, is getting keener with every game, and it wouldn't be surprising if the boys have to call out the militia or sumpin, to keep the boys and gals in order, especially if the umpiring is open to the least bit of criticism.

As it stands, the teams appear to be evenly matched — and anything can happen. It did last night. The Ox Pointers pummelled Steve Hook, Flashes' starting chucker for six runs and seven hits until he was relieved in the fourth by Rexie Young. In fairness to Hook, it must be said, his mates kicked the gong around in the field and that didn't help the tall hurler's cause any. In the meantime to the jubilation of the Ox Point fans, who turn out en masse for the games, and woe betide the bloke or gal who says anything against their team, their heroes were whittling away at the Flashes hurlers and by the time the fifth chukker rolled around, the Loft gang had the ex-soldiers apparently hog-tied, straight-jacketed, drawn and quartered, and it looked as though the local public accountant would have to be called in to get some idea of the score.

Then things started to happen. Whether Maestro Sedore injected his maroon and yellows with DDT, or if a new squadron of mosquitoes equipped with pitchforks in their kissers arrived on the scene and parked on the Flashes bench, or whether the gang were just plain mad will never be known, but they sprang to sudden life and started to lambast the offerings of M'Sieu Pat Maracle, classy Ox Point chucker about the fifth innings.

To start the proceedings, Tim Williams drew a bead on a Maracle shoot; signalled to three pals who were draped over 1st, 2nd and 3rd bases respectively to take off; leaned heavily on the pill and smote it to deep centre. The Ox Point fielders made a valiant attempt to get the apple but it got away and the Flashes raced home in packets of two with Timmy bringing up the rear. Two more runs were scored before the fans swallowed their tonsils and breathed freely again.

It was one of those games that had everything. And if you think an umpire's life is a merry one — try it some time. Both squads verbally belabored the luckless one behind the plate at intervals, with the fans throwing in plenty of extra for good measure. Anyway a good time was had by all. But don't miss the next fray between these squads.

Coach Matthews, the "Ole Moose" of the Trenton Flyers, hasn't lost that batting eye. The grey-thatched veteran of many a baseball battle came through with a ringing triple off Hall, Latta lefthander at the Alemite Field last night to score two mates ahead of him and win another pastime 5-3 for his diamond boys in air force blue.

A minute or two later the "Moose" hurled his 235 pounds, more or less across the plate in a perfect slide for the third run of the inning while a disappointed Latta catcher gazed with chagrin at a dropped ball. The game was anybody's pastime up to this point with Wade, RCAF chucker and Hall, breezing along nicely.

Tonight should see a genuine "game of the season" (They tell us, we had the wrong seasoning on the last one so called) when the RCAF Flyers tangle with Speedy St. Louis Kiwanis Juniors at the Fair Grounds. Matthews will likely start his ace "Paddy" Sheehan, while St. Louis will throw in Bunton, or Kelleher, no dope as yet. In any event, if both teams are in top form, it should be a pastime that all baseball fans should see. Starts 6:30, thereabouts.

Still Going Strong

And while on the subject of baseball, we note by a clipping in the sports box stall that Tommy Pointer, former southpaw star of Belleville and Napanee teams is still going strong. The tall hurler flung a pitching gem at the Newcastle nine the other day striking out 13 and allowing one lone hit in the six innings he pitched. His team, the Port Hope Intermediates, have yet to taste the schooner of defeat this year, winning four and tying one in their five starts. Looks as if "Long" Tom, who holds a strikeout record in this neck of the woods, is, like the turkey, improving with age.

There was a priceless spot of unconscious humor at the Flashes-Point Anne game last night. A young six-year old fan lay near the edge of the back-stop. He weathered the storm of argument—umpire-gouging, fan grousing and cheering for four or five innings. After a particularly heavy argument in which both umps, both masterminds, practically all the players, the coaches and a few spectators had taken part, had subsided, and it looked as though the mushball atomic bomb had petered out the young hopeful raised his chin from his fist, and remarked to all and sundry. "Seems to be a heluva lot of excitement to this game."

Questions and Answers Dept.—Buckley's: — Schmeling fought Jack Sharkey on June 12, 1930 in New York city. The bout, which drew a gross of $749,935 and attendance of 79,222 would up in wild disorder, with Schmeling gaining the decision because of a foul delivered in the 4th round, although the award was not made until the bell had rung for the 5th which was never fought.

The referee and one judge did not see the blow landed but the other judge claimed it did — and the ref. took his word for it and awarded the German the nod. Meanwhile the ring swarmed with managers and seconds for both fighters, each demanding a ruling in favor of his particular fighter.

WILLIAMS POLES A HOMER WITH BASES LOADED

Hit Not Sufficient for A. & N. Flashes to Defeat Point Anne

Tim Williams, Army and Navy Flashes shortstop, realized a softball player's dream at Point Anne Monday night when he poled out a home run with three of his mates aboard the sacks. But it wasn't enough and Phil Loft's Ox Pointers took the long end of a 10-9 score after the smoke of base hits and argument had cleared away.

The Flashes' ninth inning bid for victory was shortlived but they managed to score one run to get within a single counter of the tie when Rex Young, their relief hurler pounded out a double to score on Moon's long fly. But Pat Maracle, the Point's Indian hurling star easily disposed of the next two batters to salt the game away.

The game was a rabid affair with feeling running high among the spectators, plenty of umpire baiting and both squads breaking out in scoring rashes.

Maracle was touched for thirteen hits throughout the nine inning affair, four of them, including Williams' homer, being clustered in the 5th. He was wild at times, however and issued 9 walks all told, striking out six.

Lasted Until Fourth

Steve Hook started on the mound for Flashes, and he lasted until the fourth with one out when Rex Young relieved him. Hook was touched for seven hits for seven runs, aided by three of his mates' errors. Young allowed six hits and four runs over the remainder of the route.

The Ox Pointer whittled away at the Flashes' hurlers' offerings and at the end of the fourth it seemed to be a question of "how many" with the home town gang leading 8-0.

But in the fifth the Sedore crew came to battling life. Young drew a walk, Ronski hit and Moon got on, on the attempted putout of the second baseman. Then came Williams' round tripper and the sacks were cleaned. Howard Reid poled out another hit. Leo Goyer strolled, Mallory went out and Frank Murray drove in two runs with a neat single to end the six-run scoring.

Short One Run

Point Anne got a run in the 7th and 8th as Flashes came back with two more in the latter innings to creep within two runs of the home team. The best they could do was one in the ninth and there it ended.

Howard Reid paced the vets' attack with a triple, double a single, although he went out tr ing to stretch the former into home run. Frank Murray a Vern Goyer added a pair each.

Nicky Sero was the batti hero for the Pointers getting thr hits, one a triple. Murhey Gre got a double and two singles did Berny Bennett. Genereau came through handsomely with single and a triple.

DAWES BLACK HORSE BREWERY

Lesson No. 1826.
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Make it easy on your partner in a bridge game. If you are giving him a signal, make it as plain as you can. If possible, make it stand up and smack him between the eyes.

The discard of a high card is a signal that you want that suit led again. Usually any card higher than a six is enough for that purpose. And even a six used if no higher card is handy.

But suppose you have two high cards that you can afford to discard for such a signal. In that case, don't skimp on the spots. Discard first the highest one you can cough up.

To you, it may not seem important whether your discard is the higher or the lower of two available high ones. But it is more likely to draw partner's attention and less likely to leave him in doubt.

Against three no-trump, the hearts in a deal are as shown here:

WEST ♥K Q 10 5
EAST ♥A 8 7 4

SOUTH
♥J 9 2

Your partner in the west starts out with an opening lead of the heart king. You have the ace. So, you know he must have started with a sequence of K Q J or K Q 10.

You are, of course anxious to have him continue that suit. To tell him so, you must give him an encouraging signal. Such a signal would be the discard of a six or higher.

The discard of a seven is a come-on signal. Usually, it is good enough for the purpose of asking partner to continue leading that suit. But an eightspot as a discard is better.

If you discard the seven, partner may have a worry. When south plays the deuce, it may look like a trap with A J still in the south hand. Players have been known to pull such clever things.

As long as you can spare it, discard your eightspot. It takes most of the guess out of it for your partner. Rout any doubt.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 2 — (AP) — The motion picture industry is now undergoing a revolution which may prove as important as the introduction of sound. This is the era of the independent producer and the free-lance star.

There was a time when Hollywood actors feared becoming free-lance artists. It meant they were on the skids and no studio would risk paying them every Thursday. But not so today.

Today's free-lancers include Ingrid Bergman, Claudette Colbert, Joel McCrea, Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, John Garfield, Ginger Rogers, Henry Fonda, Walter Huston, Joan Fontaine, Myrna Loy, Frederic March, Ronald Colman, James Stewart, Loretta Young, James Cagney, Edward G. Robinson, Hedy Lamarr and Joan Crawford. These could hardly be called has-beens..

The big names are doing their best to steer clear of long-term contracts. Those who have them now are trying to wrangle permission for pictures outside of their studios. Clark Gable is currently battling M.G.M. for such a deal. He has been turning down script after script. And what can Metro do — fire Gable?

The reason for the exodus from the big companies is two-fold:

1. A free-lance artist makes more money on a one-picture deal than he could ever make on contract.

2. The actor can sometimes cut himself in on a percentage of the gross of a picture he makes for an independent.

There are more than 30 independent producers prospering in Hollywood today. Many of them are smart businessmen, new to the industry. Banks are apparently more than willing to lend 60-70 per cent of the cost of a picture if they can show they have a story, the stars and studio space.

R. C. A. F. FLYERS DEFEAT LATTA BY 5-3 COUNT

'Moose' Mathews Hits Triple to Score Two and Break up Ball Game

"Moose" Matthews' towering seventh-innings triple with two aboard, broke up a closely-fought game at the Alemite Field Monday night, and enabled the Trenton Flyers to trot off the field with a 5-3 win over the Latta nine in a City District Baseball League holiday fixture.

Up to this point the teams had battled fairly evenly with Wade, tall air force righthander doing mound duty for the RCAF and Hall, Latta southpaw doing the flinging chore for the home team.

The service lads took a one-run lead in the first innings and added another in the third. Latta came back with a single in the fourth innings and tied up the pastime in the sixth when Chapman's timely single sent "Red" Carson galloping across the plate.

Put Game in Bag

The "Moose" put the game in the bag for the air "crew" in the seventh. Wade, first man up, beat out an easy bunt and Cox drew a life when a Hall fast one nicked him on the arm. White went out when the Latta second baseman elected to throw to first and the runners advanced. Matthews hoisted a lofty triple to first and the runners advanced. Matthews hoisted a lofty triple to deep left centre and both runners scored. The Moose counted the third run of the innings seconds later when he scored on Lee's fielders choice.

Both Go Route

'Latta made their last bid for victory in the same innings. Rogers drove home Tim Williams, who had singled ahead of him, with none out. Wade settled down and retired the next two batters, but Colden smashed out another only to get run down between first and second on an attempted steal.

Both pitchers went the route with Wade allowing eight hits and striking out six. Hall was nicked for ten safeties and whiffed a half dozen. Matthews and Wade got two hits each for the winners with Colden and Rogers each getting a brace for Latta.

Stratford Nationals may not be burning up the Senior Intercounty Baseball League but they proved they have the answer to the pace-setting London Majors when they beat the Majors 5-0 on Saturday and repeated yesterday 6-4. The Majors' only three defeats of the year have all come from the Nats.

Stratford dropped a 14-3 decision to Waterloo yesterday morning and Galt beat Guelph 7-1. A Waterloo at Kitchener tilt was postponed by rain to round out yesterday's intercounty games. Kitchener edged out Galt 5-3 on Saturday.

Saturday's games in the Senior Niagara District Loop saw Niagara Falls, N.Y., Kimberley-Clarks Beat Welland Atlas Steels 2-1 and Niagara Falls Houcks down Merriton-Thorold Tormers 9-1. In the Temiskaming League Kirkland Lake continued their winning ways by shutting out Porcupine Combines 3-0.

Langton turned back Ingersoll 5-3 and Preston beat Woodstock 8-4 in Intercounty intermediate games yesterday. In the junior division Kitchener Rangers edged out Galt 5-4 then shut out Stratford 11-0 while St. Thomas beat Woodstock 7-0.

"TOAR MORGAN" MEETS HENNING HERE FRIDAY

George Temple, Brother of Shirley, Same Name, Visits Belleville for First Time

Toar Morgan, popular ex-Marine who drew some of the largest "gates" this city has ever had at a wrestling match, will be back in Belleville for Friday's main bout at the Arena.

Big Toar has agreed to come in and trade slugs and grips with Larrupin' Lee Henning, the Iowa Blond Bomber who disposed of Sliding Billy Hanson here two weeks ago.

When Morgan married a couple of years ago, he picked a Lindsay girl and has lived in the Scugog centre off and on between his world-wide wrestling trips. Just back for some summer holidaying and in the pink of condition, Toar agreed to the Henning match after he heard of the way big Lee has been throwing his weight around in these parts. "Why" said Morgan, "Belleville is almost a home town to me and that big lug from the Corn State has to be stopped. I hear he's boasting that after finishing off Hansen he figures he can beat any of us. Well I'll give him a perfect chance on Friday but I guarantee he'll muff it".

Well, that's Friday's main bout, but there's a special treat in store for the fans besides the Henning-Morgan battle. In what he calls a "special extra feature" Manager Walter Gerow will have Jan Gotch the mad Pole meeting Geo. Temple Jr. Temple is not only the present United States Marine Corp champion but of course he is also widely known on account of being the big brother of screen actress Shirley Temple.

Temple, who is as handsome and smooth as one would expect of the brother of the beautiful Shirley, is as tough as whalebone and knows all the wrestling answers as he proved when he beat big Pat Fraley in Maple Leaf Gardens last week. The good-looking lad from the famous Hollywood family has been packing them in everywhere.

AUSTIN WATKIN, G. HYDE WINS ROBERTSON CUP

Youthful Bowlers of Local Bowling Club Show Way to Older and More Experienced

Austin Watkin and Gerald Hyde, a pair of youthful bowlers from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club won the Robertson Cup emblematic of the champion doubles for the district here on the holiday, when they defeated one of the best fields that has ever gone to the post in this annual tournament. The boys, one a first-year bowler and the other, who had his bowling interrupted by a bigger game of war, took on all comers and won four straight games and finished with a score of 65 plus nine. A beautiful pair of blankets were given the winners along with the trophy.

The Fish trophy secondary feature of the tournament was won by James Armitage and James Archer of Campbellford, with a score of 60 and this pair also received blankets. Mr. Armitage has been bowling for 51 years and in accepting the trophy for him and his partner stated he had thoroughly enjoyed his day and was always ready to come to Belleville for any tournament. A father and son combination, Cyril McBride and his son, Doug McBride, who both served in the war won the three-game high with a total of 68 plus eight and were recipients of a basket of groceries each. The high two-game was won by A. J. Rendell and P. Stover, of Deseronto, with a total of 59 while the one-game high was won by T. Livingston and Walter Elliott of Stirling, with a 49 plus five. These prize winners were also given groceries.

President George Pauley thanked the visitors for their attendance and hoped they had a successful and enjoyable day. He suggested that the holiday tournament be opened to the ladies with a basket picnic for good measure. He also thanked Doug Row, Raymond Zufelt and Cyril McBride for their successful handling of the details of the tourney. Twenty-eight teams played in the tournament with rinks from Belleville, Campbellford, Trenton, Stirling, Deseronto and Brighton in attendance. The greens were in splendid condition and ideal for play.

GEORGE FAZIO WINS PLAYOFF FROM DICK METZ

Los Angeles Golfer Wins Canadian Open Collecting Seagram Cup and $2,000

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Beaconsfield Golf Club, Que., July 2 — (CP) — Except for the breathless gallery it looked like just another match between two good golfers — but on the 18th hole $600 hung on a 15-foot putt.

The setting was the play - off between George Fazio of Los Angeles and Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kans. for the Canadian Open golf championship. These two finished the 72-hole medal grind Sunday night deadlocked with scores of 278, tops among the 130-odd entrants who started the long grind Thursday.

Fazio's long, carefully played putt trickled lazily into the cup, and the pro from the Hillcrest Country Club of Los Angeles walked off with the first prize money of $2,000 and the Seagram gold cup. Metz collected $1,400.

Fazio's 18-hole play-off medal score was 70. Metz was 71.

Three others had tied for third Sunday with scores of 279. They split the third, fourth and fifth cash awards, each receiving a cheque for $816.66. They were Harry Todd of Dallas, Texas, Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and Stan Leonard of Vancouver.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., wound up with 280 and took the sixth place prize money, $550.

Brydson Gets $425

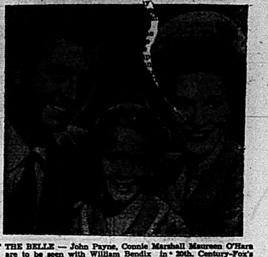
The other top placers in the tournament were two at 281 — Gordon Brydson of Toronto and Ellsworth Vines of Chicago who collected $425 each — two at 282, Ed Oliver of Chicago and Ed Furgol of Pontiac, Mich., who took $325 each, and two at 283, Vic Ghezzi of Knoxville, Tenn., and Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., who each collected $230.

Along the first playoff nine Fazio appeared to have been finished. Metz played confidently and scattered five birdies along the way. He was out in a sparkling 32, four under par. Fazio took a 35.

On the home nine Metz ran into trouble and Fazio's game sharpened after he dropped another stroke on the 11th. He cut Metz' lead to two by scoring birdies on the 13th and 14th. They both went over par by one on the 15th.

The 16th was Metz' undoing, the the hole that cost him the title, as he admitted afterwards. There his approach caught a trap. He flubbed the next and finally got down in six, while Fazio was scoring a birdie three with a 20-foot putt.

Fazio increased his lead to two strokes with a birdie two on the 17th and there didn't seem much left until the unexpected thriller on the 18th.



AT THE BELLE — John Payne, Connie Marshall Maureen O'Hara are to be seen with William Bendix in 20th. Century-Fox's "Sentimental Journey." Credited with being one of the most unusual love stories ever to come to the screen, the film is now on the Belle screen.

Palermo Wins Canadian Derby At Winnipeg

By WALLY HILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, July 2 (CP)—Palermo, a brown colt, wore the Canadian Derby crown at a jaunty angle. The three-year-old won the honor yesterday at Polo Park before more than 16,000 persons,, by winning the Canadian Derby and its $5,000 added purse for his owner, Dan Kennedy, well-known Canadian golfer.

Given just a fair chance, the colt, by Sweepster out of Manataria, running under the colors of the Charleswood Stable, Winnipeg, surprised the dopesters by defeating the favorite, Yorkton, from the K. and K. Stable, Winnipeg, by eight lengths in the 1 1-4-mile classic. Time for the event was 2:29 over a muddy track, far behind the record set in 1929 by Shasta Sheik of 2:07 4-5.

Kennedy bought the colt at the dispersal sale of the late H. C. Hatch, famous eastern breeder. Palermo pointed to his victory yesterday by winning his first race here, a seven-furlong go by six lengths, June 21.

Palermo, given a splendid ride by jockey Ray Nielsen, lay back in the first half but spurted into a six lengths lead rounding the stretch coming home and won in a breeze.

By virtue of the win Palermo enriched its owner by $5,160. He paid $1.10, $3.20 and $2.10 across the board.

[illegible]y Vernon of Washington [illegible] saw his 17-point American League lead of a week ago slip to a narrow three-point margin as he dropped from .367 to .358 while thumping Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox was boosting his mark from .350 to .355.

HEARTBREAK

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 13

Helen Meade greeted them with a smile, leading the way upstairs to the room Donna had inspected the night before. The walls were papered in quaint garlands of pale yellow roses, Donna's favorite flower. The furniture was heavily carved mahogany but the gay satin comforter and fragil lace spread gave it an air of graceful elegance. There was a dressing table with a full length mirror, a desk and a chest of drawers. There were bookshelves painted white, invitingly empty. There was even an old-fashioned photograph of John Meade and Vanya in a long tight skirt holding baby Donna in her arms.

"I thought you might like to have it," Helen explained. "There is a whole box of old photographs you may want to see in the storeroom."

Donna looked from the petulant childish face in the photograph to the smiling gray haired woman who was her father's present wife.

"I think you are the kindest person I've ever known," she said.

The bathroom opening into Donna's bedroom was small but adequate.

"At least it's all your own," Helen said. "And there's a stall shower down the hall if you prefer it. By the way, Donna, will you be home for dinner tonight? Hip wants to know."

"Not tonight. I already had an engagement."

"That's quite all right, my dear! There is only one meal I hope you will always arrange to have with us. Your father plays golf early Sunday mornings but returns for a noon breakfast. It's his favorite hour of the week and I cook it myself since that is Hip's day off."

Donna promised and her stepmother left her to dress for her date with Carl. Never had Donna looked forward to an evening more eagerly. She wanted to share her happiness with him but in spite of her anticipation it did not go well from the moment she found him waiting in the diginified, high ceilinged living room.

Carl greeted her self-consciously as if he thought they were being watched. He did not sound natural until they were in his car then staring up at the house they had left he said, "I can't imagine you wanting to live in a place like that."

"I love it," Donna smiled. "I feel as I belong there."

"Well, I don't," he remarked starting the car. "That old Chinaman glared at me as if he knew it, too. Would you mind telling me what has caused this sudden change of heart toward a man you wanted to kill?"

Donna winced.

"Don't be unkind, Carl! You said at the time I didn't know what I was doing. But even you had no idea how wrong I was. My father did not desert my mother. She did not kill herself because of him but on account of another man she had loved for years."

"How do you know that?"

She told him about the diary she had found in Vanya's trunk and how she had gone to Helen Meade whom she had met at Kitty's to ask her to intercede.

"It doesn't sound possible," Carl said when she had finished.

"It would if you had known my mother. Her moods and plans used to change so suddenly for no apparent reason but now I can see there was always some connection with Tony."

"Tony Moore. Was he the man?"

"Yes." Donna had forgotten that she had told Carl of her acquaintance with the famous architect long ago. "That's why he wouldn't advise me when I went to his office. He was married the day after we arrived and left immediately for his honeymoon. What a terrible blow that must have been to my mother. You see she tells in this book how he promised to marry her."

Carl glanced at her curiously.

"And now I suppose you've transferred all the hate you fellt for your father to Moore?"

"No," she said rather surprised to find that it was true. "I don't hate anyone any more. Tony was just a man and behaved as they usually do. My mother should never have trusted him."

They rode in silence for awhile then Carl stopped the car in the long line parked at the beach.

"Forgive me for not being as happy over all this as you are," he said taking her in his arms.

"What is it, darling? I know you're upset but why?"

"Things have been so perfect as they were. Just you and I, free to do as we please. No questions asked. No one else to consider."

"But everything can be just the same. They've both told me I am free to make my own decisions, choose my own friends. I'm surprised that you of all people should put such an emphasis upon background."

"It isn't that altogether. It's the fact that you're bound to be influenced. You'll meet an entirely new circle. You're not just a reporter on a dinky Russian paper but the daughter of a wealthy influential man."

"So what?" Donna retorted kissing his cheek. "You're borrowing trouble if you think that can change the way I feel about you. And I'm going right on with my job, too. I wouldn't give that up for anything."

He kissed her then fiercely, satisfying her desire to be close to him again. But later at dinner he said, "I still contend that living with people like the Meades is bound to have an effect on you."

"In what way?" Donna asked lightly. She felt sure of him now. Knowing he must care for her very deeply to be so afraid of losing her.

"It will make you more conventional for one thing. You'll begin to wonder what other people think, what they will say."

Donna laughed but weeks afterward she admitted everything he had said was true. The change in her, which was deep and fundamental, started the day she moved into her father's home, and while it was so gradual she herself did not recognize it Carl Newton was right. The shadow which she thought was dispelled had come between them permanently.

Donna slept late last Sunday morning, waking to a strange room flooded with sunshine. For a moment she could not remember where she was, then a delicious sense of well-being came over her. For the first time since she could remember she was at home. She lay stretched luxuriously beneath the satin comforter drinking in the elegant old-fashioned details of her bedroom. The hands of her leather traveling clock pointed to eleven.

"I can buy a new one now," she thought. "A crystal one like I've always wanted which won't have to be moved from place to place."

Breakfast would be at noon, Helen had said, and since this was Hip's day off perhaps Donna should offer to help her stepmother. Although Donna had had no experience cooking.

"It's never too late to learn," she reminded herself cheerfully dressing in one of her simple plain wools.

Helen Meade, in crisply starched cottton, proffered a gayly striped apron.

"Thank you, Donna! You may set the table if you will. We'll put a card table in your father's study. It will be cozier in there before the fire than in the dining room. This house was built before the days of breakfast nooks," she continued as Donna collected silverware. "I'm making hot biscuits. Your father is so fond of them and we're having broiled ham and eggs baked in cream. Does that sound good to you?"

"Wonderful," the girl admitted. "I'm practically starved."

"There's orange juice in the icebox and coffee if you can't wait. John fixes that for himself before he leaves. He even brings some to me if I'm awake."

Happiness. Peace. Mutual trust and service. Were these things possible between a man and woman, Donna wondered, as she put a fresh cloth on the table in the study. They must be if this marriage of her father's was an example. It was like living in a new world to see the way Helen tried to please him; the way he kissed her when he came home. He kissed Donna, also, and his face felt fresh and cold from the hours on the golf course.

"Our first breakfast together," he said. "This is a very important occasion and I hope there will be many more of them."

Afterward the two women washed the dishes so that the kitchen should be neat when Hip returned.

"This is my one chance all week to be domestic," Helen explained. Scouring vigorously. "We always go out for Sunday night supper. Would you like to go with us, Donna?"

"Not tonight, thank you. Carl is calling for me at five."

"I should like to meet him," Helen said gently.

"I want you to," Donna replied.

Yet in spite of her professed desire, Donna dreaded that meeting. Not on Helen's account, but because of Carl. If he hadn't felt comfortable in the Meade house the night before he certainly wouldn't enjoy meeting its mistress, but the introduction must be made. Both her parents were present when he arrived and Donna was pleased to see that he did not show his feelings. Carl's manner was as natural as theirs, and a thrill of pride was added to the love she already had for him.

"You didn't mind meeting them?" she asked later.

He glanced at her amused.

"Why should I? I have always liked your father, and his wife is all you said she was."

"I thought from the way you talked last night.... You said you didn't belong there...."

"I don't," he repeated. "My life has been spent in an entirely different sphere. You've no conception of the hardships and deprivations many people in this world experience. That's why I'm so determined to do everything I can to see that some of them, at least, get a fair deal."

LUKE HAMLIN HOT AS HE DEFEATS BISONS BY 3-1

Toronto Leafs Earn Even Split With Buffalo Over the Holiday

Luke Hamlin, ace of Toronto Maple Leafs mound staff in 1945 and once one of the mainstays of Brooklyn Dodgers pitching corps, is showing International League batsmen these days that there still is plenty of stuff left in that 40-year-old pitching arm.

He may not be quite the "hot potato" of old. After all, he has his 41st birthday coming up tomorrow. But stuff combined with savvy has brought him home a winner in his last three appearances, and in four out of his last five.

He was hot last night as he turned in a five-hit performance that brought the Leafs a 3-1 victory over Buffalo in the opening game of their doubleheader. Hamlin struck out four of the Bisons, while Ellis (Cot) Deal came up in the fourth with the bases loaded to belt a single, followed by another by Don Richmond that accounted for all the runs Toronto needed to win.

In the nightcap it was Hal Manders' turn to turn in a neat pitching job for the Bisons. He allowed only four safeties in shutting out Toronto 2-0, to earn his club an even break.

In the only other game played the last-place Jersey City Giants won from Baltimore, 3-2. Les Layton, who had been in a batting slump that saw him go to the plate 24 times without getting a hit, belted four safeties to account for all of the Little Giants' runs.

Rule Book Wanted

Golf balls are expensive enough at regular prices and Harold West, Portland, Ore., professional, figures that one he had this year cost him a little too much... Defending his Utah open title, West drove his ball down the fairway, but before he got to it, the ball had become "lost" in the hands of a souvenir-seeking galleryite... Because of the two-stroke penalty, West had to settle for 10th place money of $175 instead of collecting $212.50 for an eight-place tie.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Dinny Pails, top hope of Australia in defence of the Davis Cup, fell by the wayside yesterday in the all-England tennis championships at Wimbledon when he suffered a surprise defeat by Yvon Petra of France in four sets, the match being in the quarter-final round. Tom Brown of California won his way into the semi-finals with a straight set victory over Ference Punces of Yugoslavia.

Still carrying the banner for Australia was Geoff Brown who eliminated Lennart Bergelin of Sweden. Five United States women reached the quarter final round in the singles.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 2. (CP)—Industrial stocks gained .70 in the early session on the Toronto Exchange today and the Mining groups declined .24. Western Oils had a minor gain. The turnover was small at 370,000 shares for the first three hours.

Among the stronger industrial groups were the Liquor, Building, and Paper issues. Hiram Walker advanced 2 to 148.

Weakness marked the cheaper gold issues. Eldona slipped off to 58 and losses of a few cents came out for Magnet, Thompson-Lundmark, Norseman, Moneta and Orlac. MacDonald dropped 10 and Madsen 5.

Sherritt failed to hold an early gain of 10 cents. Falconbridge lost 10. Hudson Bay, Nickel and Noranda had light gains.

DYNAMITE CACHE FOUND IN C. N. R. LOCKER HERE

Arms Found in Palestine Village Nurseries

Troops Rip Way Thru Building On Communal Farm

Fantastic Hidden Room Found to be Real Arsenal

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS

Mesheq Yagur Settlement, Palestine, July 3 — (AP)—Fat sleeping babies of this peaceful appearing Jewish farm community guarded arms and ammunition until British soldiers, who had been searching here since Saturday, found the secret hiding places in nurseries.

The people of the community begged the hundreds of armed and heavy-booted soldiers: — "Please don't disturb the babies. They're sleeping now."

The babies were sleeping over part of the greatest cache of illegal Jewish arms ever found in Palestine.

Neither the babies nor the old people were sleeping Tuesday as pneumatic drills and soldiers with picks, hammers and shovels ripped into tile floorings and the concrete bases of buildings where more than 1,000 men, women and children ran a modern communal farming settlement.

False Bottoms in Cupboards

The soldiers found secret panellings, false bottoms in cupboards and a fantastic concrete underground room in which tens of thousands of rounds of ammunition, new mortars and hundreds of machine-guns, rifles and pistols were stored.

Long after the soldiers had torn a hole through the heavy concrete shell to gain entry to the arms cache, mechanical experts discovered that an ingenious method had been provided for lowering part of a concrete garage floor into the underground room. Hidden in the mechanism of an air compressor was a heavy crank which slowly lowered a door onto steel tracks which were used to haul arms in and out.

10 Shelves Filled with Arms

There were 10 shelves loaded with arms, only two of which had been brought to the surface thus far. Those two shelves have yielded 85 mortars, hand grenades sealed in beer kegs, rifles of all makes and nationalities, American rifle grenades, signal flares, sacks of pistols and suitcases filled with detonators.

With only half of the settlement area searched the soldiers have uncovered more than 10 large caches and still are working with mine detectors and digging in new places.

Many of the men have been arrested and taken to prison camps by Palestine police after a struggle early Saturday in which the settlers all offered "passive resistance." British army officers said some of the people gave "not so passive resistance."

Now in Cordoned Area

The remainder of the population of the settlement, including approximately 20 men, 300 women and 500 children now are living in a cordoned off area while British soldiers occupy the rest of the houses.

The people are allowed to go about freely inside the area. Lt.-Col. D. S. E. West, army officer in charge, said everything was being done to allow the normal operation of laundries and dairy kitchens and the feeding of farm stock.

Tear Gas Had to be Used

After refusing entrance to the soldiers on the first day and declining to assist in identification proceedings, the people gathered in a huge modern dining hall and did not come out until the troops used tear gas.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, July 2—(CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.—A high pressure area of cool dry air is centred over the Great Lakes and is moving slowly eastward. Within this high-pressure area, maximum temperatures on Tuesday were between seventy and eighty degrees, and the weather was clear. Humid weather with scattered showers persists southeast of the Appalachian Mountains. It is quite warm in the mid-west and scattered thunderstorms occurred on Tuesday and Wednesday morning in the Dakotas and Nebraska.

G. BILTON SENT FOR TRIAL ON MURDER CHARGES

Crown Contends Mother and Child Slain Same Day and Three Days Before Bodies Discovered

Whitby, July 3 (CP)—On two charges of murder, George N. Bilton yesterday was committed for trial following a preliminary hearing that lasted two hours. The charges were laid following discovery by berry pickers on Sunday afternoon, June 16, of the bodies of 36-year-old Mrs. Teresa Laurie of nearby Ajax and her four-year-old daughter Patricia.

The bodies of the woman and child were found on a grassy slope adjacent to the highway near Ajax, 25 miles east of Toronto. The heads of the woman and child had been battered by a 40-pound rock which was found near the bodies, marked with bloodstains. The woman and child had left their Ajax home the previous Thursday, June 13, apparently for a visit to the woman's sister in Toronto. The crown charged that the two were slain the same day, three days before discovery of the bodies.

Employee Gives Testimony

Charles Harris, a Provincial Highway Department employee working on the highway section east of Ajax, told Magistrate F. S. Ebbs at yesterday's hearing that June 13 he saw Bilton and a woman and child walking in an easterly direction—away from Toronto. Later he saw the trio sitting on a bank on the north side of the highway.

After police had learned of the discovery of the bodies, and called him among others, Harris said that the two bodies were lying at a spot which was about 100 feet from where he had seen them sitting on Thursday.

Bilton was unrepresented by counsel, and himself questioned some of the witnesses. When Harris concluded his testimony Magistrate Ebbs asked if he had anything to say to the witness, Harris.

"I don't care to speak to him at all," the accused said flatly.

Bilton appeared bored by the greater part of the proceedings.

Situation in Trieste, Surrounding Area Continues Tense, Strike Slightly Eased

Trieste, July 3 (AP)—British and American troops and Venezia Giulia police took possession of Communist Party headquarters in the strongly leftist San Giacomo workers' district of Trieste today.

The building was thoroughly searched for weapons, but only stones were found. Allied troops mounted on armored cars and Bren gun carriers maintained a ring of steel around both the San Giacomo district and Garibaldi Square, centres of mob violence earlier this week.

Col. J. C. Smuts, Trieste area commander, announced the occupation of Communist headquarters. After the initial search, only British troops were stationed there.

The situation in Trieste and surrounding area continued tense, partly aggravated by reports from Paris that Venezia Giulia would be severed from Italy. The general strike of 200,000 workers, called at noon Monday because of rioting, had eased somewhat today. A few street cars were in use, but port operations remained at a standstill. Two persons were killed and 60 injured in the riots.

Few Cars Running

Although the entire dock area was still tied up by the strike, two U.N.R.R.A. ships carrying cargoes of live stock were unloaded yesterday by agreement of the workers. A few street cars also were running.

Newspapers which had been the target of public resentment reappeared yesterday without incident.

Yesterday a crowd of 10,000 workers followed the funeral procession of Attilio Giorgiutto, prominent Trades Unionist who was fatally shot Sunday. There were scattered fist fights, but British and American troops broke them up.

(The Italian Embassy in Paris said that Yugoslavs riding through Trieste in trucks had thrown bombs at Italian citizens and had attacked homes. It said the Italian population of Pola, south of Trieste at the tip of the Istrian Peninsula, was preparing to evacuate that city because of Yugoslav attacks.)

59 of 73 Target Ships Felt Atomic Blast; Army Observer's View

By DON WHITEHEAD

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, Bikini, July 3—(AP)—Fifty-nine of Bikini's 73 target warships felt Monday's white-hot atomic blast, the United States navy reported today, with damage ranging from total to negligible.

Six remained dangerously radioactive today.

Five, including one modern cruiser, were sunk; nine others, including two battleships, two cruisers and a carrier, were "heavily damaged." Damage to small craft was not tallied.

The army's official ground forces observer, Maj. - Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, concluded the new weapon could force any country, even the United States, to quit a war—although he believed it would be more effective against cities and industries than military targets.

"I hope I never see another one like that thing," he told newspapermen. He said he knew of no defence except to shoot it down, or to send airborne troops to its source of production in an enemy country.

He said he did not believe any man could have survived on the decks of the target vessels in the innermost, hardest-hit group.

Test Animals Survive

Test animals left aboard the fleet survived the first blast, however, even those aboard the centrally-anchored Nevada still lived. But whether their exposure to atomic rays would prove fatal within the next few days was to be determined. Sailors said one goat on the Nevada's quarterdeck was "mighty sick."

Similarly, eight white rats survived a ride directly through the atomic cloud itself, but they may die within three or four days, Col. R. E. Jarmon, Chief of the Army's Wright Field Evaluation Board, reported. The rats were the sole passengers in a B-17 drone.

Emit Deadly Rays

Centrally - anchored target ships still were emitting deadly rays today, said reports from Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy's flagship, the Mt. McKinley. Included is this "hot" group was the submarine Skate which was beached at Enyo Island, more than four miles from Bikini, because navy officers feared its radioactivity might contaminate Bikini's swimming beach.

All vessels are expected to be ruled "safe" by tomorrow. The waters of the lagoon itself were termed safe today, except in the immediate vicinity of the radiating ships.

The gutted carrier Independence, built on a cruiser hull, was towed several miles from the test anchorage, presumably to be beached for easier observation of her heavy damage. The most that could be said for her was that she still floated. There were gaping holes in her sides; steel plates and girders were buckled and twisted. Her superstructure was missing.

Soviet 'Will Never Start War Against U.S. or Anyone Else'; Differences Must be Ironed Out

—Novikov

By GRAHAM HOVEY

Washington, July 3 — (AP) — Nikolai V. Novikov, new Russian Ambassador to the United States, promised today that the Soviet Union "will never start a war against the United States or anyone else."

And by the same token, he said he knew that the people of this country do not want to fight anyone.

But while he insisted that all differences between the two major powers can be "ironed out," Mr. Novikov cautioned that solutions for many world problems will require time and patience.

The diplomat's views were made known in his first interview with an American reporter since he presented his credentials to President Truman June 3.

"There is no basis whatever for war between the Soviet Union and the United States," said the stocky, 43-year-old Russian.

"I know this — that the people of the United States do not want to wage a war against the Soviet Union or any other country. I know the Soviet Union will never start a war against the United States or anyone else.

"Thus, the differences between us must be ironed out. I believe they will be ironed out."

In emphasizing that solutions to all world problems can not be expected overnight, Mr. Novikov said:

"Europe is now in its most difficult period — the transition from war to peace. Problems inevitably will be difficult."

Mr. Novikov emphatically rejected any idea that serious clashes of interest between Russia and the United States are "inevitable" or "necessary." The reporter had used those words in framing one of six written questions submitted in advance of yesterday's interview.

The Ambassador said good faith by both countries, built by "practical actions and deeds" in carrying out mutual obligations, will prevent such clashes.

When "properly understood," the national interests of the two countries create more of the sound basis for co-operation than for "clashes on an economic, political or any other ground.

GOVERNMENT BILL AIMED AT CURBING HOME CARTELS

Justice Minister Says House is Powerless Against International Agencies

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 3 (CP)—The Commons yesterday advanced through legislative stages a government bill aimed at curbing the operations of domestic cartels and monopolies but heard from Justice Minister St. Laurent that it would be powerless against the larger international cartels which control prices and supplies.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke on second reading of a measure amending the Combines Investigation Act and said it would, by tightening the controls of monopolistic trade practices and price-fixing, exercise an efficient guard against domestic cartels.

But Canada could not, he added, take action against a company or group beyond its confines. This depended on international action and he hoped the United Nations Organization would take action to prevent international cartel operations and bring prices of goods down to where only a reasonable profit margin was allowed.

Principle Endorsed

The principle of the bill was endorsed by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre), J. E. Matthews (L-Brandon), David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina), Lt.-Col. C. C. Merritt, V.C. (PC-Vancouver-Burrard) and Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East).

Earlier, the House gave second reading to a bill to put into statutory form and continue in peacetime the foreign exchange control regulations now enforced under wartime authority. The measure was referred to the banking and commerce committee.

VISCOUNT BENNETT IS 76

London, July 3 — (CP Cable) — Congratulations were showered upon Viscount Bennett at his Mickleham Manor today on the occasion of his 76th birthday.

The former Prime Minister of Canada was not available personally to answer questions by reporters but his secretary, Miss Alice Miller of Calgary, said he was spending the day quietly at home and there would be no formal observance of the event.

Lord Bennett's health is reported not strong and he wears a patch over his right eye, weakened by a heart condition.

G. McAllister Held And Key to Locker Found in Possession

Tackled by War Veteran And Held by Employees

A movie-thriller sequence of events that included football flying tackles; cries of "Stop Thief" and a daring chase and capture of an alleged thief, culminated in the discovery of a cache of dangerous explosives in a luggage locker in the Canadian National Railways station here early Tuesday evening.

In a haversack in the locker were 22 sticks of high-powered dynamite; an eight-ounce bottle of liquid, believed to be an explosive; 48 fused caps ready for use and 20 dynamite detonators.

An unsuccessful attempt on the part of Glen. McAllister, 45, Toronto, to get rid of a key while being taken to the city police station in a cruiser, led to the discovery of the explosives.

McAllister is being held here charged with theft and other charges are pending, according to police.

The opening act of the daylight police drama came when Morley Smith, 10 Geddes St., C. N. R. cartage contractor, Ed. Flindall, Purdy St. and Wm. Belsey, 270 East Bridge St., C.N.R. employees, were loading a truck at the Canadian National Railways freight shed.

Noticed Man Leaving

Looking up from their work, they noticed a man leaving the other end of the shed with a large carton under his arm. The carton was later discovered to contain cigarettes to the value of $150.

Seeing that he had been discovered, the man started to run across the yard. Smith and his companions promptly gave chase, but their quarry outfooted them. Yelling "Stop him, he has stolen something," Smith and his companions attracted the attention of Fred Hayes, 20-year-old war veteran and son of Police Inspector Clare Hayes of the Belleville Police Department.

Hayes sprinted into action and getting close to the man brought him down with a hard flying tackle. Holding him to the ground, Hayes waited until Smith and his companions arrived, and turned him over to them to guard while he notified the city police.

Recently Released From Prison

Police Inspector Hayes, assigned to the call, raced to the scene in a police cruiser and immediately recognized McAllister as one who had been in the toils of the law before. A copy of his record on file here revealed he had been recently released from prison after serving a sentence for a jewel robbery.

Placing the man under arrest, the inspector started for the city police station. En route he noticed suspicious actions on the part of McAllister, who, had removed a shiny object from his shoe and was endeavoring to throw it out of the car window.

Key Taken From Man

Stopping the car, he seized McAllister by the arms and wrested, what proved to be a key, away from him. Later examination of the key revealed it to be one used to unlock luggage lockers in a railway station. A further check-up brought to light the fact that the key was one of Canadian National design with a number that corresponded to a locker in the station here.

Investigation of the locker revealed the haversack and its contents of explosives. McAllister arrived in the city on Monday according to police, and it was later learned that the locker in question was empty at noon of that day.

CANADA INTENDS TO RETAIN PRICE CONTROLS—KING

This Action Will be Taken Regardless of Any U. S. Moves

Ottawa, July 3 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday told the Commons Canada intends to retain her price, rent and rationing controls regardless of the United States action of abandoning similar war-imposed regulations in that country.

At the same time Mr. King observed that developments affecting prices in the United States were "not without their effect" upon Canada and stressed that Canadian policies, as in the past, would "necessarily continue to have such developments in mind."

In a 400-word statement Mr. King noted that the American emergency control legislation expired June 30 and that there now were under federal law no controls, except for sugar, on prices, rents and rationing in that country.

Certain states and municipalities, he continued, had taken emergency measures or maintained existing regulations which were not effected by the expiration of the federal law.

Statement Given.

He then said:

"This situation has not unnaturally raised certain questions in the minds of many Canadians. The government feels that the first opportunity should be taken to assure parliament and the country that there is no intention of abondoning similar controls in Canada."

Outside the House, Chairman Donald Gordon of the Prices Board, which administers Canada's price control legislation, said when asked for comment on the American action:

"The situation is far from clear in the United States and we have

Rejection Seen For Proposal To Send Troops

Washington, July 3 (AP)— A rejection is in the works here for Britain's proposal that United States troops be sent to Palestine to help maintain order during the projected immigration of 100,000 European Jews.

Authorities familiar with the long negotiations between Washington and London on the Palestine problem said the government of the United States has no intention of sending military forces to the Holy Land—not even the single division which some British officials have suggested.

The latest clue to American policy came in a White House statement yesterday reporting on President Truman's conference with a group of officials of the Jewish agency for Palestime.

Saw Bodies of Hitler, Eva Braun Says Ex-chauffeur

Nuernberg, Germany, July 3—(AP)—Hitler's former chauffeur, Erich Kempka testified today that he saw the German leader lying dead in the Reichschancellery the afternoon of April 30, 1945, and also helped carry Eva Braun's body outside for cremation.

Kempka also told the International Military Tribunal he saw Martin Bormann, missing aide of the Fuerrer who is on trial in Absentia, blasted by a bazooka shell with such force that it was impossible for him to be alive either.

The chauffeur referred to Eva Braun as "Adolph Hitler's wife."

When he told how he saw the body of the Fuehrer rolled in a blanket, with only the booted legs hanging out, he said: "It wasn't the same Adolf Hitler."

Await Russia's Next Move On Proposals for Atomic Control

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

New York, July 3. (AP)— The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission waited expectantly today for Soviet Russia's next move in a campaign to make a two-thirds majority vote of the commission necessary for adoption of any recommendations on atomic control.

The members of the 12-power commission, meeting today expected Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko to argue against their rules experts' decision to let a simple majority of seven votes decide proposals before them.

The Russian member of the their rules committee has held out unsuccessfully for an eight-vote majority, and Mr. Gromyko has reserved the right to review the point in open session before the rules are adopted.

Pravda Writer on Bikini Test

Moscow, July 3. (AP)—A Pravda commentator said today the Bikini atom bomb test has "basically undermined confidence in the seriousness of American talks about atomic disarmament."

"The atomic bomb test did not bring about the end of the world, but it blew up something more essential than a pair of old ships", wrote the commentator, Boris Izakov, in the Communist Party newspaper.

"And why, really, did the expensive and troublesome experiments at Bikini Atoll have to be conducted if the United States is seriously going to turn away from the atomic weapon?

"The test bore witness, not about preparations for destroying this weapon, but, on the contrary, about work for its improvement.

"As could have been expected, the test confirmed that the atomic weapon has enormous destructive force, although results appeared more modest than the American Press predicted.

"In appraising the results of the test one should not forget the secrecy surrounding it," Izakov said. "It might be that American naval authorities who conducted the test could publish interesting additional information.

"The hurry with which United States naval circles used the reports from Bikini for deductions on the necessity of presrving a big navy draws attention to itself."

Robt. Stebbings Receives Ovation At Music Festival

One of six Canadian musicians to appear as guest artists at the Waterloo Musical Festival on Saturday, Robert Stebbings, euphonium soloist from this city, received a tremendous ovation from the 20,000 attending the festival, it was reported by returning local bandsmen who attended the festival.

One of the largest on the North American continent, the Waterloo festival was attended by 20,000 persons with 2,000 bandsmen as members of 40 different bands taking part in the competitions. The guest artists were heard at the evening performance.

A protege of Jack Green, local teacher of many outstanding players, Stebbings played "Pride of the Waves" as his solo number at the festival. Following his number he was brought back to the stage several times to take his bow.

"Stebbings' effort was second to none among the guest artists" assured Mr. Harry Moorman, local band manager, as he paid tribute to the outstanding young Belleville musician. "But a great deal of the credit for his success as a musician must go to his teacher, Mr. Green, who has spent many hours in training Belleville boys the art of music. Himself three times gold medalist at the Canadian National Exhibition, Mr. Green trained Stebbings, Jack Fenn, Ronald Moorman and Don Charlton all of whom won honor at the recent Kiwanis Music Festival in Toronto.

It was the crowning realization of Mr. Green's many years effort as an instructor to see his euphonium pupil star as a guest artists at the Waterloo festival. Mr. Green made the trip to Waterloo to see his pupil perform.

TALKATIVE TREES

Apparently Motorists Do Not Believe in Signs

In keeping with many of the general public who are prone to disbelieve "wet paint" signs and such, district motorists do not believe in signs either.

At least that is the impression being gained by members of the local police department who have had more or less of a field day placing stickers on motor cars parked on the south side of Campbell Street between Front and Pinnacle Streets.

Some weeks ago members of city council on the recommendation of Chief of Police Walter Probert, made the south side of Campbell Street a "no parking" area because of the narrowness of the thoroughfare and the department of public works have since erected large signs to this effect.

But still motorists are unheeding and persist in leaving their iron steeds parked in the prohibited area. Constables are doing their part with result that tickets bring the offending motorists to the police station. Some are irate claiming the signs are too high and cannot be seen from the drivers' seat, while others sheepishly admit they were in the wrong.

But all in all police figure that in the end experience will be the teacher and Belleville and district motorists will eventually learn to believe in signs.

Riverside Drive Project Again Held up Members Of Council Told by Chairman

Approval Given by Municipal Board for Work but Planning Committee Feels Price Asked for Two Properties is Exorbitant

With two property holders owning vacant land along the proposed route of the Riverside Drive holding their properties at what is considered by the committee as an exhorbitant figure, action on the above proposal is again being held up, members of city council were told Monday evening by Alderman Harold Armstrong, Regional Planning chairman.

Previous recommendation from council had authorized the city solicitor to take up options on property required for the construction of the drive but two property owners are holding vacant property at such a high figure as to make the project uncertain.

The matter of the Riverside Drive came up for discussion under inquiries when Alderman Fred Chamberlain asked Alderman Armstrong what progress had been made on the project within recent weeks.

Claims Prices Exorbitant

In reply the regional planning chairman that the majority of holders of vacant land needed for the Drive were either presenting it to the city or selling it at a very nominal cost, while in two particular instances prices asked had been "exorbitant."

"As the matter stands," continued Alderman Armstrong, "unless we get reasonable consideration from these two property holders, any further work on the project should be charged under the local improvement act." "The approval of the Ontario Municipal Board had been secured for the project by the city solicitor," he said.

City auditor, F. A. R. McFadden appeared before council and submitted the quarterly auditor's report for the first three months of the year. New regulations called for the auditor to audit books of separate schools and an adjustment in fee was requested by the auditor to compensate for the extra work involved.

No Outside Collection

A recommendation asking that the local department of public works provide a garbage collection service for residents outside the city in certain sections to the east and north drew a flurry of discussion before it was turned down. The recommendation asked that the service be provided for a fee of $1.25 per month to the householder?

"This is a city service which is paid for by city residents and there is no reason why persons wanting the service should not come into the corporation" stated Mayor Follwell.

Aldermen Thompson and Trudeau also spoke on the subject, the former asking why the city should assist in keeping Thurlow Township clean, while the latter stated there was too much doing and undoing in council. "This matter was brought up earlier this year and was defeated," he said. The motion lost with only one assenting vote.

Favor Opening Laneway

Considerable discussion was also heard relative to the re-opening of the laneway south of the Armouries building, with Alderman Tice and Alderman Harvey favoring opening of the laneway.

"The laneway should be re-opened as a service to the residents in that section of the city" stated Alderman Tice. "If the laneway is re-opened and a "no trespassing" sign placed, I understand the city does not stand the responsibility. The government is perfectly willing to renew the agreement and in all fairness it should be opened, over 300 signed a petition to open the laneway."

"We are just wasting time doing and undoing things in this council," objected Alderman Thompson. "In good judgment the council last year voted to close this laneway and surely to goodness our minds are made up. If the laneway is re-opened, the responsibility for accidents rests with the city."

"The laneway has been open for 40 years and only one accident has resulted. That is a pretty good record," stated Alderman Harvey.

"We accept liability on other streets so why not accept it on this laneway also?" asked Ald. Tice.

Amendment Carries.

An amendment to the recommendation asking the laneway be re-opened was moved and as result of the vote the matter was turned back to the committee for further consideration. Voting for the amendment were Mayor Follwell and Aldermen Chamberlain, Clarke, Follwell, Hyde, McDougall, Thompson and Trudeau, while voting for the recommendation were Aldermen Armstrong, Allin, Harvey and Tice.

That councillors are determined that speeding on city streets by taxis and transports be stopped was seen in a recommendation that police take drastic action upon such violators.

Bridal parties causing unnecessary noise and disturbance also drew the ire of city fathers with members approving unanimously of a recommendation that the Mayor be requested to inform the police department that the council objected strongly to the action of newly married couples and bridal parties who blow horns and otherwise cause disturbance on city streets. The recommendation asked that action be taken to curb such practices.

Just Waste of Time Comment

Alderman Trudeau presented a recommendation again requesting that railroads be asked to refrain from the practice of blowing locomotive whistles in the city.

"It is just a waste of time," commented Alderman Follwell. "What the city must do is find out what the insurance will cost and then tell the railroads to desist in whistle blowing."

Alderman Trudeau also asked if the city garbage dump was in the condition as stated by Mr. Callaghan and was told by Alderman Hyde that the dump was in good condition. Alderman Karvey asked what salary the dump supervisor had been receiving and was told $18 weekly.

Under Control of W.C.A.

Non-action in regard to the construction of the proposed convalescent hospital drew an inquiry from Alderman Harvey who stated there was much public criticism because of the inactivity. The council had voted $40,000 toward the project and people were wondering why there was no action, he stated.

Alderman Chamberlain stated there was a misunderstanding as to the council's responsibility in the matter. Mr. Chamberlain stated the hospital project was under the control of the Women's Christian Association and hac nothing to do with the hospital board or the city council.

Alderman Harvey also wanted to know what action was being taken regarding the provision of life saving equipment along the Moira River. In the way of reply it was intimated a local service club was considering providing the necessary equipment.

The much argued question of parking meters again came up for discussion with the introduction of a by-law authorizinig the signing of contract for the installation of the meters on Belleville streets.

Would Reduce Rate Claim

Speaking in favor of the by-law Alderman Allin stated this had been brought in because of the additional information on meters which had been secured by the city. "Revenue from the meters would reduce our tax rate by one mill," he said.

Alderman McDougall stated he approved of meters but stated council had already turned them down following delegations from the local merchants and he thought the matter should be shelved at least until the Riverside Drive parking area was given a fair trial.

Question Laid Over

Alderman Thompson, Mayor Follwell, and Ald. Follwell all spoke in favor of the meters, the latter asking if council was legislating for the merchants or for the 16,000 other residents in the city. "Merchants have a right to express their opinion but there are 16,000 other residents in the city who did not oppose installation of the parking meters," he said.

Alderman Armstrong reminded that the city now had price quotations from a second meter company and stated that in fairness to the taxpayers the matter should be further considered. This feeling was also held by Alderman Trudeau who asked that the matter be laid over.

Following discussion the matter was laid over until the first special meeting of council held during the Summer recess.

Under general business Mayor Follwell expressed his appreciation to members of Council for sending him and Alderman Thompson to the mayors' convention at Vancouver. He stated that the Council's recommendation regarding building priorities had been presented to the convention with part of the recommendation being embodied in a resolution forwarded from the convention to Ottawa.

Alderman Chamberlain approved of Mr. Callaghan's suggestion of additional services being provided for visiting boat owners and thought that action in the matter should be taken.

The mayor was authorized to proclaim Monday, August 5 as a Civic Holiday.

Memorial Hall Dedicated And Cenotaph Unveiled In Celebration at Frankford

Frankford — A large crowd gathered at the Memorial Park in Frankford on Sunday, June 30th for the unveiling at the cenotaph and dedication of Frankford Community Memorial Hall. A parade led by the H. & P. E. Regimental Band and including members of Frankford Branch Canadian Legion, Stirling Branch Canadian Legion, L.O.O.M., L.O.B.A., and L.O.L. marched through the main street and took up positions at the park.

Montgomery spoke a few words of welcome to the boys who had returned once more to their homes after service overseas. He mentioned how in 1943 the project of building a community hall was begun and in spite of scarcity of both labor and materials it has at last been completed and the village council and all who had worked with them to make it a success thought it very fitting that it should be made a memorial to those boys who gave their lives for their country.

Through their efforts the memorial park was purchased and the cenotaph set up and through these many years the park has been a beauty spot of the village. Mr. McAllister was instrumental in the forming of the new committee since the second World War. The committee is formed of a representative from each legislature group in town. Mr. Wm. Pollard was chosen to represent the citizens of Frankford to fill the seat of his father the late Geo. Pollard. F. W. Ketcheson represents the village council. A. Southworth, the Frankford Branch of Canadian Legion, G. W. Dickson, Chamber of Commerce, and the president of the Red Cross. Mr. Ketcheson spoke of the plans the new committee has under way such as new lighting for the cenotaph and beautifying the grounds generally.

Capt. Rev. A. S. McConnell M.B.E., spoke to the gathering of some of his experiences in Europe.

Cenotaph Unveiled

The cenotaph was unveiled by Capt. J. Rogers. The Last Post sounded by Chas. Butcher. Two minutes of silence was observed, followed by Reveille.

Slingerland from the village of Frankford and Mrs. M. Lawse from Citizens' Band. She also placed two sprays in memory of her husband Marshall Lawes and his brother Cecil Lawes.

"O God, Our Help in Ages Past" was sung followed by an address by Rev. H. H. Lackey, pastor of the United Church, dedicating the community hall to the memory of the boys who gave their lives and to the use of the boys who have come back, making it now a Community Memorial Hall. It was unveiled by Capt. Rogers. Rev. Lackey led in prayer and the band played the National Anthem. Rev. R. Sedore of the Free Methodist Church, Frankford, pronounced the benediction and the parade formed again for a March Past.

The new names that have been added to the cenotaph are: Geo. W. Tompkins, George C. Smith, Marshall W. Lawes, Cecil A. Lawes, Wilfred C. Wilson, Glen W. French, Alfred T. Platt, Roy C. Confey.

Objection Raised to Proposed Dumping of Garbage in Marsh For Fill Near Zwick's Island

Public objection to the proposed dumping of garbage in the marsh between Zwick's Island and the mainland following construction of a seepage wall to prevent seepage back into the Bay of fQuinte is growing stronger, it was revealed at city council Monday evening when a one man delegation from Mary Street district opposed the plan.

Mr. William Britton, Mary Street, spoke to council in protest against the garbage dumping which he claimed would never constitute a proper fill. Rather than dumping garbage at the proposed site, Mr. Britton suggested the erection of an incinerator which he declared would cost less than the construction of the seepage wall.

"It is just too bad when residents have to come over street to get a breath of fresh air," declared the speaker who stated this would be the case if garbage were dumped in the marsh at Zwick's Island. He claimed the garbage would also attract the rats which would be a further inconvenience for residents of the district.

M. Callaghan Also Heard

Maurice Callaghan also spoke on the garbage question although his complaint was regarding the alleged "scandalous" condition of the Belleville city dump since the discharge of the employee who formerly supervised dumping operations.

"People are dumping all over the place, and the fire is never out," declared Mr. Callaghan. "With the smoke I do not know how the residents in that district live."

The speaker maintained that residents in that section were paying taxes—big taxes—and if the fire department could be sent out of the city to fight fires, it could also be sent to the garbage dump.

Harbor Lacks Facilities Claim

Speaking on another subject Mr. Callaghan declared that out of town boat owners disliked coming into Belleville harbor because of the lack of facilities. Boat owners cannot secure gasoline after certain hours, while it was also impossible to obtain water. He suggested that a water line be run to the Government dock for the convenience of boat owners coming into the city.

Chairman of Public Works Alderman Hyde later in council contradicted Mr. Callaghan's statement that the city garbage dump was in a "scandalous" condition, stating that a bulldozer was keeping the dump in good condition.

got to wait until it clears off."

Other sources said that if even the action led to a form of inflation in the United States there was no reason for a "bust up" in the Canadian price system with the retention of present controls and "watching" attitude.

Move Farther Away.

This, they added, was because Canada, particularly in the last six or eight months, had been moving "farther and farther" away from the United States in its price policy and had done things independently which would not have been thought possible before the war.

It was admitted, however that the American step had faced the government with possibility of the most critical price stabilization problem since price control was introduced in 1941.

However, Canadian pricing authorities have had a good deal of experience in meeting increased American prices and for some time the economics of the two countries have been diverging sharply, with the graph lines of Canadian and American values rapidly widening.

Lift With Three Choices.

In a nutshell, a general advance in American prices would leave Canada three choices—she could go without the American prices, pay higher prices or meet the price advances through increased subsidies.

Canadian price stabilization officials so they can determine which of these alternatives would be the best to follow.

G. BILTON SENT

The Crown called two of Mrs. Laurie's six children—16-year-old Ronald and 14-year-old Barbara.

Ronald said that Bilton had been coming to the Laurie home at Ajax to see his mother for about a year. He had often seen him around the house. Ronald said he saw Bilton at the house on June 13, when Barbara let him in the front door. Bilton sat down for awhile, the boy said, and then Bilton left the house with his mother and little sister Patricia.

"Did you know where your mother was going," asked Crown Attorney E. C. Hall.

"George said something about a farm at Whitby," the boy replied. "He said he had a job there."

Then the Crown called Barbara Laurie. She confirmed her brother's evidence as to Bilton's frequent visits to the Laurie home. She said her mother "went away with George for the two weeks before the Thursday."

On the Thursday, Barbara said, her mother went to her room and packed some clothes. She believed her mother was going away with Bilton. "Just before she left the house mother said she would send me a letter addressed to Mrs. George Bilton and I was to get it at the post-office," the girl testified.

Father Never Present

The youthful witness said her father was never present when Bilton came to the house. She never told her father — Alex Laurie— about the visits.

"Why didn't you tell him," asked the Crown.

"George told me he would smash my face if I told," the girl replied.

Bilton asked some questions of Ronald. "Any time when I came to your home did I say I'd strike you if you told," he asked.

"Yes, you did," the boy replied. "You told me and my sister.

"Are you sure," persisted Bilton.

The boy said he was quite sure.

Christen your puppy early and always call him by the same name. Field training should commence when the puppy is three months old. The first lesson should be that of obedience. Your puppy must learn that you must and will be obeyed. When you call he must come. If he refuses go to him; take him by the nape of the neck and place him where you stood when your order was given, saying repeatedly "Come here, Joe," or whatever his name may be. On returning to your standing place loosen the puppy and make much of him, repeating his name with every congratulation.

And the wisdom of the spaniel does have its roots in antiquity. Grain Situation

Dominion Bureau of Statistics reviewing the world wheat situation says that the world is now entering the most critical stage of the present world famine situation, since no marked improvement may be expected until the new crops become available in the next four to eight weeks. There are indications that the crops in 1946 will be substantially larger than they were a year ago, but few if any of the war-ravished lands will produce more grain than a year ago. So they are dependent upon exported surplus from other countries.

The bureau sees even with average or better than average yields for the years 1946 and 1947 the world food situation will remain critical, that is, until the harvests are gathered and shipped more than a year in the future.

So the burden falls on the people in the areas that produce to save what they can and so use the necessary food for saving the lives and health of uncounted millions of unfortunate people. These people are dependent upon the fortunate lands, they can only trust that common fraternity and the brotherhood of mankind spent will lead people to do their best to send them the essential food.

To be in the situation in which so many persons find themselves must be distressing and damaging to morale, when they can look upon the earth that is to us so fair and find that their own lands are not producing, thanks to the results of the foulness of German Nazism, which has left these countries in a state of agricultural breakdown.

Fortunately for the good name of humanity, the governments of the nations that can furnish relief have undertaken the gigantic task and will do their best to help feed the millions who need provisions which will not only fortify the body against the inroads of disease but uplift the minds and spirits of the sufferers in the knowledge that they are men and women and governments who have assumed the role of their brothers' keepers and will feed them until they are able to grow food for themselves or have work and the means to buy food.

Malaya—Economic Revival

Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, the Governor-General of the Malayan Union and the Colony of Singapore re-affirmed recently that the British policy in Malaya is steady development towards self-government. He was referring, of course, to Malaya as a whole. Its component states have always been self-governing under British guidance. The problems of the Sultans and their attitude to the new union, he said, is not yet closed. The nature of Malaya's future unified constitution is still under examination by those concerned.

On the economic side, the object of the new order formally inaugurated in April is, as the Secretary of State for the Colonies said last October, to assure to the Malayan people their full share in the rewards of their industry, enabling them to feel the country's wealth reflected in their own standard of life. It is, he added, to the advantage not only of Malaya but all the world that the production of her mineral and Agricultural resources be restored and developed by industry and research.

An observer describing the condition in which the liberators found Malaya wrote: "I saw paddy fields in Malacca which had been allowed to go completely to waste. Secondary jungle had been allow to grow up between the trees on most rubber estates. Opencast tin mines are full of water which it will take months to pump out. Antimalarial work has not been done and malaria is again common. I visited a tea estate in the Cameron Highlands and all the bushes had been allowed to grow into trees ten to fifteen feet high." Rolling stock was shipped to Japan and although food production was increased to compensate for the cutting off of imports, the rice was largely kept for the Japanese and the inhabitants given tapioca.

The Japanese did all they could to exacerbate the potential nationalist, racial and communal antagonisms and there had been some strife and bloodshed. But the foundations laid by Britain go deep. The Malayans had a warm interest in the reports, machinery and technicians in the mines and foundries, consumer goods and capital. Asiastics own over half the rubber plantations and a third of the tin mines, excluding the Chinese shares in British companies. Half the government doctors are Asiatics and over half the teachers in the English schools, another quarter being Eurasians. Two out of every three children go to school, and the hospitals have been described as even better than in England.

The authorities have launched a campaign to extend cultivation over all possible vacant land, combined with land settlement schemes and grants for buildings and implements. The restoration of major industries is being effected primarily be returning entrepreneurs and technicians, but with substantial government assistance.

The whole structure of a modern state is in fact being rebuilt. A new airfield, described as the largest in the Far East, has been opened at Changi.

All this does not go on without problems and setbacks. In the prevailing Far Eastern shortage of food, the situation is difficult for a country dependend up to a third of its imports on food from abroad. But there is a future for United Malayan nationhood of all races based on the rich natural resources and the technical skill of the population.

Ontario's Trails Beckon

During the vacation months of July and August, many of us will be following woodland trails and canoeing on Ontario's lakes and rivers. Some trails have an origin centuries old, since, before the earliest Europeans arrived in America, the Indians had made well-defined routes through the woods from one waterway to another, which they used for hunting trips and when on the war path. These paths were noted and utilized by early French explorers and traders. The chain of lakes and rivers now known as The Trent System was the one used in 1615 when the Hurons led Champlain from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. Paul Kane's fine portraits in the Ontario gallery at the Royal Ontario Museum depict the appearance of the Indians of the various tribes which blazed the original trials.

War, Want, Waste

Urging Canadians to avoid such needless waste of foodstuffs as burning bread, throwing out crusts, etc., health authorities declare that many people throughout the world may die of slow starvation if those in more fortunate lands do not make war on waste. "Because of war, many in the world are in want," says an announcement by the Department of National Health and Warfare. "We can all eat the healthful foods we need and still save enough to make a huge Canadian contribution to world famine relief, if we don't waste food."

Atom's Power

The reserves of atomic energy that remain to be tapped are incalculable. The results of the experiment at Bikini cannot lessen the appalling results of the former atomic bombings, nor set any limit on the developments of the future. And it is quite clear that the Bikini bomb did more damage than any single bomb ever did before in a naval attack.

The sombre fact remains now, as before the Bikini test, the world's future is bound up with this strange thing, with its light that blinds the sun and with its weird panopoly of color and violence. It is not a force that is likely to rise from the earth and drift away, as did the radio-cloud over the Bkini's lagoon. And man's intelligence and powers of adaption, will have to be oriented to it, if man will have to be oriented to it, if man is to rule instead of be ruled by this tremendous power.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What was Tom Thumb's real name?

The real name of Tom Thumb, perhaps the most famous midget who has ever lived, was Charles Sherwood Stratton.

He was born at Bridgeport, Conn., in 1838, and was the third of four children of a carpenter. All the other members of the family were normal in stature. Charles Stratton weighed 9½ pounds when he was born but virtually stopped growing when about six months of age. He remained about 25 inches in height and 15 pounds in weight until he entered his teens. Later he attained a height of 40 inches and a weight of 70 pounds.

When the midget was four years old P. T. Barnum, the showman, also of Bridgeport, engaged him for exhibition purposes and changed his name to Tom Thumb. This name was not original with Barnum. It was suggested by the name of a legendary pygmy of King Arthur's court. An old nursery rhyme begins, "In Arthur's court Tom Thumb did live." In 1621 a writer named Johnson published "The History of Tom Thumb," and "Tom Thumb" was the title of a play written in 1730 by Henry Fielding. The first railway steam locomotive built in America, made in Baltimore by Peter Cooper in 1830, was named the "Tom Thumb."

By exhibiting Tom Thumb in foreign countries and presenting him to royalty and nobility in Europe, Barnum made him the most famous midget in the world. According to Barnum, Queen Victoria, who enjoyed conversing with him as he sat on her footstool, bestowed on him the title "General."

In 1863 General Tom Thumb was married to another midget in Barnum's troupe, Mercy Lavinia Warren Bumpus, who then weighed 29 pounds and was about the same height as the General. The only child of Tom and Lavinia, a daughter, died in infancy.

At forty General Tom Thumb retired and lived in considerable luxury until his death from apoplexy at Middleboro, Mass., in 1883, at the age of 45. His widow married Count Primo Magri, an Italian midget with a papal title, and together they continued in the show business.

"Tom Thumb" is now used as a generic term for any midget or dwarf, and is sometimes applied figuratively to an insignificant person. In "A Rhymed Lesson" Oliver Wendell Holmes, alluding to Barnum's brazen publicity, wrote:

The "real, genuine, no-mistake
Tom Thumbs"
Are little people fed on great men's crumbs.

HOW'S YOUR WAISTLINE?

I'm not sure I may not be able to dig it up if anybody who is anybody questions the soundness of the idea, but some statistician in the life insurance business estimated that after age 35 for every inch a man's waist measure exceeds his chest measure he may subtract two years from his life expectation—that is, the age any young fellow of 35 may expect to attain if he lives right.

Life insurance companies learned by experience long since that a moderate degree of overweight (less than 10 per cent of average or standard weight) is favorable to longevity in a man or woman under the age of thirty-five years, and if this ten pounds, more or less, of adipose is symmetrically distributed and not concentrated in one area, it actually contributes to comeliness, especially of the feminine figure— or don't you like 'em plump?

Ah, but after thirty-five even a moderate excess of displacement becomes a handicap, spoils any good looks the individual may otherwise have had, and shortens life. After thirty-five this fuel reserve begins to be just so much slacker flesh one has to carry around all the time and nourish just as though it were a useful part of the body.

At any age this load of slacken flesh might become a priceless boom, for instance if one were adrift at sea or trapped somewhere without access to food, one could live on the reserve fat deposits, which will surely be burned up when other fuel is not available. Or again, if one were convicted of something or other and dragged off to serve a sentence at hard labor, on bread and water rations, the spare tank of fuel would be consumed to keep one going considerably longer than one without any superfluous fat could keep going on bread and water.

We put away the heartiest meal we can negotiate and go out to the ball game where we can sit at ease watching paid professionals play for us, and when we feel a little tired from this effort we can refresh ourselves with a hot dog or two—of course copiously doctored with mustard, pickles and other condiments to help us worry it down.

In the late thirties and the forties we are not concerned about a year or two, more or less, of life expectation. If we were interested in remaining young and living long we might take up some game, sport, hobby, avocation or activity of our own, something we could do ourselves for fun, recreation, relaxation, change, rest and health.

The man or woman who plays a game, follows a hobby or does anything at all for fun and recreation is always pleasant company with something to talk about.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Niacin for Canker Sores

On reading about it in your column, my husband, a great sufferer from canker sores, took one 50 milligram tablet of niacin (nicotinic acid). About 15 minutes later he had a feeling of great heat, starting around nose and lips and spreading to entire head and then to backs of hands . . . a feeling like sunburn. . . But this subsided in an hour or less. Next morning he repeated the dose, with a similar, thought less marked result. But, happily, the canker sores healed and disappeared faster than he had ever known before.

(Mrs. H. R. E.)

Answer—That is a characterist reaction, an indication that th dose is sufficient. It is harmles Perhaps niacin amide would giv a milder reaction than niacin.

Lemonade

Would saccharin as a substitut for sugar in lemonade be harmfu for children? (Mrs. S. E. M.)

Answer—I do not advise it. However, I can assure you tha any one, child or adult, may use as a sweetener (not a sub stitute for sugar) up to 5 gra of saccharin a day with impunity.

Press Big Factor In War Financing

Toronto, July 3. (CP) — The contribution of the press of Canada to the success of the Dominion's war financing program is detailed in "Press Promotion of War Finance", by F. I. Ker, publisher of the Hamilton Spectator and president of The Canadian Press and Wilfred H. Goodman, of Toronto.

The volume has been published jointly by the associations represented by the Canadian Publishers' War Finance Publicity Committee. Mr. Ker was chairman of the committee and Mr. Goodman its managing editor.

The 106-page volume describes the organization and work of the committee from its inception in 1940 until the completion of its task last December and reviews the development, progress and operating technique of a wartime emergency measure of co-operation between the government and the press "unique in its scope, procedure and completely harmonious relationships."

It was the function of the committee to see that the government's war finance measure received wide, insistent and effective press publicity throughout Canada and Messrs. Ker and Goodman demonstrate with facts and figures how good a job was done.

In nine loans approximately $12,000,000,000 was raised. The government's expenditure for advertising averaged $500,000 a campaign, supplemented by sponsored advertising estimated to have totalled about $800,000 a campaign. Editorial support of the various drives has been measured to the extent of 200,000 columns and probably totalled 250,000 columns.

The book compares war finance publicity in Canada, where the government paid newspapers for advertisements, and the United States, where all war loan ads were contributed.

The result in the United States was a concentration of advertising in the larger markets and little or none in the smaller ones. In Canada government advertising was supplemented by organized sponsored advertising support. "The comparative results both in quality and spread among the masses of subscriptions to war loans in the two countries speak for themselves," the authors conclude.

Power Control Orders Rescinded

Ottawa, July 3. (CP)—The end of another wartime control power—was announced Tuesday by Reconstruction Minister Howe.

He announced the resignation of H. J. Symington of Montreal, as controller, dissolution of the office of Power Controller and rescinding of all outstanding power control orders.

"The time has now come," Mr. Howe said "when the remaining power control orders need be retained no longer and it appears that no new orders in this sphere of Canadian industry need be applied."

The power control orders rescinded dealt mostly with restrictions of gas-burning equipment and supply in southwestern Ontario.

Mr. Symington, who is president of Trans-Canada Air Lines and a director of the Canadian National Railways, was appointed power controller in August, 1940 ,and gave his services voluntarily.

Collects Indian Relics as Hobby

Edmonton, July 3 (CP)—Carl Alms collects rare Indian relics and his collection is said to be the finest in Western Canada.

Swedish by birth, he started his unusual hobby 11 years ago, and now his relics which include skulls, stone implements, flint knives, tools made of bone, wampjum beads, arrowheads, drawings and several other primitive Indian items.

Two skulls taken from the Great Fraser midden at Vancouver, a copper lance-head and two old Indian pipes made of pipestone and discovered at Dundurn, Sask., are among his proudest possessions.

Most of Mr. Alm's collection was gathered in Western Canada although many pieces were picked up in the United States. . . .

12 Million Pounds Clothing Collected In Latest Drive

Montreal, July 3. (CP)— The second National Clothing Collection for assisting the distressed people of Europe has gone over the top with 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 pounds of clothing already received, C. A. Pickering, member of the Operating Committee in charge of Warehouses and Baling, announced today.

Mr. Pickering said the clothing still to be collected, with that on tthe way to warehouses, would swell the total to the 12,000,000 pound level set last October. Clothing of better quality and better handling and bundling of shipments were noted in this drive, he said.

All post-offices across Canada will accept properly bundled clothes for shipments up to and including July 15 while Central warehouses will be kept in operation, Mr. Pickering added.

Indians Join In Centennial Of Oblate Fathers

By NORMAN ALSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ide A La Crosse, Sask., July 2—(CP)—A host of Cree and Chipeweyan Indians gathered last night to watch Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, and other church and state dignitaries leave here by plane as centennial celebrations honoring the memory of Fathers Tache and Lafleche drew to a close. It was here, in 1846, that the two Oblate fathers founded the first Roman Catholic Parish in Canada's northwest.

The pioneer fathers arrived by canoe, but their modern predecessors — high-ranking churchmen, clothed in scarlet robes — came by seaplane, and were greeted by Indians in canoes powered by outboard motors.

More than 1,500 Indians, coming from camps up to 125 miles away, pitched their tents about the square formed by the mission, church, school and hospital. They mingled with Sisters of the Order of Grey Nuns to hear visiting churchmen speak in English, French, Cree and Chipeweyan, about the role of the church in the progress of the north country.

Later, they watched three Chipeweyan couples being married in an open-air ceremony — the brides clothed in white gowns that could have been worn at any large city wedding.

On Dominion Day, a pageant, performed by convent and school pupils, depicted life before and after the arrival of Fathers Tache and Lafleche.

The two Oblates were not the first white men to visit Ile A La Crosse. Long before 1846, fur-hunting Coureurs Des Bois gave the settlement its name after watching the district Indians playing lacrosse.

GOVERNMENT BILL

Mr. St. Laurent said the major change in the combines bill would be authorization to the Exchequer Court to refuse or cancel patent licencing in relation to the use of trademarks or patents when these have been used to the detriment of the public. It would not interfere with the proper use of trademarks or patent rights or operate against patentees.

Willing to Compromise

Replying to a request by Mr. Diefenbaker that anyone be allowed to lay an information against a monopoly, he said he would amend the act to this effect if the opposition would move an amendment to remove a Progressive Conservative amendment made in 1935 which provided that only one action could be taken against a cartel.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the report of the McGregor Commission last year on the operation of cartels was a "terrific" indictment against the government and added that it was not enough that only four prosecutions had been taken in the last 11 years.

The present amendments were only "false" teeth and would pad the act and prevent action.

Mr. McInnis approved the bill but contended it did not go far enough. He pointed to the Aluminum Co., of Canada and Canadian Industries Ltd., as examples of cartels.

In the foreign exchange discussion, J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Muskoka-Ontario) called for the placing of a time limit on the continuation of controls. This would have the effect of guaranteeing that they were not continued unduly.

Interest Focuses on Death of Siam's King 3 Weeks Ago

Bangkok, Siam, July 3. (CP)—Public interest in Siam yesterday continued to focus on the death more than three weeks ago of 20-year-old King Ananda Mahidol of Siam following reports that medical evidence supported to a considerable extent the theory that he was the victim of an assassin.

A board of 18 physicians is understood to be prepared to submit a report suggesting that Mahidol was assassinated.

The report, it was learned last week, would be turned over to a special commission of inquiry investigating the strange circumstances of the monarch's death.

TO THOSE WHO NEED MONEY ...for a useful purpose
For many a Borrower SAVING is still No.1...

For many of our borrowing customers, saving is still the prime consideration. For them, the time to borrow is equally the time to save . . . borrowing and saving go hand in hand.

Thousands of our borrowers have sizable holdings of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates, which they leave with us for safekeeping. Indeed, a good many have substantial cash reserves in their savings accounts.

Why, then, do they borrow from the Bank?

Simply because they want to keep their savings intact and undisturbed—as a bulwark of security.

These people are performing a real service not only to themselves, but to their fellow citizens and to the country at large . . .

By maintaining their programme of regular saving, they are guarding against inflation.

How? . . . By conservation.

Conservation in personal financing is practised by a large proportion of our customers. By borrowing for some useful purpose, and by making regular repayments on their loan, they are—in reality—saving for a useful purpose, and increasing profitable production for the community. Meanwhile, they are keeping their savings intact.

This is wise spending, wise borrowing and wise saving.

These people are good customers, they are good citizens and their personal financing is sound.

This is conservation—the first requisite for personal security—the first attribute of good citizenship . . .

To Our Customers,

we say: "Don't borrow unless you have to, but if you need money for some useful purpose, by all means get a loan from the Bank."

We also say: "Don't sell your Victory Bonds . . . if you need cash, get a low-cost loan and pay it back out of future earnings."

BRIGADIER R. A. MACFARLANE D.S.O.

1946 Stylemaster Sedan Makes First Trans-Canada Trip to Win Todd Medal for Brig. R. A. Macfarlane

Rolling along "Canada's Main Street"— the Trans-Canada Highway—from coast to coast, Brigadier R. A. Macfarlane, D.S.O., at the wheel of a new 1946 Chevrolet Sedan, has just completed the first ocean-to-ocean automobile trip without leaving Canadian soil.

To win the A. E. Todd Gold Medal — offered in 1912 by the Mayor of Victoria — Brig. Macfarlane left Louisburg, Nova Scotia, with the salt of the Atlantic on his rear wheels, and after nine days of driving he arrived in Victoria, Vancouver Island, B.C., and dipped his front wheels in the Pacific, having covered

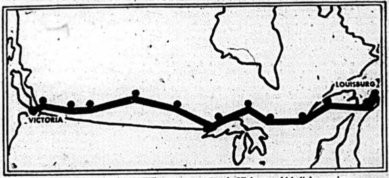
The Chevrolet used was a stock 1946 model powered with a standard six-cylinder valve-in-head engine. It was selected by Brig. Macfarlane — who held the responsible posts of Director of Mechanization and Deputy Master-General of Ordnance, at Defence Headquarters, Ottawa — because he is convinced that a "sturdy, light, economical passenger car is ideal for the average Canadian citizen." With his extensive experience of army vehicles, on the testing grounds and on active service in two wars, Brig. Macfarlane made the new Chevrolet his choice for his history-making trip — another "first" for Chevrolet!



DOWN "CANADA'S MAIN STREET"—The Trans-Canada Highway, which links province to province, from sea to sea, and opens the way to a great new era of tourist travel.

NEARING THE END OF THE TRAIL — J. V. Johnson and George Warren of the Victoria Automobile Club, meet Brigadier Macfarlane and his Chevrolet a few miles outside Victoria and escort him into the City.

THROUGH THE ROCKIES — The Chevrolet spent thrilling hours skirting sheer precipices and climbing high mountain roads before it encountered this quiet little valley in Canada's Rocky Range.

THE AWARD — Winning of the Todd Medal, offered in 1912, became possible with completion of the Trans-Canada Highway. It is now awarded to Brig. R. A. Macfarlane for the first authenticated journey from Louisburg, Cape Breton, to Victoria, B.C., over a specified all-Canadian route.

THE PACIFIC! — After 4,743 miles of rapid, trouble-free driving, Brigadier Macfarlane and his co-driver dip the front wheels of their Chevrolet in the Pacific Ocean — to win the A. E. Todd Gold Medal.

Cliff Baragar Tells Kiwanians Of Visit South

"You are missing opportunities galore by not attending Kiwanis Club meeting when you are on a business trip or on holidays." So said Cliff Baragar, past district lieutenant-governor of Kiwanis and past president of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville, when he addressed the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville at the Hotel Quine on Tuesday.

Mr. Baragar gave the highlights of his recent trip to Florida, when he visited several Kiwanis Clubs in the south.

"Accommodation is very hard to find but once you learn a few of the tricks of the trade, you can get along". He mentioned particularly Savannah, Georgia, in this regard. "There are "No Vacancy" signs on every camp between noon and four o'clock in the afternoon", said Mr. Baragar. "The reason for this is that every camp owner knows that he will have no trouble whatsoever in filling his place. For this reason, he can hang out the "No Vacancy" sign after lunch, have a few hours off and come back at four o'clock in the afternoon and have his place filled up by five. The secret in finding accommodation in Savannah then is to look for a camp shortly after four o'clock".

Lack of Flavor in Meat

"There are two things that surprised me about Florida. Firstly, it ranks second only to Texas as a cattle-producing state. On an acreage basis, it tops Texas in cattle production. Secondly, there is a very distinct lack of flavor in their meat and vegetables. I think this is due to the rapid growth".

"Mr. Baragar paid high tribute to the Canadian system of rationing. "In the south," he said, "the distribution of scarce commodities is poor. In some areas, butter is almost unobtainable, while in other areas, it is plentiful and other commodities are scarce."

"In Fort Meyers, Florida, the Kiwanis Club have a novel method of maintaining good attendance. They have a live duck "Sinawik" and each member who was absent the week before has to give his reason for being absent. If the reason is not a good one, the relinquent has to take the duck home and keep it for a week. If anything happens to the duck, it costs the member a $25 fine. Needless to say, their attendance is usually good."

Attended Many Meetings

Mr. Baragar told of being at Kiwanis Club meetings in Savannah, Ga., Daytona Beach, Fla., Bradington, Fla., Sarasota, Fla., Fort Meyers, Fla., Coral Gables, Fla., Akron, Ohio, as well as several other cities. "Of all my travals," said Mr. Baragar, "the Belleville club is still tops".

Mr. Baragar was introduced by President Mark Vanner and thanked by T. K. Franklin.

Robert Kidd, president of the newly-formed Optimist Club of Belleville, was present and was introduced by Mark Vanner, who asked that the best wishes of the Kiwanis Club be passed on to the Optimist Club.

The Sing-Song was led by Harold Carruthers with Bill Navin at the piano.

Says Outlawed Armed Gangs Roved Rural Poland

By BARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, July 3. (AP)—A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Monday that outlawed armed gangs roved the Polish countryside Sunday night "beating, wounding and killing hundreds, probably thousands," of voting officials appointed to direct Sunday's referendum.

The spokesman said terroristic activity was "increasing greatly", with bands pursuing gangster tactics striking off the lists of name of election officials as slain and destroying voting and registration books.

The results of the referendum probably will be known Wednesday with final results available within 12 days.

The balloting, first in 11 years in war-ravaged Poland, provides the first sign as to which way the 11,000,000 registered voters lean in the bitter struggle for power between the Communist-backed party bloc, headed by Socialist Premier Edward Osubkamorawski, and the opposition Polish peasant party, led by Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk.

Says Palestine Situation Grows Hourly More Grave

By TOM WILLIAMS

London, July 3. (AP) — Berl Locker, a member of the world executive of the Jewish agency, told a Press conference today "the world must know that the situation in Palestine is graver than it has been painted. . . . and it is getting graver from hour to hour."

The Jewish committee in Palestine, he said, already has issued a warning to the government that unless "attacks" on Jews were stopped and Jewish leaders were freed, the committee would have to proclaim a policy of civil disobedience.

Mr. Lockyer said he had received reports alleging acts of torture on Jewish men and women detained at the Athlit Camp near Haifa, Palestine.

He said former inmates of the Buchenwald prison in Germany were beaten at another Palestine camp.

Mr. Lockyer declared that the male population of the collective settlement of Yagul, including boys over ten years of age, had been arrested and detained at Athlit.

Prime Minister Attlee, replying to attacks on the government's policy by Labor members, told Commons that he hoped to settle the Palestine question in accordance with recommendations of the Anglo-American inquiry and that he was seeking an agreement with the United States on a policy to bring peace to the Holy Land.

He added, however, that Britain would reject any peace plan which was unacceptable to all parties concerned and which would require arms to enforce.

"We are trying to deal fairly with the Jews and Arabs in Palestine," he said. "It is no good suggesting that we have not got obligations to the Arabs as well as to the Jews."

The Prime Minister added:

"No Government worthy of the name will yield to the kind of pressure by violence that has taken place. Certainly this government is not going to do so."

19 Separate Crimes Charged Against Chicago Student

Chicago, July 3. (AP)—State's Attorney William J. Tuohy said that 19 separate crimes—assault with intent to kill and burglary—were to be charged against William Heirens, 17-year-old University of Chicago student held for questioning in connection with the Suzanne Degnan kidnap-slaying.

After several hours of questioning of the youth in the kidnapping, slaying with dismemberment of the six-year-old Degnan child last Jan. 7, Mr. Tuohy disclosed plans for filing the charges and said Heirns would appear at a criminal court hearing on a writ of Habeas Corpus.

Police officials said there were several new developments in the case, which they said further linked the youth with the Degnan crime. They said the F.B.I. reported that prints of Heirens' left palm was "identifical" with a palm print on the Degnan $20,000 ransom note.

Mr. Tuohy said that Heirens had been shown the telegram sent by the F.B.I. in connection with the palm print and that he said: "It looks pretty bad for me, but I wasn't there."

Police officials also announced that in test samples of Heirens' writing he mispelled two words "waite" and "safty" exactly as those words were misspelled in the ransome note.

Police officials also disclosed that ballistics tests showed a gun found in Heirens dormitory room on the University campus had been used in the mysterious shooting of Mrs. Marian Caldwell in her home last December. Mrs. Caldwell, who was not seriously wounded, signed a complaint against Heirens charging assault with intent to kill, police said.

Spud Chandler, Yankees' Ace, Cracks Down on Boston Red Sox When it Does Most Good

Defeats Cronin's Crew 2-1 on Two Hits Before Largest Night Crowd in Baseball History

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, now in his 10th season with New York Yankees and holder of one of the finest lifetime won and lost records among the American League's active pitchers, has almost always found Boston Red Sox one of his most persistent hoodoos.

Even when the Yanks were running away with pennants and the Sox were also rans, Chandler found the Sox a tough nut to crack.

The 36-year-old righthander entered the present campaign with 80 victories in 110 games but enjoyed only an 11 and eight record against the Red Sox.

Chandler started the season in brilliant style but then he ran into the Red Sox and although yielding only three hits, he lost, 3-1, before 68,193 fans at the Yankee Stadium. A few weeks later he again slipper to defeat in Boston and it appeared as if Joe Cronin's crew still held their jinx over the Georgia sinker ball artist.

Last night, however, before 68,617 spectators, largest night game crowd in baseball history, Chandler downed the league-leading Sox, 2-1 on two hits for his 12th win of the season against two defeats.

Chandler caused the New York throng some anxious moments as he issued nine walks, including 2 in the fourth when Boston scored its lone run.

Bears Down in Clutch

But the veteran bore down in the clutch and fanned nine and was nursing a no-hitter until Bobby Doerr singled with one out in the eighth inning.

The win enabled New York to move to within 7½ games of the Red Sox.

Brooklyn's snarling Dodgers increased their National League margin over St. Louis Cardinals to 7½ games by nosing out Philadelphia Phillies, 3-2, while the Red Birds dropped a 7-5 arclight tilt to Cincinnati Reds.

Cookie Lavagetto batted in the Brooks' winning run in the ninth inning when he singled home relief pitcher Art Herring. The Reds tallied seven unearned runs in the third inning to hand the slump-ridden Cards their fourth straight loss. Johnny Vander Meer was rapped for 11 hits and was banished from the contest in the 9th by Umpire George Magerkurth when he hurled a baseball at St. Louis' Enos Slaughter during an argument.

Within One Game

Pittsburgh drew to within one game of the sixth-place Phils as Ken Heintzelman blanked Chicago Cubs, 9-0. The tall southpaw yielded only four safeties in turning in Pittsburgh's third successive shutout triumph.

Boston Braves sank New York Giants deeper into the cellar by scoring a ninth inning 5-4 victory over Mel Ott's team. Bama Rowell's pinch-hit triple scored the deciding tally in the last frame.

Cleveland moved over St. Louis Browns into fifth place by rapping Tex Shirley of the Browns for 12 hits and a 4-2 win.

Chicago whipped Detroit Tigers 8-7 for their first victory of the year at Briggs Stadium. Hank Greenberg smashed his 20th homer of the year in the opening stanza with one on.

The scheduled twin bill between Washington Senators and Philadelphia Athletics was postponed because of threatening weather.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Ken Heintzelman, Pirates: Blanked Chicago on four hits as Pittsburgh won its third straight shutout victory, 9-0.

Cookie Lavagetto, Dodgers: Batted in two runs including winning marker in Brooklyn's 3-2 conquest of Philadelphia.

Spud Chandler, Yanks: Yielded only two hits in beating league-leading Boston Red Sox, 2-1, for his 12th triumph of the season.

Winnipeg, July 3. (CP)—Herby McKenel, Jamaica born track star now turning in record-breaking times for the 440-yard run as a member of the University of Illinois' track team, may wear Canadian colors when the 1948 Olympics roll around.

He told Abbie (Winnipeg Free Press) Coo, manager of the last Canadian Olympic team, that he definitely was going to compete for a place on one of the British Empire teams and was more than interested in his chances of making the Maple Leaf squad.

Because of his Jamaica birth, the star Negro runner can't run for the United States although on the basis of his performances in intercollegiate meets there the U.S. Olympic team would welcome him. Jamaica is unlikely to enter a team so if he sticks to his intention of competing, it will be for either England or Canada.

The Manitoba Golf Association has decided upon a new method for selecting its four-man Willingdon Cup team to play against the other provinces at Edmonton late this month. With many golfers of champion calibre just out of the armed forces, the Associations' Council decided it had no definite background on which to base its selections as in previous years when all records were available.

This is how the team will be chosen: the 12 low scorers in the qualifying round of the Manitoba amateur and the 12 low in the inter-club tournament will be invited to compete in a special 36-hole medal round. In addition the M.G.A. reserve the right to add to these contestants any golfers who did not compete in either tournament.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 3 (AP)—One of the most significant sports items of the season says there will be no freshman sports at Penn State college for 1946-47 because there won't be any freshmen. . . A lot of other colleges are in much the same situation—flocks of returning war veterans will take up all the room and few, if any, first year men can be admitted . . . We still wonder what sort of teams they'll have three years from now when the senior class, which usually supplies most of the experienced football and other athletic talent, consists of a small number of exceptional students.

Week's Worst Gag

L. H. Addington, director of Publicity for Minor League baseball has to take the blame for this one. . . . "A Nashua, N.H., poultryman gives 100 chicks to each member of the Nashua Club of the New England League who hits a home run. . . Regardless of what the gentlemen of the Rules Committee might say, this is conclusive proof that a home run can be a 'fowl' ball".

Fistic Legislation

Former New York Assemblyman John J. Lamula, now a candidate says he plans to introduce legislation at Albany defining "ringside"—in connection with fight seats—as meaning "within 12 rows from the ring" . . . At that rate, the working press would have occupied almost the entire "ringside" at the recent Louis-Conn affair. . . .

Stan Takes a Stand

Stan Leonard, the Canadian golfer who finished only one stroke from the top in the recent Canadian open at Beaconsfield, Que., figures his countrymen don't do so well merely because they work as golf professionals. . . "Name me one 'great name player' in the United States who's got a job as a pro teacher," says Stan. "They do two things. They compete in tournaments and represent some mayonnaise, rubber or some other concern. I don't blame those guys. I just envy them."

Sports Before Your Eyes

Reading Col. Heinie Miller's proposal that the National Boxing Association establish a 185-pound boxing class, Jersey Jones asks why they don't concentrate on reviving some of the established classes that have become almost extinct, such as flyweight and bantam... "There's not enough real talent available in the heavyweight division now," Jones says... Roger Bresnahan whose catching got him a place in baseball's hall of fame, started as a pitcher and broke into the big league with a six-hit shutout for Washington against St. Louis in 1897... He also was the first player to wear a batting helmet, trying it in 1907 after he had been skulled by Andy Coakley.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

"I saw Umpire Scott chase Whalen, the Point Anne third base coach the other night during the game between Flashes and Point Anne. It appears Scott gave the coach the gate for using language—or in other words talking back to him. Was this right? Also can a first base coach, third base coach or manager for that matter verbally "kid" the opposing players?" writes a Point Anne softball fan.

Rule 59, Constitutions, Bylaws and Playing Rules of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, 1946, under which these teams were playing states:—"A coacher may address words of assistance and direction to the base-runners or to the batsman. He shall not, by words or signs, incite or try to incite the spectators to demonstrations, nor use language which will in any manner reflect upon or refer to a player of the opposite club, the umpire, or the spectators."

We've heard some rather caustic remarks at some of the ball games recently when players with a touch of grey at their temples, or a few wide open spaces showing where once bloomed wavy hair, strode up to the plate to do a spot of batting. The gist of the jibes sounded something like "Granpaw, where's yer crutches?". "Hiya, Pop" and other cracks from an ebullient fandom.

The notion is apparent in the minds of fans that when a player hits the 35th milestone he is ready for the boneyard; the slipper and pipe stage; the sport pages, and a seat in the ranks of the armchair umpires. But, brother that ain't so. Most managers will tell you that, barring the toll of injuries and illness, a player should be a better hitter at 35 than at 25.

We can name several players in these parts who are on the shady side of thirty and can show the younger fry how to wield a hickory. There's "Moose" Matthews, RCAF playing coach, who can belt 'em better now than he did ten years ago; Speedy St. Louis, who can drop a triple or a two-baser over the far corners of the lot with the same ease as he did when he used a comb; Murney Green, Point Anne perennial who will be splashing base-hits over the landscape when today's beardless bobby-socks are limping around on crutches, and a few more.

Look around at any of the leagues, the majors included and you'll find the aging lads giving Ole Father Time the heave-ho with their pranks at the plate. True the underpinning may not be as sprightly as it was a decade ago, but those batting eyes are far from dim.

Dixie Walker is a prime example. At 25, Walker was a free swinger. He came up to the Yankees as one of the many potential successors to Babe Ruth. And he swung like a guy trying to live up to his notices.

Look at Dixie today. He's leading his league. Why? One reason is that he is a smarter guess hitter. Another is that he now sets himself to hit to the opposite field, in Dixie's case, to left field.

DIXIE LIKED SOUTHPAWS

Dixie has had brilliant success against southpaws. He has learned to hit the curve which breaks away from him into left field. Most young fellows try to pull every pitch. It's a mistake unless they happen to be exceptionally gifted and extraordinarily powerful.

George Sisler was one of the greatest of all time at hitting with the pitch. He punched the outside serves to left field, the inside ones into right. There was one year when pitchers followed either of two methods in attempting to stop Sisler.

The first was to pitch two half speeders and hope that George would foul 'em into right, and then to take their chances on fooling him on the third strike.

The second was to put a lot of stuff on pitches that were directed right over the middle. In other words, to get George to line 'em right at the centre fielder. Playing with the corners, when Sisler was up there, was dangerous.

COBB HIT .461 AT 36

Sisler was in his 30's when he lost his ability to hit, but the cause was a severe attack of sinus which affected his vision.

When Ty Cobb was 36 years old he hit .461. At 35, Charley Gehringer led the league, Babe Herman went back to the Dodgers last year when he was over 40 and, despite the fact that it pained him to run, he was still a tough hombre at the plate.

The rules of boxing say that when a bout goes the limit and one boxer is far ahead of the other on points, he should receive the decision.

He doesn't always. Because ring tradition ordains otherwise, says Marg. Miller.

On March 26, 1909, Stanley Ketchel, middleweight champion, met Philadelphia Jack O'Brien in a 10-round no-decision bout in New York. Although referees made no decisions in the era of no-decision contests, newspapermen awarded verdicts as they saw fit. The winner of any fight was the man the majority of reporters backed up.

O'Brien was leading Ketchel by a wide margin up to the last few seconds of the final round. Reporters already were writing down an O'Brien victory. Then Ketchel landed the murderous right for which he was famous and stretched O'Brien unconscious on the canvas. The gong ending the fight interrupted the referee's count.

The fight was over.

Speaking of boxing, that "Joe Palooka, Champ" picture now running at the Capitol Theatre shows such ring-kings as Jimmy McLarnin, Joe Louis, Henry Armstrong, Lou Nova and others in action. The famous comic strip picture features Joe Kirkwood Jr., pro golf champ in the title role and lovers of the box-fight game should not miss it.

The softball tidbit of the week seems to be that game at Point Anne tonight when SACOS take on the Ox Pointers in a scheduled Belleville Softball Association game. The pastime was originally scheduled for the Fair Grounds here, but the Rotary Circus has taken over, and both teams agreed to play the game at the point. The squads are travelling at top speed and mushball lovers shouldn't miss this classic of the diamond. Game called at 6.30 or thereabouts.

Second and third base occupied, none out and his team trailing 2-1. That was the spot slender "Curt" Curtis, RCAF relief hurler found himself in when he went to the mound in the third innings of that Flyer-Kiwanis baseball game last night. It is a spot that many a veteran hurler has found himself in—but this lad Curtis had never pitched baseball before. True he had thrown some softball games, but not baseball. In fact, Catcher Johnny Lee, informed us after the game that the lad did not even know his signals.

But he came through with a fine effort, holding the youngsters to one hit for nearly five innings—and the kids tell us the fella had plenty of "stuff." It was a nifty game to watch with both teams playing heads-up ball in a neat pitching duel. But the Flyer clubs exploded in the fifth, and their "big gun" the "Moose" Matthews came through with a game winning triple with three of his mates hangared on the sacks.

George Temple Jr., a dashing marine and one of wrestledom's topflight performers besides being a brother of Shirley Temple, famous motion picture actress, will appear in a Belleville ring for the first time at the Hume Arena Friday.. He will be matched with that arch-villain of pachydermy Jan Gotch in a one-fall to a finish bout. Lee Henning will meet another ex-marine Toar Morgan in the main bout and Jim Goon Henry will tangle with the massive 304 pound Indian Jules Strongbow. Neat card, wot?

The Kibitzer

A careless bridge partner can be very exasperating. Especially when he has no face in the suit you have led. Then is when he seems to take a fiendish delight in discarding with utter indifference.

Doggonit. Just when you need his help the most, he begins to feel sorry for himself. Instead of saving what he can out of the wreck, he wrecks what little you could have saved.

With poor cards, his brains seem to go on a vacation. Or his eyes go on a cruise around the room. Or he acts bored. Or he discards in a dispirited manner as if it mattered not what you did next.

Chances are, small as they are his cards are very important to you. He may hold the very cards you have been hoping for. Perhaps all you needed was to know they were in his hand.

A partner must not despise his lowly cards. He must match what he holds with what your lead shows. When he does that, he can find some kind of a tip that may tell you what to do next.

Even when his discard does not help you, his inattention is a menace. You are not sure whether his discard was chosen with care. Consequently, it leaves you in doubt.

NORTH
♥A K 7

WEST ♥Q J 9 5 4
EAST ♥10 8 2

SOUTH

From your west hand, lead the heart queen. If east has the ten, it will be safe for you to continue that suit. East should know that.

Your queen lead says you have jack-ten or jack-nine. If he has the ten, he should encourage you with a come-on discard. This he can do by throwing his eight-spot on the trick.

If east drops the deuce on this trick, it is pure carelessness or impure indifference. He would leave you dangling in doubt.

Whaddaya gonna do with a guy like that.

Hollywood Column

Hollywood, July 3. (AP) — Betty MacDonald, who parlayed her adventures among the hens and roosters into the best-seller, "The Egg and I", was in Hollywood today eying the sights like any tourist. When I saw her, Betty was resting from a trip to International Pictures, which is going to film her book!

"Isn't it wonderful?" she said. "But after touring the country most of this year, I'd be excited if someone would tell me 'you're going to get to go to bed at eight o'clock tonight.'"

The writer will be busy posing with eggs and even autographing the darned things, which, she'll tell you, is no easy task. All this will help whip up interest in the film as well as the book, which already has brought her $125,000 in royalties. That and the $100,000 for movie rights are still a little unbelievable to the former housewife.

Some studios will not be hit as hard as others if the new strike shuts them down. Paramount is making no pictures on the lot while M.G.M. has seven. . . Do you doubt the value of publicity? Columbia estimates the naming of the Bikini bomb "Gilda" may add a million dollars to that picture's gross. The studio "happened" to send a flock of Rita Hayworth portraits to Kwajalein recently, which may help explain how the whole thing happened. . Katherine de Mille finally landed a part in "unconquered". All others had approved her but Father Cecil B. wasn't sure she was right for the part. . . .The rift between Ginger Rogers and the press widens. She has a press agent whose main function is to keep newspapermen away from her.

Titan Hanover Big Favorite For Invitation Trot

(By The Canadian Press)

Titan Hanover, standout in the 1945 Hambletonian from the Arden Homestead Stable, Goshen, N.Y., is the big favorite for the 25,000 invitation trot tonight on the Roosevelt raceway at Westbury, N.Y. The four-year-old, who holds a mark of 1:58 for the mile, is expected to find chief opposition from Doctor Spencer who scored the one and only victory over the Titan recently.

An added attraction for the expected crowd of 25,000 will be an exhibition trot by the 14-year-old Greyhound which won the Hambletonian 11 years ago.

Johnny Mowers, famed goalie of Detroit Red Wings, returned to Niagara Falls, Ont., last night after 3 1-2 years with the RCAF. Overseas and immediately announced his intention of seeing Manager Jack Adams in the motor city regarding a next-season's contract.

Sam Snead, with 149 for 36 holes, led the American contingent at St. Andrews, Scotland, yesterday when they qualified among 96 others for the British Olen which gets under way today.

Running for the University of Illinois, Herbert McKenley of Jamaica set a world record of 29.8 seconds in winning a 300-yard event of an A.A.U. meet at New York last night. The old mark of 30.2 seconds was made by the late Charles Paddock in 1921.

Light-heavyweight champion of the British Empire, Freddie Mills, with his manager, Ted Broadribb, flew from New York to London overnight. Before leaving, Broadribb said a series of fights had been lined up for his boxer in the States later this Summer.

Pitcher Carmen Rienzo, 19, of the Houcks Senior Baseball team, Niagara Falls, Ont., has signed a contract with Richmond in the Class B Piedmont League, it was announced last night. Richmond is a farm club of the Boston Braves.

A crowd of 5,800 turned out last night at the Queensboro Arena, New York, last night to see Patsy Brandino, 137, of Hamilton, Ont., earn a unanimous eight-round decision over Ruby Kessler, 138 1-2, of Brooklyn in the main bout.

Sweden's Davis Cup team has agreed to come to the United States for the inter-zone final in the International Tennis competition if it beats Yugoslavia in the European zone finals to be played at Stockholm July 17-19. The matches would be played at Forest Hills, August 16-18.

With only three seconds remaining in the 10th round, Curtis (The Hatchetman) Sheppard knocked out O'Dell Riley, Detroit Negro heavy weight at Baltimore last night, only to lose a decision to the Detroiter when the final bell cut the count short.

New York, July 2 (AP)—Tom Brown, the "unknown" who turned into a sensational tennis player at Wimbledon, is the same boy Don Budge and Bobby Riggs were plugging a few months ago as the best prospect among the younger amateurs... This corner will string along with Bobby Falkenburg as the youngster who has the stuff to reach the top ... Kaola, the trotting mare that Carl Hatchell and Frank Bowler bought a year ago for $10,000, won't be in the $25,000 American trotting championship at Roosevelt Raceway tomorrow night but will make her next start at Saratoga. She has won $28,425 already for her new owners.

MOOSE MATHEWS BATTLING HERO IN R.C.A.F. WIN

Flyers Defeat the Kiwanis Juniors 4-2 When Bunton Weakens in Fifth

For the second time in as many nights, the booming bludgeon of "Moose" Matthews, veteran coach of the Trenton Flyers, slashed out a ringing triple in the clutches to break up a closely-fought baseball game and bring home the victory bacon.

It happened in the 5th inning of the Flyer-Kiwanis Juniors game at the Alemite Field Tuesday night. The youngsters were breezing along with a 2-1 lead behind the fine hurling of Bobby Bunton, when the Flyer bats went into sudden action.

Holdershaw, Flyer first sacker got a life on Wright's error. Curtis struck out and White sacrificed Holdershaw along. Kerr doubled sharply to centre and Lee followed with a single loading the sacks. The "Moose" swung his trusty war-club and a triple went out into the wild blue yonder driving three runs across the plate. And that's how it ended. Flyers 4, Kiwanis 2.

Fine Relief Hurling

A feature of the game was the fine pitching of "Curt" Curtis, Flyer relief hurler who replaced Paddy Sheehan in the third. Curtis, was pitching his first game of baseball and came through with a fine effort. He held the Kiwanis bats to one hit and struck out five in his four and two-thirds innings mound duty. The slim right-hander who had never been on a baseball mound before was never in trouble and had the youngsters' bats muffled while he was working.

Weakened in Fifth

Bobby Bunton likewise pitched a fine game except in the disastrous fifth when he weakened. Two errors in this frame didn't help his cause any. He was nicked for eight hits all told and struckout four.

The kids scored in the first innings on three walks by Sheehan, and a safe smash by Bud Green. They got their second counter in the third when Reeves' double drove Bud Green home after he had strolled and pilfered second. Sheehan was wild and was yanked at this point for Curtis.

Flyers got their first counter in the third when White's single drove Holdershaw home who had hit safely ahead of him. That ended the Flyer scoring until the fifth.

Moose Matthews was the hitting hero of the day with three for three. But Green conked out a brace of clouts for the losers with Reeves getting a double and Lockyer a single.

The win puts the Flyers in sole possession of the top rung of the loop ladder.

COMEDY ERRORS HELP TORONTO LEAFS TO WIN

Bisons Tied Score in Ninth on Two Miscues and Leafs Win by Error in Second Half

.. (By The Associated Press) ..

Montreal Royals, setting the pace in the International League are not the kind to hide their light under bushelbaskets. When they set out to show just why and how they are leading the circuit, the Brooklyn Dodgers farmhands do so with a will.

This was proved again to Rochester's Red Wings last night. Royals showed them pitching in both games, and a splurge of batting in the opener, to sweep the doubleheader 12-0 and 3-2 and increase their league lead to 5 1-2 over Syracuse.

In the two games the Redwings were set down with a total of eight hits. Jean Pierre Roy blanked them on four in the opener, for his second victory, and in the nightcap Ernie Byerly also hurled a four-hitter.

Syracuse gained a split with Newark Bears to give the Chiefs the series lead, three games to one. They dropped the first game, 11-6 ,Steve Peek surviving a five-run Syracuse blasting in the fifth.

Millard Howell took charge of the afterpiece for Syracuse and kept the Bears' nine hits well scattered to hang up a 6-2 triumph.

A home run splurge that saw Joe Mellendick, Lou Kahn and Howie Moss hit for the circuit carried Baltimore to an 8-3 verdict over Jersey City. Stan West followed up with a four-hit pitching job to clinch the nightcap for the Orioles 4-1.

Toronto's Maple Leaf Stadium was the scene of a ninth-inning comedy of errors that wound up with the home club on the winning end 4-3, over Buffalo.

In the top half of the ninth a single sandwiched between two Toronto errors enabled Bisons to tie the score 3-3. In the home half a Buffalo error put Ben Steiner on base; he stole second, went to third on a wild throw, and then home with the deciding tally on a single.

FORMER ROWING STAR TEACHING BLIND TO FENCE

Conceived Idea While Reading "Believe It or Not" Cartoon by Ripley

By BRUCE LEVETT

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, July 3 (CP)—It was while reading a "Believe it or Not" cartoon by Robert L. Ripley that Hale Atkenson, chairman of the British Columbia Fencing Commission, first conceived the idea of teaching the blind to fence.

Mr. Atkenson, former stroke for the University of Oxford rowing crew and well-known western Canada fencing master, wrote the collector of fantastic facts and requested information.

As a result, blind persons here of both sexes have taken up the ancient art of swordplay and wield a foil with the best of them in Mr. Atkenson's fencing salon.

"Frankly, I was skeptical myself at first," the dimuntive fencing master said. "I have taught fencing by the 'feel of the foil' for years, but until now I didn't know exactly how far that went."

Mr. Atkenson's first venture into the realm of blind fencing came when he donned a black hood over his mask and faced one of his unhooded pupils.

"I was sold," he said. "The ordinary person takes six to eight months to become a proficient with a sword. But a sightless person has nothing to distract him and usually advances quicker."

Afencing strip, 40 feet long and 18 inches wide, slightly raised, keeps the blind swordsmen and women in line. They keep one foot touching the strip, and the opponent's foil touching theirs.

"They can tell by the sensitivity possessed by all sightless persons just how the opponent's sword is moving," Mr. Atkenson said.

By autumn, he hopes to have established the blind fencers league of North America. Already lined up are clubs in New York, Manitoba and British Columbia, with indications of more to come.

AT THE BELLE — Last Times Today — Little Connie Marshall, as orphan, is found at the sea shore by Maureen O'Hara, who adopts the child in "Sentimental Journey," which is being presented for the last times at the Belle Theatre today. Others in the cast include John Payne as co-star, assisted by Sir Cedric Hardwicke, William Bendix, Trudy Marshall and Mischa Auer.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma were out visiting last night, and this morning at breakfist ma said, Really, William, I mean really, I never saw anything so obvious.

If you mean this egg, I wasn't going to mention it, but I believe it reached the age of retirement some time before it reached me, pop said, and ma said, Now William that's a good egg and you know it. What else could it be at such a price? I was referring to the actions of that thin woman in red last night. I understand she's a widow, but she wont remain one much longer if it depends on her own plans and specifications. She certainly made a public bid for that good looking Mr. Imperly, although naturelly you didn't notice it, ma said.

The dooce I didn't, why didn't I? pop said, and ma said, Because men haven't got the insight for such things, or else they wouldn't let themselves be trapped so easily.

But for Peet sake, all the languishing looks and silly giggles she cast in his direction, how could I help but notice? pop said, and ma said, That had nothing to do with it, or at least very little. That wasn't the abslute give away that I'm talking about. Do you remember the ferst remark she made when she entered the room? She exclaimed, "My, cigar smoke! How I love the manly smell of cigars!" Now William, every woman in that room, including me, was strangling from the smell of those cigars. In fact I defy an angel without a nose to enter a room with a pleasant smile after a groop of men have been smoking cigars in it, and obviously the remark was made for the express benefit of Mr. Imperly, ma said.

How do you make that out? pop said, and ma said, Because he was the only unmarried man in the room. Do you think any woman would of wasted such an outlandish lie on a roomful of married men? she said.

You win, excuse me while I go and empty this ash tray, pop said.

Which he did, including one cigar stump.

HEARTBREAK

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 14

He was off on his favorite subject but Donna listening dreamily told herself there was not his equal in any circle. No matter how he had attained it his force and magnetism overbalanced any lack of social graces. When he suggested supper in his house on North Beach, she accepted gratefully. That house with its bright blue door and walled in garden would always seem a refuge to her.

"Quite a contrast, isn't it?" he grinned as they went inside.

"I love it," she declared.

"So do I. After all I've worked for every piece of furniture in here. Some of it I've made with my own hands. There's a tremendous satisfaction in that, Donna. And in knowing that it's mine. All mine."

They spent a happy evening together. Carl made spaghetti while Donna toasted huge slices of French bread and made a green salad. They ate to the music of the victrola and afterward he read to her from one of the ponderous volumes on the lower shelf of the bookcase. She listened with sheer delight in his quick magnetic voice. And when he had finished she lifted the hand he had put over hers and held it against her cheek.

"You liked that?" he asked anxiously.

"Yes, of course, darling! It gave me an entirely new slant on the whole question."

"You're sweet," he said. "And I love you very much."

Yes they were happy. In perfect harmony but it was to be the last time for many weeks. At ten o'clock Donna said she had to go. Tomorrow was a working day and besides she didn't like to be out late two nights in succession. Carl did not argue with her. He took her home immediately, but as they said good night on the dimly lighted porch of the big house she said, "I suppose I won't be seeing you tomorrow since it's Monday."

"No," he replied.

For the first time Donna had commented on the fact that she never saw him on Mondays and Thursdays. For the first time she had dared to do this. At least she would let him know that she realized the situation even if she was forced to accept it. If he would only tell her what he did on those evenings. If he would only explain why. But a promise was a promise and she must not ask him.

The next day she entered her editor's office eager to tell him what had happened.

"I've moved," Donna said, "to the home of my father."

"Your father?" Boris repeated.

"Yes. He's John Meade of the Meade Advertising Agency."

"I know who he is," Boris answered. "But Donna, what about your job? What about our agreement?"

"Oh, I'm going on with that."

Boris stared at her then he began to smile.

"But you don't understand. My agreement was with him."

It was her turn to be puzzled.

"What are you talking about? How could you have an agreement with my father? He didn't even know I was working for you."

"I'm afraid he did. In fact it was his idea."

Donna's heart began to flutter. Was it all a trick then? The job had never really belonged to her?

"It was Kitty who sent me to you."

"That's what you thought. It was your father who made all the arrangements."

"What arrangements?" Donna asked coldly.

"Don't be upset, Donna! He offered to pay your salary if I would let you work here. He thought it would be a better place for you than the reducing studio."

"Then I haven't any job? You haven't really needed me?"

"On the contrary you've proved a good investment. For some time now I've felt guilty about it. If you are willing to continue for the same amount I'll be glad to pay it myself."

"Oh, Boris, do you mean that? You're not just saying it?"

"Certainly I mean it. When I offer to pay money to anyone I expect to get full value therefrom."

She hadn't realized until then how important the job on the paper was to her.

She cried, "You'll get it, but wait until I tell my father about this. Why has he kept it from me?"

"He probably thought you wouldn't accept his help any other way. In fact that's what he told me. You should be grateful, Donna. Not many fathers would go to so much trouble."

"He's tops," Donna said seriously. "I'm just beginning to know how wonderful he is. Some day I'll tell you all about it but not at nine o'clock on Monday morning."

"Right," he agreed. "And now get back to work. You'll find a list of assignments on your desk."

Donna saluted and returned to the outer office with a light heart She was worth the salary he had been paying her. It wasn't just charity. The job as reporter on what Carl had called a "dinky Russian paper" was still hers. How proud she was of it and how she would try to keep it. Nothing else in the world could equal the satisfaction of working at a job for which one was suited. A smile sparkled in her eyes as she remembered that these were Carl's words. He had said them to her months ago but she had proved them for herself. Could it be that he was right about other things?

The weeks which followed were a relevation to Donna in many ways. For the first time in her life she had an opportunity of witnessing what marriage could mean. The relationship between her father and Helen Meade, the affection and understanding which included Donna, gave her the emotional security she had lacked with Vanya.

Life in the big old house had a peaceful rhythm which permitted individual freedom yet carried one gently along with it. If she wanted to have dinner with Carl no one objected. When he didn't call her Donna knew she was welcome at the family table. Sunday noon breakfast was the only meal where her presence was required and she enjoyed these too much to be absent.

The only drawback was that Carl seemed to be pulling away from her. They still saw each other but not so often. Sometimes this was his fault. At others Donna, knowing guests had been invited to meet her, decided to stay at home. Helen was so generous about it that Donna did not like to refuse particularly when Carl continued his custom of taking two nights a week for himself.

Secretly this had become a sore spot although it was never mentioned. Donna simply could not understand why he had to reserve those two nights. She knew he had many women friends and supposed he was still seeing them. If there wasn't a woman or women involved why didn't he explain it to her?

The fact that this silence annoyed her did not lessen her love. On the contrary she felt an increasing desire to be with him. To be so close there could be no secrets between them. But how could this be achieved without marriage? To her surprise she found herself considering it in spite of all she had said.

Some times during those weeks with Helen and John Meade her opinion had changed. She believed now that matrimony could be a mutually satisfactory state and the more she thought about living with Carl, sharing his snug little house, working together, the more she imagined that marriage was the answer. If only Carl felt that way, too. But perhaps he, too, had changed. Perhaps that was why things seemed more complicated between them. Neither was satisfied with things as they were but each was determined to keep his promise....

It was late October on a rainy, stormy night when Donna accompanied Carl to a veterans meeting where he was to speak. He had a cold which made him so hoarse that every word was an effort. Sitting in the audience Donna felt her own throat tighten with sympathy. The poor darling shouldn't be out at all, she thought. "He needs me to look after him."

They left before the meeting was over. Carl's face was dark with fever. He said, "I'm sorry, Donna, but I'll have to take you straight home."

"You'll do no such thing," she insisted. "I can get myself home but first I'm going to your house and see that you're safely in bed."

He glanced at her as if surprised but evidently felt too ill to argue about it. And when they had opened the bright blue door which was never locked she said briskly, "Now you put on your pyjamas while I make some hot lemonade."

She hummed cheerfully while waiting for the water to heat. She felt competent and needed. He had obeyed like a little boy and was in bed propped up with pillows when she appeared with the tall glass of steaming liquid.

"Drink this, darling, then you can go right to sleep."

"How are you going to get home?" he croaked.

"I'm phoning for a taxi and remember you're not to work tomorrow. You'll have pneumonia if you're not careful."

Carl promised and the next morning when she telephoned, he was better. Donna said she would drop by after work and get his dinner. She felt happy planning it. Helen had taught her to cook several simple dishes suitable for their Sunday breakfasts. She would have baked potatoes and scrambled eggs with buttered toast and tall glasses of ice cold tomato juice.

She found Carl reading before the fire, clad in a warm flannel dressing gown. His hands were cool and he seemed much better. Donna pressed her face against his murmuring, "I was worried about you last night."

He smiled.

"That was your maternal instinct. This is nothing. I used to have terrific colds when I was a kid but working outside has practically stopped them."

Donna remembered that his mother and sister had died with tuberculosis. Her heart was filled with tenderness. He did need her whether he realized it or not. And tonight after they had eaten their dinner and were sitting in the firelight she intended to tell him so.

There was something infinitely satisfying in taking care of someone you loved. How wrong she had been, Donna thought, to believe a woman could fulfill her destiny any other way. Carl seemed less talkative than usual. Perhaps he too was conscious of the fact that they had reached a turning point.

They ate in the living room then they turned off the lights and sat in the rosy glow of the dancing flames.

"Happy?" he smiled.

Donna drew a deep breath.

"Perfectly. Are you?"

"Yes. Could anything be better than to sit before a blazing fire with the wind and rain beating against the windows?"

"With the person you love," she prompted.

Carl lifted her hand to his lips. "That, too, of course."

"Wouldn't it be wonderful," she asked softly, "if it could be like this all the time?"

She could feel the muscles of his hand tighten over hers before he said, "What do you mean?"

PICK THE GAPS
When at the plate waiting to hit, study position of opposing infielders. See where best gap is, and place your hit there. See diagram for usual gaps.

HIT DOWN
Softball pitch usually comes at upward angle. Most hitters miss or make weak hit by hitting under ball. Cure: Hold bat high, hit slightly down at ball.

2 INCH KNEE BEND

BEND KNEES
In hardball, most hitters miss or "top" ball for easy roller because they hit over ball. Cure: Bend knees a little to lower your swing as your bat comes around.

Need For Two and Three-Room Flats in City Never Greater Since the Beginning of the War

The housing accommodation situation for family life such as two and three-roomed apartments, in this city is the worst since the beginning of the war and is becoming aggravated monthly with the return of veterans and their families from overseas, Mrs. J. A. Kerr, Rooms Registry supervisor here stated today.

Further accentuation of the seriousness of the situation is predicted in the fact that the Air Armament School and the Composite Training School at the Mountain View Air Station has reopened bringing with it the problem of need of accommodation for staff personnel and those men of the service who will be taking courses.

Many of these men are in the permanent force and have no family life if their wives and families do not accompany them.

There is a severe shortage in the city of rooms, apartments and accommodations for small children, Mrs. Kerr said, despite the fact that recently a number of people have reported their homes as being sub-let for the holiday months. These were snapped up quickly as soon as available, and it is felt that a large number of residents could follow this example and alleviate to some extent the dire need of accommodation.

Applications Daily

Discharged veterans of all services, make applications daily. The greater majority suffer disappointment and many human interest stories are bared.

The general public appears to be under the impression, Mrs. Kerr said, that with the war over there is very little demand for such accommodation when in reality, the situation is the worst since 1939.

One veteran with six years service, five and one-half of them overseas, who has a wife and a nine-year old daughter, is forced through lack of suitable accommodation to live with his parents, while his family lives with the parents of his wife.

Another veteran with 5 1-2 years overseas service who has been working here since January is forced to live in a single room while his wife and baby reside in Kingston.

These are but few of many similar instances.

Engaged by City

When the YWCA War Services closed the Hostess Rooms on Campbell Street here in February, the city engaged Mrs. Kerr to continue the work of the Rooms Registry for a period of six months, and through the generosity of Mr. Joe Shortt, Y. M. C. A. Secretary, office space was provided in the "Y" building.

Since the city has taken over, monthly reports reveal that the demand for accommodation is increasing. Since March 1st, the total number of persons placed by Mrs. Kerr's office is 636. During that period 417 new applications have been received.

Continuation Necessary Claim

While the Rooms Registry office has had no word from city officials as to the continuation of its work at the expiration of the six-months period, the present situation seems to indicate that a continuation is necessary.

Monthly reports of the activities of the Rooms Registry have been submitted to the City Council. Mrs. Kerr stated, in her June report the number of people placed was 195. Number of telephone calls 552; number of people in office 401; overnight placements 18; old applicants 92; number of new applications 86; number of individuals represented 164.

Utilities Commission Will Bear Capital Costs For New Lighting System

Considerable progress has been made by the public utilities commission regarding the proposed new and improved street lighting which has been recommended for the business section of the city, members of council have been informed through a communication from the Commission.

To date three sets of plans and specifications setting out the most modern and efficient types of lighting equipment have been received, the layouts calling for a maximum of 94 lighting units to replace the 48 in service at present.

The matter of financing the new street lighting has been taken up with the Hydro Electric Power Commission and tentative approval has been received for the Belleville Commission to provide the capital from its available funds thus the council will be relieved from the burden of financing.

However, due to present material shortage it is doubtful that the new equipment can be delivered for some time and the commission feels that a committee from council should meet with the commission at an early date to discuss and choose the particular type of lighting that should be proceeded with an thus be in a position to place the actual order as soon as possible. Street lighting for other parts of the city has also been studied and sample units of new design have been ordered and when received will be installed for approval.

In committee city council expressed its appreciation to the Hydro commission for accepting the capital expenditures necessary in the installation of the new lighting system and intimated that the special committee from council would be appointed to confer with the commission.

POLICE BLOTTER

Failure of a Cobourg motorist to see a Stop sign at the intersection of Victoria Avenue, and John Street resulted in a minor collision between two autos on Tuesday as fender damage was caused to a vehicle owned by William Broad, 271 Foster Ave. Broad was proceeding west on Victoria when the Cobourg car struck the rear fender.

A second accident occurred on North Front Street, when a soft drink truck was being towed by tow truck. Proceeding south of North Front Street, the towed vehicle apparently struck a bump and turned on its side before the tow truck could be stopped. Driver of the towed vehicle received injuries to his elbow.

John Mutrik, boarder at a Dundas Street home, reported to police the theft of his suitcase.

A certain St. Charles Street lad is starting early his apprenticeship as a carpenter. William Levesque, St. Charles Street, who is constructing a new house reported sawhorses stolen from the basement. They were later recovered, apparently having been taken by an eight-year-old lad.

J. Lazenby Wants Public Reception For Returned Men

City council members at their last meeting prior to the summer recess on Monday evening were criticized roundly by J. Lazenby of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Committee for their apparent inaction in arranging for an appropriate public reception for city and district members of the armed services following their return from overseas.

"It seems just too bad that Trenton and the townships of Sidney and Thurlow can get ahead of this city by already having staged successful receptions for their war veterans," Mr. Lazenby charged as he addressed council members. "In Belleville it seems there has been a falling off in interest and a lack of consideration for the veterans."

The draft of a suitable scroll which was suggested to be presented to every veteran was presented to council by the speaker from the Citizens' Rehabilitation Committee. He asked the city to go ahead with the scroll and have from 2,000 to 3,000 printed.

The Rehabilitation Committee are making an effort to secure the name of every man and woman from Belleville with service record, as well as the names of veterans whose homes are on rural routes running out of Belleville.

Mr. Lazenby suggested the end of August as a suitable time for the holding of a public reception for overseas veterans and urged that the city council would bend every effort to make the occasion a success.

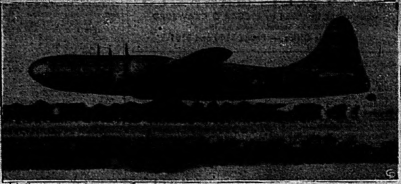
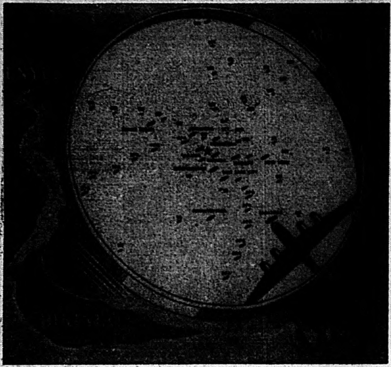
PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWING RESULTS OF BIKINI ATOM BOMB TESTS — GOATS IN TARGET AREA FOUND ALIVE



The atomic bomb-carrying plane is pictured as it roars down the Kwajalein Island airstrip on the takeoff for the first test of the bomb against naval vessels anchored in Bikini atoll. Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt was pilot of the big B-29.



The positions of the vessels in the atom bomb target fleet are shown in this diagram picturing how they were anchored in Bikini lagoon. The array was so arranged that a maximum damage would be inflicted on the cluster of ships at the point of aim by one airplane dropping one bomb. The battle-scarred Nevada, painted a bright red-orange, was the target for the B-29 bombardier who dropped a "standard" type atom bomb. Symbols indicate: DD—Destroyer; SS—Submarine; APA—Attack Transport; LST—Landing Ship Tank; LCI—Landing Craft Infantry; LCT—Landing Craft Tank; LCM—Landing Craft Mechanized; ARDC—Floating Drydock, and B—Barge.

Here is a view of the heavy cruiser, U.S.S. Pensacola after she took what the atomic bomb had to offer and still remained afloat. The superstructure is badly damaged, but the tough fighting ship is on an even keel. The photograph was made from the salvage ship U. S. S. Reclaimer in Bikini lagoon. Score in the bomb test was five ships sunk, six heavily damaged and 31 slightly damaged.

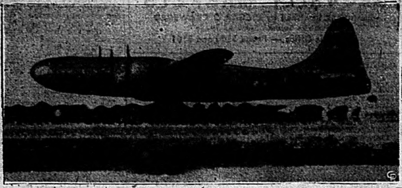
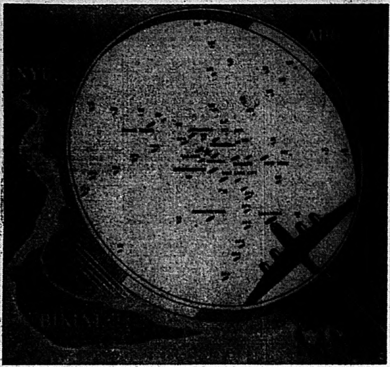
PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWING RESULTS OF BIKINI ATOM BOMB TESTS — GOATS IN TARGET AREA FOUND ALIVE



The atomic bomb-carrying plane is pictured as it roars down the Kwajalein Island airstrip on the takeoff for the first test of the bomb against naval vessels anchored in Bikini atoll. Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt was pilot of the big B-29.



The positions of the vessels in the atom bomb target fleet are shown in this diagram picturing how they were anchored in Bikini lagoon. The array was so arranged that a maximum damage would be inflicted on the cluster of ships at the point of aim by one airplane dropping one bomb. The battle-scarred Nevada, painted a bright red-orange, was the target for the B-29 bombardier who dropped a "standard" type atom bomb. Symbols indicate: DD—Destroyer; SS—Submarine; APA—Attack Transport; LST—Landing Ship Tank; LCI—Landing Craft Infantry; LCT—Landing Craft Tank; LCM—Landing Craft Mechanized; ARDC—Floating Drydock, and B—Barge.

Here is a view of the heavy cruiser, U.S.S. Pensacola after she took what the atomic bomb had to offer and still remained afloat. The superstructure is badly damaged, but the tough fighting ship is on an even keel. The photograph was made from the salvage ship U. S. S. Reclaimer in Bikini lagoon. Score in the bomb test was five ships sunk, six heavily damaged and 31 slightly damaged.

EARLY STEEL STRIKE POSSIBLE AT HAMILTON

Byrnes Presses For Peace Parley Before July 31st

Molotov Wants Italian Reparations Settled First

Paris, July 4 — (AP)—State Secretary Byrnes of the United States indicated he would renew his demands today that the Foreign Ministers Council give its approval to the convoking of a 21-power peace conference in Paris before the end of the month.

Mr. Byrnes' attempts to win an immediate decision on the conference were frustrated yesterday when Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, who has indicated throughout he wants it postponed until September, declared that he could not agree to fixing a date until after the Italian reparations question had been settled.

The session broke up after a heated debate, with the foreign ministers apparently deadlocked and unable to even agree on an agenda for their meeting today. Only fixed item on their program was a report from the deputy foreign ministers estimating the time to be required to draw up a draft of the treaties to be presented to the peace conference when it is convoked.

United States Senator Arthur Vandenburg (Rep.-Mich.) said the disagreement yesterday had resulted in "an awful row," but expressed belief that it would still be possible to convene a peace conference here before July 31. Other council sources agreed with him.

The dispute over the conference question came after the foreign ministers had achieved complete accord on the internationalization of Trieste and the problem of Italy's colonies.

Mr. Byrnes took the position that it had been agreed last Saturday that the ministers should decide on a date for the peace conference after settling these 2 issues and pressed for an immediate decision.

Plan of Settlement

The Trieste question was settled on the basis of a six-point plan drafted by Messrs. Byrnes and Vandenburg. As adopted the plan provided that:

1. Trieste and its environs, embracing an area with a population of about 400,000, be established as a "free territory."
2. United Nations will assure the area's independence and integrity.
3. The United States, Britain, Russia and France will appoint a commission to confer with Italy and Yugoslavia on a statute for the administration of Trieste which will be submitted to the peace conference.
4. This statute also will be submitted to the U. N. Security Council for approval.
5. The peace conference will make recommendations for the area's provisional government and the formation of the permanent statute.
6. The U. N. Security Council will appoint a governor for the area, which will have a legislature elected in a democratic manner by universal suffrage.

Metallic Drops Fell at Bikini, Will Be Analyzed

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, July 4 — (AP)—Metallic drops which pelted onto the decks of the German cruiser Prinz Eugen and into the sea after the Bikini bomb went off may have been drops formed in the air from metallic vapors created by automatic heat.

Much the same thing happens on the sun, except that on the sun's surface the drops fall as liquid metal. The rain of iron droplets has been reported by astronomers.

The composition of the drops is not yet known. They were the size of small shot and each has a tiny hole passing exactly through the centre.

Scientists will analyze the pellets. They may be found to contain some of the new atoms formed by fission of plutonium.

Surgeons Put Zippers on Heart

By RENNIE TAYLOR

San Francisco, July 4 (AP)—How surgeons put zippers on a live, pulsating human heart so they can cut into its chambers with a minimum loss of blood was shown vividly to the American Medical Association yesterday by an army motion picture.

The technique was used to restore a man who unaccountably lived after taking foreign objects which not only pierced the heart but remained in a chamber to impair its functioning.

Such operations are extremely difficult because, for one thing, the heart is always moving, even under anaesthesia. As it beats it trembles, making an elusive target for the razor-sharp knife that must be both quick an unerring.

Also, when a chamber is opened, particularly the one which forces blood into the great artery, the surgeon has to work against a spurting crimson stream and at high speed to reach in with forceps, grasp the foreign object and withdraw it, all in a matter of seconds.

The chamber is cut open and seed up by a surgical technique. Long fine strands of suture material, the surgeon's sewing thread, are tacked to the outside of the heart muscle on each side of the spot where the incision is to be made. Four or more of these, a foot long, are left hanging or their ends in the hands of nurses.

The instant the particle is withdrawn, these threads are crossed and pulled together like a shoestring in a shoe, closing the incision. The pre-stitching has narrowed to a minimum those few vital seconds in which the patient's life really hangs by a thread.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, July 4—(CP)—Synopsis at 7:30 a.m. — Clear weather associated with a high pressure area moving slowly eastward across the Great Lakes continues Thursday morning throughout the eastern United States, most of Ontario, and southern Quebec. Temperatures were slightly below normal in southern Ontario during the past twenty four hours. Maximum temperatures Wednesday afternoon were in the high seventies, and minimum temperatures Thursday morning varied between forty and fifty-five degrees. It is cooler in northern Quebec, where a northerly flow of air from the Hudson Bay region has pushed southward to near the St. Lawrence River Valley east of Quebec City. Showers are occurring in this northern flow of cool air.

Changes in Tactics and Ship Design May be Sequel to Bikini Bomb Drop

By JAMES J. STREBIG
Associated Press Aviation Reporter

Washington, July 4 (AP)—Initial speculation about the effect of the atom bomb on naval aviation tends to the view that changes will be more in tactics than in ships.

Some design changes are probable, in view of the extensive damage to the light carrier Independence.

The Bikini bomb swept the Independence flight deck clean, including the island of Antennas. That is likely to accelerate the move toward a return to strict flattop design by having the island below the flight deck level, as it was in the old Langley and in the Long Island class of escort carriers. The Japanese built some carriers in that style.

Other possible changes likely to get increased consideration are:

1. Redesign of radar and radio antennas for a telescopic effect so that they can be protected from blast, and perhaps entirely new types of antennas that can be used in a protected location.
2. Installation of a second hangar deck for storing aircraft, about half of which now are exposed on the flight deck, and redesign of hangar deck curtains for greater blast protection.
3. Redesign of the hull structure for more blast protection, and perhaps heavier decks.

Tactical changes are certain to include greater spacing between capital ships operating at sea, with ships so far apart that a single attack cannot affect more than one carrier.

Such planning is limited to the foreseeable future, and does not reach to the era of robot aircraft and target seeking missiles, all of which may call for even more radical changes.

PHILIPPINES MARK INDEPENDENCE AND FULL SOVEREIGNTY

Ceremonies Held At Manila, Cheering Crowds Celebrate Coming of Republic

By JOHN GROVER

Manila, July 4 — (AP)— The United States flag came down for all time today as this country of 7,083 tropical islands, swept by fire and sword through 400 years of oppression, came peacefully to full sovereignty.

The national aspirations of 18,000,000 Filipino citizens were realized in the independence ceremonial in Luneta Plaza overlooking Manila Bay.

Hundreds of thousands saw President Manual Roxas and Vice President Elpidio Quirino take the oath of office and heard addresses by Gen. MacArthur, Ambassador Paul V. McNutt and United States Senator Millard Tyidings of Maryland, co-author of the act which gave the islands their independence.

From Washington, President Truman sent a message in which he pledged that the United States would assist the Philippines republic "in every way possible." The two countries, he said, would "be closely bound together for many years to come."

The ceremonies were centred around a flagpole erected on the spot where Jose Rizal, martyr of the Philippines fight for freedom, was executed by the Spaniards in 1896.

Gen. MacArthur told cheering crowds:

"Let history record this event in flaming letters as depicting a new height of nobility in the relationship between two separate and distinct peoples of the earth. Let history record this event in the sweep of democracy through the earth as foretelling the end of mastery of peoples by power of force alone. . . ."

Hyperthyroidism Cure Is Reported to A.M.A. In Radioiodine

San Francisco, July 4 (AP) — A $2.50 cure for hyperthyroidism, contained in a drink of water, now can take the place of a $150 surgical operation, Dr. Earle M. Chapman of the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, told the American Medical Association yesterday.

The curative agent is a tiny pinch of radioiodine, one of the atomic medicines. It is not new, having been used experimentally for years. The new thing about it is its medical acceptance in place of the more expensive and more serious surgical process.

Hyperthyroidism is characterized by overactivity of the gland. People with hyperthyroidism often have rapid heart action, show nervous irritability, and may have bulging eyes and goitre.

Unusually good results in the treatment of infantile paralysis with curare, an arrow poison used by South American Indians, were reported to the association yesterday by Dr. Nicholas S. Ransohoff of New York City.

Test Animals on Fleet Are Beginning to Show Falling Blood Count

By DON WHITEHEAD

Aboard U. S. S. Appalachian, July 4—(AP)—The single atomic bomb losses on Bikini would have left the entire test fleet helpless had the 73 ships been fully manned, one radiological safety officer said today.

The bomb would have had two shots at the crew, pointed out Capt. George Lyon — first, the blast; and second, lingering, deadly rays. "Many not killed by the blast would have been unable to carry on their duties because of illness from the radiation," he observed.

Although 90 per cent of the test animals survived, many of them today had begun to show a falling blood count—which may lead to death.

Associated Press science writer Howard W. Blakeslee reported a new source of crippling, physical damage to ships today after touring the bullseye battleship Nevada. The pressure of the blast, he observed, had split her boilers open, "leaving doubt whether she could have continued to navigate."

The Arkansas and Pensacola were similarly damaged.

The crossroads task force commander, Vice-Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, declined to draw any conclusions from the test or to make any prediction of its effect on future ship construction. He did remark at his press conference, however, that every ship damaged could be repaired in two to nine months, since none had suffered severe underwater damage.

Detonated Under Water

The second test bomb will be detonated under water, within 3 or four weeks.

Col. Stafford Warren, Crossroads radiological safety officer, commented earlier that "steel is not too good a protection for personnel," since if the armor were made thick enough to stop lethal rays, there'd be no room left in the ship for crewmen.

Blakeslee, visiting the Nevada for the first time this afternoon, found she still was emitting lethal x-rays from her after deck — on which a stretch of more than 100 feet was roped off for safety.

"Amidships," he added, "some boxes of soap and of bromides were emitting such strong x-rays that it was unsafe to be near them longer than two hours."

The only undamaged things on deck, he found, were two Gen. Pershing tanks, guns down to the size of 20-millimetre, and rubber tires. Huge tractor tires had scarcely been blackened, and seemed good as new. The wooden decks, however, "were a series of humps and shallows. One hole 15-feet square was stove in the deck amidships."

50 OF 2,718 JEWS ARE RELEASED MORE TO BE FREED

Nine Additional Caches of Munitions Found in Mesheq Yagur

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS

Jerusalem, July 4. (AP)—The British Army disclosed today that 50 of the 2,718 Jews arrested during the week had been released from the Rafa prison camp in Southern Palestine and said others would be freed later.

Those released today were mostly residents of Tel Aviv who were swept along with thousands of suspected of connection with underground resistance and held for investigation.

The army said it was trying to release the innocent as fast as possible. None has yet been released from Latrun camp, where six members of the Jewish Agency executive are being held.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, underground Jewish resistance organization, promised today to release three British officers kidnapped June 18. As "soon as possible" in return for the commutation of death sentence imposed on two Jewish youths for firing at British soldiers.

The promise to release the officers was broadcast by the underground Jewish radio, which expressed "gratification" at the commutation order issued yesterday by Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palstine High Commissioner.

British Military authorities, meanwhile, announced the discovery of nine additional caches of munitions in an underground arsenal in the Jewish village of Mesheq Yagur, where they have been conducting an intensive search for contraband arms since last Saturday.

The announcement said the finds included 4,000 grenades, 2,200 mortar bombs, 385 rifles, 46 pistols, thousands of rounds of small arms ammunition and 800 pounds of explosives.

Colonial Office Denies Charges.

In London the British Colonial office issued a categorical denial of Zionist charges that Jewish prisoners had been mistreated and subjected to "medieval tortures" in the Athlit detention camp or elsewhere in Palestine. "There is no foundation whatsoever for allegations that third degree treatment, beating or torture has been inflicted on any detainees," the statement said.

Emil Khouri, a member of the newly formed higher Arab executive, said the group sent a statement yesterday to Gen. Cunningham demanding that Britain take further action to halt illegal Jewish immigration.

"We cannot be responsible for any Arab reaction if illegal immigrants still continue to flood Palestine," Khouri said.

MILITARY HONORS PAID VICTIMS OF LIBERATOR CRASH

Markers Dedicated to the Memory of 24 Air Force Personnel Killed

St. Donat, Que., July 4 (CP)—High in the wilds of the Laurentians, at the top of 2,800-foot Black Mountain, a stone cairn and 24 markers beside the twisted wreckage of an R.C.A.F. Liberator bomber are dedicated to the memory of air force personnel who lost their lives in an accident there on Oct. 20, 1943.

The accident occurred in almost virgin territory and remained a mystery until two weeks ago when the spot was found. Yesterday, three service padres hiked over the strenuous eight-mile trail to the scene to read burial services for the 20 protestant, three Roman Catholic and one Jewish victim of the crash, the worst disaster of R. C. A. F. history in Canada.

Hon. Capt. Rabbi Ephrian F. Mandelcorn, former Jewish chaplain in Western Canada, read a burial service in Hebrew and English for the lone Jewish victim of the crash, whose grave is marked with a star of David.

Hon. Wing Cmdr. Leonard A. Costello, Principal Roman Catholic chaplain at A.F.H.G., sang the Libera, assisted by Father Gerard Souper, local assistant priest, and three Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament from Montreal, for the three Roman Catholic dead. Prayers were sung in English by Father Costello and in French by Father Souper.

Hon. Wing Cmdr. Robert M. Frayne, of Winnipeg, Principal Protestant chaplain at air force headquarters, conducted the service for the 20 protestant dead. In his address he quoted Churchill's words at the funeral of the Duke of Kent, and Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Mr. Frayne scattered maple leaves picked in Ottawa over the cairn.

Tribute was paid to the dead by the St. Donat village council headed by Mayor Richard Coutu and by other inhabitants with the placing of wreaths of wild flowers and foliage on the cairn. Nearly a dozen relatives of the victims who accompanied the party of about 150 assisted at the services.

Bugler LAC. Fred Smith of Toronto sounded the Last Post to conclude the simple but impressive 50-minute service.

Said Missing Dakota in Malaya

Singapore, July 4 (Reuters)—R.A.F. planes are combing Malaya for a Dakota which disappeared Saturday on its way to Rangoon with 11 service passengers and a crew of five. The plane, last heard of when bad weather forced it to turn back over Siam, is presumed to have crashed in Central Malaya.

HOUSE DISPOSES OF CARTELS BILL, OTHER BUSINESS

Right Extended to Any Individual to Start Proceedings Against An Illegal Combine

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 4. (CP)— The far-reaching Combines Investigation Bill was approved by the Commons yesterday after passage of two major amendments aimed at strengthening the legal barriers against cartels and monopolies which restrain production or injure trade.

The Bill, which amends the Combines Investigation Act along the lines of the McGregor report of last year, was given third and final reading after two days of discussion and now goes to the Senate.

With that measure disposed of, the House completed the short Wednesday sitting by giving first reading to a Bill amending the Unemployment Insuance Act to extend unemployment payments to lumber workers and merchant seamen and make a number of ther changes.

The Senate dealt with a number of minor bills and resumed debate on the government's redistribution resolution, which is aimed at increasing the Commons membership from 245 to 255.

In the Combines debate, the government accepted an amendment by John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre), which would extend to any individual the right to institute proceedings against an illegal combine or cartel. At present, only the attorney-general of the Dominion or a province can take that action.

Justice Minister St. Laurent moved the other amendment, which would prevent, seeking protection from having a charge laid against it by an individual, hiding behind that charge while it remained dormant. The attorney-general now would be able to lay a similar charge and push the case to conclusion.

Mr. Diefenbaker called for a statement on what the government planned to do about light bulb and radio manufacturers in Canada for cartel activities and Mr. St. Laurent said he would not forecast what action the Combines Commissioners would take against the Combines mentioned in the McGregor Commission report.

The minister added that the report of the Commission had not been lost sight of and the legislation now being passed would provide the necessary authority to deal with such monopolies.

Further criticism came from T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) who argued that the changes being made in the Act would not fill the loopholes through which cartels could escape prosecution.

The Insurance Bill was introduced by Labor Minister Mitchell, who said it also would transfer jurisdiction over employment offices from the Unemployment Insurance Commission to the Labor Minister, increase from $1 to $1.50 the amount of money a person receiving benefits may earn and require employers to report new employmnt and persons seeking employment to register.

THROWN BENEATH HAY RAKE PRONGS

Monkton, Ont., July 4 —(CP)—Thrown beneath the prongs of a side delivery rake when her horses bolted during haying operations, Mrs. E. Hinz of Logan Township is in nearby Listowel hospital today suffering from head injuries. Her condition is considered satisfactory.

German Leaders' Last Plea Accuses Hitler of all Guilt for Aggression

Nuernberg, July 4 (AP)— The 21 German leaders on trial for war crimes opened their final plea for acquittal today, accusing Adolf Hitler of the entire guilt for their country's aggression.

Prof. Hermann Jahreiss presented the first of the defence summaries. The lengthy treatise challenged the charter setting up the international military tribunal upon which sit the judges of the United Kingdom, Russia, France and the United States.

The defendants—politicians, soldiers, admirals and diplomats—listened. Among them were Hermann Goering, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl, Grand Admirals Karl Doenitz and Erich Raeder, Hjalmar Schacht, Franz von Papen, Julius Streicher, Rudolf Hess, Alfred Rosenberg and assorted lesser lights of the Nazi regime.

Kahreiss contended that the breach of peace was a matter between states and that individuals could not be tried and sentenced for it under existing law. He said all Germans simply were obeying their own law when they followed Hitler, whom he described as "the arbiter of war and peace between the Reich and other nations, he alone."

Workers Seeking $33.60 Minimum And 40-hour Week

Union Protests Distribution Of Petitions by Company

Toronto, July 4. (CP) —Hints that a strike might be called at any time in the Hamilton Works Plant of the Steel Company of Canada today stimulated the campaign of the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) for a minimum wage of $33.60 a week and a 40-hour work week.

The Union has been negotiating with the three Canadian basic steel producers, Steel of Canada at Hamilton, Algoma Steel at Sault Ste. Marie, and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation at Sydney, N.S., for a new master agreement embodying its demands. Mr. Justice W. D. Roach was named Federal Conciliator of the dispute and held meetings at Toronto last week.

Those meetings were halted when the Union asserted that the steel producers were unwilling to bargain as a unit. Mr. Justice Roach last night left for Sault Ste. Marie to take up the quest on the negotiations with Algoma Steel.

The possibility of an immediate strike at Hamilton arose suddenly when the Union charged that the Steel Company of Canada sponsored distribution of petitions in the plant promising 12 1-2 cents hourly wage increases in return for a no-strike pledge.

May Be Called Any Time

The executive committee of Local 1005 decided that if the petitions are still being circulated today a strike may be called "at any time". Previously the National Wage Advisory Committee of the Union at Toronto had decided that unless the companies offered "reasonable" proposals before July 12 the three companies would be notified on that date that a strike would be called shortly afterwards.

C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the Union, last night wired the Hamilton Local that he had reported the alleged action of the Steel Company of Canada to the Federal Labor Department and to Mr. Justice Roach as "a move to circumvent collective bargaining with our union and contempt of the Commission now dealing with the Steel dispute."

Want Increase of 19 1-2 Cents

Figured on an hourly basis, the Union demands would amount to an increase of about 19 1-2 cents an hour at the Steel Company of Canada.

There are about 5,000 employees in the Hamilton plant. The total in the Big Three basic steel firms is believed around 13,000.

Before leaving Toronto last night Mr. Justice Roach said he had communicated with representatives of the Steel Company at Hamilton and received from them "assurances that the company was in no way responsible for the circulation of the petitions."

Mr. Justice Roach added that the company informed him they had no knowledge of the circulation apart from a rumor; and that the company would investigate and if it were true would have circulation stopped "since it is absolutely against company regulations to circulate any petitions on the premises".

At Toronto the National office of the Union announced an agreement had been signed with the S.S. Bowser Company and Local 2901 providing for a minimum weekly wage of $34 for a 40-hour week, 40 cents above the minimum demanded by the Union nationally.

Caucus Decides Against Action At Present Time

Toronto, July 4 — (CP) — A caucus of the Progressive Conservative members of the Ontario Legislature last night decided to take no action immediately regarding the federal budget's proposal of separate agreements with the provinces on taxes.

Finance Minister Ilsley's budget at Ottawa last Thursday included proposals of a five-year tax agreement with the provinces, collectively or individually, and financial details of the proposals were communicated at the same time to the premiers of all provinces.

The Ontario caucus was in session for 5½ hours during which Premier Drew gave a comprehensive review of the negotiations between the federal and Ontario governments. The more than 50 members attending agreed that Ontario should neither accept nor reject the proposal at the present time.

R.C.A.F. Confident They are on Trail Of Missing Plane

Ottawa, July 4 — (CP)—Confident they are at last on the trail of the Gloster Meteor aircraft missing since Saturday with its pilot, Flt. Lt. W. H. McKenzie of St. Vital, Man., air force search planes today prepared to scour the countryside around Sudbury, where, according to reports last night, the aircraft last was seen.

First definite word of what happened to the lightning - fast jet fighter after it left Kapuskasing last Saturday placed it at Ruel, on the Canadian National RaRilways main line about 60 miles north of Sudbury, with enough fuel to travel approximately 130 miles.

Although dozens of Dakota transport and Beechcraft trainers have been searching by air for four days, it was a ground investigation which brought the first clue. Ontario Forestry Department Rangers trained to report on the speed and course of all aircraft sighted, finally got "outside" with the news.

The Meteor was sighted by six different observers, heading due south from Timmins at a ground speed of about 280 miles an hour. Although the plane has a top speed of nearly 500 miles an hour, this was a normal speed for conserving the rapidly- expendable supplies of kerosene the jet fighter used for fuel.

Today, R.C.A.F. ground investigators were expected to tighten questioning of authorities in the Sudbury area while the searchplanes covered the district from the sky. It was hoped a Grumman "Goose" might be landed at Lake Wanapeitei, north of Sudbury, with a ground party.

Piecing together available information, air force officials said Flt. Lt. McKenzie evidently had become lost in bad weather, reaching the Timmins area when he should have been over Porquis Junction. Heading due south, he reached the railway at Ruel.

After that, they conjectured, he probably followed the "iron compass" toward Sudbury. The plane was last observed flying between 1,000 and 2,500 feet and it was considered quite possible it crashed in an 1,800-foot hill north of Lake Wanapitei or mistook the lake for Lake Nipissing and circled it in an effort to find the airport at North Bay.

GRAIN PLOTS INSPECTED BY REPRESENTATIVE OF AGRICULTURAL DEPT.

Grain plots entered in the season's competition sponsored by the Maynooth Grain Club were inspected by Harry W. Burns, assistant agricultural representative, last week with a meeting being held in the evening at Greenview school.

Royden Davis, president of the club, presided at the meeting at which Mr. Burns complimented the boys on the layout of their plots which ranged in size from three to six acres. The late sowing and lack of sufficient rainfall had cut down the growth, but on the whole the plots were very good.

Mr. Burns also gave a talk on grain judging after which the boys judged and gave their reasons on a class of oats. A discussion on weed control and the various chemicals used to kill weeds followed. It was suggested that a feature of the July Junior Farmers meeting be a grain judging competition.

Assistant Fire Chief G. Vance Serves 25 Years

A quarter of a century of fire fighting in the city of Belleville was completed this week by Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance who, back in 1921 joined the Belleville fire department as driver of a team of spanking blacks hauling a hose wagon. Assistant Chief Vance joined the department on July 1st, 1921, under Fire Chief, the late William J. Brown.

Belleville firemen served the full 24 hours a day when Assistant Chief Vance started with the local fire department with personnel being allowed only one hour off for meals. There were still a few volunteer firemen with the department, but about that time a change was made from the one shift to the present two shifts per day.

Horse drawn equipment only was owned back in 1921 but the department "went modern" the following year when two hose trucks, a Reo and an Oldsmobile, were added to the department equipment. These trucks were simply ordinary trucks made into hose wagons. The department was fully motorized in 1926.

Although Mr. Vance has fortunately not witnessed any large conflagrations in the city, he has had his uneasy moments when every effort of the department was called upon to check spread of flames during fires which swept St. Michael's Academy; John Street United Church, and at the time of the gasoline fire at the Cities Service wholesale warehouse south of the C.P.R. tracks.

Rising through the ranks of the fire fighting personnel, Mr. Vance was made assistant chief in 1930 when Fire Chief William Lynch assumed his present position. The appointments were made necessary as result of the death of Fire Chief Brown who died in 1929 following a fall at a fire at Corbin Lock.

PICTON

Town Tax Rate Set at 37 Mills Same as Last Year

Picton, July 4—Picton's tax rate for 1946 will be 37 mills, less one mill subsidy given by the Ontario government. The rate was struck at a meeting of council Tuesday night, and is the same as last year. This is based on an assessment of $2,780,073. The county requisition calls for $24,861; public school, $9,036; public library $3,255; public school debenture, $1,510; public utilities debenture $3,069; Collegiate purposes, $11,096; relief, $2,780; town purposes, $45,594; Separate school $1,400.

There was a lengthy debate over the issuance of building permits. During the debate it was charged that many permits were granted and the buildings did not follow plans submitted. Building inspector L. C. Ward was requested to bring to attention of council any matters of interest in connection with such matters.

Wages of town employees were increased from 40 to 50 cents an hour.

Mayor Ralph Warren, who is leaving town to reside in Barrie, was granted six months leave of absence. Advice was received that the mayor could hold office even though not a property owner or a resident after being elected, if council gave leave of absence.

A committee was named, to be joined by Col. W. E. Manhard, Picton, and Brig. Cunningham of Kingston to wait on the Minister for Air to attempt to secure the air station at Picton for a model town project.

August 5 was proclaimed as a civic holiday. Several small building permits were granted.

Belleville Red Cross Appeals For Funds For Windsor Victims

June 18th was a bright sunny day in Windsor, Ont. People revelling in the clear summer weather went to their work unaware that death and disaster hovered in the offing.

Then it struck. A tornado stormed across the Detroit River, twisting in a black spiralling funnel of cloud. It ripped through the outskirts of the city levelling dozens of homes and leaving death and rubble in its wake.

Houses were swept away as though they had been built of cards. Today the official estimate is that sixty dwellings had "gone with the wind." Death, too, hovered in the vicinity of that destroying funnel of Nature's fury. Many were killed and many more injured.

By a stranger freak of Nature, the tornado struck in the district inhabited by working people. Folks who had invested their life savings in modest homes. People like you and me. Happy in their jobs and their families.

In a flash, they saw their homes disappear. The fruits of a life's endeavor were swept away in a twinkling of an eye, for a tornado is no respecter or homes and buildings.

Today they are making a valiant effort to retrieve their lost homes, many of which disappeared from the face of the earth with little trace of their whereabouts or their former locations. With these went every item of furniture and clothing their occupants possessed except the clothing worn by survivors.

A sympathetic Ontario is rallying to the support of its unfortunate Windsor residents. All over the province relief funds are springing up to assist these Canadians in their efforts to rehabilitate themselves.

The Ontario Division of the Red Cross has volunteered to raise $350,000.

Belleville has been appealed to to do its share. And knowing the great-heartedness of the people of this city in such emergencies as this, the Belleville branch feels that it will be able to send a generous contribution to the Windsor Tornado Fund.

Right now emergency relief is being dealt with wherever possible to provide even a patched building for families who were scattered across the devastated areas of Windsor.

Dimes grow into dollars and it will take thousands to repair, build and refurnish the homes laid waste.

Everyone can donate . . . a dime or a dollar, a half or a hundred. Every last penny subscribed goes into the fund and will be used to rehabilitate our Canadian neighbors.

As the fund mounts so do the hopes of the hundreds who suffered, that the day will soon come when their homes will again be habitable.

Residents of this city may leave contributions at the offices of banks in this city, or may send cheques direct to the Belleville Red Cross branch treasurer, Mr. E. Zeran, Royal Bank of Canada here.

Subscriptions will also be received in the business offices of the Ontario Intelligencer. Cheques should be made out to the "Canadian Red Cross Society, Windsor Disaster."

IN MEMORIAM

SARLES — In loving memory of our dear mother, Margaret Sarles, who departed this life on July 4th., 1945.

Many a lonely heartache,
Often a silent tear,
Always some beautiful memory
Of a mother I loved so dear.
Gone, but leaving memories
Death can never take away—
Memories that will always linger
While upon this earth I stay.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Gladys.

GRAY — In memory of Ronald and Milton Gray, who passed away on July 4th., 1944.

Time speeds on, two years have passed
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us two shining lights.
We miss that light and ever will,
Their vacant place none can ever fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—Remembered by Mother, Dad, Evelyn, Alan, Grandmother and Grandfather.

SARLES — In fond and loving memory of my dear mother, Margaret Sarles, who passed away July 4, 1945.

She was a wonderful mother,
She played life's battles square;
No matter when we needed her,
We always found her there.
Her weary hours, and days of pain,
Her troubled nights are past,
And in our aching hearts we know
She has found sweet rest at last,
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Mollie.

SARLES — In fond and loving memory of a dear mother, Margaret Sarles, who passed away July 4, 1945.

She has gone across the river
To the shores of ever green,
And we long to see her dear face
But the river flows between.
Some day, some time our eyes shall see
The face we loved so well,
Some day clasp her loving hand
And never say farewell.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by daughter Lulu.

PICTON

Council to Make Early Start On Disposal Plant

Picton, July 4. —An early start on Picton's new sewerage disposal system with possible completion by September 1947, was the information given Town Council, at a special meeting, by Consulting Engineer James Proctor, Toronto.

Initial step will be the calling of tenders and these are due July 20. Mr. Proctor explained blueprints and other plans. He estimated that total cost of the project would be increased 10 to 15 per cent over the original estimates, due to advanced labor costs.

The engineering firm has issued a 75-page brief on the project which covers all parts of the Town. The cost is to be covered by issuance of 20 or 25-year debentures.

The town treasurer placed the estimated cost as $400,000. Based on 20 years at 3 1-2 per cent it would be necessary to raise $20,689 a year, which would be about 8 mills extra levy.

Imitation may be the sincerest form of flattery, but "Miss Unity," the London Zoo's panda doesn't seem to be flattered by the flattery as she looks with a suspicious eye on the toy panda brought by a little visitor. Clothes in Time of Need

Total of between nine and ten million million pounds of clothing has already been donated in the past two weeks by the people of Canada for the distressed millions of the world. The end of the collection is not yet as it is expected that with shipments on the way to the collecting depot and what collecting remains to be done in some districts, the total will equal that of last October's drive, twelve million pounds or six thousand tons.

This means a pound of clothing for every man, woman and child in the Dominion in the second collection after the first taken just about eight months ago.

Complete figures have not been received for many districts by the national headquarters of the drive.

The achievement has proven the effectiveness of the campaign and the goodwill and thoughtfulness of the Canadian people in their response. Canadians know that their land is one of the countries which are especially blessed by all the factors which make for a great and happy people and with their realization that during the war through the united effort of the peoples of the freedom-loving states the world was defended from Hitlerite savagery, though many lands still bear the marks of the scourge which Hitler released. In profound realization of what these peoples did, it is no wonder that Canadians have given clothing to guard their bodies against the cold of the coming months of winter. Nor is it any wonder that the nations which escaped actual invasion are ready to give up food for these other peoples.

The need of these peoples is so great that it draws mankind's generosity to try to pay a debt of obligation to these who have borne the lashes and stripes of the avalanche of evils which Nazism unleashed against humanity.

Those who gave clothing have the satisfaction in knowing that they have done a good deed. Good deeds are the only deeds that count for happiness.

Weekend Fatalities

The long weekend's accident toll of life across Canada was given prominence in the newspapers of Canada without exception because the proportions of the loss were so great as to leave people with a sense of deep shock and profound regret. In Canada there were thirty deaths by drowning. The water toll in the past year from this single cause alone has meant that Canada's homes were bereft of 1,045 persons. Newspapers have given a great deal of prominence this year to the program of reducing the fatalities from all causes and gave the greatest attention to the means of avoiding or preventing accidents in the water. Many a time during the year the newspapers have held before the driving public the necessity for sane driving and these campaigns have undoubtedly helped to hold down losses from this means. Last weekend drownings led all the other violent causes of loss of life.

Canada can ill afford to lose the lives of such citizens, many of these young and virile with most of their lives before them. Human lives mean much to the state for they are a precious gift which holds the whole future of the nation in its hands. In the case of drownings and other holiday fatalities, the loss is deeply poignant because they occur at a time when all should be happiness and pleasure.

There are a few rules which have been given for the guidance of people who go into the waters of streams and lakes for the purpose of pleasure and exercise by bathing or swimming — for swimming and bathing possess unrivalled attraction in the good warm summertime. One is that the bather or swimmer should not lose his head if he finds himself in difficulty, for even a good swimmer may get into a situation which can be serious. Another is to understand the advantage of floating, when swimming is not possible and a third is not to fall into the sin of exhibitionism as is pointed out by the Thursday's Montreal Gazette. Such rules can increase safety of swimming.

Of course everyone should early learn to swim and even if able to swim should observe precautions that will add to the joy of the swimmer and his or her friends. Everyone knows how anxious parents and others become if young bathers venture out farther than those on shore think they should venture. It is a satisfaction to all to realize that the swimmers do possess a knowledge of self-protection in the water that will greatly increase their chances of saving themselves. Everyone knows what a sigh of relief is felt by his friends when any young swimmer, who perhaps is slightly inclined to take chances, is back on shore.

Not only in swimming and in motoring should the individual exercise every precaution but it is a wise person who does not carelessly or wantonly run risks anywhere. Everyone knows that accidents (so many of them unfortunately are fatal) can occur under so many circumstances as a look at the records of causes of death from accident would show. It is not only the driver who must be careful but the person crossing the street must also be careful, the person who goes up on a ladder or stairway, he who works with machinery — all these and others have a need of being careful at all times. Should this be so, the fatalities would no doubt be much lessened and much sorrow and grief be avoided.

Everyone owes it to his family, relatives, his community and the country to make every effort to avoid mishaps.

Populations

Those who have done some thinking over the problems of the vast expansion of the populations of some countries and the falling birthrate of others with the unavoidable decline in populations, will take some interest in an editorial in the Cleveland Plain Dealer this week titled "Is This Shadow Real?" In this comment of Dr. Guy Irving Burch, director of the Population Reference Bureau in Washington, may be noted: "It is the shadow of rapidly increasing population in most of the world which, if it is a genuine forecast suggests the greatest problem of a century hence," says the newspaper. Dr. Burch is quoted as saying that "when we realize that China, India and to a slightly lesser degree, Russia, could each in a single century fill five earths as large as ours and as full as ours is today, we have some concept of its problem."

The Plain Dealer points out that no one can foresee "the possible natural forces or combination of natural and man-made forces which may in the next century have a retarding effect on population growths. They may be such as to make such speculation as Dr. Burch's an unnecessary borrowing of trouble."

On the other hand the newspaper says no one can afford to close his eyes to the fact that the advancement of scientific knowledge which has already decreased infant mortality and extended the span of human life, has resulted in a world-wide population increase in the last century or so which already has raised doubt in some minds as to the ability of the earth to support everyone, even if the products of the soil were evenly distributed throughout the world."

Mention is made of India-Burma's increase in forty years from 294,000,000 to 394,000,000 so that India is now increasing at a rate adding as many people in a decade as live in Germany.

Scientific advance is said to have an opposite effect too or at least tending in the opposite direction. "Where it has raised living standards, by making it possible for families to have more for less labor, it has tended to discourage the large families which once were wanted as a means of giving the family unit greater productive capacity."

Whether these two effects of scientific advance "will in time balance each other sufficiently to avoid a population-bred crisis is anyone's guess," notes the Plain Dealer, adding that "we cannot ignore the combination of present world population increase with the worldwide exhaustion of the soil on which all human life depends.

JUST FOLKS

LAST WILLS

One left money, all that went
Into box and bank, unspent;
All the stuff for which he'd slaved,
Grasped to get, and, getting, saved.
When death paid life's final call,
There it was! He'd left it all!

One who'd chosen to be kind
Left but little wealth behind,
But at closing of his years
There were tributes paid with tears.
Those who'd crossed his path were glad
Such a friend as he they'd had.

When at last life's story ends,
Some leave money; some leave friends.
Some leave fortunes, kin to please;
Some leave golden memories.
Which is better, love or pelf?
Each must answer for himself.

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 4 (CP)—William, better known as "Willie" Gallacher, 65-year-old burly, red-faced Scottish brass-fitter, delights in throwing throaty interruptions at Winston Churchill when the war-time prime minister discusses Soviet policies in Commons speeches.

Mr. Gallacher is a Communist, one of two in the Commons, and his years of experience and the sharpness of his wit have earned him a seat just behind the Labor Government leaders. There, with his feet on the back of the bench before him, Mr. Gallacher peers over the top of his glasses at the parliamentary scene and casts his comments in his hoarse, heavily accented voice, not caring much whether they irk Labor, Conservative or Liberal.

But Mr. Churchill is able to bring Mr. Gallacher to his feet, growling. When Mr. Churchill spoke of the Communists' failure to support Britain at the start of the war, Mr. Gallacher said that lies were being spoken. Mr. Churchill said he did not much care what the Communist for West Fife thought of him but he did have the feeling that Mr. Gallacher should have known better than to break house rules restraining such remarks.

Usually the House sees him in a lighter mood, as on the day when he protested that the night before he had missed more than three hours of House business when he looked out at 9 p.m. He found a light in the Big Ben clock tower had been put out.

"I asked a policeman if the House had adjourned," said Mr. Gallacher, with loud plaintiveness.

"He said that it must have gone for the light was out. So I went home."

Speaker Clifton Brown said benevolently that he could assure Mr. Gallacher he himself never turned the light out, and Sir Thomas Moore, Conservative member for Ayr Burghs, said it might have been a plot on the part of Mr. Gallacher's colleagues to ensure he did go home.

Long years: In London, perhaps, age does not weary mankind so quickly.

In the Commons, Chuter Ede, Home Secretary, said 21 licensed taxi-drivers in the Metropolitan police district are more than 80 years old.

In the same building, in the restaurant where members of parliament dine, a little ceremony was held for Miss Sarach Davy who was retiring at 80 from a post of waitress she held for 30 years. Until 1908 she was on the stage.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Fire Strikes Gold Mine But All Workers Saved

Kirkland Lake, July 4 (CP)—Trained underground firefighters were rushed to the Teck Hughes mines last night to battle a blaze that raged through the 3,600 foot level. No casualties were reported from the fire, believed started when a spark from a welding torch ignited the dry timbers.

All miners underground were driven to the surface by dense clouds of smoke that poured from the frame head on the south side of the mine. The whole ventilation system of neighboring mines was endangered and adjacent workings shut down immediately. Miners escaped through emergency doors leading to the Kirkland Lake mine.

Crews of gas-masked firemen came up every 40 minutes to be replaced by fresh crews.

Workmen reported a welder working on an ore bucket had allowed a spark to fall on one of the dry timbers supporting the workings. The blaze started immediately and shortage of water enabled it to gain rapid headway.

Reserve dams of water are kept at different levels in the mine but air compressors were not working and pumping facilities were hampered. Plans were made to lay additional lines of hose to the mine and to turn on surface hydrants to keep the reserve dams full.

Every mine in the district sent trained crews to fight the flames, reminiscent of the disastrous Hollinger blaze at Timmins in 1928 when 28 miners were suffocated.

First surface indication of the fire was a thin wisp of smoke issuing from the shaft which quickly swelled into heavy clouds. The intense heat necessitated constant relief for the firefighters and gas masks and equipment were kept at the top of the shafts ready for new crews on their way underground.

MOST OF THAT GAS IS AIR

Presence of any extraordinary amount of gas in the stomach (normally there is always some gas in stomach and intestine) is rarely if ever due to fermentation of food or food products. Indeed it is as likely to occur when there is no deficiency of hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice and of course fermentation cannot occur in the presence of free hydrochloric acid. Besides, fermentation of food or food products alone could hardly produce the immense quantities so explosively eructated by people who have erroneous morbid notions about "gas attacks."

There was the lady (eh?), mentioned by Niles (Diagnosis and Treatment of Digestive Diseases). She declared she counted the eructations after her toast and tea and they numbered one hundred and forty-one. But that is scarcely worth mentioning. In the burping sweepstakes a patient of Vanderhoof's burped over 5000 times in twenty-four hours; the amount of air (not gas) eructated was measured and found to exceed—hold onto your hats, folks —50 gallons! This air, so resoundingly burped, has been analyzed by several investigators who found that it is composed almost entirely of nitrogen and oxygen, in the proportions present in the air, with a small quantity of carbon dioxide (the gas in carbonated beverages and effervescing salines) derived from the fermentation of starch or sugar in the mouth or stomach.

When uncomfortable gastric flatulence occurs, with frequent explosive eructions or belching, the trouble is generally due to aerophagia — unconscious swallowing of air.

Normally some air is swallowed with food and drink, and this promotes good digestion by facilitating mixture of food material with the gastric juice in stomach and the pancreatic juice and bile in intestine and by stimulating peristalsis. Some introspective or "nervous" individuals swallow air unconsciously along with saliva. Some who have noticed cessation of distress, discomfort or pain occurs with belching a lot of "gas"—though in fact the belching occurs because spasm of muscle (colic) has been relieved, as already explained. So the victim of the delusion unconsciously strives to belch, for he or she imagines that will relieve the distress, discomfort or pain. Hence the swallowing of air.

Some people get a similar effect by taking bicarbonate of soda in its simple form (saleratus) or in some nostrum that effervesces on contact with moisture or acid in the stomach, generating considerable carbonic acid gas (carbon dioxide), inflating the stomach, and producing belching.

In any case the presence of an excessive amount of gas and/or air in the stomach or intestine cannot interfere with the function of the heart, so why get alarmed about it? If that's all that ails you, please go on about your business and let some one who has something the matter take your place in the line.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Don't Be Silly

Daughter, 18, seems to have become very constipated. I don't want her to get in the habit of.. I can't always watch to see that she eats her... (Mrs. S. R. C.)

Answer—Don't be silly about it, Ma'am. If your daughter can't be trusted to eat what she wants or should eat now, she never will be able to survive without your constant care. Is she an idiot? Leave her alone. If she wants advice about constipation she can write to me, can't she?

The Best Fertiliser

We have a vegetable garden near the city sewage disposal plant, and the garden was fertilized with sludge this spring. Will it endanger our health to eat vegetables from the garden this summer? (W. R. F.)

Answer—No. In fact there is no good reason why the sludge from all sewage disposal plants should not be used as fertilizer—it is the best of all fertilizers. The natural fermentation process destroys any disease germs in the sewage.

Wholsale Ceiling Prices Red, Blue Quality Beef Restored on July 20

Ottawa, July 4 — (CP) — The Prices Board announced today that wholesale ceiling prices will be reimposed July 20 on red and blue quality beef at levels approximately one to two cents a pound higher than in effect last May 27.

Board officials said the action had "nothing whatever" to do with the confused status of price controls in the United States, but had followed recent meetings with "various sections of the industry."

Wholesale ceilings on red and blue beef were suspended May 27 to "encourage marketing of top-quality cattle," the Board statement said.

The new wholesale price schedule would be accompanied by a "varying adjustment" in retail pricing in the different zones on red, blue and commercial qualities. On many retail cuts of higher quality there would be increases ranging from one to three cents a pound. In some zones there would be no increase of consumer prices on any cuts.

Adjusted prices would allow for the difference in freight costs between various zones, and will provide for a "more equitable distribution." Revised maximum retail prices also would provide retailers with "definite mark-ups which the Board feels will be acceptable to the trade."

A simultaneous announcement said maximum prices for carcasses and sides of spring lamb in effect from May 1 to July 15 would be extended to Aug. 31.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is meant by "the keys of the city?"

Frequently we read that a noted visitor has been presented with the keys of this or that city. This is merely a figurative way of saying he has been given an official welcome.

The expression and ceremony are survivals of Medieval times when every important town in Europe was fortified with walls and people could enter or leave the inclosure only through the gates, which were locked at night. The keys to the gates were kept by the mayor or military commander and when the city surrendered the keys were formally turned over to the victors. This ceremony suggested the common practice of presenting distinguished visitors with the keys of the city as a token of honor or esteem. Sometimes actual keys or cardboard keys are presented to symbolize the ancient ceremony.

In a similar manner when a distinguished person is officially welcomed to a city he is said to receive "the freedom of the city." Nowadays conferring the freedom of the city, like presenting the keys of the city, amounts to little more than an expression of esteem, but during the middle ages in Europe the ceremony had a greater significance.

"Freedom" was the name given to the privileges of certain cities, usually known as "free cities," and by extension the term was applied to the municipal privileges of the citizens themselves. Hence the freedom of the city meant the privileges of citizenship. A citizen was called a freeman. In those days the ordinary person could become a freeman or citizen only by a long apprenticeship to a recognized guild. Occasionally, however, the customary requirements were dispensed with and a person of great wealth or renown was granted citizenship or the freedom of the city in recognition of his position or services to the community. His name was placed on the list of burghers or freemen and he was entitled to all the privileges of municipal citizenship, including those of voting and holding office.

Considering the difficulties involved in becoming a citizen it was a substantial favor as well as a great honor to be granted the freedom of the city. Accordingly the phrase became associated in the popular mind with honor and esteem. Later honorary citizenship was sometimes conferred; that is, the freedom of the city, carrying only nominal privileges, was conferred on eminent non-residents purely as a mark of honor.

Many European cities still welcome distinguished persons by granting them the freedom of the city and the documents presented are modeled after those used on similar occasions during the middle ages. In America "freedom of the city," like "keys of the city," is merely a figurative expression and is seldom employed in the language of the scroll presented to a visitor of distinction when he is given an official welcome.

Garden Circus at Fair Grounds Sponsored by Rotary Club One of Best Seen in Years

Clever Acts, Trained Animals and Tang of Sawdust Make Children, Oldsters Happy

There's Fifi, the funny clown, and his grotesquely painted fellows. There's pink lemonade, and hot dogs—if you can find 'em.

There's dancing elephants and performing bears; trained dogs which ride almost human ponies.

There's lions and tigers, leopards and pumas. Candy fluff and boxes of candy; hoarse shouts of the barker vendors. There's the acrobats, and the equilibrists, clever bicycle riders and trapeze acts that leave you agape.

And there's Ferdinand the Bull in person. The same Ferdinand that millions of people saw in the movies and who possesses a bovine intelligence that is uncanny. Ferdy quietly guzzles a pint of beer, then lies down to sleep it off.

But above all there is the pungent aroma of the circus. The tang of sawdust, the quick martial tempos of a splendid band and all the environment of the ringed entertainment that is a household word in Canada.

1,600 Attend Opening

And sixteen hundred people, many of them kiddies who were seeing their first circus, plus an equally excited crowd of oldsters who once again thrilled to the sights and scenes of the sawdust arenas, greeted the opening performance yesterday afternoon of the Billy Garden Circus which plays here today and tomorrow under the auspices of the Belleville Rotary Club.

In perfect circus weather, with a brilliant July sunshine pouring down over the milling crowd of spectators, the show lacked nothing, with the exception of the big tents, and numerical superiority in animals, of the entertainment offered by the big-name circuses which played this city years ago.

Wizards of Wheels

The Cycling Kirks from Australia proved wizards of the wheels, riding all types of ancient and modern bicycles in a whirl of difficult performances that brought them well-deserved applause.

The Flying Milzores, a high trapeze act left the audience agasp with the daring of their performances on their lofty swinging perches. A clown evoked roars of laughter with his near misses from falls and his agility on trapezes.

Phil and Bonny Bontas, a Mexican "perch" act was also spectacular. The man balances the girl on her perch at the top of a twenty-five foot pole which rests in his belt. It is clever and also rated loud rounds of applause.

The Irving Acrobat Troupe, four handsome young men and two pretty girls provided some daring feats on springboards. The act is climaxed with one of the girls blindfolded being catapulted into the air into a chair at the top of a lofty pole.

Elephants Rate a Star

The Dancing Elephants rated star billing. Two ungainly pachyderms (not the wrestling type) showed remarkable intelligence in their act. They danced the "Conga" and the waltz, ending with an elephantine version of the famous circus "hoochy-koochy" dance. One of the elephants brought down the house, so to speak, with his performance in turning himself about while standing on a ten inch plank some three feet above the ground. They played football and solemnly bowed to acknowledge the loud applause that greeted them.

Professor Keller's wild animals, lions, tigers, leopards, black panthers went through their performances in true circus fashion, to the accompaniment of revolver shots and other typical wild animal properties. Prof. Keller climaxed his act by lying down, like Daniel, in the lion's den, among his leonine friends.

Typical Circus Entertainment

It is typical "Garden" entertainment; a show that carries with it not only the atmosphere of painted wagons, blaring bands, growling lions; lumbering elephants, and all the paraphernalia dear to the heart of the child and the veteran circus-goer, but a quality of performance and performer personnel that equals if not betters any seen here under the "big-tops."

In the various entertainment groups of this galaxy of one hundred performers, it is difficult to select an all-star act. There is plenty of variety, fun, ability, and dexterity of performance in all the offerings that appear in the three rings.

Remarkable, perhaps was the act, never seen here before, of the handsome 1,800 pound Jersey bull "Ferdinand." He is the animal which appeared in the picture "Blood and Sand" with Tyrone Power, viewed by many motion picture lovers here. "Ferdy's" intelligence is uncanny. He can dance, walk on his knees, concentrate his near-ton of beef on a small pedestal and allow humans to ride him.

Drinks Bottle of Beer

His outstanding feats were the drinking of a bottle of beer while sitting on his haunches, then slowly sinking to the ground in an assumed drunken stupor; and his imitation of his mother taking care of him when a calf. Ferdy lies down near his trainer, covers him with his body then gently caresses and "kisses" him. The act brought him a tremendous ovation.

Siberian bears provided another unusual form of entertainment. These usually clumsy animals, ride "kiddie cars" roller-skate, operate hand-pumped automobiles, and climax a splendid act by riding a nine-foot single wheel bicycle under the direction of their trainer, Captain Snyder.

Clever too, was the troupe of trained dogs and six small dappled ponies. These intelligent animals executed all kind of tricks and marching manoeuvres ending with the dogs riding the ponies and changing mounts in an unexpected manner.

Fifi and his troupe of clowns provided hilarious entertainment for old and young alike. Their act of the boxing match between the "Champion of the Belleville Rotary Club and the Champion of the Garden Circus was a scream. The troupe appears several times during the show and their appearance was the signal for roars of applause especially from the kiddies.

Swing ballets of the air nad balancing acts round out a show that should be seen by all. There will be performances tonight, tomorrow afternoon and evening.

BONARLAW

Petty Officer, Rose E. Boots, Awarded B.E.M.

Bonarlaw — Mrs. S. G. Rombough of Bonarlaw has received the following letter from the Minister of National Defence for Naval Services:

"I am pleased to inform you that His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the British Empire Medal to your sister, Petty Officer Cook (S) Rose Elizabeth Boots, Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service, in His Majesty's Birthday Honors List, 13 June, 1946.

The citation reads as follows:

"Petty Officer Boots joined the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service in December, 1942 and since then has given invaluable service in galleys.

"Her zeal, cheerfulness and praiseworthy devotion to duty have been an inspiring example to the junior ratings in her charge, and have helped keep high the fine traditions established by the Women's Royal Canadian Service.

"The Chief of the Naval Staff, the members of the Naval Board and I highly appreciate the contribution which your sister has made toward the war effort of the Royal Canadian Navy, the high traditions of which she has helped to maintain."

The many friends and neighbors of Mrs. Rombough in this vicinity join in congratulations. Rose is well known to most of them and it is no surprise that her splendid qualities should be so recognized.

WEDDINGS

HACHEY—FRANKLIN

Queensboro. (Special.) — A pretty wedding took place in St. Peter's Church, Queensboro, on Saturday, June 29, at 9.30, with Rev. Father Hyland officiating when Dora Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Franklin, was united in marriage to Leo John James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Hachey, Arnprior.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Dave Genereaux, Madoc, was dressed in a floor-length gown of white satin, finger-tip veil with Mary Queen of Scots headdress and carried American Beauty roses and bouvardia. Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Helen Franklin, who wore a floor-length gown of peach taffeta, large picture hat, elbow length gloves and carried yellow roses.

When the Circus Came to Town

When the circus came to town
Father said he would have to go,
Though he'd long since settled down
Boys must see the show you know;
But we noticed with surprise
Father planned the day with care,
Laughter welling from his eyes
He—the biggest youngster there!

When the circus came to town,
Mother said the girls must see
Lions, elephants and clowns
Just as funny as could be;
And the girls enjoyed the show
Little May and Nancy tall,
But mother with her eyes aglow,
Seemed to like it best of all.

And the aged grandsire bent
With the burden of the years,
Gazed with eyes of deep intent—
Eyes that filled with misty tears;
Felt himself a boy again
Gazing on an old-time show,
Living o'er the joys again
Of the days of long ago.

When the circus came to town
With its tinsel and its glare,
Bands and beasts and funny clown
All the old-time glamor there,
'Twas a bit of youthful joy
Reaching from the long-lost past,
Memories to the gray-haired boy
Of the days that e'er shall last.

GAGNON—FARRELL

A particularly lovely double ring ceremony was performed on Tuesday, July 2, at 10 a.m., in St. James' Catholic Church, Stirling, Ontario, when the Rev. Father S. LeSage joined in marriage Alice Margaret, daughter of Mr. Leo Farrell, Harold, Ont., and Joseph Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gagnon, Fort William. The altar was decorated with red and pink peonies and wedding music was played by Miss M. Shea, with Mr. Jack Marchant, Tweed, singing.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white gown of satin and lace, made on princess lines with full skirt ending in a train and long sleeves with cuneate wrists. Her full-length veil fell from a pleated halo headdress and she carried red roses. Attending the bride were her twin sisters, the Misses Edna and Eva Farrell, who wore floor-length gowns of jade green net over taffeta with matching mitts and lacy white picture hats. They carried nosegays of yellow rosebuds, pink and white baby carnations and bouvardia.

Mr. Leo Farrell, Toronto, twin brother of the bride, was groomsman, and Mr. Bernard Farrell, Harold, was usher.

Following the reception, held at "Ye Olde Tavern", Belleville, for about twenty-five guests, the young couple left on a wedding trip to Rochester, Buffalo, and other points, the bride travelling in a teal blue gabardine suit with white accessories. On their return they will reside in Fort William.

The bride looked lovely in a street-length dress of pale blue silk jersey with blue and white accessories and a corsage of roses and baby breath. She was attended by Miss Elizabeth Hallstone, of Trenton, who wore a black and white checked crepe dress with black accessories and a corsage of roses and baby breath.

The groom was attended by Mr. Harold Demile, also of Trenton.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served by the bride's sister, the bride's mother receiving in a blue figured crepe dress assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a suit of navy blue crepe with flowered top.

Wife Preservers

Ready-to-serve cereals, recrisped and slightly browned, can be used to pinch hit for bread crumbs in betty desserts. They give an especially good flavor and a "crunch" to a pudding.

Vegetable Plates

Some people never think of serving a vegetable plate dinner because of one experience when the vegetables offered were flat, colorless, soggy and unappetizing. A vegetable plate may be one of the most attractive and generally acceptable meals ever set before an epicure. More people should enjoy such a meal more often.

When planning a vegetable plate, the homemaker should think of three things. Color, texture and flavor. The vegetable should be chosen with the idea of creating a picture. Colors should complement each other. Texture almost must be considered, crisp, tender and mealy vegetables give variety to a plate. Flavors should also blend, strong and mild, only one of very pronounced flavor.

The successful homemaker preparing a vegetable plate meal will not serve a combination of mashed potatoes, turnips, lima beans and onions, this would not be welcome by the family, nor would a plate full of various green colored vegetables.

Specific vegetable combinations are endless in variety, but here are a few suggested by the home economists of the Consumer Section, of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Spinach, new potatoes in their skins, spiced onions and whole baby beets.

Baked stuffed potatoes, broiled tomato, panned beans, Summer squash.

Creamed new potatoes and cucumbers, glazed carrot sticks, sliced tomatoes on lettuce.

Creamed New Potatoes and Cucumber

18 small new potatoes
2 cups diced cucumber
2 cups medium cream sauce

Boil potatoes in jackets until tender. Remove skin and add to hot cream sauce. Add cucumbers, heat and serve at once. Six servings.

Panned Beans

1 1-2 quarts fresh green or wax beans
3 tablespoons of bacon fat
Salt to season
3 tablespoons water

Wash and string beans, cut into hal finch pieces. Melt fat in a heavy pan, add beans and salt, cook covered for five minutes on low heat. Add water, cover pan, and cook slowly until tender, about 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Six servings.

Spiced Onions

6 medium-sized onions
1 tablespoon mild-flavored fat
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon

Hollow out top of onions slightly. Cook in boiling salted water until tender. Blend together the mild-flavored fat, brown sugar and cinnamon. Place a small portion of this mixture in the hollow of each onion. Garnish with a thin wedge of cucumber pickle. Six servings.

Lubrication For Sun-Dried Hair

Veronica Lake uses oil to protect her hair from the sun.

By HELEN FOLLETT

BASK in the sunshine, little one. The golden rays will put ginger in your system. But, as the Summer advances, be watchful of your tanning is not good for your pretty map. It will make the skin coarse of texture.

Nature thickens it to protect it against excessive exposure. Also, it is possible to get one's tresslocks sun-burned, a state of affairs that may make the glorious thatch a bit piebald. Who wants that to happen, for mercy's sake?

Blonde Hair

Blonde hair, after long exposure to strong sunlight, may take on a rusty cast, as if the gold were getting tarnished. There may appear a few bronze streaks on the crown of the head, that will not add to a girl's happeniness or make her feel like yodeling with joy when she looks in the mirror.

Brown hair will take on auburn gints. Some girls like that. The trouble is that when the sun does a hair-dyeing job, the results are not uniform.

Sore Trial

Frosted locks may turn yellow. That sort of thing is a sore trial to the white-headed sisters. It takes many blueing rinses to remove the yallery streaks.

Like the skin, the hair is reconditioned by the free use of lubricants. If you are an outdoor baby, give yourself a hot oil treatment twice a month. Good for the scalp, a tonic for hirsute spinach.

Give yourself this treatment the night before the shampoo. To be really effective, oil should stay on for eight to ten hours.

Begin with a vigorous brushing. Take the hair, strand by strand, holding it away from the head. Groom briskly with a rolling movement of the brush.

Heat some mineral oil, trickling it along various partings. Put some on the ends of the hair that are drier than the growth close to the scalp. Spread fingers and thumbs over the scalp, give the flesh a rousing drubbing. Then to bed and sleep.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Troubling Question of Different Faiths

There is no more difficult problem to solve than the matter of marriage between two people of different faiths, and it is no wonder that those who write to this column about this problem are deeply troubled and confused.

Even with the best will in the world to approach the question open-mindedly, there are complicated issues involved, that require the most careful consideration and the most honest scrutiny before coming to a decision. But when family opposition is added to the problem, as in the case of the 17-year-old girl who writes the following letter, the whole thing becomes even more bewildering.

Signing herself "Puzzled", as well the poor girl may, she explains that she and her boy friend, who is 18 years old, are very much in love, and anxious to be married as soon as he completes his college course. Then she goes on to say:

"My family thinks very highly of him but refuses to let me see him because of our different faiths. I don't want to see him on the sly, as I feel I am doing wrong toward my parents. Should I stop going with him for my parents' sake, or should I continue seeing him, as I know there will never be any other fellow I can possibly love as I do him?"

Here is a girl of obviously high character, since she is unwilling to continue a friendship of which her parents do not approve. She wants to do the right thing. But, in the first place, she is genuinely uncertain as to what that may be, and, in the second place, she is afraid that it may conflict with the fulfillment of her heart's desire, which, of course, is to marry this boy.

Now the opposition of this girl's parents to her romance may be based on either of two grounds. They may genuinely be able to see only the very real difficulties that sometimes do arise when two people of different faiths marry, and so they fear their daughter may let herself in for a lifetime of unhappiness if she does marry under such circumstances.

But, on the other hand, the parents may be merely intolerant, and unwilling to look at the question from all sides. They may simply be so firmly set against the whole idea of this type of marriage that they have shut their minds to any consideration of the possibility of a happy adjustment of such conditions. If this is the case, then it is not the happiness of their daughter, but their own narrow prejudices, that they are putting first in their thinking.

Let's assume, however, that it is not intolerance but genuine anxiety for their daughter's happiness that motivates their opposition.

If so, then perhaps the daughter might get them to look at it this way: If they do think very highly of her young man, as she says they do, he must be of good character to have won their approval of him as a person. Couldn't they, then, believe that so worthy a boy would be just as interested as they are themselves in insuring the girl's happiness? Couldn't they, if they admire and respect him, trust him to work out with the girl he loves, some satisfactory adjustment of their differences in faith, with neither necessarily surrendering beliefs important to them, but each making allowances for the other's viewpoint?

Many people have done this successfully, and have happy married lives, despite their adherence to different creeds. And after all, if we are ever to build the kind of world we all dream of, we must learn to live with, and adjust ourselves to, those whose ways of thinking are different from our own.

Try to talk things over with your parents on this basis, "Puzzled", and let me know how you make out. If this plan does not work, maybe we can think of another that might.

Bath Luxuries Have Allure

There are women who are born with a gift for economy. They know how they can cut down the grocery bill. They stalk wonderful bargains. They can make a frock out of something they dig out of the attic. But when they get to the cosmetic counter and gaze upon bath accessories, they go completely nuts, spend money in a frenzy of extravagance. These items are something they can't resist. Like expensive perfumes, they give these practical girls a sense of elegance and romance. Well, let 'em. We all have some failings.

They nonchalantly throw a handful of bath crystals into the tub. They wash their faces, cream their complexions, get into the tub, close their eyes, soak and relax. This is their form of rest cure. It eases up snarling nerves. It takes soreness out of muscles, if the day has been a galloping one. It turns thoughts to old-fashioned gardens because of the luscious fragrance. If any busy woman can grab a half hour of peace and relaxation, let her do it, for mercy's sake.

Use the same scent in soap, salts, tonic-friction and powder

Bath salts not only impart a sweet fragrance to the skin, but also soften the water, making the bath more thorough. It's a safe bet that, although the old Roman bathers made a ceremony of this hygienic rite, they had nothing on us for emerging wonderfully clean and thoroughly scoured.

This is the season for getting your bath items together. You'll be intrigued by brushes that take hold like the pangs of a guilty conscience. You will find deliciously scented soaps, frictioning agents, powders, oils for tender skins, all displayed in cosmetic departments.

Soap and water seldom seem alluring; one yearns for the fragrant trimmings. Soap and water are strictly utilitarian; powders and lotions are the cream on the beauty cake; they mean a lot to you when you trudge home on a sultry day after having held down the job or doing something much harder.

New bath salts dissolve before you can say Jack Robinson. They aren't like the old ones that made you fancy you were sitting on pebbles.

You will have a wide choice of perfumes. If you are going in for the whole works, you'll get the same scent in soap, salts, tonic-friction and powder. If you love violet, it is there for the buying. You may prefer lavender, which seems quaint these days of blended perfumes. And how about those lovely pine scents, especially if you are an outdoor girl?

Cost of Reception Champagne Not Responsibility of Groom's Father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son, who was married yesterday, took my breath away by saying, on the way to his wedding, that his father should have made himself responsible for the bill for champagne and other drinks served at the reception following the ceremony, and that, since his father had not assumed this responsibility, he himself was paying for them. I thought I had informed myself completely on the subject of wedding etiquette. Am I wrong in believing that all costs of the reception are borne by the bride's family?

C. B.

You are entirely right in believing that all costs of the wedding reception are the responsibility of the bride's family. The bride's parents are the hosts of the wedding and reception, and as hosts they assume all expenses of the hospitality. You and your husband, the bridegroom's parents, are the guests of honor, and naturally the guests of honor are not expected to pay for any items of the hospitality. Of course if your son wished to offer to supply the champagne and other drinkables, it was his privilege (but not his responsibility) to do this. However, he had no right to maintain that "the bridegroom's father assumed this responsibility."

Housewarming is Given in New Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother-in-law is giving her son and me a housewarming party, and we would like to know if she should give it in her home or in our home. We are living in the second-floor apartment of her house. I believe that since my mother-in-law is the hostess, the party should be given in her home and then later on the evening the guests would come upstairs and look at our home. What is your advice?

J. A.

Since the idea of a housewarming is to welcome guests to the new house, the party should be given in the new home.

Trousseau Tea Questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. To the Trousseau Tea I am planning to give should I invite not only relatives and friends who are coming to my wedding but also friends who are not coming?

2. How soon before the wedding date should this tea take place?

3. What are the usual hours for this tea?

4. The two girls who are to be my bridesmaids live only two houses away from my house. On the day of the wedding should they dress at my house or at their own house?

S. L.

1. This depends on circumstances. For example, if you are having a very small wedding and cannot invite all your friends, they would, I am sure, appreciate being invited to this pre-wedding party.

2. This kind of tea is usually given between two weeks and ten days before the date of the wedding.

3. Four-to-six or four-to-seven are usual hours.

4. The bridesmaids should dress at their own homes—much more convenient for all concerned.

For Summery Afternons

By PRUNELLA WOOD

EVER HELPING the coming debutantes put their best feet forward, Emily Wilkens has designed a summery afternoon frock which should devastate the soda-straw crowd, and yet be a wash-laundry upkeep.

The frock is made of pique, white with a broad printed strip which combines pink, lime, blue and beige, with black. Matching parasol makes a coquettish accessory.

Fashion Flashes

UP IN FRONT with the smartest of them is the town suit of good old seersucker. Grey and white, fine-striped seersucker is used for a handsome suit. The jacket has a cardigan neckline and huge, push-up sleeves. Stripes run diagonally. Vertical stripes on the slim, neat skirt.

Headed this way for Fall are handsome hats of two-tone beaver with beautiful ostrich trim, done on swashbuckling, Cavalier lines.

Yes, we agree, that the new swim suits are charming, different, cute and whatnot, but the gals are going for that wonderful revival, the swim suit of elasticised satin. Beautiful in black, white, brown or navy, if you're slim!

Much more beautiful and certainly more smart and new than the topknot of flowers for evening is the sleek, cap-like dinner hat of hair or lattice-work satin decorated with a fine feather fancy.

Beautiful fur fashions appear on coolish nights, such as a luxurious cape-stole of snowy ermine, made with deep-dipping, rippling capelet and very long stole ends.

Look out for glitter on Fall gloves, the sort of thing that's so nice for dressing up. One designer shows black suede gloves with gold touches, such as two birds embroidered in gold thread. Another glove is trimmed with clusters of daisies in gold thread. Centres are of gold sequins.

OPA DIES IN U.S. BUT CANADA MAINTAINS PRICE CONTROL

Canada will not abandon price control policy despite the fact that the United States has disposed of its Office of Price Administration. The Wartime Prices and Trade Board will continue to place props on items which figure most in the cost of living. Most heartening sight to greet New Yorkers who were expecting a jump in prices with the death of O.P.A. was this sign in a delicatessen store window on Third Ave. The sign says: "Since there is no more O.P.A. to meet competition, prices will be greatly reduced."

SOMETHING HAS BEEN ADDED TO LIFE ON THE FARM

Those of us who have based our interpretation of farm life on "The Gleaners," "The Harvesters" and other famous pastorals from the world of art, will find nothing amiss with the left hand side of this picture, taken at Glen Head, N.Y. Only new note is the play pen and auto in the field. In the play pen are Julia, one, and Mary Ann Kowski, two, children of Mrs. Ruth Kowski, CENTRE. Third child, John, three, watches from the family jallopy.

Prime Minister Opens Political Broadcast Series

Ottawa, July 4 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a CBC Trans-Canada network broadcast last night saw mankind at the cross-roads of the world and asked for goodwill to replace ill will and co-operation to replace conflict.

His speech—part of the CBC's political free time program which will bring other party leaders to the microphone in succeeding weeks—touched on the international scene and gave a possible hint that he might be going to the delayed Paris peace conference soon. He also touched on problems in the domestic scene ranging from demobilization and housing to Dominion-Provincial relations and taxation.

He spoke of "remarkable unanimity of view on matters of common concern" at the recent Commonwealth discussions he attended in London and said he had hoped to go on to the Paris conference. Differences between the great powers had occasioned delay but there was now a prospect of the conference being called in the near future.

Of demobilization he reported 330,000 members of the armed forces had been repatriated since VE-Day May 8 and 657,000 had been discharged—most of whom had found employment. In the 1945 period 47,000 dwellings had been constructed to relieve the housing shortage.

The government was going to continue to try to establish relationships with the provinces which would lead to agreement and in the meantime budget proposals provided for assistance to provinces who wanted individual agreements.

Taxation was tied up with the battle against inflation and it was obvious that the reduction of taxes must proceed in the same gradual and orderly way as the removal of wartime controls.

CARRY FIVE MILLION WORDS A DAY

The Years of Change lie ahead in Europe, years, perhaps, of revolution, famine and violence in which governments and forms of government will die; huge populations will move; boundaries will change and loyalties shift. Years of occupation, of trade rebuilding, of cleaning up the loose ends of war and laying solid foundations of peace. Ross Munro, most famed of Canadian Press war correspondents, has chosen this turbulent area as his "beat," (with headquarters in Paris) and through his keen eyes and facile pen Canadians will be kept posted day-by-day of the broad story of Europe's rebirth.

BASEBALL RULES

INTERPRETED by BALLGRAY

AN UNFAIRLY DELIVERED BALL

An unfairly delivered ball is a ball that the pitcher throws at the batsman while standing in his correct pitching position facing the batter that does not pass over any part of the home plate between the batter's shoulders and his knees. A ball that hits the ground before reaching the plate, provided it is not struck at by the batter, shall also be called a ball by the umpire.

If the pitched ball hits the ground before reaching the plate it shall be declared a ball by the umpire, but if the ball strikes the ground in front of the plate and bounces up striking the batter on any part of his body, he is entitled to first base on being hit by a pitched ball.

If the pitcher does not place his pivot-foot on the pitchers' slab, provided there are no runners on base, it shall be called a ball by the umpire even if the ball passes directly over the strike zone of the home plate.

Note:—If there is one or more runners on base at the time of the pitch, the pitcher shall be guilty of a balk and the runner or runners will be allowed to advance one base each.

If Yankees Win American League Pennant, They Might Give Thanks to Ted Williams

Fence-Busting Outfielder of Boston Cannot Hit a Lick in Stadium

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

If New York's Yankees accomplish the wholly unexpected and capture the American League flag this season, they hardly will vote a player's share of the World Series dough to the mighty Ted Williams but it might not be a bad idea to give the Boston Red Sox' slugging outfielder a vote of thanks.

Admittedly the greatest hitter in the game today, Williams, for some strange reason, has been almost inept with the stick against Yankee chucking, especially at the Yankee Stadium. In 10 games against Bill Dickey's clan, Thumping Theodore has connected for a measly three singles in 31 official trips to the plate for a batting percentage of exactly .097. In sharp contrast, the free-swinging fence buster has "murdered" the ball for a .381 mark against the six remaining American League clubs.

Went Out Meekly

A crowd of 52,664 which helped the Yankees break the American League Club attendance record for a season saw Williams presented with one walk yesterday out in his four other times at bat, the lanky larruper went out meekly as the Yankees shaded the Red Sox 3-2 to sweep the two-game series.

A ninth-inning double by catcher Aaron Robinson drove in two Yankee mates to enable the Yanks to cut the pace-setting Red Sox' margin to 6½ games.

The huge turnout soared the Yankees' paid attendance to 1,296,728 for 39 home games. Their previous record high was 1,289,422 when Babe Ruth paced the '20 Yankees.

Hal Newhouser, biggest winner in the majors, won his 15th game when he doubled in the tie-breaking run in the 10th inning as the third-place Detroit Tigers nipped Chicago White Sox 2-1. Hank Greenberg, blasted his 21st home run in the second frame.

Fireballer Whiffs Ten

Bobby Feller, the majors' strikeout artist, pitched Cleveland Indians to a 610 victory over St. Louis Browns to cement the Tribe's hold on fifth place. The Cleveland fireballer whiffed 10 to raise his season's total to 184.

The fourth-place Washington Senators went above the .500 mark by taking Philadelphia Athletics 3-1.

The National League runner-up St. Louis Cardinals snapped a four-game losing streak with a boom that sent four Cincinnati pitchers to cover under a 16-0 lacing. Third baseman Whitey Kurowski highlighted a 10-run fourth inning with a three-run homer.

The Cubs ended a four-game Pittsburgh winning streak by sweeping a double bill from the Pirates 4-3 and 2-1.

Aided by a 15-hit attack, Boston's Johnny Said coasted to his ninth triumphs as the Brave downed the declining Philadelphia Phils 7-1 under the lights at Boston. Johnny Hopp, with a triple, double and two singles, led the Braves' attack against Ken Raffensberger and Dick Mauney.

Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants were idle.

Son of Former Olympic Winner Wins His Heat

By The Canadian Press

Many aspirants from different parts of the world, with the exception of Canada, started yesterday in pursuit of the Diamond Sculls in a renewal of the Royal Henley Regatta. In the first heat the winner was John B. Kelly, Jr., of Philadelphia who disposed of J. H. Pinches of London by two lengths. Another American victor was Arthur A. Gallagher, also of Philadelphia.

One highly-interested spectator among the many thousands along the Thames course was John Kelly, Sr., Olympic winner in 1920 and 1924, who was prevented from competing for the sculls in 1920 because he had done manual labor. This restriction has long since been abandoned.

Not to be outdone by the major leagues' all-star contest in Boston, the Mexican Baseball League yesterday announced a north vs. south game at Mexico City next Tuesday. Fourteen ex-Americans and one Canadian, Roland Gladu of Montreal, are mixed with Mexicans and Cubans in the line-ups.

The gigantic Yvon Petra of France yesterday eliminated Tom Brown of San Francisco in the all-England tennis championships at Wimbledon and faces Geoff Brown of Australia in the final match. The semi-finals of the women's singles became an all-American affair when Pauline Betz defeated Joan Curry of Britain in two sets.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis gave some signs of being distant toward promoter Mike Jacobs yesterday when the Brown Bomber said he was supposed to be in New York to sign for a scrap with Tami Mauriello in September but would remain in Cleveland for golf.

Bobby Locke of South Africa shot his way to first-round leadership in the British open golf championship at St. Andrews yesterday by carding a 69, four strokes under par. One stroke back in the pack of about 100 were Henry Cotton of Britain and Norman Von Nida of Australia and three Americans — Sammy Snead, Johnny Bulla and Joe Kirkwood—shot 71s.

Pitcher Russ Bauers, 30, released by Pittsburgh last spring, was picked up by Chicago Cubs yesterday. The Cubs announced the release of pitcher Red Adams to their Los Angeles farm team.

Lloyd Mangrum, U.S. open champion, yesterday set a seven-under-par record with a 65 in defeating Vic Ghezzi by six strokes in an exhibition golf match at Ferndale, N.Y.

Four-year-old Gallorette, first of her sex to rate as a choice in the event and Pavot were regarded as tops in the 12-horse field for today's 12th running of the $50,000 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

Indefinite postponement of the bout between Arthur King and Joey Bagnato at Toronto was announced by match-maker Frank Tunney. Originally scheduled for June 24, the fight was postponed to July 8 when an infected finger halted King's training and sent him to hospital. King was released from hospital today but his doctor ordered him not to resume training for several weeks.

Locke Scores 69 On Par 73 Course

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 4 —(CP)—Bobby Locke of South Africa led an outburst of sub-par scoring in the first round of the British Open golf championship Wednesday with a brilliant 69 on the par 73 championship old course.

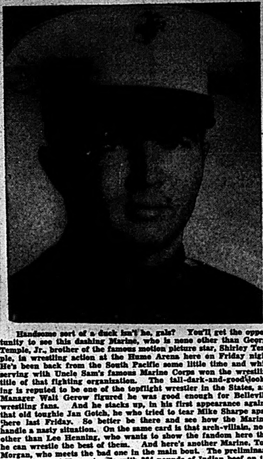
Right behind him with 70's were Norman Von Nida, the little Australian star and low qualifier, and Henry Cotton, winner of two previous opens.

Bracketed behind them with 71's were three Americans — Sam Snead, Johnny Bulla and Joe Kirkwood. Bulla blew a chance to lead the field by taking a seven on the par five 17th.

Dai Rees, another pre-tournament favorite, had a 75, defending champion Dick Burton a 74, and Charley Ward, winner of the first pro tournament played here after the war, a 73.

HEARING ADJOURNED

Welland, July 4 —(CP)—Preliminary hearing of the murder charge against George Popowich and his wife Elizabeth was adjourned yesterday until July 10. The Thorold South Township couple was charged June 22, less than 24 hours after the death of Louis Nato, Thorold merchant, who police say was "taken for a ride," robbed of $180, beaten and thrown into a ditch June 16.



Handsome sort of a duck isn't he, gals? You'll get the opportunity to see this dashing Marine, who is none other than George Temple, Jr., brother of the famous motion picture star, Shirley Temple, in wrestling action at the Hume Arena here on Friday night. He's been back from the South Pacific some little time and while serving with Uncle Sam's famous Marine Corps won the wrestling title of that fighting organization. The tall-dark-and-good-looking is reputed to be one of the topflight wrestler in the States, and Manager Walt Gerow figured he was good enough for Belleville wrestling fans. And he stacks up, in his first appearance against that old toughie Jan Gotch, he who tried to tear Mike Sharpe apart there last Friday. So better be there and see how the Marines handle a nasty situation. On the same card is that arch-villain, none other than Lee Henning, who wants to show the fandom here that he can wrestle the best of them. And here's another Marine, Toar Morgan, who meets the bad one in the main bout. The preliminary sees Jim 'Goon' Henry tangle with 304 pounds of Indian beef on the hoof, Jules Strongbow.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

There seems to be a touch of screwiness developing in the City Baseball League. Last night the Latta squad tacked a 10-2 defeat on the Kiwanis Juniors who previously had held the powerful RCAF Flyers to a 4-2 score, being deprived of the nod when a mammoth triple scored three runs in the late innings.

And that is not meant to deteriorate from the sparkling Latta win. They pounded Kelleher and Wright to win going away, so we are told, and thoroughly deserved their victory. A few nights ago Bata tacked a 14-0 defeat on the Kiwanis youngsters who in their previous meeting just missed out by a 3-2 score. The kids hung a 13-1 defeat on Latta in their first meeting and defeated the RCAF 8-4 in a previous game.

"Moose" Matthews and his RCAF Flyers squad will partake in a recruiting drive for the service in the near future and will be away on a five-day jaunt around Ontario and Northern New York State. They will play five or six games while away and will climax the series with a game in Buffalo.

Incidentally the Flyers have entered the National Baseball Congress Tournament scheduled for Toronto in the near future. Manager Matthews is working the squad hard for this all-important series which will be played by four teams representative of as many districts. Defeat in the first game means elimination and the lads in the service blue are determined to be in there when the umps call "Play Ball" for the second game.

Apparently the OASA have decided to review that suspension of the Hamilton St. Charles softball squad, the team that were eliminated in the junior finals for the Ontario championship here last Oct. 8 by our Columbian Squires. Whatever the cause or reason is, we have been invited to attend a meeting of the OASA executive in Hamilton on Saturday anent the game played here last fall. It was reliably reported sometime ago that the team had been definitely suspended, so until Saturday at 3 p.m. the haze will remain a bit on the thick side.

Point Anne offered a dish of victory soup on a platter of errors to the SACOS in that Belleville Softball Association tilt last night down at the point, and the blue-and-whites were quick to take advantage of the offer. It was a bit surprising to say the least, to see the Ox Pointers kick the apple around in that first innings like schoolkids with their first football, but they paid dear for it.

Maxie People's gang scored four runs in that initial chukker without putting a club on the ball. The usually reliable Genereaux muffed a pair of easy flies, and just to show the home town folks that they could boot the ball around, Bennett and Whitehead kicked in with two more bobbles before the surrounding populace could get around to help raise the morale of the boys from the home village.

It was a tough game for Don Boyle, ex-Columbian Squires pitching ase to lose, for he stifled the SACO bats to three hits during the nine-inning joust. At that, his mates had the local cheering sections on their feet in the ninth innings yodelling folk songs and doing grass clogs when the boys pounded out two hits and scored two runs with the tying and winning runs on bases. But SACOS Mr. Baldwin, who chucks from the knife-side had other ideas. He forced the next two batters to fly out and the Point Anne populace retrieved their tonsils from the nearby benches and went home defeated but not disgraced.

At that plenty of credit should go to Keith Baldwin who went the route on the mound for the winners. He pitched steady ball and held Messrs. Nicky Sero, Bennett et al to four hits and two runs, one of them a gift by virtue of errors, until the ninth when the Ox Pointers attempted their rally. They clustered a pair in that semester, but as we mentioned before, it died a sad death before help arrived.

The game was the first of the series in which the rival team managers toss the coin to see who calls it the home game. In this case Point Anne won the toss, but if the schedule is extended to another teams series, the next game between these squads will naturally be designed as the home game for SACOS.

To P.D.Q.:—The Ontario Amateur Softball Association Constitution, By-laws and Playing Rules for 1946 states under section "e" By-law No. 1: "No player shall sign a certificate in any league after July 15th of the current year, nor sign another certificate unless properly released from former team and must actually play in at least three games for the championship club in order to be eligible to play in the Ontario championships. Postponed or defaulted games shall not be considered as a game played."

Black Hawks Feted

That smart little trophy-winning softball squad, the Black Hawks of St. Michael's Academy, is a proud bunch of kids these days. The youngsters now sport swanky crests emblematic of the school championship, which were generously donated by the Belleville Kinsmen Club.

And that's not all. The lads were the guests of their mothers at a team party at the home of their captain Ray Burley, Charles Street, the other day, and they behaved like the champions they are. They were presented with their championship crests and afterwards gorged themselves on refreshments of ice cream, cake and cokes. The lads played all kinds of games and report a splendid time. And like the little gentlemen they are they were loud in their expressions of appreciation of the fine gesture of the ladies. Serving the refreshments were Mrs. Geo. Wilson, Mrs. Les Callaghan and Mrs. B. E. Burley.

"The easiest thing you've ever seen
In front of me, is a Marine,
Now everything will go as planned,
The situation's well in hand."

So gurgled Lee (The Scowl) Henning, relaxing his famous grimace for a moment while he chortled the above doggerel. But he switched quickly out of character when he saw Phil (The Voice) Lawson plugging his ears with wool. "So you handed me a Marine ehm" he growled biting off a chew of pig iron. "Well, brother, you've asked for it and so has this Toar Morgan."

He suddenly brightened as a thought struck him. "Say," he actually smiled. "I hear this guy George Temple is coming to Belleville Friday night on the same card. Here's a thought. Why not throw both Marines at me so I can work five minutes instead of ten. I'll Bikini those guys so quick, they won't know what hit 'em," snarled La Scowl. So there you have it. Looks like a hot time in the old town for the Marines. But mebbe they'll have something to say about it. They usually do.

Jockey Overcomes War Injuries To Continue Career

By FRANK KENNESON

Detroit, July 4. (AP)—A regular sermon in perseverance is slender 25-year-old Jack Robertson, 106 pounds of confidence from Lomita Park, Calif., who has overcome two near-tragic accidents to continue a promising turf career that he's certain will someday land him in the ranks of the country's leading jockeys.

Back in silks at the Detroit Fair rounds for the first time in 3 1-2 year, Robertson isn't setting the world on fire in his latest comeback— yet — but he's been astride six winners in the last three weeks.

Thats not bad for a fellow who wasn't expected to live after suffering a punctured lung in a spill at Bay Meadows in 1938 but came bouncing back for more only to have his hopes smothered a second time when a 50-calibre machine-gun cartridge exploded at Drew Field, Fla., in the Fall of 1943.

"Several doctors said they did not expect me to pull through after that California spill," the modest little rider recalled today. "But I guess I was just too healthy to die and after two months in a hospital I was back out there to ride 30 winners in a 30-day Spring meeting at Bay Meadows. That helped make me the leading 'Bug' (apprentice) rider of the season on the coast.'

Robertson entered the United States Army Air Forces in December, 1942, and his career seemed doomed again when the machine-gun accident left him with only partial use of his hands.

"Good hands are one of a riders greatest assets, Jack said, "and you can imagine how low I felt when it took just about all my strength to handle a fork well enough to eat my meals.

"Physically therapy treatments gradually strengthened my hands."

AMPS NEAR OBJECTIVE

Toronto, July 4 —(CP)— The Toronto branch of the War Amputations of Canada yesterday announced it has raised $469,830 of its $500,000 objective for a memorial building fund. Largest donation was $300,000 from the city of Toronto.

The building is to be erected in Toronto and will provide recreational and training facilities for war amputations.

TOMMY GORMAN QUITS CANADIENS, MONTREAL FORUM

Not Likely Famous Promoter Will Remain in Retirement for Any Length of Time

Ottawa, July 4. (CP)—Tommy Gorman, the Ottawa showman who brought a Barnum touch to big-time hockey, has resigned as general manager of the Canadian Arena Company and General Manager of Montreal Canadiens, world's professional hockey champions and Stanley Cup holders.

T. P. confirmed long-standing rumors by announcing his resignation from both posts in an interview in his Ottawa auditorium office last night, in which he expressed "great regret," at separating from the Montreal Forum and from Canadiens.

But while the move apparently meant a retirement—temporarily at least—from the National Hockey League scene, there was nothing in the genial Tommy's statement to say as much. And fans who have followed his roller-coaster career were inclined to say: "He may be back next week."

It's not the first time Gorman has forsaken hockey, but there was no way of telling whether or not he now will launch into a large new project as he did when he left New York Americans back in 1926 after introducing professional hockey south of the border.

At that time he turned his back on hockey and followed his keen racing nose to Agua Caliente, where he became assistant general manager.

It was not until 1934 that he came back to the N.H.L. backing Chicago Black Hawks with a new protege, Lionel Conacher, he won his third Stanley Cup (the first two were with Ottawa Senators) and then, taking Conacher with him, he led Montreal Maroons to a Stanley Cup Victory the following year.

Took Over in 1940

It was about that time Gorman became associated with the Forum and in 1940 he took over Canadiens.

"I am proud to have been associated with both Maroons and Canadiens and to have had the honor of winning the Stanley Cup three times for the City of Montreal," he said. "I am leaving the Forum Company itself in splendid financial condition and Les Canadiens with one of the greatest hockey teams the game has ever produced."

He disclosed that it was during the last Stanley Cup playoffs he decided to discontinue his Montreal Hockey activities.

"Shortly after the purchase of the auditorium last year, I realized that it would be impossible for me to continue at Montreal, and I so informed the director of the Canadian Arena company."

In addition to becoming president and general manager of the auditorium, Gorman still has his Connaught Park in the Quebec Racing Association to think about. Whether these will be enough to satisfy the energetic promoter or whether he has new ideas, the average fan wouldn't know.

Ever since his lacrosse-playing days, when he starred in Ottawa and later went to Europe with an all-Canadian team—back in 1910—the fabulous Gorman touch has always seen him come out on top.

LOCAL BOXERS GOING TO OSHAWA

Four members of the Belleville boxing fraternity left Belleville this afternoon to take part in the "Motor City" slugfest tonight.

"Jerry" Downes will be taking another whack at Oshawa's "Baldy" Hardsands to whom he has dropped two close decisions in the last month. Ron Mansfield takes on Harry Goulding and "Fighting Joe" Wilson will trade punches with Grant MacIntyre.

The next local card will be presented at the Arena on Wednesday, July 10th. The main "go" will probably bring together George Polmanter and Oshawa's Bill Goulding who chilled "Nick" Poppa in two rounds at Hamilton Centennial boxing show.

DUTCH SOLDIER SLAIN IN STREET CLASH

Singapore, July 4 — (CP)—Singapore police reported Wednesday that one Dutch soldier was found dead and 2 others wounded following an early morning street clash between Netherlands soldiers and Malays. The Malay newspaper Utusan Melayu, said the clash was believed to have been a Malay reprisal for an earlier skirmish Monday night.

The paper said that in the first disorder several dozen Dutch soldiers entered the Geyland district and attacked Malay pedestrians.

Lesson No. 1822.
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You never know just what to do with Elva Tyme in play. She never pays attention to the cards you throw away.

When partner leads a winning card, the card you play on that trick is a signal. It tells partner whether he should continue that suit or switch to some other suit.

If the card you play on that suit is not your lowest, it says you want that suit continued. If the card you play on that suit is your lowest, it says you want partner to switch to another suit.

The leader and his partner should know these signals. As they know them, so does the declarer. With dummy as his partner, he has no one to signal or hurt with a wrong signal.

Consequently, declarer will often make a misleading discard; known as a falsecard. His purpose is to try to make the discard of leader's partner look like something else.

With south as declarer in spades, the hearts are as shown here:

NORTH
♥Q 8 5
WEST ♥A K 6 2
SOUTH
♥J 10 9 4

West started with an opening lead of the heart king. Dummy put on the five. East chucked the seven an encouraging come-on signal.

West saw the seven and realized that it asked him to continue leading the suit. But south, with the intention of misleading west, played the jack on the first trick.

When west saw the south jack, he feared south would trump the second round of hearts. So, he switched to a diamond. South won it and promptly pulled all the trumps from east.

As a result, east lost the chance of trumping the third round of hearts. Merely because his partner ignored the signal that is such an efficient help in deciding what next to do.

After cutting a few eyeteeth around a bridge table, you learn: Partner is the one who tries to help you not an opponent.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 4 — (AP) — How could you find a better leg-woman than Paulette Goddard? I am speaking in newspaper terms, of course.

Paulette just returned from a flying trip to Europe where she negotiated a film deal in England, entertained troops in Germany and bought 12 gowns in Paris. She reported at luncheon what the Parisian gals are wearing, in as much as the women in the audience are doubtless interested in such things. She was sporting a weird French Revolution hat with a dangling projection which nearly plopped in her calves' liver and bacon. She also wore a Parisian suit cut 'way down to here.

"Yes, everything is very decollete over there," she said. She made an x to diagram how the dresses are styled. As she described it, the dresses begin about a foot below the neck, come to a small waist and spread out enormously.

"Everything is done to emphasize feminity," she said.

It might surprise you to know that the western is the hardest kind of picture for which to compose music. Richard Hageman says the reason is there's so little story.

Hageman, who conducted the Metropolitan Opera orchestra for 17 years, is now writing music to background "The Angel and the Outlaw," and he claims it's no easy job. He went out to the Arizona locations and recorded songs of real cowboys, not the Vine St. variety.

As for music in today's psychological films, Hageman declares: "That's much easier. All you need is a few discords and flat notes."

Montreal Royals May be First Club in Eight Years to Finish With 100 Wins

By The Associated Press

The fast-stepping Montreal Royals may be the first club in eight years to finish the International League season with over 100 victories.

Manager Clay Hopper's crew already has racked up 50 triumphs with the first half of the campaign nearly over and by continuing their present pace, the Royals will wind up over the 100-mark in games won, a feat performed by Newark Bears in 1938 when they hung up 104 triumphs, repeating with 100 in 1941.

It took the Royals 10 innings to beat Buffalo Bisons, 11-10 and again their 50th victory last night despite the fact that they had provided starter Roy Partlow with a 7-1 lead. Johnny Jorgensen broke it up in the 10th when he singled in Marv Rackley from second.

By winning, the Royals increased their margin to 8 .-2 games over Syracuse Chiefs who bowed, 6-2 to Newark Bears.

Walt Dubiel throttled the Chiefs on seven hits while his mates collected nine, including four-baggers by Bud Hassett and Frank Colman.

Rochester Red Wings scored their second shutout triumph of the year as lenn Gardner, veteran righthander, blanked Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-0.

Joe Hoover, rookie portsider of Jersey City's tail end giants, also hurled a 5-0 shut out but he had a rougher time than Gardner as his victims, Baltimore Orioles, clipped him for .2 hits.

SACOS DEFEAT POINT ANNE IN CLOSE CONTEST

Winners Score Four Runs in First to Practically Put Game on Ice

Point Anne staged a comedy of errors in the first innings of their softball game with SACOS at Ox Point last night, and tossed away easy outs that cost them four runs. They rallied in the ninth when trailing by three runs, scored two in a belated but futile effort to pull the game out of the fire and went down to defeat by a 5-4 count.

Apart from the gift phases of the game in the first innings, the pastime developed into a neat pitching duel between Keith Baldwin of SACOS and Don Boyle for the home town squad.

Boyle, after the first inning flurry held the Maxie Peoples' squad to three hits, struck out 7 and walked five. Baldwin, for SACOS issued seven free tickets and struck out three. He pitched consistent good ball holding the Point sluggers to six hits, two of which were bunched in the home team's ninth inning attempt at victory.

After the first chukker's smoke had cleared, both squads settled down in the field with Sword, and Wardhaugh scintillating for SACOS and Nicky Sero doing a man's job for the Point.

Kicked Ball Around

The game was won to all intents and purposes in the initial chukker when the Pointers kicked the ball around for four costly errors that netted the same amount of runs with nary a hit recorded in the scorebooks. The usually brilliant Genereaux was guilty of two bobbles in this innings with Whitehead and Chapman contributed two erratic assists to the enemy cause.

SACOS handed the Pointers their lone first innings marker in the same innings when Genereaux who had walked and gone to second on Loft's bunt, scored when Lionel Blaker threw the pill into the bushes back of third base. Whitehead got the second Point marker in the third when D. Bennett drove him home after he had reached second on a SACO bobble. Henn scored the fifth SACO tally in the fifth on his second hit of the game, a put-out and a passed ball.

Horewood started the Ox Point nine-innings rally when he smashed out a single with one out. Baldwin walked Whitehead and both advanced on a passed ball. Nicky Sero singled sharply to centre driving home two runs, but Baldwin settled down and forced Whalen and Bennett to pop out to end the rally and the game.

Henn paced the SACO hit parade with two with Reid getting the remaining safety off Boyle. Loft, Horewood, Sero, D. Bennett, Berny Bennett and Boyle accounted for the Point hits.

Appeals Brought By Fourteen CCF Members Dismissed

Toronto, July 4 (CP)— Appeals brought by William D. Dennison and 13 associates, all members of the C.C.F. party, against dismissal of their libel actions were dismissed yesterday by Ontario Court of Appeal.

The group had brought libel actions against Montague Alfred Sanderson of Reliable Exterminators, Ltd., and the Globe Printing Company and its president, George McCullagh. The case was an outcome of the Toronto municipal election campaign of 1943 in which the C.C.F. party presented a solid slate for Board of Control, Board of Education and city council.

The Court of Appeal also dismissed an appeal by the Globe Printing Company and Mr. McCullagh against the award of damages to the amount of one cent to George Grube and Eva Sanderson.

"No monetary loss to any of the appellants was involved," said Chief Justice R. S. Robertson in a written judgment in which the other members of the court concurred. "A jury is not likely to regard as serious the damage, if any, of rough words applied to a political opponent during an election campaign, even though such words may amount to gross abuse.

"I can see no grounds for the defendants' appeal against the judgment of the court in the award of one cent damages to the plaintiffs, George Grube and Eva Sanderson. This appeal also will be dismissed.

"In the Grube and Sanderson appeal against the size of the award, I am not able to attribute the small amount to anything improper in the charge to the jury of the trial judge, to anything improperly omitted from this charge nor for any failure on the part of the jury properly to discharge its functions. This appeal also will be dismissed and there will be no costs to any of the parties concerned in these actions."

London Letter

London, July 3. (CP)—Church House in Dean's yard, a building with carved "puns in stone" has a sign warning that none may enter and a smiling young curate says it means that belated peace has come to the business headquarters of the Church of England.

For 50 years the building was planned as a place near Westminster Abbey where clergy could discuss the business of the church. But a few months after its opening in 1940 it was required as a temporary home for Parliament.

Later on, within its white walls, under ceilings with rich plaster flowers and the colorful emblems of bishoprics, Canadians among others participated in the work of United Nations preparatory groups. Finally, this year, the central hall saw the first meetings of the Security Council.

But at last the No Admittance signs have gone up.

Only a few persons are aware of the puns in which the builders and designers delighted as the building rose. They know, for instance, that the partridge carved in flint is in memory of Bishop Partridge who urged Church House be built; a dove signifies Dove Brothers, the main builders; two carved stones in the form of loaves are for Sir Herbert Baker, the architect, and a wheel in stone for Charles Wheeler, responsible for some of the carvings.

Church House stands on ancient hallowed ground. For 1,000 years the buildings about it have been the centre of political and spiritual life in England. Here Kings came to be crowned and buried, and in the dim past the House of Commons met under the dim archway leading to the Churchill Club which scores of Canadians knew during the war and which now has closed hospitable doors.

One side of Dean's yard is bounded by the buildings of Westminster School, founded by Queen Elizabeth, and Monks used to store their grain where air raid shelters later stood.

Church representatives say that in a sense Church House, as the main administrative building, is a centre for the whole of the world-wide Anglican Communion.

Regina, July 4 (CP)—You can add girl softball players to that list of scientists, artists, radio performers and sports stars who are being drained away from Canada to the United States.

Johnny Gottselig, Chicago Black Hawks mentor, is spending the summer scouting the talent among the lady hurlers. He's definitely interested in local fast-ballers Hazel Measne and Rose Noll who may join other Canadian girls in the Toronto and Winnipeg zones but he is going on from here to take a look at what Calgary and Vancouver have to offer before slipping back across the border.

Switching with ease from softball to hockey predictions, Johnny sees no major changes in the Hawks' lineup this winter. Although he wouldn't turn up his nose if offered a "good young goalie," the idea of Leo Reise and Johnny Mariucci teaming on the defence pleases him no end.

The drainage has Scotty (Regina Leader-Post) Melville worried too.

It appears that Tom Lockhart, hockey promoter at Madison Square Gardens, has issued orders that young western hockey brilliants are to be brought east for developing. The thought of Canadian boys wandering around Central Park with not a patch of ice in sight is heart-rending to Scotty.

He predicts that with the removal of the youthful element, minor league hockey interest will fall away and the pool of talent will dry up. It's a black outlook.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

Clare Martin was the big bat in Ontario amateur baseball yesterday pounding out four hits, including a homer and a triple, to lead Waterloo Tigers to a 12 - 2 victory over Guelph Leafs in the Senior Intercounty League.

In other intercounty games London shut out Kitchener 11-0 and Stratford beat Galt 8-4. Welland, St. Catharines and Merritton-Thorold won in the Niagara District senior loop and McIntyre downed Hollinger 2-1 in the Temiskaming League.

Tommy White yielded only two hits to Kitchener while his mates pounded three Kitchener hurlers for 14 hits. The win kept London's one game lead in the loop.

Irish Miskimmons of Stratford and Frank Liscombe of Galt both hammered circuit blows in the Stratford-Galt tilt. The Nats, currently holding down second spot in the league, collected 14 hits from two Galt hurlers.

Mario (Smoky) Comy of Welland Atlas Steels had solid support as he pitched the steelmen to a 5-1 victory over Hamilton. Five Hamilton miscues helped the veteran hurler.

ed second base as Dominic Senese of St. Catharines tied the Houcks up in knots for an 8-0 shutout. Sid Aloian, after a month's layoff walloped a long triple to mark his return to the Saints roster.

After almost 10 years' absence from the mound, Jack Nester came back in a big way and shut out Fort Erie Merchants 11-0 for Merritton-Thorold Thormers. Nestor fanned 11 men and gave up only two hits.

Lone Hollinger tally came on a ninth inning homer by Joe Levandoski as the Bombers dropped a 2-1 decision to the fourth - place McIntyre club.

In the junior intercounty loop London defeated Brantford Beavers 11-4.

SENTENCES COMMUTED

Jerusalem, July 4 — (CP) — Death sentences imposed on two Jews for firing on British soldiers were commuted Wednesday to life imprisonment, as demanded by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization which has been holding three kidnapped British officers as hostages.

The sentences were commuted by Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner.

Meanwhile, British soldiers equipped with mine detectors, bulldozers and pneumatic drills continued a foot-by-foot search of the Jewish village of Mesheq Magur, where 10 large caches of contraband munitions have been uncovered.

HEARTBREAK

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 15

"You need me," Donna declared, forgetting what a shock this change on her part might be to him. "We need each other. I feel differently about marriage since living with my father and Helen. It can be the most beautiful relationship in the world/"

Carl laughed.

"Are you kidding?"

"Maybe I've just grown up. I know now how immature I used to be. I love you, darling, and you say you love me. Let's get married."

He dropped her hand and a coldness she had never seen before come into his hard black eyes.

"I told you Donna... We discussed it at great length and you said you agreed with me."

"I did in the beginning, but I've changed."

"Well, I haven't," he said flatly. "There is no room in my liffe for a wife. I can't take on any personal responsibilities. I know what it is to fight for the right to exist. Only people with money enough to educate and support them should bring children into the world."

"I have money enough for that. My father has established a trust fund which would take care of it."

"No, thank you, Donna. I prefer to remain independent."

"You mean you just don't want to get married?"

"Have I ever said or done anything to make you think otherwise?" he demanded.

And now at last she lost her temper. Hurt and humiliated she cried, "Then you don't love me."

"That has nothing to do with it. I don't want to marry anyone."

"I should have known there was someone else when you never call me on Mondays and Thursdays. Where do you go those nights. Who is she?"

The words poured from her lips without her volition. She had thought them so many times and then pushed them down into her subconscious but now they were boiling over. Carl stared at her in utter surprise. She was trembling like a leaf but she couldn't keep from saying them.

"Are you sure you want to know what I've been doing those nights, Donna?"

"Yes. No matter what it is I want to know."

Carl sighed then he said, "I've been working with a Boys Club on North Beach. It's an experiment we've started to keep adolescent boys off the streets and I've signed up for Mondays and Thursdays."

Relieved she threw her arms around him but he gently put them aside.

"No, Donna, I've answered your question but you shouldn't have asked it. That was our agreement. Remember? I told you you couldn't take it. This proves it. But I won't check in with any woman living no matter how much I love her."

Donna stared at Carl Newton as if she were seeing him for the first time. Had he changed or had she? Yet wasn't it true that he had warned her in the beginning that marriage was no part of his plan, that if he continued seeing her he must be free to do as he pleased?

She said finally, "It seems we have been growing apart instead of closer. Yet it's because I love you, Carl, that I want to be with you. Why is the idea of a home so distasteful to you?"

"I have a home," he said glancing about the firelit masculine room. "And I like it just as it is."

"You don't want to share it with me?"

"Not with anybody," he insisted. "Why are you forcing the issue? Why couldn't you let things be as they were?"

"Because it's no longer enough for me," she cried. "I want a normal life like everyone else. I want to be married."

"You are looking at it strictly from your own point of view," he reproached her. "You forget that I have a right to my opinion too and that hasn't changed. There are too many differences between us and these have increased since you went to live with your father."

"What would you suggest we do about it?" she asked sadly.

"What can we do now that you've brought it up. There's no future in the situation for you. The only answer is to part."

"You say that very easily, Carl. You're used to saying it, aren't you? To Suzanne and the redhead and the others. No doubt we all seem alike to you in the end but you warned us so your conscience is clear."

"There's never been anyone like you," he said. "If I ever married anyone...."

"I'll scream," she said bitterly, "if you thank me for the beautiful memory. Let's bury our romance without flowers if you don't mind."

"It's for your own good," he began again. "I could go on indefinitely."

"Well I can't," she admitted. "Will you call a taxi or shall I?"

Even then her heart melted as she watched him dialing the number. His figure was so strong and compact. His round beautifully shaped head with its thatch of dark reddish curly hair. If he had turned and taken her into his arms....But he didn't. He said, "They'll send it right away."

There was nothing for her to do but put on her coat. She carried her hat in her hand.

"It was swell of you to get dinner for me," he said awkwardly.

"Don't mention it." Donna opened the door.

"You'd better wait in here. It's raining."

"No thank you," she replied and plunged into the stormy darkness with the coldness of death in her heart. In spite of Suzanne's experience and Kitty's warning she could not believe it had really happened to her. They loved each other. But what did that love amount to when it infringed upon his freedom? "All right," she thought, "let him have his precious freedom. I'll find someone else." Then because she knew there would never be anyone like Carl she began to cry. She had descended the steps and was standing in the street when the taxi arrived.

"Did you phone for a cab, Miss?"

"Yes," she gulped and climbing inside gave her father's address. At least she had some place to go, somewhere she belonged.

By the time she reached home she was calm but her eyes were red and swollen from weeping. As she passed through the hall on her way upstairs her father called from his study, "Is that you, Donna?"

She did not want to see him but it was easier to do so than to think of an excuse.

"Helen has gone to bed with a headache," he said. "How about a little conversation? Or are you too tired?"

"I'm not tired at all," she said sinking upon a low leather stool. "Just hurt and mad. I've been crying," she stated with a candor which reminded him of Vanya.

"I see you have. What's wrong?"

"Carl and I have quit and it's all my fault. In the beginning we agreed not to ask questions about the nights we weren't together and I broke it."

John Meade patted her hand. "And now he's angry?" be married but he doesn't ever. Neither of us did at first but since living with you and Helen I've changed my mind about it."

"With due respect to the young man in question," her father said dryly, "I fancy we can find someone who will make you a much better husband."

"But I'm in love with Carl. How can I marry anyone else?" Donna asked.

"I was in love with your mother but I've been happier with Helen than I ever was with Vanya," her father confessed. "In spite of the popular idea, marriages are not made in heaven. They are achieved gradually through years of effort, sometimes after doubt and misunderstandings. Love isn't everything. You must learn to discipline your emotions if you are to have a balanced, successful life."

Donna nodded. She did not know how to explain the way she felt about Carl. It was deep and fundamental. She loved not only the man but what he stood for. He had taught her a new way of life.

"I am not one to be concerned about class distinctions," John Meade continued. "Nevertheless there are any number of other men I'd prefer seeing you marry. We haven't done much about it since you seemed already involved with Carl but now that it's over we'll see that you meet more of our eligible friends. In the meantime it would be well to concentrate on your work and some day when you least expect it you'll find yourself shaking hands with your future husband."

It was sound advice and Donna promised to follow it. She turned to her job with such renewed enthusiasm that Boris commented on it.

"What's the idea, Donna? You've been working late every night this week."

"Making up for lost time," she replied.

"What's become of that fellow who used to stop for you?"

"All over. Done for. Fini."

Boris brightened. "Good. That's what I've been waiting for. How about having dinner with me?"

They reseumed their friendship as if it had never been interrupted. Boris came to the house and took her on long drives. Her parents liked him but Boris could not heal the ache in her heart. To Donna he would never be anything but a friend. The Sunday afternoon he proposed she was so surprised she could not answer him.

"You needn't look at me like that," Boris said. "After all why do you think I've been spending so much time with you?"

"I thought you liked to be with me," she admitted coloring. "Just as I do with you."

"There's a lot more to it than that. I've been in love with you ever since the first day you walked into my office."

Very humbly she thanked him. Never again would she take any man's declaration of love casually. Because she knew now that real love, the kind that wanted to marry you and take care of you, was very, very rare.

"Boris, darling, I can't tell you what an honor this is ... How much I appreciate it."

"Omit the fancy words, Donna. Give it to me straight. Yes or no?"

She put her hand over his.

"I'm sorry. It's no."

They were in his car which he had stopped high on a hill overlooking the bay. Boris sighed, shifted his hat to the back of his head and started the car.

"Does that mean you want to stop seeing me or shall we go on as before?"

"That's up to you, Boris, but if you don't mind I'd like to go on as we were."

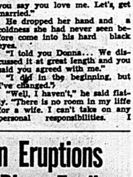
Cleared Up Skin Eruptions Nausea and Dizzy Feelings

Highly Pleased with Results Obtained by Using Few Bottles of Syntona. Also Free of Headache, Has Improved Appetite; Sleeps Better.

"I was troubled with numerous skin eruptions and pimples for the last two years, but they have cleared up since I've used a few bottles of Syntona Herbal Compound," said Miss Dorothy McLeod, 176 Dalhousie Street, Brantford, Ont., in a recent report.

"I also had a very poor appetite and I was troubled with gas, bloating and acid risings after my meals. Sometimes I felt bilious and nauseated. I would get dizzy feelings and spots before my eyes, often followed by a bad headache. Then I would become nervous and irritable and couldn't get to sleep at night.

"A friend who had taken Syntona persuaded me to get some, which I did with some misgivings, as I didn't think much of medicines. But, now I am glad I did try it and I am more than pleased with the results. In addition to clearing up the pimples and skin eruptions, my appetite is improved wonderfully, and I can eat now without having gas or any bilious, nauseated feeling afterward. I am free of headaches and dizzy spells and I sleep more restfully, so I get up mornings feeling more refreshed and energetic."



MISS DOROTHY McLEOD

Many people who have used Syntona have found that it has helped them in this same way. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels and helps to eliminate excess acids and poisonous waste matter. Why not give Syntona a trial today and enjoy the benefits that it can bring to you? It is pleasant to take and contains no harmful drugs.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

O.S.D. Supt. Members of Staff Attend Convention

Superintendent W. J. Morrison of the Ontario School for the Deaf here, Miss Catherine Ford, directress of professional training and eleven members of the teaching staff have returned from New York City where they attended the 56th annual summer meeting of the American Association to promote the teaching of speech to the deaf.

Highlights of the meeting were visits to Day School No. 47, New York City, which has an enrolment of 500 pupils; to Lexington School for the Deaf, New York, and addresses by Dr. and Mrs. A. W. F. Ewing, educators of the deaf from Manchester University, England.

Mrs. Spencer Tracy, wife of the well-known motion picture actor, and founder of the John Tracey Clinic, Los Angeles, was one of the speakers.

Panel Discussions Held.

All demonstrations of teaching were given in the Lexington Avenue School and panel discussions and lectures in Hunter College. One evening was devoted to a demonstration of visible speech by the Bell Telephone Laboratories in which speech patterns were thrown on a screen and read by deaf children and adults. One deaf man talked over a telephone reading the conversation of the second party from the screen.

"This work in visible speech," Superintendent Morrison said, "is still in the experimental stages and is being transferred to the Bell Laboratories at Ann Harbor, Michigan, for further research."

"It was the opinion of all speakers," Mr. Morrison said, "that with modern methods of teaching, the use of better hearing aids; the earlier admission of deaf children to school and the help given the mothers, the education of deaf children has been greatly improved in recent years."

Emphasis Placed on Speech.

From babyhood emphasis is being placed on speech and lipreading. Dr. and Mrs. Ewing have a sound film describing in detail the education of the deaf in England. One of the features of the picture was a choir of deaf children taking their singing parts as capably as those who can hear.

Superintendent Morrison and his staff were guests at the graduation ceremonies at School 47 New York where an elaborate program presented by deaf children was presented.

The members of the O.S.D. staff here who were present on the trip included the Misses S. M. Brethour, L. J. Burnside, J. A. Cook; G. Dillon; R. R. Hambly; H. M. Keeler; M.A. Kellar; M. E. Nichol; E. M. Nurse; B. M. O'Connor and Mrs. A. Wannamaker

TRENTON

Death Accident Jury's Verdict

Trenton.—A car owned by Franklin Davis of 1515 Lawrence Road, Trenton, N.J., a guest at Firhurst Manor, Dundas Street, West, was broken into on Tuesday night last and a number of articles were stolen. The articles were found by police hidden under a bush near where the car had been parked.

At the inquest held on Wednesday evening, July 3, at the town hall, into the death of the late Mr. J. B. Stickle, age 83 years, of Sidney Township, who was killed by a C.N.R. flyer at a railroad crossing on his farm on June 19, the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

Evidence was given by Dr. J. F. Byrne, John McAninch, Belleville, engineer of the passenger train, C.N.R. Investigator Hendrick, of Belleville, and Constable George Crawford of Trenton police.

According to the evidence submitted, the jury found that the cause of death was purely accidental and no one could be held at fault as the evidence showed nothing could have been done to avoid striking the deceased on the Canadian National Railways right-of-way at a crossing on the farm of the deceased on June 19. The late Mr. J. B. Stickle came to his death by being struck accidentally by an eastbound C.N.R. train No. 6. Members of the jury were: Kenneth Allore, Allan Shoniker, A. J. Holsey, Wilfred Allore. James F. Day, foreman of the jury.

Gordon Robertson, Assistant Crown Attorney, Belleville, conducted the inquest before Dr. E. A. McQuade, coroner.

George M. Gibson, of 69 Dowling Avenue, Toronto, was driving his car south on Division Street on Monday last and had stopped to allow a bus to pass due to some parked cars on the opposite side of the street. A second car proceeding in the same direction was stopped directly ahead of the Gibson car and the driver backed up suddenly damaging Gibson's bumper to the extent of about $5. The second car was driven by Kenneth Moreau, 42 McGill St., Trenton.

Ernest West of 155 Eastbourne Avenue, Toronto reported to police that his car was stolen on Tuesday night last from outside the Weaver-Whitley Apts., 88 Queen Street, Licence No. 4C-796, 1937 black Dodge sedan. A second car which was found on Wilkins Street, just off Queen Street, had been abandoned by the thieves. It had been stolen during the night from Toronto and was owned by Herbert J. Martin, 174 Glenview Avenue, Toronto.

POINT TRAVERSE

One Body Found In Mexico Bay, U. S. Waters

Point Traverse, July 4 — The 30-foot sailing yacht Truant, with two persons aboard, on its way from Rochester to Prince Edward County, went aground early Saturday on a sand bar at the mouth of Black River.

The boat was freed in an undamaged condition by Main Duck fishermen.

Find Body.

An extensive search which was carried out over the lake in this vicinity for two missing Rochester youths by the names of Boardway and MacCombe, has terminated with the finding of the body of Boardway, in Mexico Bay, American waters.

The two men set sail out of Rochester in a 17-foot sailing dingy on June 21st. When their whereabouts became unknown, Mr. Carl Boardway, father of one of the missing youths, took up the search for his son and companion, and arrived here last week, soliciting the aid of commercial fishermen in searching for the men.

Waters along the south shore of Lake Ontario and South Bay were closely watched for any trace of the boat or its occupants. U. S. Coastguard planes scanned the waters surrounding the Duck islands, but failed to find any trace of the party.

The fate of the men is unknown, but it is understood that the tiny craft was caught in a thirty-mile gale, and probably the boat was swamped or capsized by the huge waves on the lake.

Visits Colony.

Mr. Herbert Southam, biologist from the Dominion Bird Protection Association, and his companions, returned to Toronto from a bird-banding trip to the Gull Bar tern colony, a tiny islet two miles out from this fishing colony.

Mr. Southam visits Gull Bar annually and has banded as high as fourteen hundred baby terns at the colony at one time.

TENSION CONTINUES HIGH IN PALESTINE

34 Reported Killed in Pogrom in Poland

Finally Suppressed By Govt. Forces In Armored Cars

65 Members of the Militia And Police Rumored Slain

By LARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, July 5 (AP)—At least 34 persons were reported today to have been killed and 42 wounded at the City of Kielce in Poland's bloodiest post-war pogrom, which was finally suppressed by government forces in armored cars.

Reinforced military units and security police patrolled Kielce's streets.

Anti-Jewish rumors apparently touched off the outbreak Thursday. One rumor was that a Polish baby had been killed by Jews. Another was that a Polish boy had been kidnapped and held in a cellar two days by a Jew.

Reports from Kielce, a farm market and industrial centre of 60,000, said it was the bloodiest pogrom in Poland in years. About 800 of the city's population are Jews.

Apartments and homes of Jews were attacked by men the government described as "Fascist elements." Jews were snatched from street cars and railway coaches. Mobs struck at the headquarters of the central Jewish committee of Kielce, but were repulsed after the Jews appealed to security police and militiamen for assistance.

Given Substantial Lead

The disorder came as the government announced that early returns from the Polish referendum last Sunday gave the government a substantial lead on all three questions it presented.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman announced that 67 "bandits" had been killed and 308 wounded or arrested in clashes between security police, militia and outlawed bands preceding and during the referendum.

Sixty-five members of the militia and the police also were slain in the clashes, the spokesman said. Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Peasant Party—core of the opposition, already has demanded a district by district recount of the votes.

The Foreign Ministry announced last night that a "small pogrom" had occurred in Kielce, a city of more than 500,000 population south of Warsaw, in which at least 10 Jews were wounded and some probably killed. A spokesman said the attacks on Jews began when a Polish baby was reported slain.

Heavy "Yes" Majority

The government announced yesterday that with approximately a quarter of the votes counted the three questions presented to the electorate had a heavy "yes" majority, with the count for the one-house legislature running about three to one. This question was the only one on which the opposition made a fight, urging a "no" vote.

The other questions concerned Poland's new western boundaries and upon the government's nationalization acts, as well as on the question of a unicameral legislature.

A government spokesman categorically denied last night Mikolajczyk's charge that 3,000 of his Partisans had been arrested in the Poznan district just before the referendum.

A statement in the name of Stanislaw Dadlewicz, Minister of Public Security, said that "not more than 200 arrests" were made throughout Poland and that most of those arrested had been released, except those accused of terrorism.

TWO TORONTO MEN BELIEVED SEEN AT BANCROFT

Reginald Cottle and Bert Webb Left Washago on Sunday Morning

Toronto, July 5 — (CP)—Two men seen Tuesday night in Bancroft, about 60 miles north of Peterboro, are believed to have been Reginald Cottle and Bert Webb, both of Toronto, who disappeared after leaving a cottage at Washago, 80 miles north of here, Sunday morning, Ontario Provincial Police said today.

Bancroft is about 90 miles northeast of Washago.

Police said they were told that the two men bought tires for their car at a Bancroft service station. They told the attendant they were headed for Rideau Lake, near Brockville. A cheque received for the tires bears Cottle's signature, it was learned.

The two men left Washago by car to seek cabin accommodation and fishing grounds near Head Lake, 20 miles away. They were to have returned Monday night. The search extended to Bancroft, about 50 miles east of Head Lake, when Mrs. Cottle said the men might have gone to Paudash Lake, near Bancroft. Earlier reports from Bancroft said there was no trace of Cottle and Webb.

On the car, the men carried a home-made sheet metal boat equipped with an inboard motor. Police said it had never been tested in water.

Cascara Trees Being Stripped Of Their Bark

North Vancouver, July 5 (CP)—Municipal officials here have announced that thousands of cascara trees throughout the district are being stripped of their bark and left to die.

The practice is being carried on even in populated sections by persons without permits and is in direct contravention of existing provincial law.

Similar stands of cascara trees in the northwest United States were improperly harvested to the point of extinction, sending the price of British Columbia cascara soaring and creating a virtual black market.

A survey of Vancouver wholesale drug firms revealed that the present price of the bark, 25 cents a pound, has dropped five cents in the last week.

New Non-Poisonous Potent Drug From Oat Hulls Extract, Chemicals

San Francisco, July 5 (AP) — A new non-poisonous killer of disease germs, described by its sponsors as potentially greater than penicillin, was introduced to the medical profession today.

In test tubes it will kill or prevent the growth of more kinds of dangerous germs than penicillin, among them tuberculosis, tetanus, the deadly and elusive gas bacillus, typhoid, dysentery, diphtheria, syphilis, gonorrhea and the organisms which cause blood poisoning, rheumatic fever and boils.

Preliminary report on its effectiveness in skin diseases, made before the American Medical Association by Dr. John C. Downing and Dr. Millard C. Hanson of Boston, said their results generally were better than with penicillin.

The drug is made from an extract of oat hulls compounded with various other chemicals. The basic substance is furacin and the compounds are called nitrofurans.

Dr. Downing told an A.M.A. meeting that he and Dr. Hanson had treated 212 cases of skin infection with nitrofuran; that it was successful in about 75 per cent of them and that the patients showed fewer undesirable reactions than would have been the case had penicillin been used.

Despite its effectiveness when administered in solution internally, one of penicillin's drawbacks has been its tendency to cause reactions when applied directly on surface infections.

PEACE PARLEY WILL BE HELD IN PARIS JULY 29

Twenty-one Powers Will be Invited To Take Part in Parley, Italians Terms Settled

By LOUIS NEVIN

Paris, July 5 (AP)—The foreign ministers of the Big Four drafted invitations today for a general European peace conference to be held in Paris July 29 for debate on treaties intended to end the Second Great War for Italy and the axis satellites.

In a seven hour and 40-minute session which lasted into the early hours this morning, the diplomatic representatives of Britain, France, Russia and the United States reached agreement on Italian reparations—the final major point blocking preparation of treaty drafts—and fixed the date for the peace conference.

The 21-power general conference—composed of Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, Belgium, Brazil, Byelo-Russia, China, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, India, France, Greece, The Netherlands, Norway, Poland, The Ukraine, The Soviet Union, The United States and Yugoslavia—will not have the final say on the treaties.

Russia has insisted on strict adherence to the terms of the Moscow agreement of last December, under which th Big Four are to study the advice of the peace conference and then draw up the treaties—for Italy, Finland, Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria.

French Tennis Star, Yvon Petra, Singles Champion

Wimbledon, England, July 5.—(CP)—Yvon Petra, French giant, won the men's singles title by defeating Geoff Brown of Australia, 6-2, 6-4, 7-9, 5-7, 6-4, in the final of the All-England tennis championships before a crowd of 14,000 today.

The six-foot, seven-inch Frenchman, seeded no higher than fifth in the tournament, employed a devastating service to win the first two sets from his much smaller opponent. After dropping the long-drawn third and fourth sets, he came back in the fifth to overwhelm Brown with his pulverizing delivery.

Brown, sent to Wimbledon by the voluntary contributions of his countrymen, had not lost a set until he ran into Petra. The new champion became the first Frenchman to win the Wimbledon title since Henri Cochet turned the trick in 1929.

In his drive to the title Petra eliminated top seeded Dinny Rails of Australia, and the young American sensation, Tom Brown, among others. Throughout the tournament his blasting service was his most reliable weapon.

United States, Minus Price Controls, Behaves Like Wary Sunbather

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, July 5 (CP)— The United States, its price controls suddenly removed last Sunday night, continued today to feel something like a man who is taking his first dip of the season.

He doesn't know where he's going to absorb a lot of health-giving rays or get a bad case of sunburn.

It's nice to get his clothes off, but he shivers a bit and is inclined to think he should put them back on.

Price controls went into effect later in the United States than in Canada—not until a month after the United States entered the war in December, 1941. They haven't been so effective here but so far they had held the line against run-away inflation.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington in its cost-of-living index prepared before the end of price controls said prices have increased 35.5 per cent since Jan. 1, 1941.

Figures Disputed

The figures have been disputed by many persons, particularly prominent labor leaders, who contend that the Bureau does not reflect all price increases.

Americans, devoted to what they term the "American way" and "free enterprise" accepted controls as necessary during the war but retained a slight suspicion regarding them. Manufacturers, in particular, have clamored since the war's end for their removal.

About the only point on which Americans are united in favoring continued control is in rents. Since all price controls lapsed last Sunday, some States, including New York, have passed emergency legislation which has the effect of keeping rent ceilings in force.

Americans also have indicated they do not want the prices of food to go up unduly.

Argument Starts

But here the argument starts. Those for continuation of controls say the lid will be off and inflation here if controls are not put back. Others think that food, clothing and general goods are scarce because producers will not supply them under present prices.

They say food is simply going into the black market and think the only solution is all-out production under which competition will keep prices under control.

President Truman in his message to Congress last Saturday vetoing a bill to prolong the life of the office of price administration—with sweeping restrictions on its power to maintain price ceilings — said the proposed bill would cause inflation just as much as the death of O.P.A. would.

On the other hand, Robert R. Watson, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, has declared that rising prices are the fault of the government's wage policy and not of the demise of O.P.A.

Terrific Strains on Line

There have been trrific strains on the price-line since VJ-Day. Widespread strikes during the last nine months have brought increased wages.

Unions are free in their warnings that if the cost of living goes up, the last part of this year will see more strikes than ever unless wages go up accordingly.

Congress has seemed bent on control relaxation and relaxation to an extent which control advocates say would ruin the whole control structure in such fashion that even control of rents could not be maintained.

The Senate already is working on an amended bill which would continue price controls for one year from July 1 but it faces a bitter fight before approval. Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio) already has served notice that he will seek to have included in the bill a provision which would drop all price controls on meat and dairy products.

Meanwhile, the country waits, watches mounting prices indices and wonders what the future holds.

SECOND A-BOMB DETONATION SET FOR JULY 25TH

This Will be "An Attack Against Hulls" and Exploded Below Water

By ELTON C. FAY

Aboard USS Mt, McKinley, July 5 (AP)—Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy today set July 25 as the tentative date for the detonation of Bikini's second atomic bomb, this one "an attack against hulls." It will be exploded slightly under the surface of the lagoon.

A full-dress rehearsal was scheduled for July 19.

The chief of task force one told newspapermen he had scaled down his original estimates of a 100-foot tidal wave resulting from the sub-surface blast. The wave, he said, probably would not be more than 70 feet. This would be enough to send green water over Bikini Island.

Blandy expects some form of radioactive cloud to result from the spray blown up from the underwater explosion. Contamination of ships by the spray and by solid water tossed onto their decks are expected to be a factor in delaying their return for inspection.

The Admiral in a reappraisal of the airborne drop termed it a "miss of appreciable dimensions" because of wind and other uncontrollable factors but said,

KELLY WINS SEMI-FINALS

Henley, England, July 5 (CP)—John B. Kelly, Jr., 19-year-old sculling star from Philadelphia, today defeated A. A. Gallagher, Penn Athletic Club entry, by four lengths in the Henley Regatta semi-finals.

Kelly covered the one-mile, 500-yard Thames River course in nine minutes, 12 seconds.

1.6-POINT RISE IN LIVING COST REPORTED IN MAY

Total Increase of 22.6 P.C. in Canada Since August, 1939

Ottawa, July 5 (CP)— The cost-of-living index shot up 1.6 points during May for a total increase of 22.6 per cent since August, 1939, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. This followed a sharp 1.2-point increase in April.

Calculated on a basis of 1935-1939 equals 100, the index was 123.6 on June 1 compared with 122.0 on May 1. The index reached a higher level than at any time during the war on April 1 when it stood at 120.8.

Fluctuations in the index have not been reflected in wage rates since cost-off-living bonuses were merged with basic wage rates under the Dominion government's wage control order.

The Bureau attributed the major share in the increase to the food group, which jumped 4.4 points to bring the increase in food prices since the beginning of the war to 43 per cent.

The "most important factor" contributing to the rising cost of food was the two-cent-a-quart increase in the cost of milk following removal of Dominion government consumer subsidies. There also were higher figures for fresh vegetables, fruits ,eggs and meats.

PAYMENTS UNDER INSURANCE BILL MAY BE UPPED

Minister Warns That Increases Would Mean Bigger Payment To Unemployment Fund

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 5. (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell yesterday told the Commons the government next year will consider the advisability of increasing unemployment payments under the Unemploment Insurance Act, but warned it also would mean an increase in contributions to the Unemployment Fund.

Speaking during clause-by-clause study of a bill amending the Act, Mr. Mitchell said the Advisory Committee to the Unemployment Insurance Commission had recommended a "slight" increase to unemployed with dependents but the government, in view of current economic conditions, had decided to defer the matter until next year.

He added that money values on the North American continent at present were in a "state of flux" and the United States, because of the recent action of abandoning price controls, "may be moving into an inflationary spiral with the inevitable collapse afterwards." No one could predict what would happen on this continent.

Don't Cover Broad Field

"The recommendations of the Committee are not fundamental recommendations; they do not cover the broad field," Mr. Mitchell continued. "I am speaking from memory now; I do not touch the payments made to the single persons, but they do increase slightly the payments made to those with dependents.

"In addition, an increase is made in the contributions by the employer."

2 U.S. Oarsmen In Semi-Finals Of Diamond Sculls

Henley-on-Thames, England, July 5 — (CP) — The two United States entries in the Henley Regatta advanced to the semi-finals of the Diamond Sculls event Thursday with strong races against a heavy head wind.

John B. Kelly, Jr., young United States Navy sailor from Philadelphia, outclassed his British opponent, W. H. Fullick, covering the mile and 500 yards Thames course in 10:05.

A. A. Gallagher, another Philadelphian, defeated William Jones, Uruguay, by two lengths. Gallagher's time was 9:54.

Jones collapsed and upset his frail craft at the end of the race. He was fished out by a launch.

Allies Fail to Make Use of Propaganda To Indoctrinate Nazis to Democracy

(This is the first of a series of stories written by representative Germans, presenting their own uncensored views of their life in Germany under four-power occupation. The writer's identity is withheld in order to make possible the utmost honesty and frankness of expression. The series is planned with the intent of providing a cross-section of German social problems by the people who create that problem. This story was written by a Berlin journalist.)

Berlin, July 5 (AP)—The No. 1 problem faced by a German newspaperman these days is the entirely new political structure of Germany caused by the loss of the war and the occupation of the country.

He must think in foreign and local policy at the same time. The entirely different ideas of democracy which the four great powers represent give no basis for the necessary re-education of our people to become real Democrats. This leads Germans to take sides as to the occupying power they like or dislike.

The Russians have made more progress in their propaganda than the other allies. As an example, questions like the food situation and the question of supporting Germany with food imports—where the United States is undoubtedly leading—are still not clear in the mind of the German people.

Problem No. 2 for the German newspaperman is the general attitude of the Western Allies. They miss the opposition against the Russian tendency toward total Bolshevization.

Another Big Cache Munitions, British Battle Dress, Found

Three Officers, Kidnapped June 18, Released Unharmed

British Army announced today that another large cache of munitions and "a large quantity of British battle dress" had been uncovered in the Jewish settlement of Mesheq Yagur.

British troops have been searching the settlement, which is located in the Haifa Bay area, since last Saturday, and previously had reported unearthing large quantities of contraband munitions in an elaborate underground storage depot.

A British Army officer, replying to Zionist charges that the Jews were being denuded of their defences, declared:

"The presence of British Army battle dress in the cache could never be considered defensive equipment."

The officer said the confiscations at Mesheq Yagur, where a total of 20 large caches had been found up to last night, were a great loss to the Jews, but added: "It is only common sense that we must take everything at the present time if we are going to suppress violence."

Tension continued high in Palestine despite the release of three British officers by their Jewish kidnappers and a British announcement that many of the Jews arrested last weekend in a drive to curb armed violence were being freed.

The three officers, caged in wooden crates, were dumped unharmed from a truck in Tel Aviv last evening. They had been kidnapped June 18 by members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground resistance organization, and held as hostages to enforce Irgun demands for the commutation of death sentences imposed on two young Jews for shooting at British troops.

Commutation of the death sentences was announced Wednesday by Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, British High Commissioner for Palestine.

During the 18 days the officers were held they were kept chained by the wrists and were guarded by four Jews armed with pistols and a rubber truncheon, a British communique said. It added that the officers were "visited five times by a marked man who told them they would be shot if they tried to escape."

For 48 hours prior to their release all three officers had been on a hunger strike, the communique said.

British military authorities announced yesterday that 50 of the 2,718 Jews rounded up last weekend had been released from the Rafa prison camp in southern Palestine and said that all innocent persons caught in the drive would be freed as soon as possible.

None of the six executives of the Jewish agency, which the British have accused of complicity in recent violence, have been freed.

A board of claims, meanwhile, was formed under the Deputy District Commissioner for Jerusalem to assess damages to the Jewish agency building during British Army searches for hidden arms.

All Work to Stop

London, July 5 (Reuters) —All work will stop in Jewish communities, institutions and workshops throughout Poland at 11 a.m. today for a day off protest against "acts of violence" by British authorities against the Jews in Palestine, Warsaw radio said last night.

Jewish organizations will meet during the day, the radio added.

Soldiers Alerted

London, July 5. (CP)—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem today said British soldiers had been alerted and were standing by in anticipation of Jewish retaliatory measures protesting the arrest of many Jews last weekend.

The dispatch quoted British army officers as saying three Jewish underground armies will reach their "operational deadline" at one minute to midnight tonight. The paper recalled that previous Jewish underground actions had occurred on Friday nights so that participants might escape on Saturday, the Jewish sabbath.

Flies With Family To Canada 'To Start Again'

London, July 5 — (CP Cable)—George Johnson was all set to retire at 61 after a life-long career as village postman but instead he's spending savings to fly himself and his family to Canada.

Along with Mrs. Johnson and his daughter Aureole, Johnson is en route to London, Ont., where his wife's 80-year-old mother is ill.

"We're going to Canada to start again," said Johnson after spending most of his savings on plane tickets. The decision to cross the Atlantic was made after Mrs. Johnson expressed a wish to see her mother and was implemented quickly when three seats suddenly became available on a flight last night.

"We're not worrying," said Mrs. Johnson. "As a matter of fact Dad's got a bit of arthritis coming on and I wouldn't let him do this for me if I hadn't thought the climate over there would do him good."

Sam Snead Wins British Open With Four-Strike Lead

St. Andrew's Scotland, July 5. (CP)—Sam Snead, long-driving American pro, won the British Open Golf Championship today with a 75 in his final round. This still was better than other tiring finishers and gave him a 72-hole total of 290 and a four-stroke lead.

Johnny Bulla, another American, and Bobby Locke, South African champion, were next low at 294. Both three putted the last green.

Next in the field came Henry Cotton, Charley Ward and Dai Rees with Wotja.

Snead's clear-cut victory returns to America the old trophy which Great Britain has held since 1934. American golfers had won it for ten straight years before 1934.

All was comparatively quiet in police circles over the night with the apprehension of several inebriates taking up for the most part the officers' time.

Recent checking of police constables on automobiles having been parked in prohibited areas had its sequence in magistrate's court Friday morning with a number of motorists having paid fines out of court for parking on the south side of Campbell Street between Front and Pinnacle Streets.

Bride Says Little Chance of Making Marriage Success

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Grinsthorpe, Lincolnshire, England, July 5. (CP Cable)—Mrs. Mary Costello, British war bride for whom Canada proved a disillusionment, went through trunks at her mother's home today destroying photographs of the Charlottetown husband she has left "forever".

Nineteen-year-old Mary arrived in England Wednesday after living two weeks with her husband, Pius, at the home of his parents. She said the rift that caused her to leave was that they couldn't find a home of their own.

"Paddy, too, seemed to be strange somehow, different from the fellow I fell in love with at a dance in Sheffield," she said. "He was my first boy friend. Perhaps I was attracted by the glamor of the uniform and his coming from overseas."

Mary said other war brides returned to the United Kingdom on the same ship.

"They all agree that there was little chance of making a marriage successful because of the great shortage of houses."

Built at the Central Bridge Co., at Trenton, it was purchased by the township of North Marysburgh, and brought here on a truck and trailer.

When police left the cockroaches were still walking up and down.

Police Dept. To Take Action

City police department in the future will take action against newly married couple and wedding parties who create disturbance by racing through city streets with their automobiles and add to the general conglomeration of traffic noises by continuous horn blowing.

Just this was announced today by Inspector Clair Hayes of the local police department who stated that complaints had become so numerous that action would have to be taken.

"Fast driving and horn blowing by wedding parties will just not be tolerated in the future, and offenders will be prosecuted," stated the inspector. Offenders will be charged under the Highway Traffic Act for driving at an excessive speed and also through continuous horn blowing, will be charged for disturbing the peace.

The matter of offending wedding parties was brought to a head at Tuesday night's meeting when a resolution was passed calling on the Mayor to instruct the police department to take action against wedding parties causing disturbance.

Scientists Play Desperate Battle And Save Bikini Records in Storm

Philadelphia, July 5 (AP) —A desperate battle scientists played to keep vitally important atom bomb records from being lost in a storm-tossed United States Army transport plane was recounted today by a Philadelphia newspaperman who said he is "still shaky" from the experience.

"At one time we thought we would have to bail out and lose the records from Bikini," said Alfred M. Klein, a staff correspondent for the Philadelphia Record. He said the huge transport ran into a thunderstorm over Nebraska early yesterday.

"The storm lasted about 30 minutes," Klein said, adding in a copyrighted story:

"I saw them (the scientists) disregard the pilot's orders to take to their parachutes. They threw themselves on the heavy cases and instruments which had torn loose from their lashings. By holding down the boxes and steel cases with their bodies, they prevented them from crashing into the tail of the plane and ripping out the sides of our C-54."

The ship landed at Dayton, O., for minor motor adjustments and then continued to Washington.

TRENTON

Work to Start On New Roads Within a Week

Trenton — Mayor Harry Cory told the town council at the last meeting that the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton will definitely start work this week on the paving program for which it was awarded the contract.

The company will construct first the nine miles of mulch pavement, leaving the new asphalt paving and resurfacing until the last. The company has a government contract for asphalt paving and will establish the asphalt mixing machine at Brighton, hauling sufficient to Trenton with a fleet of some thirty trucks to finish the job here. As decided by the council several weeks ago, a Toronto firm will furnish an inspector for the work. This company will now be notified to send their man here as soon as work starts.

The first work to be done will be Marmora Street as part of a contract awarded to the company last year. Owing to necessary sewer construction the work could not be proceeded with. It is understood the next job will be on West Street.

There will be no sewer extension on Front Street to Hart's Corners this year, owing to the lack of materials. The Mayor explained that the Public Utilities Commission could not get delivery of sewer pipe for eight weeks. As to water extension, the Mayor said that the contract had been let for the work. Councillor Ross Burt drew from the Mayor the information that a sewer at Crown and Byron Streets would be constructed as soon as tile was available.

Chairman Norman Banfield yesterday issued a statement expressing his sincere thanks to all committee chairmen and workers, the Century Theatre and the citizens of the three places who helped to make the campaign here a great success.

however, that "nothing went wrong with this test to prevent it from being a complete success."

As greater refinements in calculations are made, he said, the airborne bomb will be shown to be stronger than first estimated and closer to the Nagaski bomb in potency.

Capt. Shields Warren, radiological specialist, reported meantime that about 10 per cent of the 3,800 animals aboard the target fleet died from the atomic blast, radiation or drowning.

Capt. Warren, referring to delayed effects of exposure to radiation, said he expected "a considerable number" of deaths later on.

Some animals will be returned to the United States to determine whether atomic exposure influences offspring. Others will be killed at various stages of the development of radiation illness, for autopsy study. Some exposed animals will be given treatments and others will be left untreated for purposes of comparison.

Bill to Revive O.P.A. Rent, Price Controls on Way

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

Washington, July 5 (AP)—A bill reviving the office of Price Administration's price and rent controls for another year headed into a hot fight in the Senate today.

Its fate there, in the House of Representatives and at the White House will determine when and if the ceilings that collapsed last Sunday midnight are to be restored.

The measure, approved 12 to 5 last night by the Senate Banking Committee, differed in only two major particulars from the one President Truman vetoed last week with the comment that it was an "impossible" piece of legislation.

Nevertheless, the charges — both involving profit formulas for manufacturer, wholesalers and retailers—were such that Republican Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio declared open war on the revision and announced he would battle it on the Senate floor.

Sen. Barkley told reporters he had "every reason to believe the bill will not be disapproved by the President" if it clears the Senate and House. He said that price administrator Paul Porter had pronounced the two principal amendments "workable" and had stated he would not recommend a veto because of them.

Sen. Taft contended that the committee had revised his manufacturers' pricing formula to such an extent that the measure "now is porter's bill."

Sen. Taft had insisted that producers, manufacturers and processors should be entitled to their prices during a pre-war base period, plus average unit cost rises since. The committee accepted that general formula but hedged it in with restrictions.

Declares China Flooded With Cheap U.S. Goods

Moscow, July 5 (AP)— The newspaper Izvestia declared today that American capitalists had flooded China with "cheap American goods" and wrecked efforts of Chinese textile manufacturers to get back into business after years of war.

"It becomes clear," the paper added, "that some financial circles in America and England are trying to return China to the position of a semi-colonial country. Such a policy is being accomplished despite the fact it is in contradiction of the high aims of the United Nations."

Izvestia said that American engineers were swarming into the Yangtze valley and American oil men were invading the Gobi desert.

At the same time Pravda reported that a steady stream of emigrants pouring from various parts of the Soviet Union into Southern Sakhalin and the Kurilles Islands had resulted in the development of new fishery enterprises, mines, lumber camps and collective farms.

Thousands of new homes have been constructed to house the new arrivals, and more are flooding in weekly, Pravda said.

Pravda commentator V. Avarin said that "without the support of the Americans the reactionary forces of China would have been routed long ago.

"As many times reported already in the American press the Americans are transferring on their ships troops for strife against the peoples' armies and they give these troops armaments and give political support to reactionary forces," Avarin said.

Mother and Three Quadruplets Fly to New York

New York, July 5 (AP)— Norah Carpenter and her three surviving quadruplet children arrived from London by plane today for a reunion with the babies' father, former United States Army Staff Sgt. William Thompson of Pittsburgh—but Thompson wasn't at the airport to meet them.

Present instead, was his attorney, Sam R. Keller, of McKeesport, Pa., and a cousin, Jack Warner of Pittsburgh.

Keller said the mother and father would be married "as soon as possible" but that their reunion would not take place in public.

Thompson, who served in Britain during the war, had not seen the mother or babies in 15 months. He was divorced by his first wife after the birth of the children in March, 1944.

Keller and Warner indicated that the reunion might take place at a hotel here.

Keller said the marriage might be delayed by the required three-day waiting period in Pennsylvania but said an early application for blood tests would be made so that a court request for a waiver of the waiting period could be initiated.

Thompson, now a pressman, arrived here yesterday, they said.

The aircraft stewardess said the children's mother "appeared nervous" during the trip, but that the babies—Madeline, Maureen and Michael—slept most of the way and cried very little.

Pale and apparently nervous, Miss Carpenter left the airport in a taxicab about two hours after arrival. She declined to talk to reporters, saying:

"I'm sorry, I can't stand any more."

As the cab pulled away, newspapermen discovered that Miss Carpenter had left her two travelling bags on the pavement. The cab stopped and the suitcases were put in.

Manslaughter Charge In Pendlebury Death

Toronto, July 5 (CP)—Ernest Francis McDonald, 26, was arrested late last night and charged with manslaughter, following the death of John Pendlebury, 29, attacked on a city street yesterday and struck to the pavement.

Sam Wilson, who was walking with Pendlebury, said a man rushed out from between two buildings, smashed Pendlebury with his fist and ran away.

Pendlebury was unconscious when taken to hospital. He died late last night and his body was removed to the Chief Coroner's office, where an autopsy will be performed today.

Butter for Forces Of U. S. in Pacific

Wellington, N. Z., July 5—(CP). —Auckland waterside workers have started loading the cargo ship Mariposa with 18,000 cases of butter, first consignment of a 10,000,000-pound order for United States forces in the Pacific.

The men previously refused to load the butter because it was not going to Britain in accordance with New Zealand's "Food for Britain" campaign. Their union recommended that the Mariposa be loaned after Prime Minister Peter Fraser said the New Zealand government was acting as agent for the British government and hence the butter could be diverted only by Britain.

Mother and Three Quadruplets Leaving for U. S.

London, July 5 — (CP)—Norah Carpenter and her three surviving quadruplets prepared to take off for the United States and reunion with her soldier lover and father of the three children, William (Red) Thompson of Pittsburgh.

Thompson, formerly a staff sergeant on duty in England, plans to marry Norah shortly after her arrival. He was divorced by his first wife after the children were born.

"It'll be wonderful to see Red again, but I'm worried about the children," Norah said. "They don't like the elevators and I hope that doesn't mean they won't like the airplane."

The children, Maureen, Madeline and red-haired Michael, appeared unconcerned as they ate sandwiches. One of the quadruplets died soon after birth to the unwed mother in the closing months of the war.

Norah was tired and nervous and she sighed:

"If we could only get there quickly, so that Red can look out for us."

Relatives were at the airport to see the little family off.

Hay Crops Lighter Than Last Year

Toronto, July 5 — (CP)—Haying is under way in practically all sections of the province but the crop yield is considerably lighter than last year, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said in its weekly crop report.

The farm labor shortage was relieved a little with the arrival of some western Canadian harvesters and high school students but is still considered serious.

Warm weather and dryer conditions have dried up pastures in most sections of the province and this has caused a drop in the production of milk. However the warm weather has stepped up the growth of corn, soyabeans and tomatoes. Dairy cows are in strong demand, with considerable shipment to the United States.

Harvesting strawberries reached its peak in southern Ontario but with the lack of rain the berries are drying up rapidly. Northern Ontario reports the strawberries are ripening. Sweet cherries are on the market and peaches crops show excellent promise.

Many tobacco growers have sustained considerable loss due to wind, and replanting has been general.

22ND CHILD IS BORN

Bakersfield, Calif., July 5 — (AP) — A new story is an old story at the home of the Storys. Mr. and Mrs. Marion Story are parents of their 22nd child, born Wednesday. All but two of the Story children are alive. Doctors said the latest is "a perfect physical specimen."

Walls of House Are Blown Out

Hamilton, July 4 (CP)— An explosion today shattered walls and smashed windows in the home of Mrs. Mona Westbrook, 47, and sent Mrs. Westbrook to hospital with severe burns and head and body injuries. The blast occurred after Mrs. Westbrook lit a gas stove and started to prepare breakfast, police stated.

The explosion almost tore the 2 1-2-storey brick bungalow from its foundations. Front and rear walls and a side wall were blown out, together with a stone fireplace in the dining room. Fire swept through the dwelling after the explosion but was checked quickly.

Milk Production Shows Decided Drop in District

Although holding up well throughout the better part of June, the milk flow has showed a decided drop within the past two weeks and already has affected offerings of cheese on the Belleville Cheese Board.

In the week of June 27th there were approximately 5,000 cheese offered on the local board, but with rapidly drying pastures and a consequent drop in the milk flow, less than 4,000 cheese were sold on the Board at the first meeting in July.

According to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, a splendid start has been made at haying in the Hastings district, while spring grain and canning factory crops look promising.

Dairy cows are still in strong demand, principally by United States buyers, who are purchasing both grade and purebred cattle for export.

PEACE PARLEY

The ministers settled their last major conflict—Italian reparations—by an agreement providing that Italy must pay Russia $100,000,000 for munitions factories, from her assets abroad and from current production over a seven-year period. Italy was given a two-year period of grace before beginning the payments from current production, however.

The only item now on the agenda which still might cause trouble was the issue of freedom of navigation on the Danube.

Before winding up their current session the ministers also have to discuss the Australian question and the present political situation in Italy, the latter placed on the agenda at Russia's request. Discussion of these questions — together with the problems of peace for Germany—were expected to occupy the ministers virtually until the eve of the peace conference.

Partial Victory

Settlement of the reparations question represented a partial victory for Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov, who had insisted that some reparations come from current production. Messrs. Byrnes and Bevin succeeded in gaining the two-year moratorium, however.

By the same token, the fixing of a rate for the peace conference was a victory for Mr. Byrnes.

The date—over which the ministers deadlocked when three different dates were suggested—was fixed upon by a Bidault compromise proposed at a 0-minute extra-curricular session during a recess in M. Bidault's office.

The Vikings

That Eric the Red and his son Leif Ericson touched the western world has been related by some historians. It is said of the former that he sailed west from Norway to Iceland and still on and came upon an uninhabited country which he named Greenland and conceived the idea of colonizing it, then he returned to Norway and organised a band of colonists but on their way west many perished and the others soon died, says the legend. Leif Ericson is reported to have introduced Christianity into Greenland and according to some, later discovered North America.

There has arrived in Canada a famous botanist from Oxford University, Dr. Nicholas Polunin, to become visiting professor of botany at McGill University and it is his belief that the Vikings not only discovered America but actually lived on this continent several centuries before 1492. According to a news story in the Montreal Star the proof is to be found in plants at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River, according to Dr. Polunin. This summer he will conduct botanical research in the Canadian Eastern Arctic.

The Star article points out that archeologists have never been able to gain sufficient evidence of Vikings on this continent to satisfy themselves and other critical investigators. Dr. Polunin however brings an entirely new approach to the controversy which may settle for all time the question.

In his field researches Dr. Polunin has been in the Canadian Eastern Arctic and discovered plants which were clearly not native to the areas in which he had been working. This is true of Greenland in places. His knowledge of botany made it possible for him to identify the plants. They are thought to have been brought over by the Vikings, thereby leaving tangible proof of their presence on this side of the Atlantic. The Star says that Dr. Polunin is satisfied that botanical research at the mouth of the St. Lawrence will provide the necessary evidence and proof that the Vikings really explored and also founded colonies.

Modern scientific investigation is doing a great deal to lift the veil from the secrets and mysteries of nature and to find in nature proofs of earlier history of the world. The Middle East has been a fertile field for investigators in archeology who have thrown a flood of light on ancient civilizations which pre-dated the rise of Egypt, Greece and Rome.

The daring of the Viking explorers in the long centuries ago is a matter of history. They not only travelled far afield in the north but went out into the Atlantic and sailed southward and then far east into the Mediterranean leaving traces of their visits.

In recent years there has been speculation whether the Norwegian Vikings did not in some way penetrate into what is now Central Canada. Articles have been found which some have thought pointed to a Viking civilization.

The botanical avenue of approach to the problem of the possibility of Viking colonization in the early centuries before the fifteenth century is one of profound interest.

Britain and Exports

There has been an increase of nearly twenty-five percent compared with mid-1939 in the numbers of people in Britain working for the export trade. The total, as shown by figures issued by the United Kingdom Ministry of Labor, is estimated to be 1,236,000 at the end of April, against 990,000 in mid-1939.

The transfer of people from the armed forces and munitions factories to civilian employment since the war has been vast and smooth. From the end of June, 1945, to April, this year, 5,500,000 men and women had been released from the armed forces, civil defence, and munitions industries, and over 3,000,000 have gone back to production for the home market and export trades. At the same time nearly a million women have retired from industry, while 840,000 men and women are still on "release leave." There were still in mid-June 3,500,000 in the forces, civil defence and munitions industries, but by the end of the year this total is expected to be below 2,000,000.

As a result of this great switchover of manpower, the total number of men and women employed in industries and services supplying home and export needs had risen from a low level of 12,000,000 in June, 1943 to 15,665,000 by the end of April, 1946. This increase is already being reflected in the rapidly rising production of civilian goods and equipment, both for the home and overseas markets. The number employed is still nearly a million short of the total employed in those industries and services before the war began. This illustrates the extent of the changes in employment still to be made before a complete return to full peacetime production is achieved.

In the export trade, however, the prewar figure has already been surpassed. The estimated number at the end of March, of 1,236,000 is a remarkable increase on the 147,000 employed in export trade in mid-1945 and marks a great step towards the target of 1,600,000 to be reached by the end of this year. This rapid expansion in the numbers employed on manufacturing for export has already resulted in a great increase in the flow of manufactured goods and equipment from Britain to her overseas markets and should enable Britain to afford to increase her imports.

In the manufacturing industries, on which Britain must mainly depend for success in her export drive, there has been an increase since June, 1945, of over 2,500,000 in the number employed for home civilian manufacture and services and exports, and the total now almost equals the 1939 figure.

This immense remobilization of labor inevitably meant a certain amount of temporary unemployment. It has shown itself almost wholly in the old "special areas"—Scotland, South Wales, Durham, Tyneside and West Cumberland. But the government is vigorously pursuing its plans to transform these black spots into "development areas."

Peg-Tops and Bustle

A correspondent of a London newspaper deplores the fact that the history of men's dress, unlike that of women's, is not represented in Britain by any comprehensive collection. It is an injustice that the museums might well remedy. But perhaps there is some excuse for their lapse: for whereas former male fashions arouse but a passing, or even a derisive, interest, their feminine counterparts remain a constant source of inspiration.

The mere male contemplates Uncle Albert's "peg tops" with a shudder of aversion, and would no more dream of adopting them than of cultivating his uncle's Dundreary whiskers. As for taking a hint from any pre-Albert mode, the thing is plainly impossible. On the other hand, mysterious oracles of fashion are apt to see in Great-Aunt Emily's bustle, or in her great-aunt's crinoline, a revelation of perfection that can no longer be ignored.

Nevertheless, an exhibit of men's sartorial past could be worth while. It might even convince the sex that is wont to preen itself on its stand against the dictatorship of fashion that its pride is scarcely justified and that it has, in fact, fought a losing battle.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

AS I WAS ADVISED

"When a woman sets her cap,"
Said my Nellie, "for a chap—
Or her bonnet—
He's a goner; sure as fate
She will land him soon or late.
Gamble on it!"

Now I wonder, as I smile,
Are these hats—the latest styles—
Being tilted
Someone masculine to catch
Who would make the perfect match,
If he wilted?

Does some clerk who's after sales
Say: "This hat attracts the males?"
Do they tell it
To the lady: "It's a lure
That to hook a man is sure!"
Just to sell it?

"Yes," my Nellie said, "the style
Is for man the surest wile
She can hand him.
When a man she's out to get,
With a ribbon and rosette
She can land him."

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, July 5 (CP)—Washington is suffering growing pains as perhaps no other city in the United States is suffering and planners say that relief will come only when the capital breaks out in a rash of subways, super-speedways and bridges.

Washington proper is a comparatively small area—61 square miles—comprising the federal district but the suburban areas in Maryland and Virginia combine with it to make up a population of 1,300,000.

Fifteen years ago this same area had a population of but 672,000. Street traffic facilities in Washington proper have scarcely changed in that period but that is not true of the suburban areas, particularly Virginia just across the Potomac where an elaborate highway system speeds traffic to the three bridges which offer highway entry to the district.

Thus people working downtown near the Potomac can live 15 miles out in Virginia and get home as quickly as those living six miles away within the district line.

District planning committees are trying to get appropriations for a $60,000,000 subway to serve those who travel daily from the north, east and western areas to the downtown business and government areas.

Divorces are being obtained in Washington at the rate of one for every five marriages performed. The rate a year ago was one for every six marriages—a record. Ray Everett, secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, blames it on the war. He said he had five expectant mothers in his office in one fortnight asking his advice because their husbands were returning from overseas. And he blames the wide publicity that has given fraternization with local women by soldiers serving overseas. Returning soldiers are not willing to accept the idea of their wives that what was good for the gander was also good for the goose, he said.

Canadian news gets very little play in United States newspapers unless it is super-sensational but there is one item that appears quite frequently —though not frequently enough —during the sweltering midsummer days, and it almost always gets front page play with the same headline: "Cold front moving down from Canada due to bring relief from heat wave."

WAR ON SAND FLIES

Fort Erie, July 5 — (CP)—Fort Erie town council has declared war on what they claim are the world's toughest sand flies. Breeding in the swirling waters of the Niagara River, the flies are tough enough to make even bug killing experts move warily. A new type insecticide will be used but a full scale reconnaissance of the breeding ground will be made first.

Scout Training Saves Lives

Morpeth, July 5 (CP) — Boy Scout training saved the lives of two local residents yesterday when members of the Scout Troop in this village, 18 miles east of Chatham rescued two persons from drowning. Jack Coll pulled Ray Smith from a hole in Ross' Creek and Albert Hitchcock saved Beverley Fields from Klondyke Creek.

Search Planes To Cover Area South of Sudbury

Ottawa, July 4 (CP)— Balked in five days of concentrated searching, air force Dakotas set out today for the Sudbury area confident they are closing in on the secret of a jet-propelled Gloster Meteor aircraft, missing since late last Saturday when it took off from Kapuskasing with its pilot, Flt. Lt. W. H. McKenzie of St. Vital, Man.

Today the search planes planned to cover the area south of Sudbury, following reports from an unidentified Sudbury miner that he saw what seemed to be a jet-propelled aircraft close to Sudbury on the evening in question. If true, this would place the aircraft within a probable radius of 70 miles of Sudbury.

The R.C.A.F. is putting all suitable serviceable aircraft at its Rockcliffe station into the search, while several Dakotas from No. 2 Air Command at Winnipeg and training planes from Trenton, Ont., are also participating.

Yesterday about 20 aircraft took part, centring their activities north of Sudbury and particularly around high, 1,800-foot ground just north of Lake Wanapitei. However, no information was gleaned from the all-day search.

Lord Alexander On 2-Month Tour Western Canada

Winnipeg, July 5 (CP)—Parade-square smart, even in civilian morning dress, Viscount Alexander of Tunis, Governor-General of Canada, began a two-month Western tour with his arrival here yesterday. He was accompanied by Viscountess Alexander and aides.

Today the Governor-General will don military dress to inspect army, navy and air force establishments in the Winnipeg district, and to present some 50 decorations and awards to soldiers and airmen at a special investiture.

Also included on today's program are a visit to Deer Lodge Military Hospital, and in inspection of women's Red Cross work by Viscountess Alexander.

But all the commitments of an official itinerary will be forgotten for a few minutes while the vice-regal couple renew an old friendship. First thing this morning, they will meet a Winnipeg family—Gertrude Graham and her four brothers—all former neighbors in Ireland.

The couple were greeted yesterday by Lt.-Gov. R. F. McWilliams of Manitoba, and senior army, navy and air force officers. A three-service guard of honor was drawn up at the station, and after the inspection concluded, some of the men —veterans of the Italian campaign —said it was strange to see 'Alex' in morning coat and striped trousers, instead of battle-muddied shorts and khaki tunic.

Following a tour of the provincial legislative buildings, with Premier Stuart Garson and members of the cabinet, the Governor-General spoke at a special meeting of the Canadian Club.

ALLIES FAIL

The lack of Allied politicians who might be successful with a well-balanced policy against the strong Russian pressure leads to the conclusion that the Americans will lose the victory they gained in Europe.

Propaganda chances which were very obvious unfortunately haven't been used. Germans are not enough engaged for these tasks. The feeling of suspicion against Germans is still very strong on the American side. It often happens that the Americans even exceed their own strongest denazification laws in considering persons supposed to take over official positions or jobs with military government. In this way the Americans miss those Germans who would have the background for a new policy on re-education.

Undoubtedly Britain is the favorite in the feeling of the Germans toward the four occupying powers. The reason is the most correct and straight occupation policy of Britons. Here the Germans meet—and it is most important—a sort of human interest in their present problems. This is quite a contrast to the generally cold attitude of the Americans.

We Germans have to look eastwards and westwards. We have to take a hard way—we are certain of that. But we also know that our efforts will be in vain if a united policy for Germany isn't followed soon.

How can we become democrats if the occupying powers do not live up to a real and clean democracy?

TONE OF THE EATING MUSCLE

Presence of an excessive amount of gas and/or air in stomach or intestine, flatulence, rumbling in the interior, belching, burping, bloating or anything more than the ordinary awareness of these manifestations which any one has occasionally, suggests, to my mind a flabby eating muscle.

Eating muscle? Well, then, call it the gastro-intestinal musculature, the two coats of involuntary automatic muscle—the external coat, having fibres lengthwise, the internal coat having fibres circling the esophagus (gullet), stomach and intestine. Upon the tone, firmness, resiliency or liveness (as we say of rubber) of this carcass or casing of the entire 25-foot food tube depends the efficiency of digestion, just as the efficiency of the circulation depends on the tone or condition of the muscle coat of the heart and the arteries.

More than thirty years ago, before we knew anything much about nutrition Dr. George M. Niles, of Atlanta, said in his "Diagnosis and Treatment of Digestive Disease":

Personally I believe that this condition (that is, gastric and intestinal flatulence) is always associated with a certain lack of tone in the gastric musculature.

In this column I have harped on the importance of an optimal intake of vitamin B complex to maintain the tone (functional efficiency) of the eating muscle, but most readers react as Abner does to one of Lum's metaphors. Trouble with you is that you just can't savee a remedy unless it comes at 89 cents a bottle, or 30 cents for the trial size.

Please try to get this fixed in your so-called mind, sucker. Optimal intake means at least two or three times as much as nutrition authorities find necessary or essential to maintain health and functional efficiency.

Few Americans get enough vitamin B complex from the ordinary diet of refined foods to maintain good nutrition and functional efficiency—either the digestive function or the function of heart and arteries, for of course vitamin B complex is tonic (gives tone, improves function) to the heart and circulation as well as to the stomach and bowel and digestion.

The best source of vitamin B complex is wheat, plain wheat as it comes from the thresher. If you are in any way concerned with the health and economy of your family it will do no harm to ask in writing for the pamphlet Wheat to Eat—and inclose a stamped self addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vehement Dislike for All Things Dental

Please advise what I can take for my nerves when going to have teeth out—I get so fearful and shaky and my heart pounds and it is hard to breathe. (W. S. C.)

Answer—Your physician or dentist can give you something to take a few hours before the ordeal, so that you will undergo it with no particular fear. I'm sorry I can't tell you what to take. Moreover, if it is the extraction of one or two teeth, a good dentist can use local anesthesia and make that operation so painless that you can hardly believe it is done when the dentist asks what you are waiting for.

Scratches Get Infected

I am 13 and have two brothers and one sister younger than I. Every time we get any bruises or scratches, they become infected. (Laura O.)

Answer—Keep a vial of mild tincture of iodine (not Tincture of Iodine) handy, and apply some to every cut, scratch, puncture, bruise, blister, burn or other break in the skin, immediately. Do not handle or touch the scratch or wound. When the iodine dries, cover the spot with either a coating of flexible collodion or a strip of adhesive plaster or a pad of sterile (unhandled freshly ironed or baked) gauze, cheesecloth or other clean cloth—freshly laundered handkerchief will do—and hold this protective covering in place with adhesive plaster strips for a day or two.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What animal bears its young in litters all of one sex?

The nine-banded armadillo bears its young in litters of four and all members of any given litter are invariably of the same sex, a characteristic found in no other animal. Scientists believe this is due to the fact that in this species all the members of a litter are developed by the cleavage of a single germ cell.

The nine-banded armadillo, about the size of an opossum, is found in several varieties from Texas and Arizona to Paraguay and Argentina, and it is the only species of "Edentata," toothless, which includes the armadillos, anteaters and sloths, whose range is as far north as the United States. Edentates are restricted entirely to the New World.

Armadillos get their name from the diminutive of Spanish "armado," armed, alluding to the fact that the skin of members of this family of mammals is covered with bony, plate-like armor. This armor is composed partly of buckle-like plates and partly of moveable transverse bands, the latter giving the body considerable flexibility. The nine-banded armadillo is so called because its armor includes nine moveable bands or scutes.

All armadillos are well protected from enemies. In spite of their short legs they can run rather fast, but the rapidity with which they can dig a hole and disappear into the ground and the tenacity with which they cling to their subterranean refuges afford their chief method of escape. A giant South American armadillo in the New York Zoo dug itself out of sight in hard ground in five minutes.

When taken unawares armadillos roll up, tortoise-like, into a compact ball, withdrawing the head and legs within their natural fortress, and present their armor in all directions. The limbs and the softer parts of the body are then protected from the teeth of predatory animals. Armadillos spend most of the time in their burrows and are seldom seen except at night, when they venture forth to feed. They eat worms, snails, beetles, grasshoppers, reptiles, fruits, roots and carrion, but ants and similar insects are the favorite item on their menu.

The flesh is said to be tender, white and of the flavor of young pork, and it is highly esteemed as food, particularly by the native Indians of South America. In the Southwest the armadillo is sometimes called "the poor man's pig" and its flesh shares honors with opossum meat as a delectable dish when roasted with sweet potatoes and served with brown gravy.

Izvestia Critical Of British Policy In Palestine

London, July 4 (CP)—Izvestia asserted today in an article broadcast from Moscow that British policy in Palestine "constantly pours oil on the flames of national strife."

Criticizing many phases of British foreign affairs, the Soviet government newspaper reported that "in other countries of the Near and Middle East British policy also has the clearly defined characteristics of efforts to dominate other peoples."

Izvestia also took exception to the recent declaration of Foreign Secretary Bevin in the House of Commons in which, it said, he stated the opinion that "there were many matters connected with the Soviet attitude towards the British Commonwealth and Empire which at least showed a sense of realism."

"He said that he thought, for instance," it added, "that the Soviet government as well as the government of the United States did really recognize the tremendous importance to the peace of the world of the maintenance of the British position in the Middle East, provided that, ultimately, there was developed a regional organization fitting into the United Nations security system.

"Leaving aside the attitude of the United States to British policy in the Middle East, it is necessary to point out that the above declaration on the attitude of the Soviet Union to this policy in no way corresponds to reality and constitutes a frivolous attempt to hide behind the Soviet Union's back.

"It is indeed a well-known fact that Soviet foreign policy rests on the principle of respect for the national right of both large and small nations and complete support of the lofty aim of national self-determination of independent peoples, which has also been acknowledged by the charter of the United Nations.

"Unfortunately, it can by no means be said that British policy in the Near and Middle East is being developed on this foundation. It is being developed on an entirely different principle and, while the matter remains as it is, the Soviet Union's attitude to this policy is completely clear."

Three More Bodies Taken From Canal

Port Weller, July 4—(CP)—Bodies of three more of the six persons who were drowned Saturday when the tug Dalhousie Rover turned on her side and sank in the Welland Canal were recovered here late last night and early today. Two bodies still are missing.

The bodies of Capt. John R. McLean of Logieville, N.B., and his second engineer, Joseph Smith of Toronto floated to the surface last night near the place where the 80-foot tug capsized. The body of mate Orvil McCormick of Erieau, rose to the surface today.

The body of Leroy Stevens, whose home is in New Brunswick and who had been staying with relatives in Thorold was recovered yesterday.

Still unrecovered are the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wheeler.

Five members of the crew were rescued after the tug plunged to the bottom of the canal in early morning darkness. They are: Vernon McCullough, 20, Toronto; Louis McCormick, 16, Leamington; Melvin Kehoe, 29, Owen Sound; Robert Jones, 22, Merritton, and Harvey Alexander, 16, Hamilton.

Two government divers searched the sunken tug without finding any bodies. Efforts to find the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler are continuing.

Tornado Relief Fund Reaches $160,000 Mark

Windsor, Ont., July 4 (CP)—The Windsor Star's Tornado Relief Fund today passed the $160,000 mark with a steady flow of cash and cheques continuing.

There is no stated objective for the fund, which will continue as long as money is offered. At best, the money will not fully recompense for the losses suffered in the tornado which swept through the townships of Sandwich East and Sandwich West on the evening of June 17.

Seventeen died. Sixty houses were completely destroyed and 40 others partially wrecked. Scores of other homes received damages, such as broken windows and torn roofs. All that is left of more than a dozen homes is a pile of useless rubble and shattered lumber. Wreckage in other places may produce some salvage.

The fund is being administered by a representative group of citizens headed by Col. D. M. Brodie, retired magistrate of Windsor and chairman of the border branch of the Canadian Red Cross. W. Harold Vaughan, executive editor of the Windsor Star is treasurer.

The work of rehabilitation is well under way now.

Full-time staffs are at work in offices that were opened the day after the tornado. A steady line of men and women have filed claims for loss and damage to homes, furnishings and clothing. Some lost all they possessed, and were glad to escape with their lives and the clothing they wore when the twister hit.

The tornado's grim shock tied the people of the Windsor and Essex county communities together as few things have ever done. Response to the Star's appeal was instantaneous, and almost overwhelming.

PAYMENTS UNDER

Earlier when opposition members called for an increase in the payments, Mr. Mitchell said he, too, would like to see an increase, but only "within the realm of sound administration."

He disclosed that the Advisory Committee would consider the possibility of reducing the present period of nine days which an unemployed person must wait before collecting benefits.

Minor Bills Advanced

The Bill which extends unemployment payments to lumber workers and merchant seamen and makes a number of other changes received second reading and will be given final approval later. Several minor government measures also were advanced.

During the opening stages, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said no move to declare vacant the Montreal-Cartier seat of Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member convicted of conspiring for Russia, would be made until after Mr. Rose's appeal from conviction had been heard.

In the Senate, Senator A. J. Leger, (P.C-New Brunswick) urged that at least the four present provinces which constituted the original Canadian confederation be consulted on the government's proposal to revamp the method of determining Commons representation. The Upper House also approved several minor bills.

Speakers in the Unemployment debate included Lt.-Col. Cecil Merritt, V.C. (P.C.-Vancouver-Burrard), David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina), Garfield Case, (PC-Grey North), Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East), W. F. Kuhl (SC-Jasper-Edson), Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), and Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel).

Need For Quick Action

No action was taken on the Opposition requests that the Bill be referred to the Labor Relations Committee, where outside representations could be heard, although Mr. Mitchell said he had no objection to this procedure. He did, however, stress the need for quick action on the bill in view of the lateness of the session.

At one stage in the debate, Mr. Mitchell said he was looking forward to the day when every gainfully-employed person in Canada would be brought under the act. The provisions of the legislation were gradually being extended.

Col. Merritt, Mr. Croll, Mr. Case and Mr. MacInnis called for an increase in the payments while Mr. Blackmore urged that the government relieve employees and employers of the necessity of making contributions on the grounds that they reduced the purchasing power of the people and increased production costs.

The suggestion that the bill be referred to a committee came from Mr. MacInnis, Mr. Knowles and Mr. Graydon.

Mr. Kuhl said he was against unemployment benefits because they came out of the pocket of the consumer in the long run, and called for a greater all-round national income rather than any attempt to distribute the current national income.

OFFERS EYE FOR SALE

Alfred I. Wilson, a jobless former soldier of Seattle, Wash., wants to sell one of his eyes to finance himself in business. "Someone ought to be willing to buy an eye," the 24-year-old veteran told newspapermen. "I'm not crazy. It's the only way out." Wilson's driving licence was suspended after a traffic accident and since it is the only thing he knows how to do he decided the one way out of his predicament is to get money to start a small delivery business of his own.

Marion Saver Chosen Beauty Queen at Hamilton

Hamilton, July 5. (CP)—Marion Saver, 21-year-old curvacious dark-haired lovely from Toronto, was chosen beauty queen of the Hamilton Centennial celebrations in the beauty contest last night. Miss Saver had been "Miss Toronto" in 1943.

Second choice was Muriel Hunter of Hamilton; third was Patricia Hall of Collingwood, Ont., and fourth was Jeanine Quesnel of Montreal. The winner took the title and rights to a trip to Hollywood, a screen test, $2,000 worth of merchandise and a trip to Washington and Ottawa to invite President Truman and Prime Minister Mackenzie King to the International Air Show at Toronto next September.

President Truman and Prime Minister Mackenzie King probably know about the air show already, but Marion is going to present the invitation anyway. It's a trip that doesn't come to every girl.

The Centennial beauty champion is five feet six inches tall, weighs around 130 pounds and has light brown hair and blue eyes. She's a salesgirl at a Toronto department store, likes swimming and dancing, lives with her father, Stuart Saver, an insurance man.

The contest was enlivened with a squawk from one of the contestants, Phyllis Webb of Toronto, who charged that at least 12 of the 62 entrants were wearing "falsies".

Miss Webb was referring to the profiles of some of the contestants—from the shoulders down to the waist. "There are at least a dozen girls in this contest who are padded," said Miss Webb, who was a runner-up in the Miss Toronto contest last year. "I don't mind losing to girls who have it, but after all falsies are not beauty."

The judges, including Arthur William Brown, Hamilton native and celebrated New York illustrator, were inclined to take Miss Webb's complaint lightly.

Gananoque Leases Local Airport For Five Years

Gananoque, July 5 (CP) — Mayor A. G. Woodley announced yesterday the town of Gananoque had officially leased the Gananoque airport for a period of five years with option of renewal.

It is understood that this is the first town to make such negotiations with the Department of Transport. Arrangements have been made with J. E. Delaney, veteran local airman, for operation of the field. He has since purchased a half interest in the Noranda Aircraft Designs and gone into partnership with J. O. Noury, the designer, formerly of Noury Aircraft Limited.

The new company with manufacture the Noranda, two-place and three-place aircraft at the municipal airport as well as look after the maintenance repairs, overhauling and inspection of aircraft. They will also carry on the flying training originally opened by Mr. Delaney.

It was felt by town council that the local airport was a much-needed asset to the town and negotiations were started some time ago to acquire the property. It was felt that the geographical location of the Gananoque airport, midway between Montreal and Toronto, warranted such a move in order to take care of the ever-increasing air traffic in Canada and the United States.

Tourists Swarm Over Ontario Border Points

Toronto, July 5 (CP)—Thousands of American tourists, celebrating their first post-war Independence Day, swarmed over Ontario border points yesterday and descended on cities and resorts in numbers reported to exceed the peak of pre-war holidays.

Freed for the first time since 1941 from wartime restrictions on gasoline and travel into Canada, the tourists flocked over the Rainbow Bridge at Niagara Falls and the Peace Bridge at Fort Erie in a continuous flow. Officials said the traffic "was 90 per cent over this time last year and had been going all night." The visitors, mainly from Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, looked as though they intended to stay, it was said, many of them having trailers.

The invasion took its toll of scarce consumer articles with restaurants and clothing stores feeling the impact of thousands of United States dollars which tourists were anxious to spend. The Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity reported that border municipalities were "cleaned out" of soap chips though there had been no reports of buying up food stocks.

Beer Supplies Exhausted

Beer supplies were exhausted in Niagara Falls by tourists stocking up for the day's celebrations while clothing stores in London reported heavy purchasing.

Accommodations for tourists were quickly taken up at all available hotels and cabins, but as yet there were no reported shortages. Toronto officials reported that of the 700,000 American tourists expected to enter Ontario today 68 per cent of them would pass through Toronto and so far there was no difficulty in finding accommodation.

Every Owen Sound tourist camp is filled and there is a continual movement of tourists many of whom make a temporary stop here before going on to points in northern Ontario. Wasaga Beach has blossomed into a boom town with a beach population of 50,000 while at Midland a new record was set in the issuance of ration coupons to the tourists.

Rerouted from Port Hope

Toronto, July 5 — (CP) — Two pool trains from Montreal and Ottawa arrived in Toronto about five hours late Thursday following a minor derailment of a freight train on the C.P.R. lines near Cherrywood, Ont., about 20 miles east of Toronto, railway officials said. The passenger trains were detoured from Port Hope, Ont., to Toronto.

A set of wheels on one car of a freight train travelling from Toronto to Trenton, Ont., derailed at 6:15 a.m.

WEDDINGS

BANKIER—HOLGATE

A wedding took place on Saturday afternoon last at Ridley College Chapel, St. Catharines, Ont., when Catherine Farnum, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holgate, became the bride of Dr. James Douglas Bankier, of Belleville. The chapel was decorated with Summer flowers, and the guest pews marked with small bouquets of white roses. The officiating minister, Rev. Simon Edwards, was assisted by the Rev. R. C. Good, chaplain of Ridley College.

The bride was gowned in white embroidered Swiss organdie with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her veil of tulle fell to the floor and she carried a cascade bouquet of roses and sweetpeas. She entered the chapel with her uncle, Colonel T. F. Howlett, of Toronto, while her father played the Bridal Song from Goldmark's Rustic Wedding Symphony. The bride was attended by Mrs. Ernest Clifford and Miss Doris Longbottom, both of Toronto, as bridesmaids, and Miss Ann Ness of Port Dalhousie, maid of honor, wearing gowns of eyelet embroidery in the contrasting colors of apricot, blue and yellow and tiny flower hats in pastel shades. They carried bouquets of roses, sweetpeas and carnations.

The groomsman was Dr. Ronald P. Graham of McMaster University, and the ushers were Mr. Angus Campbell and Mr. Ernest Clifford, both of Toronto.

After the ceremony the wedding reception was held at Farnum Lodge where Mrs. Holgate received her guests in a gown of grey mesh adorned with a corsage of pink roses. For going away the bride wore a pale blue shantung suit with contrasting navy accessories. When they return Dr. and Mrs. Bankier will reside in Hamilton. —St. Catharines Standard.

Women's Activities

MELROSE W.I.

The June meeting of the Melrose W.I., was held at the home of Mrs. J. English, with an attendance of 20 members and four visitors.

The President, Mrs. G. McLaren, took charge of the business. A letter was read from the President of F.W.I.O. asking for co-operation with the new secretary and also appealing for clothing for the National Campaign. It was decided that expenses be paid for cars and delegates to D.A.

The Citizenship Convener, Mrs. Ed. Lazier then took charge of the meeting. Mrs. Arnold Masters read "A New Era in Housebuilding" stressing that a woman's health is more important than a large spic-and-span house. This was followed by a reading "A Saleslady's Dream" by Mrs. Jack McLaren. Mrs. Lazier then gave her topic, "The Influence of the Institute on the Community". A few of these influences were promoting peace in the Community; cleaning up cemeteries; helping Fall fairs and providing equipment for schools.

The delegates' reports of the District Annual were read by the delegates, Mrs. Tom Howard and Mrs. Clare Weese.

HUNTINGDON EAST W.I.

Moira.— The June meeting of Huntingdon East W. Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Wesley Farrell with a large number in attendance.

Mrs. Nelson Welsh, president, took charge of the meeting. Much business was discussed, including the current clothing drive and Achievement Day proceedings.

The topic "Child Care and Training" was very ably dealt with by Mrs. G. Thompson and proved very instructive to young mothers.

The reports of the Convention at Cooper as given by Mrs. P. Cooney and Mrs. Geo. Foster were very interesting.

A reading "The Spirit of the Home" by Mrs. Wesley Farrell was very much enjoyed.

Then a picture contest, identifying the youngest pictures of those present, brought forth a great many laughs and some guessing.

The meeting closed with the serving of refreshments.

Cool Comfort

Printed plaid housecoat

By VERA WINSTON

A PRETTY comfortable house coat is so nice to come home to. Well within this category is a housecoat of printed plaid crepe in red and navy in white. It has white rayon faille turn-back cuffs to finish off the short sleeves, and the same fabric is used for the perky side-tied sash. Pannier pockets on the skirt give interest to the slim silhouette, and there are soft gathers in the centre front on the skirt.

WPTB Question And Answer Column

Readers may direct their questions, giving their name and address and mentioning the name of this paper to Information Branch, WPTB, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa.

Q.—We are living in a rented house and we sublet three rooms. We get $7 per month for these rooms, and we pay the lights. Recently the power company raised their rates and installed another metre. This is costing us an extra $1.32 per month. Am I allowed to raise the rent for my tenants?

A.—In this particular case you would probably be permitted to increase the rent. However, before you may do so you must go to the Rentals Administration of the nearest Regional Office and complete an application for increased rental stating your reasons.

Q.—My husband owned a car while he was stationed in Canada with the Army. He sold it when he went overseas and now he wants to buy a new car. He has been refused a priority. How can be obtain one?

A.—We're afraid he is not eligible for one. From the information contained in your letter it is clear that he does not require his car for business purposes and until there is a greater supply of new automobiles available those who require a car for business must come first.

Q.—When will the remainder of our Canning Sugar Coupons become valid? I would like to use all mine to preserve strawberries and the grocer refuses to take the coupons.

A.—The second half of the canning sugar coupons become due on July 4. Your grocer was quite correct when he refused to take coupons which had not become valid. It is very difficult to arrange for the coupons to fall due at a time which will satisfy everyone. There is more fresh fruit available later in the summer than at the present time and for that reason the coupons for early fruits were valid in May and for the later fruits in July.

From—Milton MacPhail, Information Branch, WPTB, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa.

Pollard Charges Over Bikini Bomb Called 'Cheap'

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Writer)

Aboard U. S. S. Appalachian, Bikini, July 5 — (AP) — Dr. Ralph A. Sawyer, Crossroads technical chief, Thursday called 'irresponsible' and 'cheap' charges by Dr. Ernest Pollard of Oregon that the United States Navy had exploded the Bikini atom bomb in such a manner as to exploit its radiation rather than its concussion.

Dr. Pollard, University of Oregon nuclear physicist, was quoted as saying, "That's an idiotic way to sink a battleship."

Dr. Shields Warren of Boston, one of the radiological experts, denied that the explosion altitude was chosen for radiological reasons. He said emphatically that the height was chosen to give best detonation effects.

(There was no confirmation of an earlier NBC radio report that through error the bomb detonated ahead of schedule, 1½ miles higher than planned.)

Red Star Attacks Bikini Bomb Test

Moscow, July 4 (AP)— The Soviet army organ Red Star said today that the Bikini atom bomb test was regarded by the world's democratic press as "an aggressive gesture against all the peoples of the world."

The paper said the United States had put herself in a hypocritical position by conducting "military manoeuvres with the atomic bomb" while talking about using atomic energy for peaceful purposes only.

In 1891 Sir John A. MACDONALD said:
"Foster and Develop the Dominion"

More than a century ago, from Scotland came the boy destined to be the first Prime Minister of Canada. Lawyer at twenty-one ... at twenty-nine a maker of laws ... the full maturity of his genius created a nation—Canada. Statesman and leader ... inspired in the cause of unity ... chief architect of Confederation—here was a man of vision, a clear headed Canadian.

In 1622 CALVERT said:
"The Force of their Imagination Led Them"

• Man of vision in the 17th century ... founder of historic colonies in Newfoundland and Maryland ... Calvert said to his settlers three centuries ago. "Preserve Unity."

"I see the future ... it is a good country," wrote Calvert in the early 1600's. Well may it be that thus he prophesied Canada's bountiful nationhood.

Famous English statesman and early pioneer, Secretary of State to King James I, Calvert's ideals of unity have been shared by all men of vision through the centuries since Calvert's time. Today ... every Canadian can be a man of vision. Let each by his own efforts "foster and develop the Dominion."

Upon unity of purpose depends the full measure of our stature as a nation! There is only one Canada for clear-headed Canadians.

The major leagues made into the second half of the first postwar baseball campaign today virtually assured of establishing a season attendance record before the end of this month. They have hopes of reaching the 20,000,000 mark before the season comes to a close Sept. 29.

A total of 239,456 fans paid to see yesterday's July 4 bargain bills to boost the total attendance for the National and American Leagues to 8,909,352 only about 2,000,000 short of last year's record figure, should New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals, respective runners-up in the American and National Leagues, spurt to narrow the gaps between themselves and the pace-setting Boston Red Sox and Brooklyn Dodgers, the 20,000,000 attendance aim may be realized.

Leaders Split Twin Bills

With a chance to gain a full game each, yesterday, the challengers played follow-the-leader and split their twin bills, as did the Red Sox and Dodgers. As a result, the Red Sox' 6½-game lead and the Dodgers' bulge of 7 games remained intact.

Dave (Boo) Ferris went down to his fourth defeat of the season as the lowly Philadelphia Athletics, with Penetanguishene Phil Marchildon doing the chucking, shaded the Red Sox 3-2, in the opener. With Ted Williams slamming his second homer of the day and his 22nd of the season, the Sox had to stave off a desperate Mackmen rally to win the nightcap 9-8.

Both Games Shutouts

After Emil (Dutch) Leonard had blanked the Yankees in the first game for Washington 2-0, the Bronx Bombers with Lefty Joe Page pitching his first complete game in more than a month, came back in the nightcap to return the shutout 5-0.

A three-run ninth inning attack enabled the Dodgers to whip New York Giants 8-5, before 48,200 paid admissions and earn an even split as the Giants had won the opener 7-5. A two-run homer by Johnny Mize, his 200th of his big league career, helped the Giants and pitcher Dave Koslo in the first game.

The Cardinals fell into third place for several hours when they dropped the first game to Chicago Cubs 4-2, but reclaimed runner-up berth by capturing the nightcap 6-1.

Clouts Three Homers

A ninth inning double play by Cleveland Indians with the would-be tying run crossing the plate prevented Detroit Tigers from sweeping a pair from the Tribe before a crowd of 51,303. Outfielder Roy Cullenbine clouted three home runs, one in the first game which Detroit won 8-4, and two in the second, won by the Indians 9-8.

St. Louis Browns moved to within half a game of fifth place by downing Chicago White Sox twice 4-1 and 3-2.

Philadelphia Phillies advanced to within half a game of fifth place Boston in the National by whipping the Braves twice, 7-0 and 3-2. Oscar Judd of Ingersoll, Ont., pitched the shutout spacing nine hits.

After losing the first game to Pittsburgh, 6-1, Cincinnati Reds executed a squeeze bunt to bring home the run that gave them a 4-3 decision in 11 innings of the nightcap.

TORONTO LEAFS DRAWING CLOSER TO 1ST DIVISION

Defeat Rochester Red Wings Twice With Besse and Mistos on Mound

(By The Associated Press)

The light-hitting Toronto Maple Leafs are making serious overtures towards entering the International League's first division due to the continued excellent performances of their mound crew.

The Leafs drew within percentage points of their goal last night as they downed Rochester Red Wings 2-0 and 6-2, in one of the circuit's four July 4 doubleheaders that attracted 36,238 fans.

Herman Besse blanked the Red Wings on two safeties in the opener and lost his bid for a no-hitter in the seventh inning on a scratch hit and a blooper to right field. Charley Mistos yielded 8 safeties in the nightcap but shut out the Wings after the opening frame.

The front-running Montreal Royals divided a pair of tilts with Buffalo losing the first game 1-7 and winning 10-4. Ed Mierkowicz paced the Bisons to victory by driving in four runs on a homer and single. Curt Davis, veteran right-hander, set the Bisons down on nine hits in the finale as his mates rapped a trio of Buffalo tossers for 12 blows.

Syracuse's runner-up Chiefs failed to gain on the Royals as they halved a twin-bill with Baltimore Orioles, winning the first contest 6-3, and dropping the second 3-2.

Jersey City and Newark also divided their bargain bill, with the Giants taking the initial contest and the Bears the finale by the same score.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Interest of baseball fans is centred on the revival of the famous annual diamond classic, the All-Star game which is scheduled for Fenway Park, Boston, on Tuesday next.

The boys in the know, at least the majority of them who are not dyed-in-the-wool National League fans seem to be of the opinion that the American Leaguers will take the Nats like Grant took Richmond. The latter, they claim are a gang of Ozark Ikes with the bludgeon and Frank Merriwells on the mound.

Against such hurlers as Bobby Feller, Boo Ferriss, Hal Newhouser, Mickey Harris and Spud Chandler, they say, the National League war-clubs will be as powerless as a Bay Bridge Sunday night motorist trying to crash the four-abreast bobby-sox bike riders. And what have the Nats to offer. Merely such hurlers as Ole Claude Passeau, Kirby (Kelbe) Higbe, Howie Pollet, Mort Cooper, Johnny Schmitz and Rip Sewell, none of whom is in the two-figure win column and some ready for the boneyard.

Outside of the firing corps the American League group is distinguished by the unprecedented coralling of eight members of the red hot Red Sox. That almost rates as an infringement of the Yankee copyright because the Bronx Bombers always dominated American League selections in the past. There even was one year when Joe McCarthy could have fielded virtually an entire team of Yankees. Out of sheer perverseness, however, Marse Joe stubbornly used none of them and won the game anyway, 5 to 3.

Remember that situation before the 1940 tilt in St. Louis. The Harridge loop had Bob Feller, Red Ruffing, Bobo Newsom, Tom Bridges and Dutch Leonard to throw at the National League hitters. Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Charlie Keller, Bill Dickey, Ken Keltner, Luke Appling, Jimmie Foxx, Joe Gordon, Lou Boudreau, Bob Johnson and Doc Cramer stood out in an offensive array that was supposed to threaten the very lives of the National League pitching corps.

They Learned the St. Louis Blues Into Sportsman's Park charged this star-studded socking collection and began to blast baseballs into all the locales, from foul line to foul line into the stands and over the roof and bleachers—in practice.

"This is going to be murder," chuckled American leaguers. And they turned out correct. Only it was a far different type of mayhem from the variety they had envisioned. The American League favorites wangled a measley three hits off Paul Derringer, Bucky Walters, Whit Wyatt, Larry French and Carl Hubbell.

Not only that — the blasting crew which had done so nobly in its preliminary gestures suffered the only shutout recorded in an All-Star game. So much for establishing favorites in this inter-league carnival of drama, and festival of indecision.

With the Fenway revival on July 9, the game returns to its original character, as a benefit for the National Association of Professional Baseball Players. This association takes care of the sick and indigent old-timers of the game, and now is in need of financial reinforcement.

The Boston contest will send the attendance for the All-Star series over the 500,000 mark. The 12-game total stands at 476,549, and receipts at more than $500,000.

FIGHT MANAGERS SIDESTEP MATCH

Vancouver, July 5 (CP)—Duke McLeod, representative of the Diamond Jubilee Sports Committee, said last night that Vinnie Cerola and Tommy Conti, New York managers of fighters Joey Dolan, have refused to allow their fighters to meet Jackie Wilson, former world featherweight champion here July 11.

McLeod said that Dolan's managers, in a telephone conversation from New York, sidestepped the match because they said Wilson might defeat Dolan and ruin possibilities for him in New York.

McLeod added that Cerola offered to send Jackie Callura from Hamilton, Ont., to meet their man, and that it was turned down.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 5 — (AP) — Here it is just past the traditional midway point of the baseball season and football will be on the scene in 10 days . . . Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Rockets of the All-American Conference are scheduled to begin training July 15 at Bend, Ore., and Santa Rosa, Calif., respectively, and they'll meet in the first exhibition game at Portland Aug. 15. The regular league season won't start until Sept. 6 . . . The older and more conservative National League won't start training until August and will swing into real action with the Chicago All-Star game Aug. 23 . . . From the way sports figures have been telling it to the judge lately you'd think the baseballers might sue the footballers for infringement on their season, but publicity man Joe Pitritz has the answer to that. "Their season is all over now," he maintains. "It's the Red Sox and the Dodgers."

Oh, yeah?

When final examinations caught up with three Villanova football prospects recently, coach Jordan Olivar, who had been an honor student in his undergraduate days, said:

"If they're not smart enough to pass college courses, they're not smart enough to play college football."

"TOURIST CAMP"

Based upon a picture painted for Carling's by Fred Finley, O.S.A.

This is one of a series of illustrations on the subject of the Conservation of Canada's natural assets designed to emphasize the fact that the beauties of unspoiled nature that we enjoy today are a precious birthright which we must protect for tomorrow.

† COPYRIGHT BY CARLING'S, 1946

Where Good Neighbours Meet

Texas, Idaho, California, Maine . . : think of any State you wish and you're sure to see its name on the license plate of a car somewhere in Canada during the summer. Each year, with the unerring directness of migratory waterfowl, millions of American tourists come north to Canada. They come because Canada offers them Nature—unspoiled and unblemished. They come to revel in those joys of the outdoors which we Canadians are prone to take too much for granted.

In their travels and during their stay here the money they spend forms the basis of a $150,000,000 industry, bringing an added measure of prosperity to all of us.

Like any asset, the tourist industry must be protected. This we can do most surely and easily by protecting and conserving the heritage of natural beauty and wildlife for our own enjoyment as well as theirs.

Every Canadian, as a shareholder in Canada's natural wealth, has a vital interest in the conservation of this heritage.

Conservation is not just a doctrine to be preached to hunters and fishermen. It is a vital part in the continuance of our national economy, and must, of necessity, fail if its measures do not receive the full support of all Canadian citizens.

Lesson No. 1028.
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Against experienced players, a pair without discard signals can be taken for a ride. Take a combination like the hearts you see here:

♥7 6 5
WEST ♥K Q 10 8
EAST ♥9 4 2
SOUTH
♥A J 3

South is declarer at a contract of three no-trump. The opening lead from west is the heart king. South has the ace and jack. West must have the queen and ten to make such a lead.

Instead of taking that first trick south would play the trey. His scheme would be to make west think that east held the heart ace. In such a case, west may lead another heart.

No matter which second heart west may lead, south will be able to take two tricks. The ten lead gives south the jack and ace. The queen lead gives south the ace and jack.

Such a ruse is known as the Bath coup. Good declarers are on the lookout for a chance to pull it. Good defenders are always on the alert to keep from being caught in such a trap.

If west does not lead a second heart, south is unable to take more than one heart trick. Because if east or dummy leads hearts, the south jack of hearts is trapped by the west queen.

AT THE BELLE — Last times today — George Tyne makes his film debut in an important role in "A Walk in the Sun," which will be shown for the last times at the Belle Theatre today. The exclusive pictures of the Louis-Conn championship fight will also be shown for the last times today.

What will keep west from leading a second heart? Only a correct discard from east on the first lead. By following the signals for discards west and east can keep from being fooled.

To that first trick, east plays the heart deuce. A discard of the smallest card tells partner not to lead that suit again. It is a discouraging discard signal.

East could have but one reason for telling west not to continue that suit. It is because he does not have the ace or jack.

So, if west ignores that signal, he sure looks silly. And no cracks about him looking like me.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 5 (AP)—Ronald Colman addicts will be pleased know that he is again working after a two-year absence and assures us he won't be gone for any such length of time in the future.

I found the actor on the set of "The Late George Apley" and it was refreshing to talk to him.

The reason for this return? "George Apley is a role suited for me."

The reason for his hope to do more pictures? "With directors like Capra, Wyler and Ford and top writers back from the war, I believe better pictures will be made."

Colman, who is fuller-faced and looking more like 35 than 55, said pictures in the past few years had been aimed at certain groups, particularly the bobby-soxers.

"Hollywood can easily make 'quality' films like 'Henry V'," he said, "but it can also make them with mass appeal."

Apparently the town's producers have this in mind, too; reports indicate they are boning up on Shakespeare.

Sonny Tufts is about to shock his fans. The smiling, happy-go-lucky actor is trying his hand at playing a heel, and he's enjoying it.

"I've always played a good, clean kid on the screen," he said. "Now I'm afraid my fans—mostly bobby-soxers and old ladies—will leave me."

The cause of the off-beat casting is Mark Hellinger, who borrowed Sonny from Paramount for "Swell Guy."

In the film palaces.. "Till The End of Time" has such an important message that it is a crying shame to have it told in such an inept manner. It concerns war veterans adjustment to civilian life and contains some good moments. But the film's ex-marines are strictly the Hollywood variety and fighting men will probably resent the caricature. Robert Mitchum, Dorothy McGuire and Bill Williams fight a losing battle against the script.

Little Benny's Note Book

We had liver and onions in pop's honor, and pop passed his plate for a 3rd helping, saying, By gollies, this dish is more than nourrishing, it's inspiring.

Then maybe it will inspire you to help me win the 5000 dollar prize for the best answer to the question. Why do you like Fadeaway Soap Flakes, ma said. According to the radio announcements, originality is to be the deciding facter. I mean you can even send your answer written in pencil on both sides of the paper, as long as it shows originality. Probably every 9 women out of a hundred will say they like Fadeaway Soap Flakes because they make clothes cleener in less time, because what higher praise can you give a laundry soap? So I'll have to stay away from that thought as far as possible if I hope to be considered original, and yet it's seemingly impossible to think of anything else about soap flakes, she said.

Why not go to the other extreme and say you like them because they require so much rubbing that they give you a healthful pink glow all over and develop your shoulder mussels? pop said, said, and ma said, That would be a left handed compliment, I must say. I might write something in praise of their reliability, she said.

That's it, say you've never [illegible] than any other soap flakes cant do, and you've never been disappointed, pop said, and I said, Hay ma, why dont you say the less you use them the longer they last?

You're as silly as your father, but that gives me an idea. I'll say my Fadeaway Soap Flakes go ferther, because all the naybors want to borrow them, so they go all over the nayborhood. What do you think, William? she said.

Pop claiming he'd rather not think.

BANDED HAWKS

St. Thomas, July 5 (CP)— The mystery of banded hawks reported on local farms was solved yesterday when Marshall Field, local ornithologist explained that two birds were shipped to him from the Biological Survey in Washington to be released on trial flights. One of the birds was shot on a nearby farm, the other became so attached to the girls at Alma College here that it refused to leave the district.

By The Canadian Press

Walter M. Jefford's four-year-old Pavot became one of the top 12 money winners of the turf yesterday in capturing the $50,000 Massachusets Handicap before 35,569 fans at Suffolk Downs. His share of the purse was $47,750 which raised his career earnings to $324,115. The favored filly, Gallorette, finished third 2 1-2 lengths back of Dinner Party.

In one of his previous starts on the same track, the Jefford star had copped the $25,000 Mayflower Stakes as an unbeaten two-year-old.

Henry Cotton, former British champion, went to the fore yesterday in the British open at St. Andrews by finishing the second round with 140 one stroke better than Sam Snead of the United States. Dai Rees of Wales was third with 142.

With the two remaining Britons eliminated in yesterday's heats, two Philadelphians, John Kelly, Jr., and A. A. Gallagher, were left for one semi-final today in the Diamond Sculls. In the other half, J. Sepharides of France meets M. F. J. Guerici, Argentina.

Witch Sir, owned by Louis Schlosser, Chicago baker, scored an upset in yesterday's $50,000 Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington Park by defeating Richmond Jac and Old Kentuck. Witch Sir equalled the track record of 1:49.4 and paid $34.40 to win.

Pauline Betz and Louise Brough, both of California, meet at Wimbledon for the all-England women's singles tennis title both having defeated fellow countrywomen in yesterday's semi-finals. The men's doubles final will be fought out by Geoff Brown and Dinny Pails of Australia and Tom Brown and Jack Kramer of the United States.

The Cleveland Indians yesterday announced the purchase of the sixth player, catcher Tom Jordan from Chicago White Sox for the $7,500 waiver price, since the team was acquired 12 days ago by Bill Veeck and associates.

The big surprise of the $25,000 invitation trot of Roosevelt Raceway, Westburg, N.Y., was the withdrawal of Titan Hanover from the second heat after finishing seventh in the first dash The winner was Doctor Spencer which was victorious in the first heat but landed sixth in the next start.

Catcher Henry (Hank) Camelli off Pittsburgh Pirates decided yesterday to report to Toronto Leafs of the International League, to whom he had been released, after refusing to accept the assignment earlier in the week.

Toronto, July 5 — (CP)—You might wonder some at Joe Berry, the oldster who couldn't win an International Baseball League start for Toronto Maple Leafs and then was sold to Cleveland Indians and pitched a big league victory against St. Louis Browns the very day he started in the American League.

It may be just one of those things but Berry knew what he was about because he singled to drive home the winning run in his own ball game. The incident brought from Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman the story of Berry's precipitate departure from the Leafs.

He was at Maple Leaf Stadium warming up when the front office hollered: "You've been sold to Cleveland Indians — report to them this afternoon."

By plane Berry did just that. By the sixth inning at Cleveland that same day manager Lou Boudreau sent Berry in to toss 'em to the Browns. And by the last of the ninth Berry's record read:—"One start, one won, no losses."

BAY OF QUINTE GOLF CLUB WINS QUINTE TROPHY

Four Clubs Represented in Turney With Winners Defeating Trenton in Finals

The Quinte Cup tournament, one of the oldest golf tournaments in this section of the country was played on Wednesday at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club with the home team defeating Trenton in the final round to take the championship.

The Quinte Cup play was instituted in 1924 but was discontinued in 1941 for the duration of the war. Clubs represented on Wednesday included Picton, Trenton, Belleville Golf Club and the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

In the morning's play, the Bay of Quinte Club eliminated the defending title-holders, the Belleville Golf Club, 6½-3½. In the other match, Trenton eliminated Picton 7-2.

In the final round, the Bay of Quinte Club had little difficulty disposing of Trenton, 7-2.

In a "consolation" series, Picton defeated the Belleville Golf Club 5-4.

"Tommy" Carruthers of the Bay of Quinte Club turned in the best medal play scores with a 74 and a 75.

"Joe" Legault of the Belleville Golf Club was re-elected president of the Quinte Cup Association and "Ossie" Waldorf was elected secretary.

It was announced that the 1947 Quinte Cup tournament would be played at the Belleville Golf Club on the third Wednesday of June.

Lunch and dinner were served by the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

LOCAL BOXERS SCORE TWO WINS AT OSHAWA SHOW

The local boxers fared very well in Oshawa Thursday night, coming away with two wins via the "KO" route, a draw and one loss in four bouts with the Motor City battlers.

In the semi-final, a five-rounder, "Jerry" Downes of Belleville, fought to a draw with "Baldy" Hardsands of Oshawa. Hardsands had defeated the local boy on two previous bouts last month in the local ring.

Belleville's "Joe" Wilson chilled Grant MacIntyre of Oshawa at 1:50 of the first round of a scheduled three round "go". Wilson went right to work from the opening bell and lost no time in dropping the Oshawa lad.

Murray McPherson of Oshawa proved no match for Belleville's Ross Soules in another three-rounder and the local boy was awarded a TKO in the first round.

Harry Goulding spoiled the evening for the local fistic contingent when he was awarded a very close three-round decision over Belleville's Ron Mansfield.

Promoter George Polmanter announced this morning that the next local card would be presented next Wednesday, July 10th. at Hume Arena. The main "go", a five-rounder, will bring together George Polmanter and Bill Goulding of Oshawa. Goulding pulled quite a surprise on the Hamilton Centennial show last Monday when he dropped Hamilton's "Nick" Poppa in the second round.

The semi-final will feature "Soup" Whitney of Trenton and "Baldy" Hardsands of Oshawa over the four round route.

HEARTBREAK

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 16

"That's the way it shall be then," he assured her.

Donna was grateful. Seeing Boris helped avoid the wave of depression which threatened to engulf her every evening at five o'clock. Strangely enough now on Mondays and Thursdays she felt happier. These were the only nights she could be sure of what he was doing. If only she hadn't asked him about them. She should have known it would be a Boys' Club or Veterans' meeting or some impersonal project which was keeping him from her. But it was too late for regrets.

Not once did she hear from him or see him even at the Civic Center activities he usually attended. One bleak Sunday she deliberately asked Boris to drive past Carl's house but the bright blue door was closed. There was no sign of life. No smoke pouring from the chimney. Donna's heart continued to ache but she had little time to think about it. Her work, dates with Boris and the informal dinners Helen gave to which various attractive men were invited filled her hours. Until one day in early December her father's prophecy came true. Donna found herself shaking hands with the first man who had really interested her since she had stormed out of Carl Newton's house.

Robert Monroe was a friend of Donna's father. Although in his early thirties, his blond hair was streaked with silver, which made him look older than he was. His bright blue eyes and patrician features, his shapely hands with fastidiously manicured nails were the outward signs of a man of taste and impeccable background. His clothes expensive in material and tailoring, were worn with careless grace.

Although he was faultlessly groomed, his manners were informal and completely masculine. Owner of an exclusive art shop he had travelled all over the world. He was cosmopolitan, discriminating, charming. These things Helen had told her before inviting him to dinner. But even Helen had not foreseen the immediate interest her step-daughter would rouse in the man who worshipped beauty.

Donna herself was conscious of it the moment he took her hand.

"She walks like a dancer," Robert Monroe said to her father as the tall, tawny haired girl moved to the other side of the room.

"Her mother was in the Russian ballet at one time," John Meade replied.

"She is lovely. Exotic as a rare precious stone but proud too. God, what pride!" Robert continued as if speaking to himself. His blue eyes gleamed with an appreciation which at the time seemed only the tribute of a connoisseur.

"He's different from any other man I've met in San Francisco," Donna thought. She could feel his eyes following her wherever she was. During cocktails, at the dinner table where she was seated across from him. Back in the living room he chose a chair beside her.

"Your father tells me you have not been in this country long."

"Only a few months," she said. "I was born here but I have not been back since I was three years old."

"Where have you been living then?" he inquired but she felt he scarcely listened to her reply. His eyes rested on her hair, moved across her face to the faintly golden skin of her arms and hands and on to the long sweet line from waist to knee. Yet, there was nothing insulting about that scrutiny. It was only a tribute to her loveliness and, womanlike, Donna gloried in it. The vanity Carl Newton had wounded began to flutter with new confidence. 'This man finds me attractive even if the other one spurned me,' is a formula which seldom fails to result in another romance.

But although all her feminine instincts were intensely aware of him, Donna answered his questions casually. Saying she preferred Buenos Aires to any other city but they had spent most of their time in Rio. Yes, they had spent a summer in Europe. No she had not been to Spain. Iran was one of the places she would like to see. And India. She would love to go to India.

"I should like to take you there," he declared. "I should like to be with you when you see the Taj Mahal for the first time. You are very sensitive to beauty, aren't you?"

"Only to certain forms of it," she confessed. Her heart contracted as she recalled the shrine in Carl Newton's garden. "There are colors for instance which give me a feeling of ecstasy. Yet many things other people rave about leave me cold."

"Perhaps that proves you are more discriminating than most people. I have some unusual things in my home I should like to show you. I have a rare collection of porcelain birds you might find interesting."

He was planning to see her again and with a feeling of inevitability Donna agreed. Robert Monroe lost no time. Before he left the house he had invited Donna and her parents to Sunday night supper.

"Mine is strictly a bachelor establishment," he warned them. "But I have been fortunate enough to keep a couple of servants."

Later Donna's father explained that his friend had been rejected by the Armed Forces because of an injury he had sustained when a boy. He had been in an automobile accident which resulted in his remaining in a cast for over a year.

"He says he still limps," Mr. Meade added. "But it certainly isn't noticeable."

"You like him, Father?"

"I do. In spite of being a dealer in objets d'art he is a man's man. Likes to hunt and fish. Is an excellent golfer and plays a wicked game of bridge. His interest in art collections began the year he was required to stay in bed. His mother was a widow and it was her idea."

Donna suspected that he sensed her question was not an idle one. Helen emptying ash trays and rearranging furniture added her bit. "Bob adored his mother. She died three years ago. She was a beautiful woman. He was devoted to her."

She might as well have said that good sons make good husbands, Donna thought, amused. It was fairly obvious to all three that a new romance was in the making but not one of them guessed how rapidly it would develop. Robert Monroe proposed to Donna the third time he saw her.

The dinner at Robert Monroe's home was followed by an invitation to a symphony concert. On the way home he said, "I have something to ask you which may seem sudden, but I assure you I am not an impulsive person. Will you marry me, Donna?"

She was taken by surprise. Eventually, perhaps, she had expected it after a prolonged courtship during which she would have time to make up her own mind.

"You scarcely know me," she reminded him.

"I've known you all my life. For years I've waited to meet you. I recognized you the instant we were introduced. Knowing your father as I do, it isn't even a gamble—my asking his daughter to be my wife.

"But there's a great deal of my mother in me, too. And no one ever understood Vanya."

"I am grateful to her for your exotic loveliness," the man said gravely. "If there are less desirable qualities you have inherited I'm still willing to take a chance. But what about you, Donna? How do you feel about me?"

They had reached her home and Donna did not speak until they were inside the house. There in the comfortable living room with the light reflecting on the polished andirons, the copper pitcher filled with roses, the battered canteen which had belonged to Helen's grandfather, Donna felt compelled to tell the truth.

"I am not in love with you," she said.

"My dear, I realize that. Love is something that cannot be forced but I believe it would bloom of its own accord in a marriage like ours. I am planning to go to Spain after the first of the year. I want you to go with me. It will be a business trip primarily but we can turn it into a honeymoon. And we can extend it to include other places. Wouldn't you like that?"

For a moment Donna thought she might. She had been so restless lately that even her work bored her. The urge to travel, to pack her bags and sail into the unknown brought back a nostalgic memory of the old days with Vanya. One part of her wanted to settle down permanently but no matter how kind they were she was always the extra person with Helen and her father.

If she married Robert she would have a home waiting for her return. But first there would be the old thrill of securing visas and passports, suitable clothes to be packed in smart new luggage, soft imported tweeds with furs and gloves and shoes. And lingerie. Cobweb fragile, devastating concoctions of transparent material over satin with rows of hand made lace....

Her dream filled eyes returned to the ardent aristocratic face of Robert Monroe with a shock. She had almost forgotten about him. No. It wouldn't work. She couldn't marry anyone but Carl.

"I'm in love with someone else," she cried, determined to put an end to it.

"Then why have you been considering marrying me as you have been for the past ten minutes?"

"I don't know," she admitted.

"Let's be frank with each other, Donna. Isn't it because my offer tempts you in spite of this other chap? Even if you consider yourself in love with him, you are not engaged?"

"He doesn't want to marry anyone," she confessed. "I'm not even seeing him any more. It's all over. I only mentioned it because I think you should know how I feel."

"Thank you for being so honest. Does it make any difference if I tell you that I do not regard this as an obstacle? As my wife, you would soon forget him. I shall never force myself upon you. Darling, trust me. Let me try to make you happy."

It sounded plausible, she agreed. How soon would she have to let him know? His reply was ready. He had foreseen every question. Any time before Christmas. Then they could be married in January and plan to leave about a month later.

"I should know by then," she said.

"In the meantime you will continue to see me? I've planned a party on my yacht next Sunday. With Helen and your father, of course.

Donna nodded. The weeks which followed were like a gay adventure in another world. Each day on the calendar brought new proof of Robert's devotion. Flowers in expensive gold-lettered boxes, telephone calls, dinners, dancing. Long afternoons on his yacht moored in the harbor with the wind and rain beating upon the deck and inside warmth and music and companionship. His tender consideration was gratifying. His occasional kisses were gentle. He introduced her to his friends as if she were the most precious object of his prized collection. On Christmas Eve Donna promised to marry him. The wedding date was set for three weeks later.

Donna was shocked at Boris' reaction to her approaching marriage.

"So you think you can buy happiness. Well, you're wrong. You'd be far better off working here with me. What's the rush anyway?"

She would not pretend to him. Boris was her friend and he knew she did not love Robert Monroe.

"I've been so restless, Boris. Even my work has suffered you must have noticed it."

"But that will pass, Donna. Work is the only cure for heartache. Not a loveless marriage."

"Robert says it doesn't matter," Donna protested.

"That's because he doesn't love you either. He merely wants to add you to the other beautiful things he possesses."

"You're not being fair, Boris."

"Maybe not but I am in love with you," he reminded her.

"I'm going to miss you, darling But at least I'll not stop working until the Saturday before the wedding."

Producers Want Factories Named As Shipping Points

The Ontario Cheese Producers' Association will make official representation to Ottawa to have the cheese factory designated as the factory shipping point insofar as payments for cheese shipped are concerned.

This was learned at the regular meeting of the Belleville Cheese Board on Thursday evening when copies of letters from the Association to Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture were read to the meeting. The letter stated that delegates from cheese boards at Belleville, Napanee, Kingston, Campbellford and Madoc would visit Ottawa with the president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association asking that the factory be made the official shipping point.

Dissatisfaction of factory salesmen in having the producers pay cheese warehousing charges and transport charges from the factory as under the present system has led to the protest by producers. W. H. Montgomery was named as delegate from the Belleville cheese board with Hobart Adams being appointed as alternative.

Approximately 5,000 cheese were offered on the board. The board will meet again in four weeks time. The factories represented:

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 5 — (CP) — The mining groups were higher by a half-point in the index on the Toronto Exchange at noon today. Industrials were lower and the western oils unchanged. Volume was a little heavier than in recent sessions at 640,000 shares for the first three hours.

Higher prices ruled in the gold group for Hollinger, Central Patricia, Malartic Gold Fields, Beaulieu, Osisko, Aubelle, Bear, Elder, Powell-Rouyn, Lynx, New Calumet and others. In the base metals Sherritt was a leader in the advance, gaining 14 cents.

Prices were a bit heavy in the industrial section for the utilities, senior oils and building stocks. Western oils were dull and firm.

ONTARIO FRUIT CROPS TO EXCEED HARVEST IN 1945

Conditions Favorable for All Fruits Except Strawberries

Toronto, July 5 — (CP) — Excessive rain, hail and wind in Essex-Kent-Lambton counties during June has resulted in serious loss to the onion crop, amounting to as high as 35 per cent of the onion acreage of south-western Ontario, the seasonal fruit and veegtable report of the Provincial Department of Agriculture indicated today.

Cool weather and over-frequent rains have damaged tomato, spinach, corn and bean crops in the same area and retarded development in eastern Ontario. The report said possibly up to 25 per cent of the tomatoes for processing were lost through floods and much sweet corn for canning will have to be replanted. The areas most severely affected were Erieau, Jeanette's Creek and Beleigh Falls, all in Kent county.

Conditions were generally favorable throughout the province for development of all fruits, except strawberries. In Essex county wet weather interfered with harvesting the berries and in Georgian Bay area a 30-per-cent decrease over last year was due to cool nights and root rot.

All types of fruit crops in Ontario appeared on the increase over last year's light harvest. Western Ontario apples registered a 220-per-cent increase over 1945 and plums a 275-per-cent rise. However the yields, in all except peaches, strawberries and grapes, will be below the 1940-44 average for the province.

Timely and thorough spraying has kept down spread of insects in most areas, though bud moths and rose chefers have been reported in some apple orchards and root rot has attacked Georgian Bay strawberries.

Youth of 21 Held On Serious Charge

Sault Ste. Marie, July 5. (CP) David Deschenes, 21, today appeared on a charge of raping a 20-year-old girl in adjacent West Korah township.

It was the second time in ten months that Deschenes faced a charge of a serious offence against a girl. On April 2 he was convicted in district sessions of attempted assault and sentenced to five months for an offence committed last October.

Provincial Police said Deschenes was arrested Wednesday after a complaint had been laid. The case was remanded to July 18 at the request of the Crown.

Both Provincial and City Police declared there was no connection with the charge against Deschenes and two other sex crimes in the Sault area in the last ten days. On June 26 a five year old girl was carried off to an abandoned shack in the city's west end and raped, and on June 28 an 18-year-old girl was criminally assaulted in a field in the city's north side.

In both attacks the police have conducted untiring searches but no arrests have been made.

Copenhagen Paper Says Several Girls Acted 'Like Hussies'

Copenhagen, July 5 — (AP) — Under a front page headline heading "Indecent in front of spectators," the Conservative Nationaltidende protested today against "shocking episodes" at a pier dance arranged in connection with a United States Naval visit here.

"Several of Copenhagen's fastest girls were among the guests on the pier last night," the paper said. "They behaved like hussies from harbor joints. Equipped with beer bott's they allowed themselves to be pawed by American sailors in front of thousands of spectators who felt ashamed to see Danish girls behave like that."

The paper said it obviously was the "dress of former Wehrmacht girls" who seized American sailors for the night.

Axel Dessau, chairman of the Danish-Allied committee which arranged the dance, said more stringent measures would be taken at future dances.

142 Fatalities In Celebration Independence Day

New York, July 5 (AP)—The United States celebrated a comparatively safe and sane 4th of July holiday yesterday. Fireworks caused some deaths.

Weather in most parts of the country was pleasant and millions joined in the first peacetime Independence Day celebration in five years.

The survey showed at least 142 persons suffered violent deaths, with traffic accidents leading the list of fatalities with 63. At least 42 persons drowned in holiday outings, while violent deaths from miscellaneous causes totalled at least 33. On the 4th of July last year, a Wednesday, 159 persons suffered violent deaths.

Jean Piccone, 13-year-old Philadelphia girl, was killed by a mortar shell fired during 4th of July celebration in Fairmount Park.

In Waukesha, a prankster tossed a big firecracker near George Bucher, 17, who was swimming, and the youth died as a result of a ruptured lung caused by the explosion of the firecracker.

In Paterson, N.J., Harry McNally, 57, died of a heart attack and the car he was driving careened into four cars in a parking lot after a prankster threw a large firecracker in front of the machine.

EX-NAVAL COMMANDO

RESCUES WOMAN FROM TRAM HOLOCAUST!

GEORGE POTTER wins Dow Award

For several minutes the intersection of Bloor and Bathurst Streets resembled a battlefield. A runaway tractor-trailer had collided with a packed, westbound Bloor Street car . . . setting off an explosion that created wild confusion.

As passengers trapped inside the car fought desperately to escape from the flames, scores of passers-by and onlookers rushed to help the victims. There were many acts of heroism . . . many deserving of recognition. Outstanding among these was the bravery of George Potter . . . a young veteran who dived through a smashed tram window and dragged a woman from the blazing inferno . . . saving her from almost certain death.

For his courageous action, we are proud to present George Potter with The Dow Award.

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.

Aims to Correlate A-Authority And Security Council

New York, July 5 (AP)— The United Nations Atomic Sub-Committee No. 1 set out today on a course aimed at correlating the operations of a proposed world atomic development authority with the peace enforcement functions of the Security Council.

On the agenda for the committee's session today were two subjects:

1. "Measures, systems and organization of control over atomic energy in order to make specific proposals to secure the use of such energy for peaceful purposes only, and

2. "The relationship between any or all of such measures and the functions assigned to the Security Council by the charter of the U.N.S."

The sub-committee was expected shortly to receive a new supplementary memorandum from the United States delegation elaborating on the original American proposals for atomic control.

The conferees already had before them the suggestions of the United States and France that a close relationship between the atomic authority and the Security Council would be consistent with the intentions of the U.N.

While Russia had no immediate comment on this specific phase of the early negotiations, there was a growing belief that Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet member of the Atomic Energy Commission, would submit a re-statement of Russian policy in relation to the Security Council's powers on atomic matters.

Russian Demands Blocking Efforts To Hold Conclave

British-U. S. Opposition Against Procedure Rules

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, July 6 —(AP)— British-American opposition to a Russian demand that the Big Four prescribe rules of procedure for a general European peace conference this summer blocked efforts of the foreign ministers' council today to convoke the 21-power conclave July 29, the date already fixed.

Both State Secretary Byrnes of the United States and Britain's Foreign Secretary Bevin contended throughout a stormy four-hour session last night that adoption of the Soviet proposal would reduce the peace parley to "rubber stamp" status but Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia adamantly maintained the reverse.

With the shadow of the big power veto clouding their efforts, the ministers convened again today for renewed discussion of the problem in another effort to prepare and transmit the necessary invitations for the peace conference to the 17 other countries.

Conversations with members of the United States delegation convinced observers that the basis for United States policy was a desire to throw international problems into an area where the big power veto could not be exercised.

These sources said that without the veto the western powers have the votes to beat Russia on a conflict and that Mr. Molotov realizes this, which is the reason for his insistence that the council — where he has veto power— dictate the rules for the peace conference — where he does not.

French Try to Compromise

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault of France in his customary role as compromiser, sought to break last night's deadlock by suggesting that France as the host country merely 'inform' the other countries that a peace conference was scheduled to begin July 29 and that invitations be sent later, but Mr. Molotov said this would only serve to confuse.

Senator A. H. Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.) said that Mr. Molotov also objected to making China one of the inviting powers along with Britain, France, Russia and the United States. Mr. Byrnes finally agreed to eliminate China if the invitations were sent out at once, but then Mr. Molotov proposed his amendment for prescribing the rules of the peace conference and Mr. Byrnes put his foot down.

Mr. Molotov proposed that the entire problem be referred to the deputy foreign ministers and that the council itself proceed to discussion of German peace treaty questions. Mr. Byrnes stood firm, however, and the meeting broke up without any agreement.

One American source said that Mr. Molotov apparently was seeking to get Germany at the head of the agenda to block further consideration of invitations for the peace conference, which for some unexplained reason he appeared to be trying to prevent.

Nearly Complete Selection of Air Force Officers

Ottawa, July 6 (CP)—The task of selecting the 2,500 officers of Canada's post-war air force is nearly completed, a member of the officer selection committee said today.

Since last October applications have been solicited from officers who served in the R.C.A.F. during the war. Almost 13,000 applications were received for the 2,500 positions on the post-war establishment.

The post-war air force is being organized on a basis that will make possible a rapid expansion in the event of a national emergency. Therefore, the officer selection committee in filling officer positions selected a large percentage of officers with operational experience who had shown administrative ability during the war.

"With five applicants for each officer position, it is inevitable that most of the applications will have to be rejected," a committee official said. "That's our trouble, we can't choose a good man to do a job, we have to choose the best man."

One complaint was that officers who stayed in Canada in an administrative capacity were given preference over officers with operational experience.

A committee official said that while in some cases "established positions have been filled by personnel who have not served in an operational theatre, these have been chosen for their business administrative ability and technical knowledge."

All applications were subjected to the same system of scoring. Operational and service experience, education, physical fitness, standing achieved in courses taken in air force schools, staff and command positions held, instructional and linguistic ability and age all were taken into account.

"A man's air force records, kept for five or six years, give a pretty fair indication of his capabilities," said an air force official.

Blame Boy's Tale For Pogrom

By LARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, July 6 (AP)— An eight-year-old boy, who said "someone" told him to start a story that Jews had held him for several days in a cellar, was blamed by investigators today for touching off Poland's bloodiest post-war pogrom, which killed at least 38 and injured 50 others in the City of Kielce.

A special commission of inquiry said that the boy, Heinrik Blaszczycyk, told the story to militiamen, adding that his life had been threatened and that he had seen at least a dozen bodies of Christian children in his prison.

Angered militiamen were said to have gone to Jewish homes to investigate. Violence then developed and crowds began forming in the streets. Nine women and one security policeman were among those slain in rioting which included mob raids on Jewish shops, homes and apartments. Most of the casualties were Jews.

With 62 perpetrators already in custody, government officials said additional arrests were being made.

Nature, Normans Reclaim Battle-Torn Land Where Canadians Fought, Died

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Caen, France, July 6 (CP Cable)—Here in Normandy where two years ago one of the most titanic battles in history raged it is difficult today even to reconstruct the impression of the actions which shattered the German Atlantic wall and crushed Hitler's armies in France.

I came back with the Empire Press Union party now touring France to all the places in the beachhead I came to know while with the Canadian Army during the campaign. I had to look twice at most of the old battle locations to make sure they were the same places.

I got lost on roads I used to know with my eyes shut.

Nature and the Norman people have reclaimed this land from war and devastation in a remarkably short time.

Children were playing on the sand of landing beaches at Bernieres where the Queen's Own Rifles from Toronto and the Fort Garry Horse of Winnipeg stormed ashore. The French people swim off Arromanche and off the naval piers at Courseulles. Colorful beach tents are dotted among the dunes between coastal defence casemates which cost so much to overcome.

On the sweeping beaches smashed landing craft still are littered but sand is drifting high on them.

The French haven't forgotten the Canadians. Several plaques near the beaches commemorate the liberation landings.

Near Courseulles, a lone tank used by the 1st Hussars of London, Ont., lies half-buried in the sand in front of a huge casemate.

Normandy again looks like the travel poster it seemed to be when we first saw it from the sea on D-Day morning before the barrage began. A magnificent crop covers the scars of the battlefield and there are only a few skeletons of tanks, trucks and armored cars lying about. There are a few weather-beaten Canadian route signs.

St. Lambert Sur Dives and Chambois where the escape route of the German 7th army finally was cut by Canadians and Poles now is pleasant countryside. But there are still Germans scattered through the old beachhead — prisoners of war of the French helping in reconstruction.

PELTS SMUGGLED ABOARD TRAINS STATE WITNESSES

Three Charged With Illegal Possession Of Beaver Skins Tried At Chapleau

Chapleau, Ont., July 6 —(CP) —Witnesses at a hearing of charges of illegal possession of furs said yesterday that pelts were smuggled aboard Trans-Continental trains by suitcase-carrying passengers who boarded the trains at isolated stations in the Northern Ontario bush country.

Judgment in the cases of three men — Adelarde and Raymond Desbiens and Armand Madore of Dalton Mills, Ont.—charged with illegal possession of 150 beaver skins, a mink pelt and an otter pelt were reserved. Magistrate Willard M. Cooper of Sudbury, Ont., said he would announce his decision July 17 and the men were released on bail of $3,000 each.

Emile Bouchard, 20, and Stanislaus Tremblay, 32, of Dalton Mills, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of 15 beaver pelts. They were fined $50 and costs or 30 days for each pelt — $750 in all, plus costs. Tremblay paid his share of the $750 — $350 and half the costs — but Bouchard said he could not pay his fine of $400. He faces a jail term of 240 days.

Authorities said that following his release, Bouchard will be turned over to the army for trial by court-martial on a charge of deserting in January, 1944. Bouchard, object of a lengthy search by provost corps men in the north country, gave himself up last month.

Crown Attorney E. D. Wilkins of Sudbury announced that the Crown would not proceed with a breaking and entering charge against Emile Bouchard, Stanislaus Tremblay and Orelle Bouchard, of Dalton Mills. The men were charged with forcing entry to the trapping cabin owned by Dan Tessier, Dalton Mills trapper, who was found shot dead near the cabin early last month. Mr. Wilkins said Tessier was the Crown's main witness and without him the case could not stand.

The court room was crowded with bush country residents for the hearing of the charges. Interest in the proceedings had been whetted by the discovery of Tessier's body and bushland gossip that he had been shot from ambush because he turned over to game wardens lists of Dalton area residents he suspected of poaching and illicit dealing in valuable furs.

The Desbien brothers and Madore pleaded not guilty to the charge of illegal possession of furs.

All three claimed the furs were taken aboard Canadian Pacific Railway train No. 8 at Dalton by a fourth man who escaped when police and game wardens closed in on the train at Chapleau June 7th.

FIRST OPA-LESS WEEK PRODUCES BIG PRICE SPURTS

Hog and Cattle Prices Break All Records Since 1919

By JOHN F. CHESTER

New York, July 6 — (AP) — A sharp and sometimes spectacular upsweep in a number of basic commodity prices stood out today as a salient feature of the first week without United States price controls since early 1942.

Flour at Minneapolis jumped from $3.34 to $4.80 for each 100 pounds.

Cattle at Chicago soared from a standing start of $18 a hundredweight to an all-time record high of $22.50 before sliding back to $22.25 under a flood of receipts.

Hog prices at Chicago broke all records since 1919 by advancing from $14.85 a hundredweight a week to $18.50. At the closing yesterday prices were back to $16 as hog receipts leaped from 2,500 one Friday to 30,000. the next.

Corn jumped from $1.44 to $2.25 a bushel and oats from 89 cents to $1.04.

Butter in the Chicago wholesale market rose to 70 cents a pound from 56 cents under O. P. A.

Under the impact of these and other increases The Associate Press index of weighted wholesale spot prices on 35 commodities stood today at 133.76, the highest point since its inception in 1933. Based on 1926 averages as 100, the index rested at 122.28 when the lapse of O. P. A. was sealed a week ago.

Show Mixed Pattern.

A spot check on consumer prices in big and little communities in the east and west, north and south produced a mixed pattern. In Chicago, for example, the consumer prices on meat, milk, butter, bread, restaurant meals, clothing and rent held fairly steady.

But in many others the prices in one or more of these categories were up sharply, with meat generally in the forefront, sometimes by more than 50 per cent, and boosts in milk and rents frequently reported.

Outside of these fields, however, spectacular price increases in other retail lines seldom were reported. Heavy industry and big business concerns generally appeared to be holding at or near the O.P.A. price lines, along with thousands of smaller retailers.

Business in many lines continued to hum. Bank clearings of more than $14,000,000,000 — an increase of approximately $2,000,000 over the previous week— were attributed in part to an increase in business activity.

Virtually all segments of business nevertheless watched minutely the drive in Washington to restore the O.P.A. in altered form.

EYPORT CREDITS INSURANCE ACT HOTLY DEBATED

New Corporation Will Assist Business Firms in Handling of Goods

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 6 (CP)— The Commons took steps yesterday to facilitate the dealings of business firms in the matter of imports and exports and unexpectedly heard Finance Minister Ilsley announce that the Canadian dollar has been brought to a parity with the American dollar.

Trade Minister MacKinnon advanced two bills, one of them extending the provisions of the export credits insurance act and the other establishing a Canadian commercial corporation which will assist business firms in the handling of goods they wish to import or export.

Mr. Ilsley's announcement was coupled with the disclosure that steps are being taken to protect the Canadian economy from outside inflationary pressure. The announcement came on one of the busiest days of the Commons since the start of the session three months ago.

Shortly after the House opened, Prime Minister Mackenzie King disclosed that parliament will be asked to extend the emergency powers bill under which many of the wartime controls have continued so that legislation covering each control will not have to be introduced this session.

Heavily Loaded

Mr. King said the legislative program already was heavily loaded. The budget debate was the main item of business, but there were many other matters still to be introduced. Unless there was co-operation among all parties an early end of the session was not in sight.

In suggesting that the emergency powers bill be extended, he said it was his intention to open the next session before the end of next January. Opposition parties agreed on the extension on the understanding that the session would not be delayed beyond the first month of the year.

He made no special reference to the contentious flag issue and there was speculation that the selection of a Canadian flag might be postponed until next year or even beyond.

Third reading was given to a bill making minor changes in the meat and canned foods act, dealing with fisheries products.

First reading was given to a bill increasing judges salaries by one-third. The salaries now range from $5,000 to $15,000 annually. Also given first reading was a bill increasing from two to three the number of puisne judges in the Exchequer Court.

A bill increasing the petty cash account of the King's Printer from $700,000 to $2,000,000 was adopted.

REDISTRIBUTION PLAN PASSES SENATE 21-7

Bill Would Create Representation On Basis of National, Not Quebec, Figures

Ottawa, July 6. (CP) — The oratory stilled after one final lavish outburst, the government's redistribution resolution was on its way today to work one of the major historical changes in the British North America Act, Canada's 79-year-old constitution.

It cleared its final obstacle in parliament early last night when the Senate voted 21-7 to approve a change which will increase the number of Commons' seats from 245 to 255 and, by amending the Act, create representation on the basis of national, not Quebec, population.

Until the last, the question of whether provincial governments should be consulted remained the crux of parliamentaary. By its vote, the Senate decided they shouldn't and either renewed or established what will stand as a vital precedent in later years and later issues.

In traditional form, the resolution will go to London as a joint address to His Majesty The King from the two Houses of His Canadian Parliament, requesting the amendment. Traditionally, too, it will be placed before the British Parliament and—unless there is a revolutionary hitch to tradition—it will become an amendment and part of Canada's constitution.

Drastic Change

It leaves in its wake a Hansard studied with quotations from the No. 1 argument of the Second Session of the 20th Canadian Parliament.

In both Commons and Senate, Progressive Conservatives based their chief objections on the grounds that the provinces were unjustly and illegally being ignored. In both they went down.

Canadian Dollar Adjusted to Parity With American

Streamlines Price Ceilings, Continuation of Subsidies

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 6. (CP) — The government has insulated Canada's economic structure against "unfavorable external conditions" with a four-ply barrier which includes return of the Canadian dollar to parity, a streamlined list of ceilings, a new pricing policy on imports and continuation of subsidies on important products.

The new re-alignment of the country's stabilization program was unexpectedly announced to the Commons Friday night by Finance Minister Ilsley, who said it was aimed at maintenance of "order, stability ando independence' in Canada's economic and financial affairs.

Mr. Ilsley referred pointedly to the abandonment of price control in the United States and rising prices there and said he hoped the new measures would "go a long way towards insulating Canada against unfavorable external conditions and easing the inflationary pressure which now are so strong'.

Specifically, he announced this four-way program:

1. The Canadian dollar was adjusted to parity with the United States dollar effective at 8 p.m., E.D.T., last night. Banks and other agents of the Exchange Control Board now will buy United States dollars at $1 and sell them at $1.00 1-2 against the former rates of $1.10 and $1.10 1-2, respectively.

Similarly, the buying rate for Pounds Sterling will be $4.02 and the selling rate $4.04, compared with previous rates of $4.43 and $4.45, respectively.

List Established

2. A clear and simple list of all goods and services which continue subject to price control, including practically all articles of significance in the normal household budget and in the costs of production of farmers, fishermen and other primary producers, has been established, with a number of "trivial" articles being suspended from price ceilings.

3. All imports of a kind subject to price control, unless specifically dealt with on another basis, will be priced on the basis of the importer's landed costs, plus a prescribed maximum mark-up in each case which will be somewhat less than the mark-up normally obtained by distributors of similar domestic goods.

Exchange Parity Disastrous Says Mining Industry

By HARRY ECCLES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hints of "disastrous" results from gold mine spokesmen, and statements from tourist heads that it wouldn't make much difference, were among the almost endless repercussions today to the Federal Government's announcement putting the Canadian dollar at par with the United States dollar, after being at a 10 per cent discount for many years.

The decision means that gold mines selling to the U.S. Treasury now will receive $5 an ounce for their product instead of the $38.50 an ounce they've been getting in Canadian funds. Exporters of other Canadian products naturally suffer a similar loss in revenue.

Balmer Neilly of Toronto, president of McIntyre Mines, called the Ottawa decision "a staggering blow to Northern Ontario." He said some mines would have to close down. Marginal mines for instance, working on ore assaying $12 a ton, may find the additional 10 per cent loss will make their operations entirely unprofitable, he said. "Many prospects may be suspended, and the promotion end is finished for awhile," added Neilly.

With Canadian stock exchanges closed today, investors and speculators gingerly awaited Monday's opening to see what effect the new dollar rate will have on gold stocks.

Free Market in Gold

Mining men hoped for alleviation in various forms. One would be a free market in gold, enabling shipment anywhere in the world. Another would be taxation relief for gold mines. Another would be some halt to the drive of mine unions for better hour and higher wages.

On the tourist aspect, spokesmen at various places last night seemed to be agreed that not much change should be expected. Hotels managers at London, Ont., feared losses would result from the United States currency they have taken in exchange, at a premium, in recent days.

F. H. Saunders, president of the Halifax Board of Trade who said that while the exchange premium had been an inducement to tourists the Canadian climate and scenery were even bigger attractions.

Financially of course the announcement had immediate benefits for provinces, municipalities and financial institutions paying interest on debentures in United States currency. At Toronto provincial government authorities estimated Ontario would save $1,000,000 for the rest of this year and $2,000,000 next year.

The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will save about $100,000 a year on bond interest payments, and this is a sample of the effect on Canadian business generally, as far as interest payments are concerned.

Tourist to Benefit

The tourist angle was that even where the former exchange premium was a factor, there is a factor now of equal if not greater significance, and that is, that United States visitors may obtain goods and services in Canada that they can't get in the United States, or at least can't get for anything like equivalent prices, exchange or no exchange.

With prices advancing south of the border since the break in OPA regulations the tourist dollar now will buy more in Canadian goods and services than it will in the United States.

Ottawa made it clear that hotels and resorts which have accumulated United States currency at a premium are stuck with it. The U.S. currency now is worth no more than Canadian, no matter what premium was paid to acquire it.

Invisible Form of Death Filled Air Miles Around Vast Mushroom Cloud

(This is the first of three articles by Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Pulitzer prize-winning science writer, reviewing some of the unexpected results of the Bikini atomic test bomb.)

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Writer)

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, July 6—(AP)—An invisible form of death filled the air for many miles around and far outside of the great mushroom cloud which rose from the Bikini atomic bomb.

What happened is still a mystery. One of the planes circling the cloud at long distance got the first warning of the invisible death when its geiger counter, which registers the presence of x-rays and other rays, unexpectedly began to record a dangerous amount of radiation.

The pilot, thinking he had run into a current of invisible radioactive particles that had eddied far outside the mushroom, turned the plane in an escape direction. But the warning counter continued to show rays whichever way he turned and whether he went up or down.

It was many minutes before the plane ran out of and away from the unseen menace.

All the drones brought back evidences of terrible radioactivity in or near the cloud. This invisible ray attack was the worst at about 15,000 feet altitude.

Wherever there was oil on the plane surfaces, radioactive particles stuck and piled up. Their rays penetrated the metal, driving into the plane, specially those interior positions close to oil spots. Some of these spots caught enough radioactive material to be highly dangerous.

Even inside the drone engines, oil became very highly radioactive and dangerous to life. But this radioactivity had no apparent effect on the perfect operation of the radiating engines.

When these planes "cooled" it was possible to compute from the rays still present about how much there had been in the cockpits many hours earlier. While this computation was only approximate it indicated the probability that pilots in the planes in the cloud would have been killed.

Radar shot at the atomic explosion and afterward at the atomic cloud behaved unexpectedly. Radar beams bounced back off the explosion. This amazed scientists. The probable explanation is that radar bounced back off the edges of the bubble of compressed air that formed the source of the shock wave of the explosion. The radar failed completely to bounce back off the atomic cloud. The explanation of this failure is that this cloud contained much less vaporized metal than had been anticipated. Metallic vapors in the cloud had been counted on to give good radar response.

Four Men Burned In Explosion, Fire Aboard Gas Barge

Marcus Hook, Pa., July 6 —(AP) — At least four men were burned today in an explosion and fire aboard a loaded gasoline barge anchored at the Sun Oil Company dock in the Delaware River.

A spokesman for the company said the barge was owned by the Graham Oil Transport Company, Gladwynne, Pa. He said it had not been determined if any one had been killed.

"As far as we know there were only four men aboard the barge when it caught fire. All of these men jumped into the river and were rescued by our employees."

The Sun Company said the fire was brought under control within three hours and that only slight damage resulted to its docks where the fire spread.

Artisans of Gablonz Trickle Down Into Thuringia Region

By DAVID BROWN

Berlin, July 5. (Reuters)—One of those reverse migrations that now are occurring around the borders of Germany has uprooted the skilled artisans of an industry that for 250 years brought fame to Gablonz, a little town in the Sudetenland.

In Europe, or in North America, the name "Gablont" has meant the most artistic, the most skillfully conttrived and the most beautiful modern jewelry—shoe buckles, rings, necklaces, glass and crystal ornaments.

Now, the artisans of Gablonz, their land and homes reclaimed by the Czechs, have trickled down into Thuringia to be settled in new homesteads under the protection of the Russians who administer that zone of Germany.

With the artisans goes the industry, for jewellery making is a highly skilled, artistic trade, and as practised in that town was a "home industry" with rarely more than 10 persons engaged in a single enterprise.

Porter Gives Evidence

A railway porter, Lewis Desmond of Montreal, said the fourth man—identified by another witness as Kenneth Grinsby or Grimsby—gave him four suitcases and told him to take care of them. The porter said he put them in a tourist car stateroom, where game wardens and police found them. The Desbiens and Madore and Raymond Desbiens' wife and child got on that car at Dalton.

Mrs. Orrie D. Lewis, wife of the game overseer at Franz, Ont., said she had been placed on the train No. 8 to observe passengers getting on at Dalton. She stated that she stood in the aisle and saw three men, a woman and a child enter the railway car. They had a packsack and several suitcases, she said.

Defence Counsel E. C. Fracer challenged Mrs. Lewis to identify the three men in court.

Mrs. Lewis pointed to Oreille Bouchard, brother of Emile, as the man whom she said carried the largest suitcase.

Witness Erred

"Are you sure you couldn't be mistaken?" asked Mr. Facer.

"I couldn't be mistaken," replied Mrs. Lewis. "I took particular notice."

Said Mr. Facer, "That man was in jail at Chapleau at the time."

Later Crown Attorney Wilkins conceded that Mrs. Lewis had erred in her identification but he asserted that many Dalton men look alike because families are inter-related.

Adelarde Desbiens, the only defence witness called, said the fourth man had the four suitcases and he himself had no luggage at all. His brother carried only a club bag, he said.

Eight Witnesses Called for Prosecution On First Day of Hearing of Charge Of False Pretences Against E. Carefoot

Electrical impulse machines such as those seized at the home of Ernest M. Carefoot last March at the time of his arrest on false pretences charges have no therapeutic value in the diagnosis or treatment of cancer or ulcers of the stomach, Dr. H. G. Storms, radiologist of Toronto, stated in magistrate's court here Friday.

Giving testimony for the Crown at the preliminary hearing of a false pretense charge against Mr. Carefoot being heard by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, Dr. Storms stated he had examined the machines seized at the Carefoot residence and testified they definitely had no therapeutic value in the treatment of disease.

Asked by Assistant Crown Attorney Gordson S. Robertson what the machines might be used for the witness replied "They might be used to fool the public."

Eight Witnesses Called

Two previous witnesses had identified the machines as being exactly similar to those with which they had been treated by Mr. Carefoot, one being treated for ulcers of the stomach and the other for cancer.

A total of eight witnesses were called during the first day of the hearing at which the Crown will seek to establish sufficient evidence to commit the accused for trial. One of the witnesses called was John McAninah, Front Street, complainant in the case, who stated he had been treated by Mr. Carefoot for ulcers of the stomach after X-rays at Belleville Hospital and at Toronto had indicated his trouble to be gall bladder nature.

Mr. Carefoot was arrested last March by Provincial Police and at present is out on $2,000 bail. Several weeks ago Mr. Carefoot was acquitted on a charge of having illegal possession of narcotics.

Dr. Noble Testifies

First witness called at Friday's preliminary hearing was Dr. R. T. Noble, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Toronto. Witness claimed that Mr. Carefoot had never been registered at the college and therefore could not legally practice medicine in Ontario.

Dr. R. G. Williams, X-ray technician at Belleville General Hospital, identified X-ray pictures taken of Mr. John McAninch in October, 1944, while Dr. F. R. Ross, radiologist at Belleville Hospital, in viewing the plates, stated the pictures suggested the patient had been suffering from gall stones. As a physician, witness stated his diagnosis would be that the patient definitely had gall stones which could be cured only by an operation.

John McAninch

Called to the stand to give evidence regarding his treatment by Mr. Carefoot. Mr. McAninch told of going to the hospital for X-rays and of having his trouble diagnosed by Dr. W. C. Morgan and also by Dr. Van Blakslee as gall stones. Both doctors had advised an operation.

After leaving the hospital, however, he had talked with Mr. Carefoot and after paying $10 had his trouble diagnosed by the accused.

"Mr. Carefoot's diagnosis was that I did not have gall stones, but ulcers," stated Mr. McAninch. "He offered to cure me for $125.00

Witness went on to say that he had received 14 treatments from Mr. Carefoot, these treatments involving the use of one of the electrical machines which he identified in court. Following the 14 treatments he had been pronounced cured by Mr. Carefoot, but after two weeks back at work the old pains had returned and he had demanded back the money which he had paid Mr. Carefoot. The $125 was returned.

Operation Later in Toronto

"My suspicions were aroused at the time I was being treated when I observed a second patient supposedly suffering from cancer being treated from the same machine with which I was treated," stated witness. Mr. McAninch subsequently had undergone an operation for gall stones in a Toronto hospital. Witness admitted that he knew Mr. Carefoot was not a licenced physician.

Constable Ernest Keays, member of the Provincial Police at Belleville headquarters, also told of going to Mr. Carefoot for treatment. His condition had been diagnosed as cancer by Mr. Carefoot following taking of a blood sample from the witness' ear.

"Mr. Carefoot told me not to worry about the cancer," stated Constable Keays. "He said he could cure it in a matter of two weeks by an electrical machine similar to radio." The treatments had started the next day and consisted primarily of a copper plate being held against the stomach. The plate was attached to the electrical machine by means of a wire.

Treatment Discontinued

Witness stated he had discontinued the treatments as result of observation of the machines. He also identified machines exhibited in court as those with which he had been treated at the Carefoot residence. Constable Keays stated that more recent radiology tests at Kingston had proved negative as to cancer.

Canadian National Railways surgeon of Toronto, Dr. Chas. W. Harris, stated that he had seen Mr. McAninch in October, 1944 when he had complained of acute indigestion. X-ray tests had confirmed the trouble as gall stones and in December Mr. McAninch had undergone an operation. No ulcers had been found and there had been no signs of other disease besides the gall stones, he said.

Dr. Elson Testifies

Dr. G. Elson, physicist from the Department of Health told of the construction of the machines which had been seized at the Carefoot residence, while Dr. R. F. Farquharson, clinic professor from Toronto, stated that there was no blood test by which cancer or ulcers could be diagnosed. The only method of certainty in diagnosing for cancer was by microscepic examination of the tissue, he said.

Dr. Storms who testified as to the relative merits of fthe therapeutic values of the machines, was last witness called during the evening session, following which court was adjourned until ten o'clock Saturday morning. Four more witnesses would be called by the Crown, it was understood.

Norman Spence Held on Two Counts of Arson

Norman Spence, age 50, of Moira district in Huntingdon township, has been arrested by Provincial Police, on charges of setting two fires Friday night and early Saturday morning when only prompt work on the part of neighbors saved the barn owned by Mr. John Farrell and the sugar bush owned by William Collins.

The fire at the Farrell barn one mile east of Moira was seen first by Mrs. Farrell and Mrs. Nelson Welsh as they returned from choir practice at 11 o'clock. When noticed the straw stack was ablaze, the barn being saved by neighbors carrying the burning stack away and putting the flames out with water from a nearby creek.

At three o'clock the same night fire was observed in the Collins sugar bush across the road. Neighbors again rallied and saved part of the sugar making equipment as well as the bush.

Draft Legislation For Vets' Loans Before Committee

Ottawa, July 6 — (CP) — Long awaited draft legislation for partly government-guaranteed bank loans to veterans to establish businesses was placed before the Veterans Committee of the Commons Friday as a major new addition to rehabilitation assistance.

It has been under government consideration for more than a year.

If eventually approved, the legislation would permit loans of as high as $3,000 at an interest rate no higher than five per cent for purchase of a business or for the purchase of tools, instruments or equipment for a business or for their repair.

The government set the aggregate principal amount of the loans at $25,000,000.

Maj.Gen. E. L. M. Burns, director-general of rehabilitation told the committee the plan was "to help a veteran establish himself in a business or a profession when his re-establishment credit is not enough or if a veteran has exhausted his credit by taking training and, after graduation, needs assistance to get started."

The banks would use their own judgment in all applications and would naturally, therefore, ensure that each proposition had a sound chance for eventual success.

Immediate committee reaction was that the maximum five per cent interest rate meant that the veteran got little if anything that a civilian could not get.

Mr. Wright suggested that the banks could not be expected to take on loans of this nature for less than five per cent, but thought that the government should make up the difference between the five per cent and the 3½ per cent charged under the Veterans Land Act.

Sydney, Australia, July 6. (CP)—Mrs. John Granger, an attractive Irishwoman who settled in Sydney in 1938, recently opened a weaving school and textile business here.

On Australian-built looms, designed by her husband, John, an Enblish weaver, she makes tapestries, suit lengths, damasks and draperies to her own designs. Orders pour in from all parts of Australia and New Zealand for her pre-shrunk woollen textiles, and it is Mrs. Granger's ambition to export her clothes overseas.

When the Grangers came to Australia, they realized the possibilities of soft, staple Australian merino wool for fabrics and draperies, and experimented with one loom. Now they have ten. Mrs. Granger takes classes of five people at a time for 10-week courses. Most of her pupils later buy a loom for themselves, and some of them have already started businesses of their own.

C. of C. President Terms Budget Disappointment

Montreal, July 6 (CP)—C. Gordon Cockshutt of Brantford, President of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in a statement Friday following a meeting of the executive committee, termed the Federal budget statement of last week "a bitter disappointment to Canadians after six years of almost confiscatory taxation imposed for the purpose of winning the war."

The budget, Mr. Cockshutt said, "ignored the relief Canadians had a right to expect and which was promised in the previous budget address."

His statement said the Chamber commends the government for its successful wartime taxation program but "regrets that the government is not prepared to face the drastic reductions in expenditures that alone will enable it to bring down a budget in keeping with the people's expectations and the necessities of the post-war Canadian requirements."

Vast Fur Poaching Ring is Disclosed

Sudbury, Ont., July 6 — (CP) — Game Warden O. D. Lewis said Friday in an interview that investigation had disclosed that headquarters of a vast fur poaching ring in northern Ontario is in Sudbury.

Mr. Lewis made the statement in Chapleau, northwest of here, where he was to attend the court hearing of five persons charged with illegal possession of beaver skins.

Evidence has been obtained which points to a ring of greater scope and magnitude than investigators expected, he added.

Authorities have known for some time of illicit handling of fur in the bush country north of here. From time to time there have been indications that valuable pelts were being stolen from traplines of legitimate trappers or trapped in forbidden areas, smuggled out of the north country and disposed of in Montreal.

Attention was drawn to the illegal trafficking in fur when Dan Dessier, 34-year-old trapper, was slain at Dalton Mills, Ont., northwest of Sudbury, June 3. Bush country gossip linked his death with information he was said to have given game wardens concerning poaching activities.

NOVEL BANNED IN MASS.

Springfield, Mass., July 6 — (AP)—Kathleen Winsor's novel "Forever Amber" was banned for sale or distribution in Massachusetts Friday in an interlocutory decision based on a complaint that the book was "obscene, indecent and impure."

Cherry Time

"This year's crop of cherries is very promising," say the authorities and everybody is happy about it. Last year many people were disappointed in the crop and decided that if there were cherries this year, they would make up for the loss and eat them fresh, make a good quantity into desserts and also use part of their sugar ration to can them.

Cherries are easily canned, with or without the pits, and with or without sugar. They way they are to be used next winter is the deciding factor.

No matter which method of canning is chosen, recommendations are given by the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The fruit should be well formed and mature. Under-ripe fruit is often of poor flavor and texture. Over-ripe fruit will be soft, broken and unattractive. Cherries should be washed before stemming or pitting. Only the fruits that are not bruised or spotted should be canned. A six quart basket of cherries, weighing eight pounds will yield approximately five quarts of canned cherries. A small box weighing fifteen pounds will yield approximately eleven quarts; a large box weighing twenty-five pounds will yield approximately eighteen quarters of canned cherries.

The syrup used will vary according to the variety of cherries. A thin syrup will be quite sweet enough for sweet cherries but a medium syrup is recommended for sour cherries. A thin syrup is referred to as a 1 to 2 syrup. A medium syrup as a 1-1 syrup. Very often people are puzzled by this use of numbers and wonder what is meant and how they should be interpreted. It is easy, once it is understood that the first number, which is 1, does not vary and always means 1 cup of sugar. The number which varies is the proportion of water to the cup of sugar. For instance. a 1 to 2 syrup means a syrup made with one cup of sugar to 2 cups of water, and so on. To make syrup, add water to sugar, bring to a boil, skim if necessary and keep hot.

Cherries may be canned by either the cold pack method or th hot pack method. For the cold pack method, pack the cold cherries into the clean, hot containers. Cover with hot syrup, leaving a headspace of one-quarter of an inch. Partially seal spring top and screw top sealers. Completely seal vacuum type sealers and tin cans. Process in a boiling water bath or in a thermostatically controlled oven. Processing time in boiling under bath: 20 minutes for pint sealers and 20-oz. cans; 25 minutes for quart sealers and 28-oz cans. Processing in the oven at 275 degrees Fahrenheit; 35 minutes for pint sealers and 45 minutes for quart sealers. Do not process tin cans in oven. For cherries use R-enamel tin cans.

For the hot pack method, simmer the cherries 5 minutes in syrup. Fill containers and cover with hot syrup, leaving the same headspace as for cold pack. Processing boiling water bath, 15 minutes for pint and quart sealers, and 20-oz and 28-oz. tin cans. Process glass sealers in oven; pints 25 minutes, quarts 30 minutes.

When using the boiling water bath it is important to remember that there must be two inches of water over the tops of the containers, which means that the kettle must be deep enough to hold the containers in an upright position on a rack to allow for circulation of water under the sealers, while having enough space left on top to have two inches of water above the containers. When processing time is over, remove containers, seal the partially sealed ones and let cool. away from drafts. Label and store in a dark, cool place.

Sank Only Jap Sub Destroyed Off B. C. Coast

Ottawa, July 6 — (CP)—Partial credit for sinking the only Japanese submarine destroyed off the British Columbia coast during the war came as a surprise to the crew of an R.C.A.F. Bolingbroke bomber, air force headquarters here announced today.

The crew, on a routine shipping patrol from Annette Island statoni station some four years ago, spotted a dull gray shape in the ocean below.

They dropped one 500-pound bomb and left the scene, fearing the target might have been a whale.

Later evidence showed the object had been a submarine.

The crew of the bomber included FO. R. D. Kenning, Pembroke, wireless air gunner.

PREMEDITATION NOT PROVED

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 5 — (AP) — A life sentence imposed on Ingeborg Fischer, plump, blond German girl, for slaying her former sweetheart, Sgt. John Chinar of Tuscarora, Pa., was reduced to 15 years' imprisonment today because premeditation was not proved.

The German girl, 22, was found standing over Chinar's body with a pistol in her hand March 15. The sergeant had been shot thru the heart in his billet after he allegedly told her that he wanted nothing more to do with her.

Empty House Moved to Village

Arthur, July 6 — (CP)—Everyone pitched in to help the Colwill family of this Welling county village, 50 miles west of Toronto, move an empty house into Arthur Friday — even the West Luther township council.

Sheldon Colwill's seven sons served overseas, two returning with British brides, and extra housing was urgently required. An empty house was found on a farm and with the aid of trucks, tractors and wagons it was moved to the village. The council took time off to aid it through Damascus, Ont., and a telephone gang kept wires out of the way on the roads.

Another house has been found in Arthur and will be remodeled for the second war bride.

U. S. PROCEEDS WITH TASK SETTING UP GOVERNMENT FOR PEOPLE OF KOREA

Washington, July 6 —(AP)—Russia has ignored United States appeals for co-operation in rebuilding a Korean government, officials reported, and the United States is going ahead on its own.

In the American occupation zone in Korea officials are setting up machinery by which it is heped the Koreans, who have had no political independence for almost half a century of Japanese domination, will be able to prepare themselves to resume full freedom.

Philippines a Republic

There has come forth a new nation, the Philippines Republic, to join the nations of the world and carry on the tradition of freedom. On Wednesday July Fourth, the one hundred and seventieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence of the United States the new republic assumed its independence.

The Philippines came through the recent war with a great record of loyalty and devotion to the cause of liberty in spite of the Japanese aggression. The new republic has been a federated commonwealth since 1935 with its own president and a native government. After the Spanish-American War in the late nineties, The Philippines were given their first sight of freedom and from that time forth they have continued to grow in the knowledge of the principle of freedom and in the ability to exercise their freedom wisely.

In this day when there is a strong feeling against the government of General Franco in Spain, attention is thrown back on the long history of Spanish control of the islands. It was nearly four hundred years ago that the Spaniards seized the group and the history of Spanish control had not been a history of freedom but it was rather a story of domination without the sense of freedom.

The United States will watch the developing freedom of this new state which has come upon the world horizon, and take great pride in its growth in the ways of democracy.

The New York Times expresses this in the words of an editorial:

"This much we are sure we can promise the Filipinos in the name of the people of the United States; we shall watch your progress with understanding and sympathy and pride; you shall here always have a loyal friend, willing to lend a helping hand if one is needed, a friend who knows that by granting you your independence he has gained far more than he has lost."

President Truman in proclaiming the Philippines a self-governing state, ended 48 years of American sovereignty. His formal words were:

"The United States hereby withdraws and surrenders all rights of possession, supervision, jurisdiction, control or sovereignty over the people of the Philippines. On behalf of the United States of America, I do hereby recognize the independence of the Philippines as a separate and self-governing nation and acknowledge the authority and control over the same of the government instituted by the people under the constitution now in force."

The world of free nations will wish for this new nation steady progress in the light of democracy, overcoming the evil results of Japanese aggression which in the war years dissipated much of the resources of the country. The Philippines since they were first allowed to see the light of liberty 48 years ago when they were taken from Spain have shown a desire to progress in the ways of freedom.

Aviation Achievements Shown

Twenty-four hours after the United Kingdom Government's statement in the House of Commons that Britain has a year's lead in jet engine design, ambassadors and Imperial Press Conference delegates watched, breathless, a display of former "top secret" aircraft at a Royal Aircraft establishment in Farnborough, England — one of the world's most advanced air research stations.

On the ground for inspection were Britain's best and newest aircraft, incorporating lessons of the war years, both military and civil types among which of course were the famous Vampire and Meteor Jet. For three days Britain has shown to the world, and on Sunday to her own people, some of the war's best-kept air secrets.

Practically every new British plane was seen. Prototypes of their engines were sectionalized for close examination. Details of their capabilities were printed for all to read. The United Kingdom's air industry was there for open comparison with whatever the rest of the world can offer.

But it was not only a display of the products of British design. There too were methods of research on view — giant wind tunnels in which model planes can be put through tests in atmospheric pressures such as they experience when flying over 600 miles per hour; ditching tanks in which aircraft models are force-landed to see their performance under the worst possible conditions — a crash into the sea; in fact the whole gamut of research normally associated with hush-hush achievement.

It was not only what the United Kingdom had done. There were indications of the future — model aircraft of the next generation which would fly at 1,770 miles per hour, relying on a fuselage consisting only of a tube through which air would be ducted, on top of which in his long pencil-like cabin, the pilot would be in a horizontal position to guide his super-speed aircraft. To get the tube working the plane must reach 1,000 miles per hour — this is achieved, say scientists, by rocket launching.

Outside, waiting their turn to fly, were commercial aircraft which are in production and some of which will soon be winging their way across the world's air routes. There was a luxurious sixty-seater Avro Tudor II with a cruising speed of 250 miles per hour; a four-engined Miles Marathon constructed for both passenger and freight carrying which recently completed its first tests. To civilians looking for comfort these two attracted particular interest. Other popular types were the Avro York, Handley Page, Hastings and DeHavilland Dove, all of which were put through tests for take-off, climbing, braking and landing at high and low speeds.

One of the most exhilarating displays of flying was given by the Short Hythe class flying boat, a liner with accommodation for 24 to 45 passengers or 16 night passengers at a speed of 220 miles per hour. Flying low, the pilot passed with two of the four engines cut out and on the other motors completed a series of difficult turns.

The most sensational flights of display were provided by jet types — the Gloster Meteor, holder of the 606 miles-per-hour world's speed record and the 504 miles-per-hour DeHavilland Vampire. Both gave demonstrations of aerobatics at high speeds and demonstrated their manoeuvrability, climbing capabilities from a short take-off and resistance to air strain.

On the "secret" side special sections were devoted to aerodynamics, structural and mechanical engineering, radio, armaments, photography and aviation medicine.

World's Longest Wire Rope

The longest wire rope in the world is at the moment on its way from a British port to the Far East. There it will replace another wire rope of British origin, the qualities of which impressed the Japanese so much that they appropriated it for their own uses. The British makers specialize in the production of all kinds of ropes and own seven wire factories and three hemp factories, in addition to which they use self-manufactured nylon for their ropes. The degree of perfection attained by these experts in this special sphere of their products may best be seen from the fact that glider tow ropes were manufactured by this firm.

Joseph Howe, Pierre Bedard, William Lyon Mackenzie, and William Macdougall are but a few of the colorful journalists of Canadian history who subsequently assumed important places in Canadian political events.

The General Post Office of the United Kingdom today operates telegraph services with most countries in Europe, both by cables and wireless telegraph services. All other parts of the world are served by the British system of cable and wireless which also operates certain European services. Some idea of its world-wide network is given by the fact that it has 155,000 nautical miles of cables and 140 wireless circuits with 200 offices and stations in 70 countries.

WARNING GROWN-UPS

When little children are about,
I'd warn all grown-ups to watch out.

We put up signs, in symbols clear,
To show that: "Workingmen are near."

We warn the casual passers-by,
Whoe'er they be, of dangers nigh.

We line the roads with: "Drive With Care!"
And many a board that shouts: "Beware!"

But, sad it is, no signs appear
To warn us oldsters: "Children near!"

When tempers' fires begin to burn
Men utter words no child should learn.

And in our worst of moods we do
So many things no child should view.

Once more, when children are about,
We who are grown should all "Watch out!"

CANADIAN DOLLAR

4. The policy of paying subsidies will remain in effect in order to prevent "undue increases" in prices of articles of major importance in the consumer's cost-of-living or in primary producers' costs of production.

The immediate effect of the new policy on the pocket-books of average and business Canadians must await actual transactions across the borders, but authoritative sources here said it would be profitable to most Canadians, although some lines of business would find the effect adverse for the time being, at least.

They said the average Canadian, for instance, would be able to travel more cheaply in the United States, because of the new equality between the two currencies, and would find that American goods imported after today would retail for 10-per-cent less.

The farmer, too, would reap benefit because he would be able to buy United States farm machinery and other equipment and products used in his work at similarly lower prices.

Some Canadian manufacturers, such as those making newsprint and selling in terms of American dollars, would suffer a loss, but they would be free to increase their prices on the export market.

Some Firms Make Profit

Industrial firms in Canada which depend on American component parts for their products, such as the motor car industry, will make a profit through lower costs for the importation of those articles, but the mining firm which sold its gold to the United States treasury at $38.50 an ounce now will get only $35.

Mr. Ilsley in his announcement, said the new program has this broad aim:-

Prevention of undue increases in the cost-of-living and costs of production, improvement of the effectiveness of price control, encouragement of a greater supply of scarce goods imported from other countries and the facilitating of an orderly post-war adjustment of the Canadian economy while protecting it from the major effects of "adverse developments outside our borders."

The prospective increases in other countries' prices of such items as coal, crude oil, gasoline, farm implements, sisal for binder twine, clothing and textiles, citrus fruits, bananas, coffee, tea and sugar will be restricted to their effect on Canadian prices, and the task of holding a reasonable level of costs by means of subsidies on essential imports will be kept within managerable proportions."

Covers All Items

Mr. Ilsley, reiterating that there would be no immediate 'dismantling' of price control, said the new list of goods under control was intended to cover virtually "all of the items which are of everyday importance in the household budget" and many more, as well as all the items of chief importance in costs of production in general basic materials and all parts and components of consumer goods.

As far as the consumer was concerned, practically all food, fuel, clothing, textiles, leather goods, kitchenware, hardware, household appliances, radios, automobiles, furniture, house furnishings and building materials remain under control.

Control also was left unchanged on rents.

For the farmer and fisherman, most of the goods needed by him for his production remained in the price ceiling list.

Existing price control orders would continue to apply to imported foods and imports eligible for subsidy.

REDISTRIBUTION

Their defeat will bring to Canada a drastic change in the method of determining numbers of members of the Lower House.

In the past Quebec always has had 65 seats; the others' seats bore the some proportion to their respective populations a 65 bore to the population of Quebec. But there were qualifications. No province could have less members then senators. No province could be deprived of a member unless its population, at the decennial census, had dropped more than five per cent in relation to the national population.

In the future, Prince Edward Island—on the basis of the Senate-Commons equality—will have four seats at least, the Yukon will have one. From there, each province will get the number out of a total of 250 seats to which its population entitles it on an over-all basis.

This table indicates the difference:

	Now	Nuture
P.E.I.	4	4
Nova Scotia	12	13
New Brunswick	10	10
Quebec	65	73
Ontario	82	83
Manitoba	17	16

British Columbia	16	18

SHANGHAI DEMONSTRATION PROTESTS CHINESE CIVIL WAR

Shanghai students gather at railroad station to deliver sendoff to non-partisan delegation which included two of the nation's foremost educators, leaving for Nanking to seek audience with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, General George C. Marshall and Communist Leader Chow En-Lai to protest continuance of China's civil war. The banner held by cheering students is result of students' and anti-civil war movement's claim that U. S. forces are helping to prolong the strife by supplying arms and transportation to Nationalist forces.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.

Readers addressing letters to Dr. Brady will please include the word "Canada" on their return envelopes, as these letters have to be forwarded to Dr. Brady. And it is requested that readers use standard size envelopes that will hold a small booklet

ARE YOU CULTIVATING AN ULCER?

It was not my intention to include peptic, gastric, duodenal, stomach ulcer among the complaints embraced under the general term "Yankee stomach" but from the queries in the daily mail it is evident that a good many persons who have ulcer or are cultivating the trouble have gone Yankee at least enough to see what the pamphlet "Yankee Stomach" has to say about it—any one who asks for it in writing and incloses stamped self addressed envelope may have a copy. However, any one who has or even suspects he or she has gastric or duodenal ulcer will find information and advice more to the point in the booklet "So You Have Indigestion?"—mailed on written request if you inclose with your stamped self addressed envelope a clean dime U.S. I mean clean—if you smear it up with gum, chicken wire, pins, staples, adhesive, glue or other unpleasant stuff you will be disappointed.

A great deal of high school psychology has been retailed in recent years in reference to stomach ulcer—in fact the smug notion that it is in some way due to anxiety or business responsibilities has pleased the customers so much that it has become a cliche in movie and radio chatter. No psychologist, I don't take any stock in the idea—not any more than I take in the somewhat older notion—that, well, you know the imposing description of the heavy strain of "executive" life—causes whatever the smug ones please to conceal under the name of "nervous breakdown" or "complete nervous exhaustion."

Whether stomach or duodenal ulcer is actually more frequent today than it was fifty years ago, I have no idea. If it is more frequent now I do not believe any kind of care, responsibility or similar cause is of much importance, compared with (a) malnutrition or nutritional deficiency and (b) constant irritation of the stomach and duodenum.

The malnutrition or nutritional deficiency which I believe is an important predisposing factor of stomach or duodenal ulcer is habitual deficiency or vitamin B complex in the diet.

The constant insult and irritation of the stomach and duodenum which I believe contributes to the development of ulcer is indulgence in alcohol and/or tobacco.

That alcoholic indulgence is irritating to the lining of stomach and duodenum is a fact which cannot be questioned. I define alcoholic indulgence as the drinking of any alcoholic beverage or liquor by any one less than fifty or sixty years old. Surely no young person has any normal or rational excuse for such indulgence.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Heart Tonic

I am 87 years old. When I am breaking down digitalis peps me up, but leaves me with nausea which spoils appetite.

(Mrs. E. C. W.)

Answer—Next time take each dose in or with a two teaspoonfulls of an agreeable syrup of vitamin B-complex—and continue taking a teaspoonful of the B-complex syrup (or the same amount of vitamin B complex in capsule, pill or tablet form, two or three times a day right along, as a real heart and stomach tonic. You should not take digitalis at all unless your physician examines you regularly, and regulates your dosage.

Eggs

For two years have had what the doctor called cardio-renal disease. The doctor and a heart specialist discouraged me about eating eggs. However, I find that in your CVD booklet you recommend eggs for breakfast. (J. S.)

Answer—I know of no good reason why one with cardiovascular disease (heart and artery degereration) or cardio-renal disease, nephritis) should not eat eggs. Your doctor may have suspected you were allergic to egg white. If not, in your place I'd eat eggs for breakfast whenever I wanted them. I hope there is no notion that the albumen (white) of egg has anything to do with albumen in the urine. That quaint notion need not deter you from eating eggs.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who said: "The public be damned?"

"The public be damned," a popular saying supposed to express the typical attitude of big business toward the common people, is generally attributed to William Henry Vanderbile (1821-1885), capitalist and railroad magnate, to whom it was first ascribed in an article in the Chicago News of October 9, 1882.

The circumstances under which Vanderbilt is supposed to have used the expression have been investigated several times and there are several versions of what actually took place.

Some authorities, because of the conflicting evidence, even suspect that the expression was coined by a newspaper reporter and attributed to Vanderbilt.

The capitalist, then president of the New York Central Lines, went West shortly after the Pennsylvania Railroad had begun to operate a fast luxury train in competition with his line.

Two free-lance reporters named Clarence Dresser and John Dickinson Sherman, supplied several Chicago newspapers with news, interviewed Vanderbilt in his special car at Michigan City on October 8. The reporters agreed that Sherman should ask the railroad magnate a list of questions they had prepared. According to the report in the News the next morning, Sherman asked Vanderbilt whether his limited express train paid. Vanderbilt replied that the train did not pay expenses, that the company ran the train because forced to do so by the action of the Pennsylvania Railroad and that the New York Central Lines would abandon its limited express train if it were not for the competition. Then the reporter asked whether the company didn't run the train for the benefit of the public. "The public be damned!" replied Vanderbilt. "What does the public care for the railroads except to get as much out of them for as small a consideration as possible? . . . Railroads are not run on sentiment but on business principles."

As a result of this article in the Chicago News the saying, "The public be damned," soon became popular throughout the country.

Interviewed in Denver later, Vanderbilt denied that he had used these words and said they were an injustice to him.

Skirt and Shirt at Dinner

By PRUNELLA WOOD

INGRID BERGMAN'S next picture, "Notorious", provides her with some lovely fashions, created by Edith Head of RKO. Bergman wears clothes well, even if the roles she gets are seldom clothes-horse opportunities; her rather tailored taste is becoming to both current fashions and her particular type of beauty.

This outfit, casual for dinner anywhere, combines a white gaucho blouse with a long black skirt, the two wedded by a broad belt fenced with ornate silver bars.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The "Other Woman" Wants This Wife to Give Up Her Husband

You can't hold a man against his will, of course. If he's fully decided that he wants to leave you and go to another woman, it's not likely that anything you can do will change his ideas.

But if you don't force him to make a definite decision to give her up forever; if you can get him to agree to a waiting period before he packs up and leaves home, that waiting period may turn the trick and bring about a decision in your favor almost in spite of himself.

That may be the answer to the problem in the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I have been married almost nine years, and I find now that my husband is in love with another girl.

"He was a model husband up until about three years ago. Then I noticed a change in him. Nothing seemed to interest him. He was so indifferent; not mean, but he went around not saying much and acting as if he didn't care, one way or another. Finally I asked him just what was wrong, and he told me about this girl and his affection for her.

"I arranged to talk to her to see just what was going on, and how it was going to work out. She told me my husband didn't love me, but that he had told her he loved her and she was very much in love with him. She said he was the first man she was ever out with, and it was up to me now.

"I love my husband dearly and always have, but I think now that he didn't love me enough when we were married, or he didn't know what love was. Sometimes I get thinking he is good to me for the children's sake. He told this girl I was one swell person and a wonderful wife. When we go out, we have swell times and really enjoy ourselves. He has told me I was really swell, but never that he really loved me. Maybe there is something wrong with me, but I've been really true to him and never could see anyone else compared with him.

"V. H."

I don't believe there's anything wrong with you, V. H. And I certainly wouldn't give up hope yet.

You say this girl told you it was up to you, by which I assume she meant that since she loved your husband, and he had told her he loved her, it was your duty to turn him over to her.

But in spite of what he may have told her, I wonder if he doesn't perhaps love you more than he knows right now. When a man discusses his wife with the "other women" it's not usually in terms of high praise. He's far more apt to try to justify his unfaithfulness by complaining about her. And if it isn't love that makes him talk about you that way to her, then at least it's honesty and fairness, and those are certainly qualities in your favor.

You don't say that your husband has asked for his freedom, but I assume he has. So, appealing to the fairness which makes him admit to this girl that you are a wonderful wife, ask him if he doesn't think it fair to give nine years of married life a little more chance before throwing them over for a new way of living. Ask him if he won't wait six months before deciding to leave his home and children, and tell him that if, at the end of that time, he still wants to go to this girl, you won't stand in his way. Then, if he's fair enough to agree, make that six months just as happy as you can. It won't be easy, but it's your best bet. For after all, a happy home, a wonderful wife and loving children are powerful arguments in favor of "staying put" instead of shoving off into an adventure whose outcome is problematical. So try out this program, and good luck to you!

V. O. N. News

Forming an important part of the health program of the Victorian Order of Nurses, the services available for infants and particularly the new-born baby, are a boon to the mothers of the city. In order that all mothers will be aware of the type of service that is offered, the nurses mail to every mother, soon after the baby's birth, an attractive folder explaining how the Victorian Order representatives can be called upon to assist and instruct the mother in the early care of her little one. In fact arrangements can be made before the mother leaves the hospital so that the nurse will call the very morning after she comes home.

The nurse will demonstrate to the mother how to bathe the baby, how to prepare the formula and give other instruction. Such services can be had for as long a period as is necessary, until the mother is able to be around to care for her baby herself. The fee for this service is very small and the benefit to the mother, especially when the child is her first, cannot be estimated.

Usually after receiving this folder, the mother gets in touch with the nurses but if not, the nurse, makes a routine call when the baby is six weeks old, inviting the mother to bring her child to the weekly Well Baby Conference explaining its procedure, and that of the inoculation clinic, and giving any needful advice in accordance with the wishes of the physician.

Mothers who have received V.O.N. pre-natal care, or have had home confinements automatically arrange with the nurse for supervision after the baby is born but the same assistance is within reach of those who have not previously used the Victorian Order Service. The popularity of this V.O.N. activity is shown by the fact that an average of 120 visits is made each month to infants up to six weeks, and about forty a month for child health supervision of those a little older.

Fashion Flashes

A GOOD CHOICE with a navy or white frock is a smart red hat. Red rough straw is used for a way-back-on-the-head, rippled brim hat just laden in front with masses of red silk poppies.

When it's time for furs you'll be seeing some lovely capes. Russian broadtail is used for a hip-length cape that ripples in back—its inky, silky blackness a nice contrast to the mink border that forms a tiny collar and also borders each of the three tiers that make the cape.

Red, White and Blue, the best of collar schemes, is popular this Spring. It is used for a blithe little dress with a peg-top, draped skirt in navy wool crepe, a broad red leather belt and a white and navy striped top.

Romance should be aided and abetted by this season's hats. Ideal for Summer dining and dancing is a big, airy hat made of layers of black horsehair with pink flowers and petals pressed between the layers.

Fresh and different from the usual dark dinner suit is a delightful, long-skirted suit in pale pink lace, with jeweled buttons the only ornamentation on the hip-length, fitted jacket.

It's nice to have a good leather bag once more. Fine navy calfskin makes a pretty pouch bag made with piped sections. Handles are formed of honey-colored balls of simulated shell.

MONTGOMERY PRAISES GENERAL EISENHOWER

London, July 6 — (CP Cable) — Viscount Montgomery told the American Society at an Independence Day dinner last night he could not imagine a man he would have preferred to serve under than Gen. Eisenhower and a "better friend" he never would have.

The Right Line

THE LONG, lean line continues to be the darling of the mode, no matter what deviations make a bid for favor. Line as well as color is the theme of this handsome frock, with a Buddha design in pink, green and blue on black silk crepe. The long tunic top is deeply slit at the hem, in line with a slit in the narrow skirt below. It has a mandarin collar fastened with sequinned buttons, and in all it's a nice balance between the occident and the orient.

Girls who wear glasses

A brimmed hat will shield lenses from light reflections

More and more young people are wearing glasses. If you are around when girls and boys of high school age gather, you may have noticed how many are bespectacled. It isn't that the human eye is deteriorating. It is simply that parents and school nurses are on the alert for changes that may be taking place in the optical mechanisms of our children.

Considering all this, you would think that grown women would have overcome their dislike of specs. Thousands have been told by specialists that they should wear them, but, because of vanity or the fear of looking older than their years, they won't do it. They go stumbling and fumbling around, hold menu cards at arm's length, ask other people to read names in telephone books. Nothing could be sillier, because eyestrain brings a trail of beauty griefs and some physical troubles. It has a deplorable effect upon the nervous system.

Neglect your eyes, and you'll see turkey tracks popping out around them because of partially closing the lids to protect your eyes from the light. Certainly specs won't make you look as old as wrinkles will. Tissues surrounding the eyes are soft and delicate. The fibres are tiny. If you pull your eyelids together, folds will appear. It doesn't take long for them to become permanent fixtures.

The woman with swollen tissues under her eyes will look better with glasses than without them, because they hid this distressing beauty defect.

If glasses are inconspicuous, are worn jauntily, they become a part of one's personality, seem to belong. They often make one appear more distinguished. They aren't always the good-looks handicap that many women believe them to be. Frames are of becoming colors. There is a great variety in the shapes of lenses. A round face will appear more oval if one selects deep, squarish lenses and a high bridge-piece. A high bridge gives length to a short nose.

Oblong oval lenses, a low-bridge-piece and low bows are the happy selections of the girl with a long, thin face. A pink crystal frame is a favorite with ladies of fashion; it is neutral enough to blend nicely with frock or hat of any color. It gives a certain tone to the complexion. There are bows with blunt paddle-shaped ends that slip in and out of the hair without disarranging it.

Style your hair for youthfulness to counteract any possible aging effect of glasses. That doesn't mean too much fluffiness. A hat with a narrow brim will shield lenses from light reflections.

Difference Between Bride's Cake and Wedding Cake

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Someone has told me that the cake in the little boxes given to wedding guests at the reception is a dark fruit cake but it seems to me that in these boxes I have always seen cake just like the bridal cake. What is height? Will you please tell me the procedure with both cakes?

Bride's Mother.

There is a difference between the bride's cake and the wedding cake. The bride's cake is the white, iced cake which is cut and eaten at the wedding reception (the bride cuts the first slice and shares it with her bridegroom). The wedding cake (sometimes called "the groom's cake") is a dark fruit cake which guests are given to take home and dream on. The usual custom is to have small oblong pieces of the wedding cake cut and packed in little white boxes tied with white ribbon. At a seated wedding breakfast or reception a box of wedding cake is usually placed at each cover at the table. When the reception service is buffet, the boxes are stacked on a table near the door, so that each departing guest may take one.

Postponing the Shower Until After Baby's Arrival

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For some time I have been planning to give a Stork Shower for a friend of mine, but because of circumstances I have had to delay it. Two lovely showers have now been given for her and she received so many beautiufl and useful presents for her baby, who is to arrive very soon, that there doesn't seem to be a thing left that she needs. And so now I've been thinking about waiting until two or three months after the baby's birth and giving a Baby Shower, with guests bringing gifts appropriate for an older baby. My friend is having quite a bit of a financial struggle, ando I think this kind of shower might be more advantageous when she can dress her baby up in all the new fineries . . . and also we'd know whether to buy pink or blue items. Now what do you think about this, Mrs. Beeckman . . . would such a shower be in order?

A. W.

I completely agree with you that the Baby Shower held several weeks after the arrival of the baby would be most practical. As a matter of fact, in many communities the shower held after the baby's birth is considered in far better taste than the shower given before the baby is born.

A Wisp of a Hat or a Hair Ornament is Appropriate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To celebrate our Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary my husband and I are inviting twelve couples to come first to our house for cocktails and then to dine with us in a private dining-room of a hotel. I am wearing street-length dress of pastel shade, and would like to know if I should wear a hat.

B. J.

You might wear a wisp of a hat . . . a small, pert something fashioned of a few flowers or tiny feathers or ribbon-bows . . . or perhaps one of the hair ornaments now so fashionable. In other words, the fact that your dress is street-length would suggest that you wear some kind of headdress, but since the dinner is to be held in a private room, the headdress need not be the type of hat usually worn with an afternoon-type dress.

Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ross of Susana, Alta.

Miss Bette Ross, of Calgary, sister of the groom was the bride's only attendant.

The young couple will reside in Medicine Hat, Alta.

SHANNON—McGEE

On June 29, 1946, at 9.30 a.m., St. James' the Minor Church, Stirling, Ont., was the scene of marriage of Mary H. Bernadette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white bridal satin fashioned in train and cut in princess lines with bodice and frontal panels of French silk lace. Her silk net veil fell from a Juliet cap of seed pearls and lace, and extended into a long train. She carried a cascade bouquet of Killarney roses and bouvardia and wore a single strand of pearls to complete her bridal ensemble.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father and passed through a guard of honor of Wolf Cubs standing smartly at the alert.

Miss May Mead who attended her sister as maid of honor wore a gown of pink silk net over taffeta and carried a bouquet of mauve and pink sweet peas. Her short veil of pink net was attached to an old fashioned bonnet of net and flowers. The bridesmaids, Miss Mary Menzies and Miss Jeannie Hartley wore identical gowns of blue net over taffeta with tiny nets attached to white flowers in their hair.

WHEN CHILDREN STOP GROWING—

Because of a strange glandular disturbance these two children stopped growing two years ago. Judy Morgan adjusts the weight on the scale at Children's Hospital, in Pittsburgh, to see if her twin, Jimmy, seated on the scales, had gained any weight. Nurse Sarah Templeton supervises the weighing in of the handicapped four-year-olds. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. William Morgan of Tutle Creek, Pa. Judy is just 27 inches tall and weighs only 13 pounds. Jimmy, not quite 30 inches tall is 15½ pounds.

"What do you mean . . . I'm lucky?"

Lucky lad! Getting snagged on the wire in his effort to climb over a Hydro barrier . . . probably to recover a ball : : : may have saved his life. Some boys have not been so lucky.

Hydro energy is one of the finest things we have in Ontario to make for better living. But it can stop one from living, if you thoughtlessly give it a chance to flash through your body. Every possible precaution for safety is taken by your Hydro; but once in a while someone gets careless or "takes a chance", and tragedy strikes. A boy climbs a pole and touches a wire. Or he flies his kite near a Hydro line, and it contacts a high-voltage circuit and carries death or injury to whoever is holding it. Sometimes a storm breaks down a line and someone takes hold of the broken live wire with disastrous results. These are just examples of acts that are beyond the power of Hydro to prevent. Your Hydro can only warn of danger, and seek co-operation of parents and teachers and all who have influence with those who might expose themselves to that danger.

Hydro need never be a threat to anyone who:

1. Will not climb poles.
2. Will stay away from distribution lines and transformer stations.
3. Will keep away from fallen wires.

For your safety, in case of trouble immediately notify your nearest Hydro office. But never, never touch a fallen wire.

Crafty Henning Uses Mental Strategy to Whip Morgan In Third and Deciding Fall

George Temple, Brother of Shirley the Actress, Makes Good in First Appearance

Lee "The Scowl" Henning demonstrated to the wrestling faithful at the Hume Arena last night, that he has something between his ears besides mayhemic ideas, and ways and means to crush the opposition from a physical point of view.

For the crafty one used a brilliant piece of mental strategy in the third fall of the main bout between himself and the well-known ex-marine Toar Morgan, to win the fall and the match after both principals had one win chalked up to their respective credits in the first two falls.

Things weren't going so well for the pride of the Iowan corn belt in that third chukker, for the Marine had landed plenty and had the situation fairly well in hand. Toar was giving "La Scowl" the well-known works, when that worthy suddenly turned on the dashing leatherneck and tossed him willy-nilly out of the ring.

That, dear reader, is being done in the best of wrestling circles, but The Scowl added a bit of personal embellishment to the fracas when he followed the Toar out of the ring and started to tap-dance on the tonsils of the fallen gladiator from Lindsay.

Set to Take Poke

Spectators rose in their seats. One big husky was all set to take a poke at the Henning puss. A l'il ole lady rose up in righteous wrath and screamed her objections to the blue heavens in general and Referee Clifford Fox in particular.

The referee started the count, and the wily Henning kept one ear cocked on the Foxian intonations and both feet on the Adam's apple of La Toar. As Fox reached the eight mark "The Scowl" leaped gaily into the ring, retreated to a strategic position in a neutral corner, and had his flipper raised in victory when the leatherneck failed to get back into the roped arena. And that was that.

But the marine extended the "Scowl" to the limit of his bag of villainous tricks throughout the match. In fact at times he had the Iowan punch-dizzy from solid elbow smashes, and on one occasion chased him out of and around the ring much to the edification of the howling faithful.

But La Scowl is an opportunist, to say the least. During his occasional trips outside the ring, he garnished his bag of tricks with some tangible matter in the form of something or other he picked off the floor. He hid whatever it was in his trunks, or laid it atop a ringpost and for security reasons at times secreted it in his mouth.

Would Produce Object

When the opportunity presented itself, the Scowl would produce this mysterious object from its various hiding places and gently but oh so firmly massage the Morganian optics with it, leaving that gentleman with a more than average attack of blind staggers.

That procedure irked the faithful to no end of a degree, and at times it would have cheerfully tore the Scowl limb from limb. However, his strategy worked and won him the match, but M'sieu Morgan is far from satisfied. He didn't like the umpiring dished up by Mrs. Fox's little boy amid swears that if given what he calls an efficient official will take La Henning apart to see what makes him tick.

George Temple, the dashing marine, hero of Pearl Harbor and other marine bases east of here made a hit with the populace here on his first appearance last night. The handsome youngster, who resembles his famous motion picture star sister, Shirley, to no small degree, turned the tables on villainous Jan Gotch and pinned the rampaging Pole after eighteen minutes of aggresive action.

Looks Quite Small

Temple weighs 203 pounds but looked quite small against the heavier Gotch. He is not an amateur in the mat game by any chance and his performance here last night rates him a return engagement at any time.

Jules Strongbow, from Broken Arrow, Oklahoma, a 304 pound Indian was the bad man in the preliminary against Jim Goon Henry. The Goon met him blow for blow and got a popular decision at the end of 20 minutes fast action. Cliff Fox refereed all three bouts.

Assault to Start In Arlington Classic July 27

By JERYY LISKA

Chicago, July 6. (AP)—Assault, the King Galloper from King Ranch, Tex., came prancing into Arlington Park today for a crack at the $60,000 added Arlington classic July 27 and was confronted by a "grave-yard of champions" jinx.

Like few other racing strips, Arlington Park has been the scene of embarrassment for the best of them, including Equipoise, Discovery, Whirlaway, Seabiscuit, Johnstown, Bimelich and—just a few days ago—Armed, the National Handicap champion.

Theoretically, Assault's chief opposition in the classic will come from Spy Song whom the money-grabbing colt left eight lengths behind as the Kentucky Derby runner-up. But it could be William Hellis' Rippey, or Ed Lasker's Athene, a go-getting filly, or Maine Chance Farm's Harvey's Pal, among the eligibles, who may put the Arlington hex on Assault.

If the jinx is stampeded by Assault's flailing hooves, owner Robert J. Kleberg figures to add more than $70,000 to the $356,970 already earned by his colt in scoring eight victories in 16 starts.

Assault is shooting at the top cash-collecting record of $561,161 established by Whirlaway over a five-year period.

Snead Eighth U. S. Contender To Win Title

(By The Canadian Press)

By his victory yesterday at St. Andrews, Scotland, Sam Snead became the eighth American contender to win the British Open title, although two of the U. S. shotmakers accounted for seven victories between them since 1922. These were Walter Hagen, who took the title four times between 1922 and 1929, and Bobby Jones, who earned the British crown in 1926, 1927 and 1930. First to take the British Open was Jock Hutchison, Sr., winner in 1921. Others to follow were Jimmy Barnes, Tammy Armour, Gene Sarazen, and Denny Shute. The record of 283 for the British event is held by Sarazen.

Bill Veech, new president of the Cleveland Indians, made it plain yesterday Bob Feller, ace hurler, would remain with the American League club. Veeck said he had offers of $300,000 and more for the fireball twirler but Feller was not on the market.

Marcel Cerdan, middleweight champion of France, exchanged blows with Homman Williams of Chicago in a 10-round bout Sunday night in Paris. If he gets past Williams, the French battler is due to be matched by Mike Jacobs in a New York scrap.

The Grand Challenge Cup for eights in the Royal Henley Regatta on the Thames will see a final today between Britain's Leander Club and a crew from Zurich, Switzerland. The last winner in 1939 was Harvard University.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 6 — (AP) — At 11:30 last Thursday morning, Marshall Cassidy, steward at the Jamaica race track, was some miles away in Hickville, L.I. and overdue to start to work . . . Cassidy, who once taught flying, climbed into his sports plane and eight minutes later landed in the Jamaica infield . . . It was an appropriate gesture that he parked the plane behind the tote board, because that's where your dollars take wings.

One-minute Sports Page

Look for a lot of other National Football League clubs to follow the example of the Cleveland Rams, who just asked waiver on 93 players . . . There's a big surplus of talent for trading this year . . . The magazine Baseball Digest points out that only four of the 16 major league baseball clubs have captains this year: Giants: Walker Cooper; Cubs, Phil Cavarretta; Cards, Terry Moore, and Pirates, Al Lopez . . . Irv Mondschein, the N.Y.U. "whale" plans to play next football season. If they'll chalk a circle around him, he probably will break the record for throwing the 180-pound halfback.

Practice Makes Perfect

When the president of the Thibodeaux, La., club of the class 'D' Evangeline League took over the management of his club (a la Jorge Pasquel) he left one pitcher on the mound while he walked 19 batsmen . . . "When I sent 'em in to pitch, they gotta pitch," he explained . . . Apparently that doesn't apply to managers because the Thibodeaux Giants are operating under their fourth pilot this season, none other than Zeke Bonura.

End of the Line

Unnecessary publicity note on the Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano fight at Yankee Stadium July 25: "Indications are the crowd will be much larger than that at the recent heavyweight title fight in the same ball park" . . . It's obvious that the tennis players at Wimbledon were all Petra-fied, but would you say the American golfers at St. Andrews had a friend in Snead?

Battling Leader Of Int. League Is Al Clark

New York, July 6 (AP)— The individual batting leadership of the International League, high for more than a month was held by either Jackie Robinson or Alex Campanis of Montreal, was wrested away from the Royals' keystone combination during the past week by Al Clark of Newark Bears.

The injured Bear infielder-outfielder, including games of Wednesday, appeared in only four contests during the week. But in the 14 trips he made to the plate, Clark rapped out seven hits to boost his mark from .349 to .360, one point more than runner-up Lew Riggs of Montreal.

Robinson, who paced the loop with .356 a week ago, dropped seven points to .349 and into a third-place deadlock with Ed Robinson of Baltimore Orioles.

Although possessing a mere .297 batting average, Marv Rackley of Montreal paces the circuit in hits 83, runs scored, 66, and stolen bases 45.

Johnny McHale of Buffalo Bisons tops the home run hitters with 18 and also has batted in the most runs, 63.

Montreal's Cy Buker, boasting a 7-1 mark, has the best record among the hurlers who have been involved in six or more decisions.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

A Cleveland battery will likely start that all-important all-star game in Boston next Tuesday afternoon, according to baseball experts. On the mound will be Rapid Robert Feller and behind the plate his battery mate of the Cleveland Indians, Frankie Hayes. And here's one expert's selection of the team that will start for the American Leaguers: first base, Hank Greenberg, Detroit; second base, Bob Doerr, Boston, third base, George Stirweiss, New York; shortstop, Lou Boudreau, Cleveland; right field, Charlie Keller, New York; left field, Ted Williams, Boston; centre field, Dom DiMaggio, Boston.

Other pitchers will likely be Newhouser, Detroit; Dave Ferris, Boston; Spud Chandler, Tex Hughson, Boston and Jack Kramer, St. Louis.

Waiting around the bullpen will be Howie Pollett, St. Louis, Bucky Walters, Cincinnati; Kirby Higbe, Brooklyn, Mort. Cooper, Boston and Harry Brecheen, St. Louis.

In past years, the National League paid greater attention to the desire to give as many players as possible a chance to see action. The American League was inclined to stick to its opening choices, especially with Joe McCarthy running things. His idea was that this was a game to win, and win by as large a score as possible.

The All-Star game was born in Chicago in 1933, as an added attraction of the World's Fair there. That the idea was suggested in various places long before 1933, there is no denying. But that the mid-season interlude became a fixture may be credited largely to Arch Ward, sports director of the Chicago Aribune.

Dan Daniel, writing in the Sporting News, doubts if the magnates at that time had any idea that they were picking up an annual affair. However, with 49,200 fans paying their way into Comiskey Park, the first inter-league fracas proved so interesting, so alluring, so potentially important, that strong popular clamor for making it a yearly affair arose.

For some years the idea of calling a three-day recess in July to play a game, out of which no magnate got any profit, did not appeal to a few of the club owners. But that attitude no longer exists.

The first thing Commissioner Albert B. Chandler did after his election in April, 1945, was to make an effort to reinstate the All-Star game. Finding it too late to do anything effective he announced that the contest would be revived in 1946.

So here it is—Tuesday, July 9, at Fenway Park in Boston!

That was a neat bit of baseball pastiming at the Trenton Air Station the other gloaming when "Moose" Matthews' Flyers and Port Hope staged a ten-innings battle to a one-all tie. Al Wade, tall Flyer right-hander went the route for the service lads with Bateman starting for Port Hope and giving way to Wood around the fourth innings. The Ports scored early in the game and the Flyers tied up the pastime in the ninth. The squads played another scoreless innings and decided to call it a day.

Flyers and Napanee will play their postponed game at the Alemite Field on Wednesday of next week, which is an open date for the league, Prexy Don Thomas announced today. Another game will be arranged for Thursday, also an open date and it is probable Latta and SWACOS will get their postponed tilt off their chests, to even up the loop.

Frank Dyer, the Picton pitching wizard, lost a heart-breaker the other day down Kingston way. The ambidextrous youngster tossed a two-hitter against Hull Volants but his team the Locos finished up on the short end of a 3-1 score. Dyer is highly thought of down east and will likely be called back to pro ranks when he has gained more experience. He is only a youngster and has plenty of time ahead of him.

Life for umpires in the Border League has not, apparently been a path of roses, according to reports from the east. Three umps have tossed in the sponge because of fan and player trouble and at the present time it looks as though the whole shebang will seek other arbiting pastures.

According to Don Miguel Rodden, Kingston sports scrivener,

In Sherbrooke Umpires John Reilly and Bob Smith are alleged to have been assaulted by fans who encountered them outside the baseball park and it was then that they arrived at the conclusion that the time had arrived for them to vacate their hazardous and thankless tasks.

In Sherbrooke the fans have greeted adverse decisions with showers of pop bottles and other debris, a fine time being had by all the rowdies. Before resigning Umpires Reilly and Smith had the foresight to demand police protection before leaving the park but apparently they were very much on their own when the showdown came.

Dick Kopke points out that the umpires invited such actions when early in the campaign they did not rule with hands of iron. The same suggestion was made long ago by this observer. The men in blue were inclined to be lenient, they realizing that attainment of perfection or anything approaching that end was impossible in the new league. But in adhering to that stand they helped to make matters worse.

Six umpires were originally appointed to direct traffic in the Border League and it has been alleged that each agreed to accept $200 a month while paying his own expenses, a figure not calculated to make any of them wealthy. Those hardy individuals were: Jim Swan, Toronto; Leo Fournier, Sherbrooke; John Reilly, Newark, N.J.;; Martin Maxwell, Hazel Park, Michigan; Stephen Malcovic, Johnstown, N.Y.; and Bob Smith, Holyoke, Mass.

Tigers, Paced by Cullenbine, Demonstrate They Are Not Yet out of American Loop Race

Win Six of Last Eight Games to Cut 2½ Games Off Red Sox Lead

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve O'Neill's battered and bruised Detroit Tigers, all but counted out of the American League pennant race, were back on their feet today ready to resume their quest for their second straight flag.

The injury-riddled Tigers, hovering around the 500-mark all season with true championship spirit, have come back to win six of their last eight games to cut 2 1-2 games off the Red Sox owesome lead and now trail by 11 games.

On the surface it may appear next to impossible nor the Bengals to close the wide gap that separates them from the Red Sox, but stranger things have happened in baseball.

The Tigers moved up to within 3 1-2 games of second place yesterday by whipping Cleveland Indians 7-5 in a twilight tussle. Roy Cullenbine continued his terrific slugging since his return to the regular lineup 10 days ago. He smashed a pair of homers against his former teammates to lead the Tigers' attack.

The Red Sox increased their margin to 7 1-2 games over the runner-up Yankees, coming from behind to defeat the Athletics 5-2 with a four-run rally in the eighth. Joe Dobson went the route for his eighth victory.

Beat Old Teammates

Goody Rosen, sold by Brooklyn Dodgers to New York Giants earlier this season, singled in the ninth to score Johnny Mize with the run that gave the Giants a 7-6 victory over the Brooks. The defeat narrowed the National League leading Dodgers' margin to six games over the runner-up St. Louis Cardinals, who shaded Chicago Cubs 1-0.

Harry Brecheen twirled the shutout for the Redbirds besting the Cubs' Claude Passeau, who lost despite giving up only two hits. Brercheen won his own game when he scored Ervin Dusak from third in the eighth inning with a fly ball.

In another pitching duel between Pittsburgh's Rip Sewell and Cincinnati's Bucky Walters, the Reds outlated the Pirates 4-3 to dump the Bucs into the National League cellar behind the Giants.

Washington's Bucky Newsom, presented with a six-run second inning lead, coasted to a 6-1 triumph over the Yankees.

Cliff Fannin, making his first major league start, turned in splendid shutout achievement as he pitched St. Louis Browns to a 1-0 decision over Chicago White Sox. In addition to holding the opposition to two hits, Fannin scored the winning run in the ninth.

Philadelphia Phillies and Boston Braves were not scheduled.

TRUCK BODIES OF WOOD

Washington, July 6 — (AP)— A report that Russia is making truck bodies out of wood because of a steel shortage was brought back from Moscow by R. J. Thomas, vice president of the United Auto Workers, (C.I.O.).

Thomas said the Stalin automobile plant in Moscow is turning out 165 wooden-bodied trucks a day on an eight-hour work shift.

WISNOCK HAS TWO 67'S TO WIN ONT. OPEN GOLF TITLE

Burlington Golf Club, July 6 (CP)—Nick Wisnock, a Toronto Scarboro amateur golfer of more than ordinary ability, went around the Burlington course yesterday in 67 strokes—not once, but twice. His 134 total, five under par on each round, was more than ample to win the Ontario Open Golf Championship.

Wisnock had spent six years at the course in former times but even so his golf yesterday bordered on the miraculous. In the morning he went out in 33 and noon he took 34 going out and roared back in 34. In the afternoon boomed back in 33. On both rounds his game was virtually mechanically-perfect.

Second in the open and low professional was Willie Lamb of Toronto Lambton. Lamb walloped par for a 69 in the morning but took 71 in the afternoon for 140.

Wisnock had been top Canadian in the Canadian Open at Montreal's Beaconfield course last week, with 288 for 72 holes which put him in a 12th-place tie. He'd won the combined Ontario Open-Amateur in 1944, and last year was runner-up to Phil Farley of Toronto for the Ontario title.

His 134 set a new competitive scoring record for the Ontario Open. The 67's equalled the course record which he set himself some years ago.

[illegible] in the list with 141 was Bob Gray of Toronto, and tied at 143 were three more pro's, Bobby Burns, Gordon Brydson and Bill Kerr.

Bob Keith and Bobby Lamb finished at 146, and a cluster at 147 included Dick Borthwick, and amateurs Whitey Latrop of Welland and Tim Twiss of Toronto.

SWEET CAPORAL CIGARETTES

Lesson No. 1638.
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Your pair may be perfect bidders. Your system may be the most accurate in the world. You may arrive at the correct final contract every time. Yet there are times when you will be defeated.

Your defeat may be due to an unexpected division of the cards outstanding. Or to the plan of play you attempted. Or to some clever work on the part of your opponents.

Ordinarily, opponents put up their toughest defence when they stick to standard rules and signals. On occasion, however, a breach of custom will bring startling results in their favor.

South was declarer at five diamonds in this deal:

NORTH

♣K Q J 6 3

WEST	EAST
♠K Q 10 6 3	♠J 8 7 5 2

SOUTH

♣9 7 4

South had bid both red suits. Dummy had bid clubs. The standard lead from west would be the king of spades. This is a sequence top and spades is the only suit not bid by opponents.

With a lead of the spade king, south will make his contract. He does it by taking the first trick and pulling two rounds of trumps. That way, he will lose only one club and one heart.

Generally, it is contrary to sound policy to lead a suit bid by opponents. Generally, also, it is good policy to lead a sequence top in preference to a singleton.

But when this deal was played, west felt it in his bones that this was a desperate situation. He had a hunch that only an unusual act of goldurnity could blast a hole in the contract.

So, he chased caution and custom from his mind and led his lone club. East won this with the ace and returned a club for west to cop with a trump. It happened that fast.

Later, west got home with his heart king. This was just enough to kill the old game. So, maybe it pays to be ignorant.

Hollywood, July 6 — (AP) — At 38, Robert Cummings continues his lengthy career as the screen's top juvenile.

Not that the Joplin, Mo., native is limited to playing rah-rah boys with cable-stitched sweaters and tennis rackets; he specializes in mature acting roles. But he managed to retain his youthful appearance despite his age. At present in "The Chase" he is playing a United States Navy veteran of 27.

"I've been playing juveniles since I started in show business in 1929," he told me, "and that has not always been good.

"In pictures they want an actor to be aged and worn down before they hand him meaty roles. Then they give him a toupee, some additional teeth, lift his face and fasten it with fish skin. Presto — he's a great star." A glance at the ages of the top male stars will support this.

A new entry has been added to the radio commentator ranks — James Roosevelt. The late president's eldest son has started on a local station five nights a week for an appliance firm. He may well branch out to a wider audience.

Adhering to a new deal line, Jimmy has an excellent speaking voice, as polished as any actor's. He speaks a little faster than did his father, but the phrasing and words like "war" and "world" are highly reminiscent.

New York, July 6 (CP)—Not all the headlines that are written in New York appear across the top of page one. Some of them are concocted for the sole purpose of helping to keep the ever-changing script of "The State of the Union" up-to-date.

The Howard Lindsey-Russell Crouse political satire is constantly under revision to keep its jibes at Washington manners topical. One of the shifting highlights comes about 9:40 p.m. each evening when Ralph Bellamy, in the role of a presidential nominee, reads to his wife, a headline from a newspaper—a headline written backstage sometimes just before the curtain rises.

The nature of the line is important for anything too serious or too controversial can kill the scene. The least successful one yet was the time Mr. Bellamy read: "Lord Haw-Haw to Hang Tomorrow."

The best-received was during the evening Winston Churchill attended the play early this year. The interpolated line read by Mr. Bellamy—"After two strenuous weeks Churchill relaxes in New York seeing plays"—stopped the show for nearly two minutes.

Other shows have frequent ad libs—although the audience is not always aware of them. Ray Bolger, star of "Three to Make Ready," for instance, never "sets" a dance, but instead lets the audience-mood and his own inventive guide him through an impromptu routine whenever he feels inclined.

Orson Welles, careening through his musical, "Around the World," ad libs a different magic act every night although the patter remains similar.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine have been playing opposite each other for some two decades and hurling ad libs most of the time. The ad libs are often better than the lines and stay in the next night—until one or the other thinks of a further improvement.

SNEAD STAGES STIRRING FINISH TO WIN TROPHY

First Time in Thirteen Years American Has Won British Open

By VIC HACKLER

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 6 (AP)—After a lapse of 13 years the old silver trophy that goes to the winner of the British open golf championship is headed back to the United States today in the proud possession of Sam Snead, who snatched it from an international field with a four-stroke victory.

The 33-year-old Virginian, known as Slamming Sammy because of his powerful drive staged a stirring finish to cop one of the biggest titles in golf at the St. Andrews fairways yesterday with a two under par 290 for the 72-hole course.

Other major contenders all finished badly, Dai Rees with 80, Bobby Locke 76, Henry Cotton and Johnny Bulla 79, with the last three all putting three on the home green. Bulla and Licke tied for second place with 294. Snead had a bad outward 40 and it looked as if he were blowing too.

But Sam began his drive on the 324 yard 10th, getting down in par after his tee shot languished on the edge of the green. He got pars on the 14th, where his second shot was just short of the 564 yard hole, another par on the 15th then one over par five on the 16th where his approach was short.

It was there, Snead said later, that he learned he had a chance to win. He sent out one of his booming drives on road hole, fired No. 5 iron and sank the ball in two putts for a birdie four, and on the final hole a drive, short pitch and two clam putts and it was all over.

One stroke back of Bulla and Locke at 295 were Henry Cotton, Dai Rees, Norman Von Nida and Charlie Ward. Still further in arrears were Joe Kirkwood, 298 and Lawson Little 299.

In expressing thanks for the hospitality shown him and in accepting the cup, his own medal and £150 ($600) prize money, Snead told the crowd he hoped to be back next year with the Ryder Cup team.

He said later that he had been misinformed and that the Ryder Cup match would be played in the United States in 1947. So Snead said he would have to come back anyway to defend the open title.

Dispatch Says Charges False

Moscow, July 6 — (AP)—Pravda said Friday in a dispatch from Baku that George V. Allen, United States Ambassador to Iran, had made false charges against the Soviet Union recently in a talk with members of the Central Committee of the People's Party in Iran.

Mr. Allen "indulged in a number of attacks against the Soviet Union, trying to convince his listeners that the Soviet Union's policy has directed against the independence of Iran," Pravda claimed.

Ottawa, July 6 (CP)—Ottawa sport fans got a notable lift this week with the announcement that T. P. (Tommy) Gorman was leaving his post as manager of the Montreal Forum and the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens to promote sport and entertainment in his old home town.

Gorman says he will confine his future activities to running the Ottawa auditorium, which he bought last winter, and the Connaught Jockey Club at nearby Aylmer, Que., which is presenting 28 days of racing this summer.

However, Mr. average fan is firmly convinced Gorman will branch out in other directions. The canny Irishman who left his job as sports editor of the Ottawa Citizen to embark on a sensational promotional career in New York, Mexico, Chicago and Montreal was never one to let grass grow in his vicinity.

He is certain to take a lively interest in the Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, now controlled by the auditorium.

Gorman also might cast more than a casual eye over the current football and lacrosse situations here. Lacrosse is staging a lively come-back with the five-team city loop this year and Canada's national game was Tommy's first love. In the 1900's he starred with the Ottawa Capitals and later was a member of the Canadian Olympic team.

Incidentally, a great name in lacrosse came back into the news here recently with the appearance of Chief Andrew Paull, President of the North American Indian Brotherhood, before a parliamentary committee on Indian affairs.

Brilliantly pleading the case of his copper-skinned brothers for a better deal in Canada was the same Paull who managed and coached the Northshore Indians lacrosse team of British Columbia in 1936 when it became the first all-Indian team ever to gain the Dominion finals at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto.

GLENN MOULDER TOSSES 4-HITTER TO BEAT LEAFS

Syracuse Chiefs Drop Game to Orioles and Now 7½ Games Behind Montreal

(By The Associated Press)

If Baltimore's Howie Moss can continue his current pace, the International League, for the first time in its 63-year history, will feature a regular player who has driven in more runs than he has made hits.

Including last night's game when he almost single-handedly led Baltimore Orioles to a 10-3 victory over Syracuse, the slugging third baseman has driven home 57 mates on 55 hits. Moss belted two home runs and batted in six runs to enable Ray Flanigan to coast to his sixth victory.

The record books fail to reveal a single International Leaguer who has totaled more R.B.I.'s than hits. The closest to it was Joe Hauser of the 1930 Orioles who knocked in 175 runs on 193 hits while establishing a league record of 63 home runs.

By losing, the Chiefs dropped 7½ games behind the pace-setting Montreal Royals who beat Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-0, behind the four-hit tossing of Glenn Moulder.

Newark solidified its third place position by defeating the last place Jersey City Giants 5-2.

Ducky Detweiler's first home run of the year, which came in the ninth inning with the bases loaded, gave Rochester Red Wings an 8-5 decision over Buffalo Bisons.

HAMILTON WINS 18-12

Owen Sound, July 6 (CP) — Hamilton Tigers defeated the Owen Sound Georgians 18-12 last night in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association fixture, coming from behind with a heavy attack in the last 20 minutes.

George Masters scored six goals for the Tigers and Jack Gair got three. George Mackie and Tank Teather each got two, and the others came from McKenzie, Davidson, Southwick, Grant and Gillespie.

Jack Mason led the Georgians with three goals and Harry Lumley also got three. Russ Slater scored twice, and Woods, Doug Gillespie, Burlington and White scored singles.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

Pitcher Mike Yasinchuk of Porcupine Combines yesterday did what every hurler has been urged to do since baseball began—he won his own ball game. Yasinchuk's second inning single drove in the one run of the game and gave the Combines a 1-0 victory over Kirkland Lake. The win put Porcupine in second spot in the Temiskaming Baseball League.

Other senior games yesterday saw Waterloo Tigers beat Kitchener Panthers 9-7 in the intercounty circuit and St. Catharines beat Merritton-Thorold Thormer 5-3 in the Niagara district loop.

More than 1,500 fans — largest Waterloo crowd of the year—saw the Tigers uncork a fourth inning barrage that netted four runs. First baseman Dahmer led the Tigers parade by hitting three safeties, one of them a triple, and driving in two runs.

Art Crococke, on the mound for the Saints, pitched three hit ball to make up for his mates' seven errors. Eight St. Catharines men batted in the second when they loaded the bases twice and scored three runs.

In yesterday's junior tilts, London beat Hamilton Mahoneys 9-6 in the Intercounty League, while in the Niagara district group Al Spear pitched a no-hitter to give Fort Erie an 11-2 victory over Thorold.

First Road Map In Five Years Issued in Ontario

Toronto, July 6 (CP) — The Ontario Department of Highways announced distribution of a new road map, for the first time in five years to Ontario motorists.

Main change in the new map —300,000 now are being distributed—is in the marking of the highways and country roads with a broken line showing unpaved sections and a solid line indicating paved roads.

Plans also are under way for a new road map of the northern section of the province, because of the construction of new roads in the mining areas, highway department officials said.

Sydney, Australia, July 3. (CP) —Two Australian ex-servicemen have created their own post-war job. They have started the "Service Plus" bureaut King's Cross, Sydney.

A girl who scoured Sydney looking for a slip from waist to hem to go under a midriff evening frock rang the bureau at noon. At 4.15 p.m. the slip was delivered.

Said the founders, F. J. Henderson and A. S. Russell:

"People won't believe it when we say we'll do anything for them. We'll go out into the suburbs and do their shopping, bring it to their back door.

"For people travelling, we buy train tickets, reserve seats, call for them at their hotel, lift their heavy luggage, have a boy take them to the train, see them safely in their seats, buy the evening paper for them to read.

"People lost the keys to cabin trunks and suitcases and call us. We get them open. One man going to England couldn't get crates in which to pack food. We found a man to make them".

PROBE INTO LIQUOR SALES

Windsor, July 6 (CP)—The probe into alleged illegal liquor sales at the Sandwich Street West Ontario Liquor Control Board store took a new turn when a charge of unauthorized sales was read in court against Samuel J. Leboeuf, assistant manager of the store who now is suspended from duty.

The charge alleges Leboeuf made the inauthorized sales to C. J. Cahill of Campbell Avenue. The latter was fined $100 and costs by Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan for illegal possession of liquor. Involved was 24 bottles of whiskey identified as having come from the Sandwich Street West store.

Ottawa, July 6 (CP) — The parliament buildings have always been a mecca for summer tourists and this season seems headed for a new record in numbers.

And as usual the two favorite activities are the elevator trip up the lofty heights of the Peace Tower and posing with the handsome redcoated Mounties patrolling the grounds.

Most of the American tourists are interested in the Mounties and from their queries, they obviously have got acquainted with the famous force through fiction rather than through official record.

They want to know how many bad men each constable has shot it out with, the location of the stable where the famous horses are kept, and even how many Indians have been rounded up and civilized in the last few months.

The window-dressing in scarlet tunics and broad-rimmed Stetsons under the dignified arch of the Peace Tower is a boring and onerous chore for most Mounties.

Tall, blond constable Ivan G. Edson of Montreal and Winnipeg estimates he has posed with visitors for 800 amateur photographers and answered 1,000,000 questions since last may.

Fish Story: Finance Minister Ilsley looked more tired than usual when he slumped into his chair in the sweltering heat of the Commons chamber last week after his marathon budget address.

But he managed a smile when J. M. Macdonnell (PC-Muskoka Ontario) opposition financial critic, said that when the minister "takes our shirts he still managed to retain our good will."

The minister was persuaded to take one of his rare long weekends after the speech and he went to the Saguenay area of Quebec to fish with Reconstruction Minister Howe. Mr. Ilsley got a nice fat, string of 16 trout, although he is a novice at the sport.

A parliamentarian, commenting on the catch, said it was nothing when one considered the number of taxpayers Mr. Ilsley "hooked" each year.

HEARTBREAK

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER 17

He smiled rather bleakly but there seemed nothing more either of them could say. The following Sunday Kitty telephoned Donna.

"I saw Boris at Russian Center last night," Kitty said. "Is it true what he told me?"

"Yes, Kitty I'm going to be married."

"What happened to Carl Newton?" Kitty demanded.

Kitty's direct approach usually amused Donna, but this time it wasn't funny.

"You know as much about it as I do," Donna answered coldly. "How's Suzzane?"

"Suzanne was married several weeks ago. She never saw him again.

"Well, I shan't either," Donna assured her.

Yet she thought of him often. He stood like a menacing shadow in the corner of her mind threatening her future. Shopping for the honeymoon she was planning with Robert, she found herself wondering how Carl would like whatever it was she was buying. She also held long imaginary conversations with him justifying her decision, as if it mattered to him what she did. She remembered, ah, how she remembered every little thing he had ever said and done. He couldn't be as exciting as her memories of him. No doubt she was exaggerating the power he had over her. If she could see him again, she would laugh at the whole thing.

Outwardly she showed no sign of the doubts which harassed her. With Helen she made plans for a small church wedding. Together they addressed invitations and over 500 engraved announcements. Working during the day, seeing Robert at night, was a strain on Donna's vitality. Perhaps that was why she seemed to be lost in a fog of fatigue and futility.

"It will be different after we're married," she told herself again and again. She had to force herself to return Robert's fatuous smile. It was the same smile he had worn when he showed her his collection of porcelain birds. She wished she could forget that. Also what Boris had said. Didn't a girl have a right to want a home of her own? What was wrong about that? Even her father had admitted that his marriage with Helen had been based upon mutual trust and affection rather than mad romance. But they were different. There was none of Vanya in them as there was in Donna.

The holidays were over. Robert had given her a star sapphire for an engagement ring. It was superb and Donna cared nothing for it. She would have preferred a less expensive, more colorful stone, yet she knew Robert with his exquisite taste had chosen the most beautiful ring he could find. She told herself she appreciated his thoughtfulness.

They were to be married on Tuesday, the 15th of January. There was to be a rehearsal at the church early Monday evening so that Robert would have plenty of time for his bachelor dinner.

Donna watched the rehearsal while Helen played the part of the bride. It was bad luck, she said, for the real bride to practice. It was very simple since there were to be no attendants. Donna would walk down the aisle on the arm of her father. The church was not decorated yet. Tomorrow there would be candles and fragrant white flowers at the altar. Donna could picture herself kneeling on the white satin cushion with the bridal veil enveloping her. It was like seeing her own ghost....

She smiled at Robert as he kissed her goodbye.

"This is our last night apart, Donna."

She wished he hadn't said that. Because suddenly she knew she must use it. Tomorrow she would belong to him, but tonight was her. She must see Carl again. Just to say goodbye. Just to prove to herself that nothing was really there. Since it was Monday, he would be at his Boys Club, but the door of his house was never locked. She would sit by the fire and wait for him.

Making an excuse to her parents of returning to the office, she took a taxi to the once familiar address on North Beach. With a pounding heart she climbed the steps, opened the bright blue door and stepped inside.

Everything was the same. As if she had never been away. The big chair drawn to the fireplace where logs and kindling were ready to light. A large volume, one of the same he used to read to her, was on the table beside his pipe.

Donna decided against the fire. She would wait so that they might watch the first bright burst of flame together. Wrapped in her fur coat, she huddled into his chair with a contentment she had not known for weeks. Until he came she would pretend everything was as it used to be. Even the dress she had worn — the old beige crepe—was one of his favorites.

It was a little after ten when she heard his car stop in the street. Then there were footsteps and out of the cold night air a girl's happy laugh. Donna thought her heart would stop. He was bringing somebody else into the warmth of his little house. What would he think when he saw Donna? But he would not see her. She must leave before they entered. Thinking only of her escape, she ran through the kitchen into the garden. Moonlight bathed the shrine in heavenly beauty but Donna did not even look at it. Too late she remembered that the garden was enclosed by a wall covered with climbing roses. There was no exit except through the house. Would it be possible for her to climb the wall.

Panic gave her strength. Her hands sought frantically for a foothold among the tangled rose bushes, but they were not strong enough to bear her weight. Only by stepping on a bench could she reach the top of it. As she did this her dress caught on a thorn. She tore it loose without regard for the material and leaped down into the vacant lot. She was sobbing now with fright and shame. Why had she been so foolish? She should have known that Carl Newton would always have someone....

She had torn her dress. Her hands were scratched and bleeding, too, but now at last she was through with him. Marriage to Robert was the only answer. In a few hours the ceremony would be over and she would never even think of Carl again.

Her wedding day was bright and cold. It suited her mood. Never had she felt more certain of herself than she did that morning as she finished packing the bags which were Helen's gift. Her trunks were locked and ready to be sent later. All through the confusion of last minute details, Donna remained calm. The reception was to be held at a hotel. There would be an elaborate wedding cake and champagne.

"I do hope everything will go smoothly," Helen said as they drove to the church.

Donna was carrying her veil in a huge white box. A consultant from the bridal department of one of the stores would arrange it after they had arrived. The moments went flying now. A few people were already entering the church, as the Meade car was parked by the side entrance.

"You girls run along, I'll see you later," her father said.

Then they were in the basement of the dim, cold church where the bridal consultant was waiting. A sheet had been spread on the floor of one of the small classrooms. The last pin had been put in the veil when there was a knock on the door. Helen opened it to Carl Newton. His face was white and set. His eyes harder than ever as, ignoring the other two women, he spoke to Donna.

"I must speak to you alone," he said.

Helen said, "Oh, no."

But Donna cried, "Just for a moment, Helen Please."

"We'll be right outside, Donna, but remember, dear, you haven't much time."

The door closed behind them.

"That girl with me last night was the redhead," he explained. "She helps the same nights I do at the Boys' Club."

Donna said nothing, but her eyes were fastened on his face. Yes, he was the same. Just as she remembered him.

"You can't do this, Donna. You mustn't do it. You still love me."

Trembling from head to foot she answered, "Not any more."

"Then why did you come to my house last night? Don't deny it. I found a piece of your dress caught in the rosebushes."

"All right, I did then. I came to say goodbye."

"You came because you hoped I might have changed my mind," he said calmly. "And I have. I've been a fool."

"Isn't it a little late to find that out?"

"No. If you really love me, you'll walk out of here with me now."

"But, Carl, I can't do that. It wouldn't be fair to Robert."

"Would it be fair to marry him loving me?"

"He knows it," she faltered.

For the first time since entering the room he smiled, and the sweetness of it gripped her heart.

"I love you, too," he said. "Now take off that veil and let's get out of here."

"I'll have to tell him. I'll have to give him his ring."

"Write a note and give it to your stepmother."

With shaking fingers Donna wrote on the piece of paper he handed her. "Forgive me, but I can't go through with it. Please try to understand why."

Helen was knocking on the door, "Your father wants to see you, Donna."

The door opened to admit John Meade, impeccably attired with a flower in his buttonhole.

"I'm going to hurt you again, Father," Donna said taking off her veil. "I guess I'm more like my mother after all. Just another wild Russian."

She did not wait for him to answer. Thrusting her ring and the note into Helen's hand, she gathered up her train and fled out the back door to Carl's car.

"Where are we going?" she asked.

"Home for your clothes. They're already packed, aren't they?"

Donna nodded. The house was vacant. They picked up the bags and carried them down the stairs. Neither spoke as they drove to Carl's house. He helped her out and followed her inside, depositing the bags by the front door. Donna said faintly, "Now what?" Her whole future rested on his answer and she knew it.

Carl said matter-of-factly, "You'd better change into a suit or something so we can get ourselves married."

"Married? she repeated. "Yes. Of course!"

Then a strange thing happened. Something which had never occurred before in all Donna's drama filled life. With her wedding dress swirling about her, the bride fainted.

$119,000 is Found As Police Probe Disturbance

New York, July 6 — (AP) — A complaint to police by neighbors who said they heard outcries coming from a Manhattan east side apartment resulted in the finding of more than $119,000 in the apartment in bills, gold coin and bank books.

Miss Mary Frankenrich, an elderly woman who was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation, said the money belonged to her. Neighbors said she had thrown water from windows and doors, pounded on the walls and cried out repeatedly.

The woman showed police a black box which contained bank books showing deposits of $108,000, war bonds valued at $8,500, and $2,700 in cash, including $50 in gold coin. She told police she feared for the safety of her money.

Defence Lawyer for Hess Ignores Court Warning

Nuernberg, Germany, July 6 — (AP)—The war crimes tribunal abruptly shut off a defence speech for Rudolf Hess Friday after his counsel ignored one warning after another and continued an attack upon the Versailles Treaty.

The counsel, Alfred Seidl, was told by the court to rewrite his summary and delete personal opinions about the treaty.

Princess Charms London

Cheering Sight to See the Future Queen Going About London as She Pleases Without Guards or Ceremony After Years of War Restrictions and Dangers

(By Eileen Ashcroft in The London Daily Mail)

"Ma'am" to the world, on the King's instructions, but still 'Lilibeth" to her family, Princess Elizabeth, just past her 20th. birthday, is becoming a frequent visitor to London's West End.

Now that she is undertaking more arduous public engagements she seeks every opportunity to escape from Palace routine with a party of young friends to have an evening at a show dining and dancing afterwards.

Nearly every new West End show receives a surprise visit from the future Queen, sometimes in a small party with other girls and Guards officers as escorts, sometimes accompanied only by her sister and a chaperon.

Restaurants, such as the Bagatelle and Quaglino's, have doubled business since the Princess began dancing to their rumba bands.

These supper-out parties are informal. There is no Court supervision.

When the Princess was leaving "The Sleeping Beauty" ballet at Covent Garden— her second visit—her large, black limousine moved off, and an excited young man in evening dress pushed through the crowd shouting "Hi!"

He was one of the party stranded in the crowd and the big car slowed down and took him aboard while the Princess roared with laughter.

The Princess was looking particularly lovely that evening. I had not seen her for some years, last time in bobby socks.

Now she looked like a West End glamor girl with long fluffy bob, the new pale pink makeup (only powder and lipstick, no eye make-up), a shimmering evening gown of ice-blue satin and large earrings to match.

An ermine fur coat usually covered her evening frocks, most of which are made from uncouponed net and tulle in beautiful pastel shade of pink and blue, sometimes white.

The Princess is fond of real flowers and often wears a spray of gardenias or camellias, her favorites.

She wears little jewellery, a tiny wrist watch, a string of pearls and sometimes a brooch or necklace.

She has the art of unself-consciousness when she is of "off-duty" and relaxes happily with her friends, talking, laughing, dancing and thoroughly enjoying the show or dinner.

She likes the rumba, especially and other hot rhythm dances and does not hesitate to ask the band to play her favorite numbers.

For evening wear and dancing the Princess likes high heels, and her friends manage to keep her supplied with real silk stockings.

Her escorts are many and usually Guards officers, like Lieut. Petherick and Lieut. Neyland, who have been included in her parties in the West End, at the Palace and at Windsor.

But there is nothing serious in any of these friendships and no regular escort as yet.

The Princess has never been in love and, being a young person with a mind of her own, will be certain to have some say in choosing her future consort when the time comes.

The Princess' supper parties are not costly. Her friends choose from the restaurant's ordinary menu and drink what wines are available.

She pays her share from her $480-a-week private allowance, which does not make her so well off as it sounds, for she has many calls on her generosity for charity.

Sometimes Princess Elizabeth is the guest at supper parties given by her friends.

Princess Elizabeth has her own flat in Windsor Castle, with duck-egg blue walls, and a spacious suite of rooms in Buckingham Palace.

When she is 21 she will undoubtedly set up her own residence. But being a member of a very happy family, it will probably not be far from the home of her parents.

The Princess' days are full of hard work. She must study politics, statecraft, economics, industry and languages. She speaks fluent French, German and Italian and is now learning Afrikaans for her coming visit to South Africa with her parents.

Her social duties are heavy. she has named a battleship, opened hospital wings and inspected numerous depots, service units and youth organizations.

She is Colonel-in-Chief of her own regiment of Guards. Her most frequent ornament is her regiment's badge in diamonds worn on her lapel.

The Princess is not fond of sports, like tennis and golf, and shows no great aptitude for them. Riding is her hobby, and she is a good horsewoman and a judge of horseflesh.

She takes a keen interest in her father's racing stable, and is expected to start one of her own shortly.

The Princess is much more to Londoners than a glamorous personality "doing the sights" of the West End. They regard her with affection and admiration. And there is no idle curiosity in their eyes as they crowd around her car and wave to her as she drives through the streets.

They love her because she is her father's daughter, and the granddaughter of the dearly loved "Old King." And they love her for her charming simplicity and her happy smile.

They admire her too, for the way she tackles her difficult job and works hard at it. And for her initiative, which she has shown on many occasions, as at the time she announced that she wanted to join the A.T.S. (WAC) and took the usual course in Army transport driving.

Since then the Princess has often been seen at the wheel of her own car.

Her ladies-in-waiting for her official duties are usually older, married women, selected by the Court.

Her girl friends for off-duty hours she chooses as she likes. Some are this year's debutantes, some are her former A.T.S. friends. She sees quite a lot, too, of her royal cousins.

But it is a cheering sight in this difficult first year after the war years of restrictions and dangers to see the young future Queen going about London as she pleases without guards or ceremony, her safety and privacy respected and safe-guarded by the affections of the ordinary Londoner.

ARABS THREATEN CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE CAMPAIGN

Palestine Plan Suggested By Truman Rapped

Arabs Drafting New Vote Against Illegal Entry

Jerusalem, July 8 — (CP) — Threats of a possible Arab civil disobedience program in protest against Jewish immigration to Palestine were coupled today with an Arab slap at President Truman and a suggestion that he open the United States to Jewish immigrants "if he really is in sympathy" with them.

Dr. H. F. Khalidi of the Arab higher executive committee said that group was drafting a new note to Britain warning that unless the British government took immediate steps to halt the illegal entry of Jews into Palestine there would be "a wave of non-co-operation by Arabs, followed possibly by civil disobedience."

"After that," the spokesman said, "the next step may be mass demonstrations by Arabs, and this executive will refuse to accept responsibility for them."

The executive committee disclosed it already had drafted a letter to President Truman accusing him of "flagrant, empty and irresponsible statements." The note was in reply to a White House statement Tuesday that the United States was prepared to assume technical and financial responsibility for the transportation of 100,000 European Jewish refugees to Palestine in accordance with recent recommendations of the Anglo-American inquiry commission.

The Arab committee said it "would have liked to ignore this last statement and attach no importance to it — coming as it does at a time when President Truman is begging for Jewish votes in the forthcoming presidential election."

Asked to Open U. S. Doors

"We wish to remind the president, however," the note added, "that if he is really genuine in sympathizing with the Jews and their plight in Christian Europe, we advise him to open his White House doors to them or the doors of his American continent, which can absorb not only 100,000 but millions of them.

"The executive wishes to remind President Truman that it is not within his power or jurisdiction nor that of others to determine the future and destiny of this Arab country."

The general situation in Palestine appeared a little easier during the weekend. The only hint of violence occurred in the Jewish city of Tel Aviv, where three unidentified armed men entered the government offices, overpowered a guard and burned several documents and identity cards.

The underground Jewish radio, "voice of Israel," broadcast a statement that the Jewish resistance Movement had not been weakened by recent British raids in which more than 2,000 persons were arrested and hidden stores of arms confiscated.

(In London yesterday approximately 5,000 Jews, including 200 European orphans with concentration camp numbers tattooed on their arms, marched to Trafalgar Square in a protest against the raids. The procession was led by Thomas Gould, Jewish holder of the Victoria Cross — Britain's highest military decoration.

(Later a delegation took a petition to 10 Downing Street, urging the release of arrested Jews and the carrying out of the Britis American Commission recommendation that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine immediately.

Deceased Asked Bones Be Scattered Over Countryside

Aylmer, Que., July 8 (CP) — Mystery of the finding of some human bones near a summer cottage at Eardley, Que., about 15 miles northwest of here, was solved Sunday night with the discovery the bones were those of Paul Charles Sawey, Rochester, N.Y., businessman who requested that his remains be scattered on the hill overlooking the Ottawa River.

A cottager, Group Capt. H. R. Stewart of Ottawa, became suspicious when he saw a middle-aged man and woman and a girl about 20 climb the hill near his cottage and scatter something over the hill from a bag. Investigating after they left, he found what appeared to be human remains, and subsequently notified police.

Foul play was suspected and the bones were taken to Montreal for study by Quebec provincial experts. Meanwhile, the automobile in which the trio came and went on its mysterious mission finally was traced to Brockville.

Tracing of the automobile revealed the three were Harry McKinney, Brockville merchant, his wife, who was a relative of Mr. Sawey, and Miss Elizabeth Coniff of Rochester, N.Y., a friend of the deceased.

Before dying last June 20, Mr. Sawey, had asked that he be cremated and his bones scattered in the area, which he admired for its beautiful scenery.

Detective Claude Bernard, head of the Quebec provincial police in Hull, who headed the investigation, said there was "nothing illegal" about such practices, "but police should be informed so as not to alarm the public."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, July 8 —(CP)— Synopsis at 7:30 a.m.: The cool air which lay over Northern Ontario yesterday has now moved eastward to the Maritimes where cool cloudy weather prevails. The weather was decidedly warm and humid over the Eastern United States and the parts of Ontario bordering lakes Erie and Huron yesterday with maximum temperatures as high as 94 at Windsor. Isolated thunderstorms occurred over this area Sunday evening. Skies are overcast this morning in most parts of Southern and Central Ontario and early morning showers have cooled the air while the humidity remains high. Air of Pacific origin is expected to move into Southern Ontario on Tuesday with generally clear weather and not much change in temperature.

German Jewish Girl Gives Views Of Germany Under Allied Rule

Berlin, July 8 (AP)—I must admit, unfortunately, that I belong to the few Germans who still feel liberated and who are grateful for it.

My countrymen consider themselves still at war. They see no difference between their life now and the way they have lived for 12 years. I feel like an outcast when I listen to their opinions or argue with them.

What strikes me most of all is that they have forgotten they lost the war, or what it means to lose a war. They only know how to make demands, and their general attitude toward the Allies is that they are "Nazis under a different pretext." I reply that they will have a right to call the Allies "Nazis" when all Germans have to go in public with a "German" printed or sewn on their backs, as Nazis did with the Jews.

The Allies are making difficult any inner change and progress in their political attitudes. Russia alone is demonstrating a clear political line by pursuing a firm and permanent course.

The American shows too clearly he regards his stay in Germany as a tiring occupation job which he hates and will give up the day his service is over.

There is a persistent rumor throughout Germany that there soon will be a war with Russia. Some of the blame for this rumor belongs to the Allies, and their attitude to each other.

Why is it so extraordinary to see you Americans, for instance together with your Russian ally in public? Everybody stares when a Russian and an American soldier or officer are seen together. They expect to witness a dispute at any moment.

Why don't you have clubs and other places where you can invite together those Germans you trust and with whom you want to co-operate and give them a living example of how silly their war rumors are?

People cannot learn democracy alone from books, papers, movies and other cultural instruments. They need a personal contact, they need to see it with their own eyes like the skeptical Thomas in the Bible.

You Americans have a reputation to being the strictest nation in regard to denazification problem, but you sleep with anybody. People know it and know it better than your good actions.

2 MURDER COUNTS LAID AGAINST WINDSOR YOUTH

Robert Sears, 18, Also Charged With Three Attempted Murders In Recent Stabbings

Windsor, Ont., July 8 —(CP)— Robert Sears, 18, of Windsor, today was arraigned in magistrate's court on two charges of murder and three charges of attempted murder. Arrested Saturday for questioning in the Windsor slashings, he was remanded to July 15 without being asked to plead to the charges.

Shortly before the court session started, Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey announced that the charges would be laid.

The youth, who so far has no counsel, is charged with the slayings last August of 56-year-old Frank Sciegliski and 45-year-old Hugh Blackwood Price, returned war veteran.

He is charged with attempted murder in two recent stabbings—that of Alexander Voligny two weeks ago and of Joseph Gelencser early Saturday.

It was not learned immediately what attack was involved in the third charge of attempted murder.

Statement Given, Police Say

Before the Crown Attorney's announcement police said Sears had given them a statement which linked him with the four stabbings, all of which took place in the same general area near the Windsor waterfront.

Sciegliski and Price were slain in a vacant field adjoining the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks. Scielgliski was stabbed six times and Price 14.

The slayings touched off intense police investigation and for a time Windsor was terrorized by the outbreak. Rewards totalling $3,000 were offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer. The Windsor Board off Control offered $2,000 and the Windsor Daily Star $1,000. Both rewards still stand.

The arrest of Sears followed a tip from a woman who told police she saw him with a knife similar to the one with which Gelencser was stabbed. The knife used in this case photographed and the picture published. Voligny was stabbed with an ice pick. The weapon or weapons used to stab Sciegliski and Price were never found.

The parents of Sears came to the police station this morning but were not allowed to see him. He was sleeping in his cell when they arrived.

New U.S. Memorandum On Atomic Control Will Be Submitted to Board

By MAX HARRELSON

New York, July 8 — (AP) — The United States prepared to submit a new memorandum to the Atomic Energy Commission today containing specific proposals for the enforcement of atomic control regulations and outlining possible penalties for violations.

The staff of United States representative Bernard M. Baruch whipped the document into final form as the Commission's six-member sub-committee was called into session to resume discussions on this phase of the control problem.

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, chairman of both the Atomic Commission and the sub-committee, was understood to be driving for completion of the sub-committee's initial report before the end of the week.

The new United States memorandum, amplifying previous declarations on enforcement and penalties, was understood to propose that the contemplated atomic development authority be given power to impose all penalties except for violations actually threatening world peace.

The suggestions were expected to meet opposition from some delegates, especially Russia, France and Poland, who are known to favor placing all enforcement measures in the hands of the security council.

Today's sub-committee meeting was the fourth since its started work behind closed doors a week ago to try to find out the major points of agreement and disagreement among the delegates on the whole question of atomic control.

MIGUEL ALEMAN CLAIMS ELECTION AS MEXICO PRES.

Two Deaths and Number of Minor Casualties Mark Voting on Sunday

Mexico City, July 8 — (AP) — Miguel Aleman, 42-year-old candidate of the powerful government party (P.R.I.), today claimed election as president of Mexico in balloting yesterday which brought charges of fraud from his principal opponent, former Foreign Minister Exequiel Padilla.

Two deaths and a number of minor casualties marked the voting, in which the army was used for the first time in history to police polling places.

Although the results will not be known officially until Thursday, Aleman said there was no doubt of his election and formally thanked the people of Mexico for "the great honor they have conferred upon me." The new president will be inaugurated Dec. 1 for a six-year term.

Padilla, candidate of the Mexican Democratic party, charged that the election in the Federal district, which includes Mexico City and its environs was "stained by the gravest of frauds" and said he believed that the actual popular vote favored him overwhelmingly.

Approximately 3,000,000 Mexicans were estimated to have voted in the elections, at which 175 deputies and 58 senators were chosen in addition to a president. Both Houses of Congress are now controlled by a heavy government party majority.

The two election day fatalities were recorded at a provincial polling place, where an army sergeant and a politician were reported killed in a fight.

Says Revaluation Of Dollar Timing Is Significant

London, July 8 —(CP Cable)— The broad moral to be drawn from revaluation of the Canadian dollar to parity with the United States dollar is that "never was a co-ordination of price policies in various countries more desirable," the Times said today in a financial column entitled "city notes."

There is no reason why coordination should mean identity of machinery, added the column which said the chief significance of the Canadian move was its timing.

The move will reduce the exchange cost on American imports and diminish the attraction of the United States market for Canadian exporters, thus limiting a possible drain on goods in short supply in the domestic market, the article said.

"It's a bold decision that could hardly be contemplated had not the Dominion's own productive capacity been greatly expanded during the war and substantial reserves of gold and dollar exchanges been built up."

TRUMAN REQUESTS HOUSE APPROVAL OF BRITISH LOAN

Letter Sent to Chairman of Banking Committee Will be Read to Members

By CLAIR JOHNSON

Washington, July 8 (AP) — President Truman and State Secretary Byrnes stepped directly into the fight over the British credit today as some administration leaders privately voiced concern about the impending House vote on the huge transaction.

Mr. Truman sent a letter to Chairman Brent Spence (Dem.-Ky.) of the House of Representatives banking committee, renewing his request for congressional approval of the proposed $3,750,000,000 credit. Rep. Spence will read the letter to the House, opening four days of debate today on the loan agreement.

Mr. Byrnes cabled Rep. Spence from Paris that the loan is essential to the welfare of Britain and world peace. Mr. Byrnes is attending the Foreign Ministers Conference.

The battle over the measure, which passed the Senate May 10 by a 46 to 34 vote, is expected to rage all week.

House leaders, including Speaker Rayburn of Texas, hold to predictions of passage. Foes said: "We think we can beat it."

Both sides kept a close watch on today's Republican primary battle in Minnesota between Sen. Henrik Shipstead and Gov. Edward J. Thye.

Sen. Shipstead is an outspoken critic of the proposed loan, and many lawmakers say his renomination would swing votes against the legislation.

Cost Bill Some Votes

Even supporters of the proposed loan concede that Britain's recent handling of the touchy Palestine question has cost the bill some votes.

On the other hand, may legislators said that any fresh criticism by Moscow of the western powers might build up support for the measure.

"Iff Premier Stalin would issue a hot blast of some sort at us, it would be enough to swing the vote for the loan," Rep. Carter Manasco (Dem.-Ala.) told reporters in typical comment. "Naturally, if there is fear of Russia, sentiment grows for a strong Britain."

A group of 75 House members have announced they will "dedicate" today as "veterans" and old age pension day," and urge speed on such legislation, instead of "huge foreign loans."

HOUSE-SEEKER FLIES SCATTERS APPEAL OVER CITY

Milwaukee, July 8 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Al Bahrt went house-hunting by air Saturday. Unable to find a place to live through the usual channels, Bahrt, an infantry veteran, and his wife took off in his two-seater plane and circled the city, scattering 1,300 announcements of their search for a house. Bahrt said later he already had received one reply.

DEADLOCK OVER PEACE PARLEY STILL UNBROKEN

Question Whether The Conference Will Be Held at End of Month Hangs in Balance

Paris, July 8 (AP)— The Foreign Ministers Council recessed after a morning meeting today, still deadlocked on the question of sending out invitations for a 21-power peace conference July 29.

Arguments that have marked Foreign Minister Molotov's opposition to sending invitations for the Conference unless they were accompanied by a strict code of rules for its procedure were presented again today in the face of pleas by States Secretary Byrnes of the United States and Britain's Foreign Secretary Bevin to have the invitations go out immediately.

Messrs. Bevin and Byrnes said they were willing to discuss procedure rules as suggestions but would not attempt to foist them on the other countries.

The ministers were to resume their session late today.

Sources close to the council said that failure to reach an immediate solution might result in indefinite postponement of the proposed peace conference.

Tass Makes Accusation

Tass news agency, meanwhile, injected a new note of dissension into the proceedings by stating that the British, American and French representatives had begun "secret" talks concerning Germany from which Russia was being excluded.

Tass said there was speculation in Paris that the reported talks "concern not only economic but also other questions."

The deadlock on the peace conference stemmed from Russia's insistent demands that the Big Four impose a set of rules of procedure on the conference — demands which both the British and American delegations vehemently opposed. These rules included a proviso that a two-thirds majority vote of the conference be required to make any changes in the draft treaties submitted by the foreign ministers.

Reasons Given

American sources maintained that with six Slavic States—by Russia, Czechoslovakia, Poland, the Ukraine, the U.S.S.R. and Yugoslavia—traditionally voting as a bloc the two-thirds rule would make it virtually impossible for the peace conference to change anything in the draft treaties without the approval of those nations.

A-Bomb Smashed Coral on Bottom Bikini Lagoon 110 Feet Below Surface

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, July 8 (AP)—The atomic bomb smashed the coral on the bottom of Bikini lagoon 100 feet below the surface of the water.

This was one of the many unexpected blows struck by the air bomb released July 1. These blows make it appear certain that navies and ships of the future must be redesigned even to meet the threat of this least formidable type of atomic attack.

Close up picturres taken from the photographic tower show that the bomb seared everything in a circle of more than a mile in a direct blaze of fire.

A moment after the bomb was detonated a terrific tornado roared over the entire guinea pig fleet. This was an atomic tornado with a blow-torch centre. Its apparent diameter on the water's surface was more than half a mile.

Photographs showed that directly under the bomb the water was momentarily depressed. Under the tremendous force of the atomic slap the water reacted like an anvil. The smashing of the coral on the bottom occurred about under this depression.

The photos are a complete visual record showing that the first Bikini bomb probably was less powerful than the Nagasaki bomb. They show not only that the Bikini cloud was just half as high as that at Nagasaki, but the base of that cloud, standing like a pillar of fire and smoke on the water, was not more than half the diameter of the base of the pillar at Nagasaki.

The first close up photo shows only streamers of bright light. The second photo shows the start of a ball of fire. This fire ball more than a mile wide, is in the exact shape of the sun rising just half way over the horizon.

The next photo is a surprise. The fire ball has momentarily disappeared. In its place are what looks like fog banks, perhaps nearly 1,000 feet high, and waving steam plumes wreathing more than mast high.

An explanation of the steam and fog banks is that the lagoon surface under and near the ball of fire was converted instantly into steam without boiling water. At temperatures above 3,1000 degrees water does not boil but turns into instant steam.

The next picture shows a smoke plume from the carrier Saratoga's deck.

In this Saratoga fire picture also begins the atomic tornado. This tornado is the start of an upshooting column of fire and cloud. In its initial shape it is a high pointed dome more than 1,000 feet tall. The edges of this dome appear dark and like smoke but the centre is incandescent.

Just about where the tornado appeared above the steam and smoke is the area where five ships sank.

Masked Thugs Cut Phone Line, Punch Holes in Boats

Employees Forced to Sit At Table With Arms Folded

Windsor, July 8 — (CP)—Six armed and masked thugs invaded nearby Bob-Lo Island early today, held up four employees and blasted $12,000 from the office safe. Before the robbers began their operations they had cut the telephone wires and punched holes in the two boats tied up at Upper Dock.

Bob-Lo is a Canadian island in the Detroit River, opposite Amherstburg, leased to an American amusement company.

The four employees — including Fred Nestor, Amherstburg, 56, night watchman who was slugged in last year's $11,000 robbery — were forced to sit on a picnic table, their heads on folded arms, while the bandits scooped up the island's weekend receipts.

Two abandoned rowboats were found on the Canadian shore across from the island, one containing a .22 calibre rifle bullet, the other with oarlocks padded with rags.

The employees reported that the two men guarding them were armed with "something that looked like a rifle or sawed-off shotgun."

Three of the bandits came in the sleeping quarters at the cafeteria, removed the three workers sleeping there; one remained at the cafeteria door and the other two stood guard at the adjacent office until the employees had been herded to the rear of the building.

The employees first were told to face the wall, then the thugs dragged a nearby picnic table to the office building and they were forced to sit there with their heads on their arms.

Two men stood guard at the office and the other two blew the safe and scooped up the loot, one of the employees said. The four then took the money from the office and started for the dock.

IT WAS HORSE MEAT

Chicago, July 8 (AP)—A long line of women waiting to buy hamburger at a Chicago butcher shop protested loudly Saturday when police put in a sudden appearance and began carting off the meat. Police Sergeant Timothy O'Connell said the "hamburger and roasts" seized were horse meat. He arrested the owner of the shop and four others he said were involved.

Police Probing Fatal Shooting Kingston Man

Kingston, July 8 —(CP)— Ontario Provincial Police are investigating the fatal shooting of Richard Morgan, 27, Kingston, last night about midnight on the Forty Foot Road.

Gerald Smith, 23, Kingston, was quoted by police as saying he fired the shot which killed Morgan. He is held on a vagrancy charge.

Morgan was killed almost instantly by a bullet from a .22 rifle which pierced his back as he sat in the cab of a truck.

No formal charges have been laid nor is it known whether an inquest will be held. A companion of Morgan's, Jack Irwin, 18, Kingston, is being sought for questioning.

Two brothers of Gerald Smith, Harold and Ronald, told police the incident occurred when Morgan was prowling about Smith's house.

"Morgan held a grudge against Gerald," said one of the brothers, "and on more than one occasion has attempted to get at Gerald. Last night most of the children and mother had gone to bed while Gerald was still up listening to the radio."

A truck pulled up in front of the house and Gerald looked out of the window, he said.

Stocks React In Severe Shakedown Then Rally a Bit

Toronto, July 8 — (CP)—Raising of the Canadian dollar to parity with the U. S. dollar today gave the stock market a severe shakedown in the first session after the announcement Friday evening. Losses of 10 to 20 per cent were general at the end of the first half-hour in which period the selling was heavy by nervous stock holders. Before the first hour of selling was ended a tendency to rally a bit was noticeable.

The gold and paper stocks suffered the widest losses. A few issues in these groups were not traded due to the spread between bids and the asked prices. Abitibi Common closed at $19 on Friday and today the bid was $16.75 with $17.50 asked. Great Lakes Paper had a bid of $23, down $5 from the last close.

McIntyre was not traded, Hollinger was down $2.25 and the bid was off about $4 for Dome. In the secondary golds losses of 25 to 70 cents were showing for a long list. Noranda weakened about $2 in base metals.

Millions in Stock Values Disappear.

It was estimated that tens of millions of dollars in stock values disappeared into oblivion as the entire Toronto board rocked under the pact of the dollar parity move.

Excited traders gathered earlier than usual on the floor of the exchange and attempts to sort out some semblance of order. The directors of the exchange did not hold an emergency meeting as some financial observers had expected.

TRAVELLERS FIGHT MOSQUITOES AT STATION

Early morning railway travellers on Saturday had to literally "fight" their way through large swarms of mosquitoes and other "man-eating" insects at the Canadian National Railways station here.

It appears that the invading insects appear at the crack-o'-dawn and make life miserable for those travellers who already have an early morning grouch and whose mental condition is not sweetened by the gouging winged insects that buzz about their heads in miniature clouds.

The mosquitoes and their fighter-escorts are no respecters of persons, and many a mosquito breakfasted off the freshness of young children as well as the tougher hides of old age.

CANNING FACTORIES IN P. E. COUNTY WORK AT TOP SPEED

With the recent hot weather accentuating canning conditions, factories in Prince Edward County areas worked at top speed on Sunday in an effort to gain time on rapidly increasing stocks of peas arriving from the fields at every hour.

Two plants in Wellington worked at near capacity with women residents turning out to assist canning officials to get the peas in cans.

The later variety of peas, it was stated are at least a week in advance of their regular time for preserving due to continued warm weather. This in conjunction with the heavy yield of the early crops is causing pile-ups at various plants.

PANHANDLERS ACTIVE IN VICTORIA PARK

Panhandlers were active in Victoria Park on Saturday afternoon according to reports received at the local police station. Investigation of the complaint by police officers resulted in four men being brought to the police station where they were warned against the practice.

Saturday morning police recovered a car on Queen Street which had been stolen in Toronto two days previously. The car was left in Belleville Friday night and it is believed by police was abandoned by one of the parties responsible for two auto thefts in Belleville the same night.

Gordon Miller, 296 Ann Street reported that a hen and five small ducks had been stolen from his place of residence over the weekend.

Ernest M. Carefoot Sent for Trial On Fraud Count

Former Saskatchewan medical doctor, Ernest M. Carefoot, McDonald Ave., on Saturday was committed for trial by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, on a charge of fraudulently obtaining money from John McAninch, Belleville locomotive engineer.

The preliminary hearing on the fraud charge commenced Friday afternoon with the Crown completing its case after thirteen witnesses had been called. Witnesses in the preliminary hearing included experts in physics, radiology and medicine.

Following the committal bail of $2,000 was renewed, the trial to be held during the jury sittings of county court this autumn. Mr. Carefoot was arrested on the false pretence charge last March 14th., following lengthy investigation in the McAninch case which dated back to October, 1944.

Officer Keeps Vigil.

With eight witnesses called on the first day of the hearing only five persons gave testimony for the Crown Saturday morning. These included Provincial Constable Charles Siple, who told of keeping vigil outside the Carefoot residence on the afternoon of March 19th., when he saw 32 persons enter and leave the house between 1 and 5 p.m.

Miss Mary Butler, local Justice of the Peace, identified signature on certain documents as having been written by Mr. Carefoot, while Cpl. T. L. Waugh, R.C.M.P., examiner and handwriting expert, also identified signatures on other documents as that of Mr. Carefoot. Final witness called by Crown was Cpl. Jack R. Probert, photographer, who identified a series of photographs taken of the various machines and goods seized at the Carefoot residence last March.

Sought Out Carefoot Claim.

In summing up Defence Counsel Malcolm Robb claimed that Mr. McAninch's evidence showed he had not much faith in any one doctor and also pointed out that the witness had "sought out" Mr. Carefoot. He said Mr. McAninch had admitted he knew that Mr. Carefoot had no license to practise medicine and quoted him as saying "I figured they had not taken his knowledge away from him."

In asking that the case be dismissed Mr. Robb contended that the Crown had failed to prove that the machine exhibited in court was the same used in the treatment of John McAninch. Photographs of the machine taken a few days after its seizure showed noticeable differences between the machine as it was then and when exhibited in court.

Defence also contended that the accused's willingness to return the $125 fee which had been paid by Mr. McAninch for treatment, and the ultimate return of the money indicated no intent to defraud.

Had Shown Intent Says Crown

In answer to the defence argument, Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson maintained that Mr. Carefoot had shown intent to defraud through his representations of diagnosis and cure of stomach ulcers by his machine. Experts had given evidence as to the worthlessness of the machine in diagnosis or treatment, he pointed out.

In committing the accused for trial Magistrate Wills declared he was satisfied that the Crown had presented a prima facia case and stated he did not feel it necessary to review the complete evidence.

Following committal for trial, Mr. Carefoot, through his counsel, Malcolm Robb, stated he "had nothing to say."

Potato Plots Are Inspected

The field inspection of the Tweed potato plots took place on Wednesday, July 3rd. Mr. Harry Burns, Assistant Agricultural Representative, Hastings County, visited the boys and scored the plots.

The potato plots on the whole showed that considerable time had been placed upon their planting and cultivation. Very little disease was apparent. However, many plots showed the effects of insect injury, especially of potato leaf hoppers and it was suggested that the plants be sprayed with a 4-4-40 Bordeaux mixture, to which would be added ½lb. of DDT to each 40 gals. of Bordeaux mixture, or dusted with a 3% agricultural dust. This dust contains 3% DDT and fixed copper, and will control insects as well as disease.

The Hungerford Junior Farmers are holding a meeting on Monday night, July 8th., at which potato culture will be further discussed by Mr. Burns.

MARMORA

Farmers Feel Earth Shock While at Work

Marmora — Nikoli Dostanko and his brothers, Sandro and Mike of Marmora Township, have the impression that they may have experienced an earth tremor about 4.30 p.m. last Thursday. They were drawing in hay at the time. Nikoli was in the wagon and his brothers were on the ground pitching the hay. The trio heard a sound as though the rails on the west side of the field were cracking, and looked in that direction thinking that the truck had struck the fence. The sound was repeated within ten seconds.

The two men on the ground said they felt a distinct quiver in the air on this occasion, which escaped the notice of their brother. The men are convinced that it was not blasting which made the noise. Gordon Scott, who was pitching hay for Irwin McCoy, in another part of the township at the time, said he recalled a similar experience but passed it off as trivial. The Dostanko brothers are wondering whether there are any government instruments recording a tremor at that time.

Fatalities Show Decided Drop From Past Weeks

By The Canadian Press

Weekend fatalities in Eastern Canada reached a total of 15, a survey by The Canadian Press showed today, and in addition a woman is missing from her home at London, Ont. The number was a considerable reduction from the Dominion Day holiday weekend when 59 persons across Canada lost their lives.

The weekend's eastern fatalities included five drownings and five killed in traffic accidents.

Mystery surrounds the whereabouts of Mrs. Bernice Whalley, missing from London, Ont. Her husband reported to police last night that she had gone to Port Stanley, summer resort on Lake Erie, and he feared she had met with an accident.

Quebec Provincial Police are investigating the death of Ida Dukaine, Yamaska County farmer, who died of severe injuries in a farm-house where he was carried by two men who said they found him lying on the highway near Sorel Saturday.

At Toronto John Oranuk, 65-year-old Cooksville farmer, died in hospital from injuries received in a fall from a hay-wagon.

Body Found at Ajax

The body of Victor Bilcox, 30, was found at Ajax, 25 miles east of Toronto, with a shotgun lying nearby.

A rifle found beside the body of Romeo Couture, 46, discovered shot through the mouth in his home at St. Hyacinthe, Que., lead police to surmise suicide after they learned he had been in ill health.

At Montreal the body of Hugh Tolan, 56, was found in the kitchen of his home, victim of illuminating gas.

The car fatalities included two Ontario children. Two -year-old Gerald Cornwall died in hospital at Kingston from injuries believed inflicted by a motortruck. Four-year-old Nicholas McHugh was killed when struck by a car near Orillia, and his four-year-old companion, Joyce Bay, was seriously injured.

Other traffic fatalities were Edmond Comeau, 69, at Digby, N.S., Frank Burns, 51, at Montreal, and Mrs. William Saunders, 31, at Ottawa.

TWEED

Gordon Library Formally Opened By Angus Mowat

Tweed — Major Angus Mowat, Inspector of Public Libraries for Ontario visited the Tweed Library Wednesday afternoon and declared the building formally opened for Library purposes. Mrs. Mowat accompanied him. After an inspection of the premises the splendid turnout of Library members adjourned to Mr. Carman Atton's lawn for the afternoon's program.

Reeve S. A. McCarey was the first speaker. Mr. McCarey spoke of the many gifts that Mr. W. S. Gordon had made to the Library, culminating in the splendid one of the present building. He presented the deed for the lot to Mr. Gordon.

Mr. W. S. Gordon traced the rise of the village of Tweed along with his own business here, first as a hardware merchant and then for over forty years as a manufacturer. He had always been interested in the Library for the education and pleasure it afforded the people of Tweed.

Short History Given

Mr S. H. Connor, the senior member of the Library Board, gave a short history of Public Library activities in Tweed. He also spoke of the many gifts Mr. Gordon had made to the Library over the years.

Inspector A. W. McGuire then introduced Major Mowat. He mentioned Major Mowat as one of the outstanding literary figures in the province as well as a former Librarian. A copy of his widely read book 'Carrying Place' is on the local shelves.

Major Mowat expressed his appreciation of Mr. Gordon's gift to Tweed. He praised the new building for its appearance and convenience and then spoke of Library activities in general Culturally, Canada has been slow in emerging from Pioneer days. Canada is progressing from that stage by her interest in the library as the local centre of reading material. All that man has accomplished, dreamed of, and hoped for, is recorded in the printed word. In speaking of Education the mistake is often made of thinking only of the formal education presented in the various types of schools. This phase is only the beginning. By reading man can continue and improve his education throughout his whole life. There are three types of Public Libraries. Tweed is an Association Library. Major Mowat strongly recommended that the village council make Tweed a Free Library as there will be considerable increase in Government grants to Free Libraries.

Tribute Paid

Tribute was paid by the speakers to the conscientious work done by the former Librarians, Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. Patterson, Mrs J. Sager, Mr. D. H. Morrison, Mrs. Johns, as well as that done by the present Librarian, Mrs. John McNaught. Also to two of the charter members, Mrs. C. W. Huyck, Chairman of the Library Board until 1926, and Mrs. (Dr.) Bowlby, vice chairman until a few years ago.

Tea was then served by Mrs. Atton, Miss Meiklejohn, the present vice chairman, and the wives of the Library Board members.

600,000-Gallon Storage Oil Tank To Be Constructed

D. McLean, district manager.

The new tank will be considerably larger than the two large gasoline storage tanks which are now in use by the company and will be 52 feet in diameter and 40 feet high. The new tank will be used exclusively for the storage of fuel oil, it was stated.

It is understood that a Hamilton contracting firm will do the construction work.

Paper Proposes To Start Publication With, Without Union

Vancouver, July 8 (CP)— The Vancouver Daily Province proposes to "take such means as are available" to resume publication unless striking printers return to work while negotiations for a new contract proceed, O. L. Spencer, publisher, told a commissioner probing the dispute between the International Typographical Union and the newspaper Saturday. The Province has not published since June 8.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday to permit the Union time to prepare written answer to the brief presented by the publisher.

R. H. Neelands, I.T.U. secretary, said the dispute concerned only whether the Southam Publishing Company, which operates a group of newspapers including the Province, is entitled to operate union shops in one part of the country and non-union shops in other parts.

He said the union contended that existence of a non-union shop in the Winnipeg Tribune was a definite menace to the security of the Vancouver local.

Mr. Spencer said the Province had always been willing, and now was willing, to negotiate with the I.T.U. for renewal of its contract. This contract was "entirely satisfactory" to the union "in every particular."

He set forth two conditions under which the Province would negotiate for contract renewal:

1. That the union forthwith order its members to return to work.

2. That the union would make no demand, either locally or through its international office, to include in the agreement any clause which could be construed as being in conflict with provincial or federal laws.

"The Vancouver Daily Province cannot continue indefinitely, however," he said in a written statement, "to seek to bargain with a group who will not bargain with it on the only basis possible, namely, a local basis; and, therefore, if this fair and reasonable attitude is not accepted immediately, the Province must reserve to itself the right to take such means as are available for resumption of publication in a proper and legal way, and this we propose to do."

How Playgrounds Operated

There are a number of questions which the public of Belleville ask regarding the operation of the playgrounds at Queen Mary School and at the corner of Bridge St. E. and Bleecker Ave. This is an effort to provide the answers. First of all, the playgrounds are operated by a committee jointly representing the Board of Education, who own the properties, and the Y.M.C.A., who assume the responsibility for the program and leadership. The committee is composed of Mr. W. H. Finkle, chairman of the Board of Education and President of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Lawrence Kells, Administrator of the Board of Education, and Mr. Joseph E. Shortt, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

How Program Carried Out

This year the program is being carried on by Mr. Gordon Hagen and Miss Margaret Kellar at the West Hill and Mr. Howard Watson and Miss Margaret Taylor at the East Hill, co-ordinated byMr. Ed Shortt, Program Secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

Secondly, the program is provided in an effort to meet the recreational needs of the children between the ages of 8 and 14 years. Facilities and leadership limitations make it impossible to extend program supervision beyond these ages at the present time. This is not to be construed as suggesting in any way that the two bodies concerned in the operation are not conscious of the needs of other children both below and above the ages provided for, but simply that it is not at present possible to do anything beyond that which is being done.

Type Attempted

Thirdly, the type of program which is attempted includes team and group games, small handicrafts, such as soap carving, ornamentation, etc., hikes, and spontaneous recreation provided by the equipment such as slides, swings etc. The leaders make a serious attempt to plan and provide a program which shall not only amuse, but also develop the children. This is another reason why there must be limitation.

Finally, it is the hope of the Committee and the Supervisors that it will not be necessary to prohibit the use of the grounds and equipment to the little children under the age of 8 years. True, there are other playgrounds provided for them by the Parks Board, but they are some distance from home for many children. However, if parents permit children below the proper age to frequent the grounds without older persons being with them to look after them and be responsible for them, it will be necessary to prohibit them coming. Over the past few years, practically every accident that has occurred at the playgrounds has been to a youngster under the age of eight, one of these smaller children for whom no formal supervision can be provided by those in charge, and still have them perform the duties for which they have been employed.

Must Have Co-operation

The Committee does not want to hamper the efforts of its supervisors, neither is there any wish to deprive any child of healthful recreation which may be available. However, unless the co-operation of parents in this matter is forthcoming, only one course of action is possible.

The Committee wishes to have your co-operation. They are making an effort to help you and your children without any expense to the individual parent. Perhaps the formation of a "Mothers' Club" who could take turns in the supervising of the smaller children at the playgrounds would provide an answer to this problem. Would any mothers like to take the initiative?

A-Control Seen Established Only After Long Effort

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

New York, July 8, (AP)—The United Nations Atomic Conferees hope to complete the first phase of their deliberations by next week-end but it was apparent today that world atomic control could be established only after long painstaking preliminaries.

One authoritative source said that "only a very optimistic view" would support the idea that any concrete atomic program may be ready for submission to the Security Council in time for action at the month-or-longer meeting of the General Assembly scheduled to begin here Sept. 3.

However, the preliminary work cleared away thus far under the fast-paced leadership of Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia has resulted in a nearly complete outline charting a course through the areas of mutual dissent in the separate United States and Russian plans for atomic control.

Dr. Evatt himself, after a strenuous two months as leader of the Australian delegation to the Security Council and atomic groups, begins Monday his last week as chairman of the 12-power atomic energy commission, its full membership working committee and its six-member subcommittee No. 1.

Under the monthly rotation system, the gavel passes to the nominee of the Brazilian delegation after July 14.

In one off this last acts as chairman of all the atomic groups, Dr. Evatt kept the United States delegation working on a detailed elaboration of the American plan calling for a world monopoly over the sources and disposal of atomic energy.

This would provide for an all-powers control of the rare uranium-bearing minerals and thorium deposits over the world and "complete and absolute ownership of all uranium and thorium actually produced".

Search Fails to Find Fugitive's Whereabouts

Kingston, July 8 (CP) — Despite a thorough search of all cars leaving this city until a late hour Friday night and a careful watch by city and Provincial Police, no trace has been found of Harold E. Reeves, 55, of Ottawa, who escaped yesterday from Kingston Penitentiary, police said.

THE PHYSICALLY DISABLED VETERAN—

A straightforward approach to his employment—

HERE ARE THE FACTS:

The job efficiency and working habits of the physically disabled are well illustrated by a survey of 100 firms employing substantial numbers of disabled. Of the 100 firms, 55 found absenteeism lower for the physically disabled, 40 found it the same as with the so-called able bodied, and only 5 found it higher for the physically disabled. Labour turnover was lower for the physically disabled in 83 cases, the same in 16 and higher for the disabled in only 1 case. The accident rate was lower for the physically disabled in 57 cases, the same in both groups in 41 cases and higher among physically disabled in only 2 cases. Productivity among the disabled was lower in 10 cases only. In 66 cases this was considered the same, and in 24 cases productivity was higher among the disabled.

IN CANADA today approximately 25,000 veterans have some type of physical disability as an aftermath of war. The vast majority of them who are ready for employment are being absorbed into the country's economy, and are providing proof that a physical disability need not be a job handicap. There are, among those employed, full-time farmers, log scalers, telephone linemen, clerks, accountants, watch makers. There is scarcely a field in which physically disabled veterans are not successful.

The answer to successful employment of the physically disabled is in a normal approach. They are normal people. There are many things they can do. There are few of which they are not capable. They should be employed, as are the so-called able bodied, on the basis of what they can do. If, for instance, a job does not require the use of legs, then that job can be done efficiently by a double leg amputee.

As with the so-called able bodied, factors other than physical are important. These are things such as knowledge, personal suitability and aptitude. The physically disabled should be employed, as in the case of others, with these things in mind. They do not want employment on the basis of charity, or because it is felt the country owes them a living.

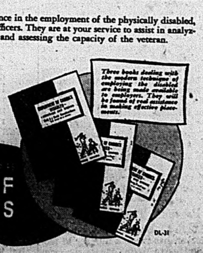
Before the physically disabled veteran enters the employment stream, through treatment his disability has been reduced to the minimum. Where required, he has been supplied with appliances to replace, insofar as possible, the lost physical capacities. Many have received specialized training in occupations in which their disability is not a handicap.

Available to the veteran and to industry are the services of men specially trained in the employment of the physically disabled. In the Department of Veterans Affairs these men are known as Casualty Rehabilitation Officers. The Department of Labour makes assistance available through the Special Placement Section of the National Employment Service.

If you wish assistance in the employment of the physically disabled, discuss it with these officers. They are at your service to assist in analyzing job requirements and assessing the capacity of the veteran.

It's what a man CAN DO that counts—

Issued under the authority of
HON. IAN A. MACKENZIE, MINISTER OF VETERANS AFFAIRS
DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS



Three books dealing with the modern technique of employing the disabled are being made available to employers. They will be found of real assistance in making effective placements.

1945 Industrial Accident Figures

Last year 1,101 persons lost their lives and 330,382 others were injured in industrial accidents throughout Canada, according to a statement made by W. R. Manock, Fort Erie, president of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations. He points out that these figures indicate an increase of 155 per cent in the fatal cases, with a drop of 4 per cent in the total number of cases reported in 1944, when there were 343,769 accidents, including 958 deaths.

Compensation awarded last year by the eight Workmen's Compensation Boards in Canada (excluding Prince Edward Island, which has no Compensation Act) totalled $45,107,298.39, an increase of almost 7 per cent over the 1944 awards, and an all-time high to date.

Commenting on the high awards, Mr. Manock said, "It is quite evident that industry across Canada has only one relief from increasing compensation costs and that is by more careful attention to accident prevention in our production plants."

By provinces the 1945 accidents totalled: Nova Scotia, 18,396; New Brunswick, 12,525; Quebec, 82,724; Ontario, 118,220; Manitoba, 16,196; Saskatchewan, 8,415; Alberta, 19,153; British Columbia, 55,854.

UNRRA in Poland

Something of the work of UNRRA is reported recently by Director General F. H. LaGuardia on the work in Poland. Shipments of grain are increasing. More than $240,000,000 worth of supplies had been shipped to Poland by UNRRA by last April 30. In commodity groups figures follow, food, $776,907,000; clothing, $884,538,000; medical $14,081,000; agricultural rehabilitation, $20,009,000; industrial rehabilitation $47,241,000.

Five hundred thousand Polish children will receive additional rations and clothing. For additional rations are 2,000 tons of powdered milk, 500 tons of sugar or 1,000 tons of jam, 9,000 tons of bread, cereals and flour and 1,000 tons of herrings.

A gigantic motor vehicle repair depot, built in England by the American Army and nicknamed the "Willow Run," has been sent to Poland and will be separated into several units for assembling in various Polish cities. A careful survey of vehicle-maintenance requqirements has shown that this manner of operations will be more advantage than to centralize the whole depot. It is calculated that with standard vehicles of U. S. army types about 120 engines a day can be repaired, while about 100 vehicles a day can be completely overhauled.

In addition to the "Willow Run," UNRRA is delivering to Poland 150 small workshops from the continent. These are independent units,? manually operated, and it is claimed that they can effect minor repairs on anything from wagons and tractors to horse shoes. These workshop units are to be sent to the smaller towns.

Rich but neurotic Nazis once filled the Wartenberg Sanitorium, but today this quiet Bavarian spot resounds to the laughter of 135 homeless children cared for by UNRRA Team 556. One hundred of them are Polish boys between the ages of 10 and 17.

The sanatorium was requisitioned last October and placed in charge of Miss Margaret Wiesender of Berlin, Wisconsin, who began the task of preparing the building for the first group of children. They arrived in November. Now only four UNRRA workers are needed to run the entire children's centre, for Miss Wiesender says that "the place really runs itself under our supervision."

Standing in a semicircle of tidily kept Bavarian forest, the sanatorium is ideal for children. There is a vista of farmlands and gardens in the foreground, the sun pours into this corner of the lower plains, and the children have been bacome sun-tanned.

The 100 Polish boys have ample opportunity for outdoor sports and gardening as well as carefully conducted Polish classes every morning in grade-school subjects. They are not forced to go to school, but those whi stay away lose privileges and find themselves somewhat isolated. After a few days they usually return to the gang and are glad to "toe the line."

To Prevent Theft of Cars

The United States F.B.I. director, Edgar Hoover, has made a number of recommendations to United States car owners to prevent theft of their cars and so prevent a great deal of loss, anxiety, and difficulty in trying to recover them. These include the following suggestions:

Do not leave your car unattended, with the keys in the ignition.

Even for emergency purposes, do not leave keys on sun visors or in such places where they can be readily obtainable by a thief making a quick search of the car.

If you think your car is being followed by another, do not go directly home. Instead stop where you see a policeman or a large group of people, or drive to the nearest police station.

Do not leave your car with the windows down. Many car thieves are adept at rewiring ignitions.

When purchasing an automobile, make sure that the title to the car is in good order.

Have some private or secret marks on your car so that you can identify it in case it is stolen and the motor and serial numbers are altered. Note any stains, repaired upholstery and parts damaged in accidents. These are excellent identifying marks.

When putting your car in the garage, lock the car as well as the garage doors.

Report the theft of your car immediately to the nearest police officials, giving them full information concerning the car and its description. This could lead to immediate recovery.

If a licence plate is lost or stolen, report it immediately. In many instances, thieves steel licence plates to place on a car they have stolen.

Mr. Hoover added that these did not include every bit of advice that could be offered but that "any carelessness" on the part of a car owner, "leaves an open door and an invitation for thieves to steal your car."

Police departments make a good record in the number of stolen cars recovered so careful is their system and so thorough their checking of cars and tracing of clues but any help in added care respecting the safety of one's car will save police extra work and will no doubt go a long way to prevent thieves getting one's automobile.

Noisy Future Coming

Former General Doolittle's prediction that 400,000 private planes will be flying in the United States within nine years, is no doubt a sign of great aviation progress. Yet the average citizen is bound to wonder how much peace and quiet can be expected when such a goal is reached. The night and day drone of planes is already causing annoyance to householders living in the neighborhood of airports. What is it going to be like when flying has become commonplace? Let us hope plane manufacturers are working on silencing devices to tone down the racket.

LETTER XI

Beloved, we're off to the cottage, the lake and the pine-scented air,
And all of the memories golden that linger round everything there.
I dread the thought of departure. In town I am sure I'd have stayed—Until I remember you told me the place for the children was made.

How often you planned for their coming and fashioned the room they would share!
The playthings you gathered in secret and kept for the time they'd be there!
But I had turned selfish about it. All winter I'd said I'd not go — Until I remembered your bidding and knew that you wanted it so.

Beloved, the cottage is open; and
Florence the cook is to be.
The room that you made for the children is cotted and cribbed for all three,
"The "General" will stay for the summer — that great, gallant comrade and bold.
We'll battle at golf and at cribbage,
as we did in the good days of old.

Oh, there will be laughter and singing, and the dance for the children
once more.
Our friends will come up for the weekends; a welcome they'll find at the door.
And all will be just as you wished it—
at least to the best I can do—
But it won't be the same, my beloved,
for I shall be there, without you.

"You can have your 'Bemis Family of The Air,' but for jam-packed action, thrills and comedy, I'll take the Gilhooleys next door!"

In March 1874 it was decided to build a chapel at the corner of Coleman and Moira Street, west, and in May 1875 it was dedicated. In July 1896 the building which stood on the site where the new church is to be erected, was purchased for the sum of $4,500.00. The membership then was 230. On January 19th., of this year, it was decided to build a new church and a sufficient sum of money was raised by subscription to warrant proceeding with the undertaking. The Rev. HEATHER BURNING

(By H. R. JUKES)
(B.B.C. Press Service)

London (By mail) — There's been a sight, nearly every day recently, to gladden the heart of every north-country dalesman, from the Peak District right up almost to the Scottish Border. The sight of enormous rolling clouds of smoke over the moors. Heather burning. For the first time since the early spring of 1939. We couldn't light fires of this sort during the blackout war years. They can be seen for miles.

This heather burning is an important part of our farming and sporting economy all over the higher-lying parts of the north. We go in for sheep-rearing in a biggish way: flocks of several thousands range over the hilltops. It's land only fit for sheep actually, well, sheep and grouse. I'll come to the grouse in a minute.

Most of the high ground on the Pennine Hills—that's the range of mountains which the school geography books invariably refer to as "The Backbone of England"; it runs for a hundred miles southwards from the Scottish border, most of this high ground is covered with heather; hundreds of square miles of it. The far-famed Yorkshire Moors. Their fame mostly is built upon the wonderful sight they provide holidaymakers during August. The heather's in bloom then. You'll be climbing up one of the steep mountain tracks leading up from the valley and, suddenly perhaps, you'll top the rise and there in front of you are ten square miles of flowering heather; one breathtaking sweep of practically unbroken purple, far as you can see. It's a sight you remember all your life.

For myself, I love those moors at all seasons. These great windy spaces are just as fine to me on a winter's day—or a spring or an autumn one—as any other. There's always color in mass up there.

Now all these thousands of acres of heather form, as I say, a very important part of our northern sheep-raising economy. Our local breeds — Swaledale, Herdwick, Scotch Black-faced — thrive on young heather. In fact every hill farm has so many grazing rights on the moor allotted to it. We call them sheep-gaits, "gait" being the old English word for "walk", so many sheep-walks.

But it's got to be young, palatable heather; short and crisp, like strong grass. The older stuff is too coarse and indigestible. It grows, if you'll let it, as big and as thick-stemmed as a fair-sized bush, as high as your middle. You can hardly force your way through it: the sheep don't try.

So every spring, early spring; the dates are fixed by law, we burn off a great deal of this old, rough stuff; acres of it. It's a job needing a great deal of care, and you've got to pick your days. Dry heather is very inflammable and, with anything of a wind behind it, the fire can very easily get out of hand and destroy the whole moor. Generally half a dozen of us, including keepers and shepherds, tackle the job together. We'll fix on a patch, it might be either a strip five hundred or six hundred yards long, fifty or sixty wide; or it might be a roundish space we wish to clear, there are various methods preferred. Anyway, we set light to the heather in half a dozen places and keep a careful control of it; especially keeping an eye on flying bits which could be carried on the breeze and set other patches ablaze. We're all armed with big, besom-like flails with which to beat out any incipient fires of this sort which might become dangerous. As you can imagine, it's a full-time job. You can't leave it. The flames leap up ten or fifteen feet, often higher, and the smoke covers everywhere; great cream-colored billows of it swirling up into the sky.

Well, when that patch is burnt off, we tackle another. We do as much as we can while the fine weather lasts. And all the time we've to keep an eye on all the patches we've already burnt. It's peat underneath the heather, and once that gets on fire, well, there's no knowing where it might spread to, underground, and break out into flames.

As you can imagine, where we've had our fires there's nothing left to see except a few blackened stalks and a thick layer of delicately colored, pale blue ash. But the roots haven't been destroyed; the flames pass over too quickly for that; and next spring the new growth shoots through and there's soon a nice fresh patch of grazing both for the sheep and the grouse.

Grouse also enter very importantly into our moorland economy. It's possibly our most important game-bird; it certainly is up north here and in Scotland. It's only found in the British Isles, incidentally, and these heathered moors are its natural home. The young heather shoots from its staple diet, just like they do for the sheep. But we've also to watch that a certain amount of older heather is left for shelter. And it musn't be too far away from the young stuff. Grouse chicks are exposed to many enemies—hawks and falcons among others — and they need somewhere handy to run to when danger threatens.

It's a valuable crop, is our grouse population; in times like these particularly so. It's a good, heavy bird and there are plenty of them. They eke out the meat ration very considerably every autumn. We generally reckon on one breeding pair for every couple of acres or so. If we get more than that, we run the risk of disease through overcrowding. We've had some bad outbreaks during and immediately following both wars. The moors hadn't been shot hard enough; both guns and keepers had been away. And, as I've pointed out, there had been no burning. Young heather was scarce in consequence; the moor just couldn't support its stock of either sheep or grouse.

Still, those bad days are over now. We've got in some good, useful burning recently. There'll be some sport for the coming August. The partridge men down in the bottoms have had it all their own way up to now, with the vastly increased acreage under corn. There never have been so many partridges.

When the pheasants will get their turn, I don't know. We've cut down thousands of our woodlands to help the war effort, and there's naturally been no assisted breeding and rearing all thru' the war. And the pheasant is a rank bad mother, the absolute opposite to either partridge or grouse. I'm afraid our pheasant bags will be small for a long time to come.

Well, their place will have to be taken by the grouse.

They bring a lot of money into the more impoverished parts of the country, these shooting parties, and they give a good deal of employment during the season —beaters and loaders and ponyman, hotel people and so on, besides the ordinary keepers. As I say, it's an important part of our rural economy in the high-lying parts of the north. Grouse and sheep; we live on them.

Villeneuve Ill, Believed on Way To Recovery

Quebec, July 8 (CP)—Rodrigue, Cardinal Villeneuve, stricken by a sudden illness, is in hospital here today apparently out of danger and on the road to recovery.

The 62-year-old Archbishop of Quebec, fatigued after taking part in religious ceremonies at Ile A La Crosse, Sask., from which he returned Friday night, was taken to hospital Saturday and received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

His physician, Dr. Jean Baptiste Jobin, said last night, however, that he believed the Cardinal has passed the danger point.

Prayers for his recovery were led by Msgr. J. Omer Plante, auxiliary bishop of Quebec.

The distinguished prelate, a native of Montreal, has travelled widely in recent years. He was in Rome last February for Pope Pius XII's consistory and shortly before that went to Mexico City as papal legate at ceremonies marking the 50th anniversary of the coronation of Our Lady of Guadalupe.

He visited Canadian servicemen in England, Belgium and Italy in the fall of 1944.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.

Readers addressing letters to Dr. Brady will please include the word "Canada" on their return envelopes, as these letters have to be forwarded to Dr. Brady. And it is requested that readers use standard size envelopes that will hold a small booklet

BEWARE THE IDES OF AUGUST.

In the old Roman calendar the ides fell on the 15th. day of March, May, July and October, on the 13th. day of the other six months—there were only ten months in the calendar year originally.

Now they tell me that the autumnal hay fever season begins not just about the ides of August but precisely on August 13th. — and ever so many sufferers assert unblushingly that it arrives at 10.22 a.m. on that day.

Oh, well, let us humor the poor devils. If they get any comfort out of dramatizing their plight they are so much to the good.

Right now, if you ask me, every victim of hay fever should begin to brace, fortify or shall I say harden himself against it by booping his or her daily intake of calcium and vitamin D. In fact it is better to begin this fortifying process six to eight weeks before the season.

For symptomatic relief in any case of hay fever or similar allergic manifestation (such as temperamental rhinitis, sudden nasal symptoms ascribed to "sinusitis," machine gun sneezing spells, rhinorrhea or watery drip-drip-drip) the best bet is an immediate dose or two of potassium chloride with vitamin C. In some instances this works like magic, but then again in other instances it has no apparent effect at all. I said it is the best bet. Try it if you wish—if it fails to relieve, at any rate it can do no harm.

The calcium-vitamin D prophylaxis or hardening and the potassium-vitamin C palliation here suggested are not medicinal, but nutritional — nothing in them that every one does not need for good nutrition and good health anyway.

When it comes to medicinal remedies for hay fever, there, brothers and sisters, I can only refer to your physician.

Desensitization by homeopathic doses of the specific pollen to which the victim is sensitive or allergic, the daily doses being gradually increased, is fairly effective although it is only seasonal in duration.

Whether skin tests and desensitization be employed or not, the most satisfactory, medicine to carry the sufferer through the season, I gather from tabulation of many reports in recent medical literature, is one, or a combination of all of these, to be taken internally three times a day during the height of the attack.

Ascorbic acid .. 250 milligrams
Thiamine hydrochloride 3 "
Racephedrine .... 25 "
Theophylline .... 100 "

It is not too late to get set for hay fever if you are subject to it. For the pamphlet giving practical instructions send a stamped self addressed envelope —ask for it in writing, for I do not take time out to read clippings.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Then Again I May Not

Dear Sirs: You may send me your literature on home treatment of goitre. (L. G. E.)

Answer—Only one of me, Ma'am. I never send literature about treatment of anything. This is a health service, not a mail order clinic. I can assure you that your own family physician can do better for you, whatever your trouble may be, than I or any other long distance quack could possibly do, even if you offered me a ready-made diagnosis to begin with.

Pike's Peak or Bust

My friend and I intend to spend two weeks' vacation in Denver, Colorado Springs and, we hope, to go up Pike's Peak. Can you recommend anything to prevent collapse from change of altitude, or unpleasant feelings in our ears? Miss E. W. H.)

Answer—Spend a few days in Denver (a mile high) before you go on to Colo. Springs and Pike's Peak. Begin now practicing belly breathing — send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet on "How to Breathe." If at any time you feel anything in your ears, the quickest relief is a series of wide-mouth yawns.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is a Vicar of Bray?

A turncoat or trimmer, one who changes his principles, politics or religion to suit the times or circumstances, is known as a Vicar of Bray.

The phrase is a product of the time in England when the Protestants and Catholics were struggling for dominance and the control of the state church passed back and forth from one to the other.

It is supposed by some authorities to allude to Simon Aleyn, vicar of the village of Bray near Maidenhead in Berkshire, England, who kept his position from 1540 to 1588 by changing his religion three times to conform with changes in the government. In "The History of the Worthies of England" (1661) Thomas Guller says Aleyn, originally a Catholic, became a Protestant under Henry VIII and Edward VI, a Papist under Mary, and a Protestant again under Elizabeth. Virtually nothing authentic is known about this trimming churchman. Tradition says that when the Vicar of Bray was reproached for changing his religion frequently and not adhering to his principles, he replied: "Although I have changed my religion, I have remained true to my principle, which is to remain Vicar of Bray. Of this Vicar of Bray Samuel Butler (1612-1680) is supposed to have alluded in "Tale of the Cobbler and the Vicar of Bray:"

Whatever I can say or do,
I'm sure not much avails;
I shall still Vicar be of Bray,
Whichever side prevails.

The popular phrase, however, is identified by others with different vicars of Bray, particularly Simon Symonds, who served in the vicarage of Bray at a later period and who was a noncomformist under Cromwell, a Church of England man under Charles II, a Catholic under James II and a Protestant again under William and Mary. This Vicar of Bray is the subject of an old ballad that some writers say was composed by "a soldier in Col. Fuller's regiment in the reign of George I." The currency of the phrase may be due more to this ballad than to the [illegible] reputation of the earlier Vicar of Bray. In the [illegible] sovereigns under whom the Vicar of Bray successively changes his religion and his politics are those from Charles II to George I. It runs in part:

In good King Charles' golden days,
When loyalty no harm meant,
A zealous high churchman was I,
And so I got preferment . . .
And this is the law I will maintain
Until my dying day, Sir,
That whatsoever King may reign
I'll still be Vicar of St. Bray,
Sir!

ITALY SHUNS PARIS STYLES

Rome, July 8 (CP) — Italian dress designers, for 20 years forced to eschew "foreign styles" and concentrate on 'national fashions,' are free at last to follow French leadership.

However, now that there is no dictator to object, they seem no longer to have any desire to copy products.

Three of Rome's leading fashion houses this spring showed collection, in which less than half the models were French-inspired.

Spring and summer dresses for day and evening wear, designed in Rome, Milan and Turin, are much simpler than the current Paris models, Rome designers say.

Highlights include simplicity of line with decoration in the designs of the printed materials. Skirts and jackets are full; the necklines extreme — generally very high or very deep.

Each Rome house has special characteristics for which it is noted, but all place heavy stress on the use of cotton. In fact, cotton dresses are as expensive as silk here, and are especially prized.

Another specialty on which the Italian fashion industry prides itself is the use of embroidery on dresses — much more copious than in Paris.

Fine Workmanship.

Italy's first peacetime spring, with its revival of social life, has stimulated the work of Rome's dress designers. Princess Irina Galitzine, one of the three partners of Fontana's in Rome, recently asserted that "Italy's most important contribution to the world of fashion is the workmanship of its silk, cotton and wool materials."

Fontana's put on a fashion show at the American Red Cross rest centre in the former Mussolini Forum.

Striking numbers were a two-piece cocktail dress of a deep red cotton print with white flowers, which had exceptional fullness in the jacket, and a pink cotton tulle net shoulderless evening gown with a flared skirt the lower 8 inches of which were covered with hundreds of white goose feathers.

Slightly more French inspiration was found in the 1946 models of the house of Gabriella-Sport, owned by Countess Gabrielle de Robilant.

Nicola Zecca's showing was the first in three years, since he closed his shop during the German occupation.

Less than half of his 120 numbers were French-inspired, and even those were generally simpler.

ANCIENT GRAVE UNCOVERED

Wooler, Northumberland, England (CP) — In about 2,000 B.C., experts estimate, a man was buried on a ridge which now is part of a farm here. A stone pulled out by a tractor revealed his grave. In it was a broken pot, an ornament and a spearhead.

Travel Hazardous On New Zealand's Mountain Routes

By WILLIAM STEWART
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Kokitika, N.Z., July 8 (CP) — Drivers of 30-passenger buses which travel the narrow mountain roads of New Zealand's South Island know by heart all the turns and twists of the hairpin routes as well as residents of scattered communities to whom they bring mail, parcels and some times groceries.

On the west side of the South Island, buses supplement railways extending only short distances, and link the tidy little mountain settlements with larger centres. They run along gravel roads so narrow in many places they must stop to meet trucks on their way between such places as Nelson, the northern port, Greymouth, west coast port, and Kokitika, old gold town located in the area first sighted by the Dutch discovered of New Zealand, Abel Tasman ,about the time of the foundation of Montreal.

Bus drivers take charge of mail bags which they toss to roadside boxes as they go along. They deliver newspapers on the run. Sometimes the busmen pick up parcels from grocery or butcher shops in small towns for customers several miles away.

The danger on trips of about 100 miles between Nelson and Inangahua through the Lyell and Spenser mountains, or between Greymouth and Franz Josef in the Southern Alps is at blind corners halfway up mountains.

Often the roads are cut out of cliffsides with mountain face rising from one border and nothing but a drop to a winding river on the other.

Bus drivers are familiar with all points of interest along the roads and stop to show passengers giant trees, reflecting pools or perhaps a mountain lake such as Ianthe. They point out peculiarities of ridge formation such as the "Old Man of the Mountains," resembling a paunchy, recumbent giant, in the Spensers.

At this time of year, late fall in New Zealand, the southern mountain country is strikingly beautiful with golden poplars standing out sharply against evergreens, rain-swollen rivers running full in grey gravel beds, and vegetation exotically colored.

Pro-Nazi Germans In South Africa May Be Sent Home

Capetown, July 8 (CP) — The South African government's Alien Affairs Bill, providing for deportation of German nationals who worked against the interests of the country during the Second Great War, was under heavy fire from the opposition Nationalist party during recent parliamentary debates.

Justice Minister H. G. Lawrence told the House that the case of each individual would be investigated by a deportation commission headed by a judge and that approximately 3,000 Germans, most of them interned during the war, would come before the commission.

The Nationalists claimed that deportation was too severe a penalty and opposed any such action at the present time.

Mr. Lawrence replied that mere sympathy with Germany was not considered sufficient grounds for deportation and that the commission would be more concerned with the form in which the sympathy was expressed.

The bill emerged from 12 hours of discussion in committee without amendment.

The government's health programe was outlined by Health Minister Henry Luckman who moved second reading of a public health bill providing a scheme of national health services.

The bill will set up a national health council to advise the minister on health matters. Dr. Luckman outlined the progress made in hospitalization and said military hospitals were being taken over for civilian use. The state was especially concerned with tuberculosis which will be tackled as a national problem.

Two attempts to ship live oysters from Britain to South Africa by air to improve the local stock through interbreeding met with disaster when the oysters died during the voyage. The fisheries department, which is carrying out the experiment, plans to arrange an alternative method of shipment.

There are more animals than ever before in Kruger National Park which re-opened for the first time since the war June 16. The park will be open to visitors from June to October with some 1,200 miles of road available. National Parks Board Secretary H. S. van Graan said elephants had spread over a greater part of the area while the park was closed during the war years, and other animals had also increased greatly in numbers.

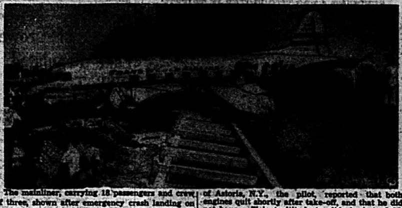
PLANE HAS EMERGENCY CRASH LANDING ON RAILROAD TRACKS



The mainliner, carrying 18 passengers and crew of three, shown after emergency crash landing on a railroad right-of-way shortly after taking off from Chicago airport for New York., None of passengers was injured, although pilot and stewardess were reported slightly hurt. Samuel Gracy of Astoria, N.Y., the pilot, reported that both engines quit shortly after take-off, and that he did not have sufficient altitude to glide back to field. Instead, he put the ship down on the Chicago belt railway tracks, half a dozen blocks from field. Torn-up fence may be seen in foreground as result of plane striking electric and telephone wires.

Color Variety In London Hats

London, July 8 (CP) — British hat designers are pushing "frosty white" for fall and winter headgear, but just in case it doesn't take they also offer apricot, winter gold, sugar pink, tortoise, tobacco brown, skater's blue and warm red.

And if these fail to flirt with fickle feminine fancy, they always show black — combined with skater's peacock or royal blue, with cerise or warm red, with frosty, oyster, or stone white or one model called the "domino" in plain black. In fact a collection of 90 models displayed for the first time by the Associated Millinery Designers of London shied away from nothing except simplicity.

The most striking design was a black shades-of-George-Washington tricorn—with grey felt trim in a powdered wig effect complete with black bow.

Two other models imitated 1910 wide-brimmed sailors — one in pale skater's blue topped with black satin ruching and another in wine ruching with matching muff, tied under the chin with tulle and perfect for horseless carriage riders.

In frosty white a large turban sported a huge bunch of pale blue grapes over each ear .. a "down Mexico way," sombrero was trimmed with bands of brown, yellow, and tan .. and a felt and mink combination made a neat three-decker-sandwich sailor.

A flame-colored off-the-face musketeer felt featured black ostrich sword trim .. similar style plume hats with muffs were displayed in jade green and heather .. an all-out "sweet pea fantasy" included every shade of pink and purple and every type of flower, leaf, veil and streamer and lacked only a few small worms to make it a complete garden.

A sophisticated black toque and muff were trimmed with ermine powder puffs and a white ermine Russian Cossack hat with black ostrich pom-poms.

Predominant material was a long-haired "fox felt" and most styles showed some variation of the plain or muffin beret, the sailor, the poke bonnet, or the off-the-face model.

EXPENSIVE BLOOM FOR INDIANA GIRL

Honolulu, July 8 (CP) — An Indiana girl wore at her graduation an expensive lie flown from the Hawaiian Islands. Made of 12 matched white cattleya orchids, it was sent by a friend to Mary Longshore of Brazil, Ind.

Here where orchids are sold in groceries for 15 cents each, it cost $126. Florists estimated it would have cost $500 in the United States.

Bare Styles Shock India

Trivandrum, India, July 8 (CP) —Alarmed by "a growing tendency on the part of Christian women to forget decency and modesty," the Archbishops of Cochin and Travancore have demanded that the ladies wear upper garments long enough to cover at least half the hands and lower garments long enough to cover the knees.

The regulation, prescribed in a pastoral letter to all churches, cocnvents and monasteries, was termed "a minimum standard satisfying certain requirements of decency and modesty based on the conception of Oriental womanhood .. "

"Soft and transparent garments and sleeveless ultra-modern blouses should be eschewed from the dressing code of Catholic women," said the Archbishops, adding: "We view with alarm and dismay this contagion of fashion which is a new phase of paganism and which is working havoc throughout the world. This deplorable neglect of the demands of decency by women has created a new problem for the church which requires immediate remedy.

"This vulgar liking of the taints of modern sets is one of the growing pains of civilization which is rocking the solid foundation of the modesty of Christian womanhood."

CANADA IS A
Moderate Nation

Moderation is a Canadian characteristic.
It is a heritage of our people. As children, we learn moderation.
As adults, we practice it. As Canadians, we are proud of it.
In spite of post-war temptations to splurge and spend, we have kept our heads. We've acted moderately . . . we have not given in to the natural desire for immediate enjoyment of everything and anything in short supply
. . . and that is why, as individuals and as a nation, we are unhampered by the excesses of inflation.
We can point to a fine record. We can point to Canada's future with certainty.
But, we can do this only if we continue to live up to our Canadian principles of moderation—moderation in all things.

Men who Think of Tomorrow . . . Practice Moderation Today!

Tuberculosis Surveys Under Auspices Belleville Shrine Club To Be Made in Hastings County

Municipal officials and other representatives of Hastings County at a special meeting the other day promised their support to assist in a tuberculosis survey of the county which is expected to start on August 13 under the auspices of the Belleville and District Division of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association sponsored by the Belleville Shrine Club Limited.

At the meeting held in Madoc, representatives of the Ontario Department of Health and officials of the Shrine Club pointed out the advisability of holding the survey, and a number of reeves and other county representatives present indicated their support of the project.

Advices received today from the Ontario Department of Health Prevention of Tuberculosis division stated that surveys will be held in Marmora on August 13-15; Madoc, Aug. 16-17; Tweed August 20-21 and Read August 23.

Financed by Sale of Seals

President D. L. Storey, of the Belleville Shrine Club Limited, who introduced the guests at the meeting pointed out that the surveys were financed by the annual sale of Christmas seals held by his organization. "The success of the sale of these seals" he said, "depends entirely on the voluntary attitude of residents of the city, district and county", and he urged that special interest be taken in the promotion of the sale later this year by those who are interested in the prevention of tuberculosis in Canada in general and in Hastings County in particular.

He pointed out the success of a recent survey in Belleville when 31 cases of assorted diseases were discovered to be present, the victims of which knew nothing of their condition until results of the survey had been released.

Tells of Necessity

Dr. S. A. Holling, Chief Clinician of the Department of Tuberculosis Prevention, Toronto briefly addressed the meeting and pointed out the necessity of holding the free clinics which are now under way in all parts of Ontario. "The results of the various clinics," he said, "had been more or less amazing, and his department felt that a tremendous job was being done for the people of Ontario."

Dr. G. G. Brearley, head of the Belleville mobile clinic, and a representative of the Department of Health outlined the activities of his unit and of the success that had met with its efforts. A motion picture depicting the routine of the survey and many other interesting highlights of the clinic was shown by Mr. D. R. Wise, X-ray specialist of the Department of Health, Toronto.

It was pointed out that it was not the policy of the Health Department to X-ray pre-school children unless there has been a history of contact with a case of tuberculosis. Students, the meeting was told, will attend the clinics by class room groups accompanied by a teacher. If the school population is being tuberculin tested, only those who react to the test will be X-rayed.

Individuals with known chest conditions will be encouraged to attend the clinics irrespective of previous X-rays. Some changes may have occurred since their last examination.

Elderly People urged to attend

Elderly people are also urged to attend the clinic as occasionally infectious cases of tuberculosis are found in this age group.

Each person will receive a clinic appointment notice at least three days prior to the date of examination and must bring it with him to the clinic. Reports are not sent to those individuals whose chest X-rays reveal no significant abnormalities. If no report is received within three weeks of examination the person may take it for granted his chest is negative.

These individuals on whom a report is made will be advised of the findings by their family physicians and, it was pointed out, all reports are confidential.

Among those in attendance at the meeting were Warden James Nickle, Reeves Sam McCarey, Tweed; James Moore, Elzevir; George West, Madoc; C. H. Buskard, Deloro; Dr. Grant Fraser, Madoc, of the Belleville Shrine Club and a large number of interested residents of the district.

The Experts Say

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 8 (CP) — Hard cooked eggs either plain or devilled are almost standard equipment in a picnic basket and also often make up the substantial portion of the summer salad for lunch at home.

Eggs cooked in the shell should never be hard boiled. The water should not actually boil, but be kept just below boiling temperature for 30 minutes, then both yolk and white will be firm but tender.

The home economists of the Agriculture Department Consumer Section say that if the time is not checked and there is any doubt about the eggs being hard enough they can be tested by piercing with a toothpick through the shell and into the centre of the eggs. If the toothpick comes out clean the egg is just right for a devilled egg. If any yolk adheres to the toothpick the egg should be left in the hot water for a minute or two longer.

To prevent a dark ring around the yolk, cold hard cooked eggs quickly in cold water. If eggs are cooked in advance and stored in the refrigerator they may be mixed with the raw ones. Cooked eggs will spin like a top if twirled on the kitchen table while raw ones will just wobble.

To vary devilled eggs add a pinch of curry powder, a few chopped chives or a little powdered bay leaf to the salad dressing when creaming the yolks.

The Food Information Committee has this to say about the proper care of eggs-designed to get the greatest value out of each egg so make more available for shipment to starving lands:

Keep eggs fresh by keeping them cool and away from strong flavored foods.

Left-over egg yolks may be dropped in a pan of simmering water and hard-cooked. They may also be kept uncooked for a day or two if covered with water in a closed container and kept cold.

Left-over egg whites will keep for a day or two in a tightly covered container in the refrigerator.

Use all of every egg. Scrape out the shells.

Cheese is another food which we are sending overseas in large quantities and, while there is not the deseprate need for it that there is for wheat, meat and fats, every bit that can be saved is that much more to feed the world's hungry.

Keep cheese wrapped tightly and cool to prevent moulding and drying. A cloth dampened with vinegar makes a good wrapping for cheddar cheese.

A wedge-shaped piece of hard cheese may be placed on a plate and the exposed surface covered with wax paper pressed on with a cool iron.

Save crumbs of cheese and grate the left-overs. Keep them in an airtight jar.

Bells in Rome Mark Elevation To Sainthood

Vatican City, July, 8—(AP)—Church bells pealed throughout the eternal city of Rome yesterday to proclaim the elevation of Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini to Sainthood in the Roman Catholic church—The first time such an honor has been conferred upon a citizen of the United States.

Pope Pius, presiding over the rites of canonization, declared that "The nations and peoples will learn from her—who ardently loved her fatherland and scattered the treasures of her charity and labors even to other countries—that they are called to constitute a single family, a family that must not be divided in stormy rivalry."

The ceremony, rich in the religious pageantry of the Catholic Church, began at 8.15 a.m. in St. Peter's Basilica, with more than 40,000 worshippers from Rome and other parts of the world in attendance. Among the faithful were nuns of the Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart, founded by St. Frances Xavier, as Mother Cabrini henceforth will be known.

Among the worshippers were two Italian laborers, whose healing after prayers to Mother Cabrini was accepted as a miraculus cure in the cause of her canonization.

The frail daughter of an Italian farm family, who became a naturalized citizen of the United States, St. Frances Xavier died in Chicago Dec. 22, 1917. The Order of nuns she founded has established charitable institutions in many cities of the United States, in London and Paris and in Buenos Aires and Rio De Janeiro.

The Saint is entombed beneath the altar of the chapel of Mother Cabrini High School, opposite Fort Tryon Park in New York city.

Soldiers Advise British Wives Not to Come

Herford, Germany, July 8 — (Reuters)—An overwhelming majority of British troops here have decided that Germany is not a healthy or happy place for their families. Many are writing home warning their wives to stay in Britain.

These men declare that food, recreation and transport are inadequate even for the troops, let alone wives accustomed to British standards.

"Even the troops here who have their own jobs to occupy their minds get bored with the noisy canteens, whose only offering in the way of social recreation is a bun and a cup of compo tea," said one soldier.

Another said: "It would be an insult to ask a decent English family to come and live in this distracted, starving country."

Veteran Labor Leader Dies

Ottawa, July 8—(CP)—Tom Moore, 67, veteran Canadian labor leader who retired four years ago after 24 years as president of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress, died suddenly last night.

He had been in ill-health since suffering a stroke in May 1942, when he retired from the Congress and was succeeded by Percy Bengough.

A native of Leeds, England, he came to Canada in 1909 and settled as a carpenter in Niagara Falls. He joined the United Brotherhood of carpenters there and served in various capacities. He came to Ottawa in 1919.

Recognized as a leading figure in the Canadian Labor picture for years, he represented Canada at labor conferences in London, Geneva, Washington, Amsterdam and Kyoto, Japan. For many years he served on the governing body of the International Labor Organization, and represented labor on the Canadian National Railways Board of Directors.

In 1935 he was appointed to the unemployment insurance commission and served in an advisory capacity to the government in drafting the unemployment and social insurance bill adopted by parliament that year.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Lewis N. Moore of Montreal and Norman Moore of Ottawa, and two sisters, Mrs. J. Wood of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Miss Mary Walker of Toronto.

To The Citizens of Belleville

Dear Fellow Citizens

THE TIME HAS ARRIVED, once again, to prepare for our ANNUAL STREET KARNIVAL.

The directors of our organization have recently questioned the advisability of using games which are, in our opinion, strictly forms of gambling.

They have, therefore, decided to omit from our street Karnival, this type of money-raising activity.

Our thoughts have, consequently, been directed to providing clean and wholesome games and entertainment — useful and practical prizes of merchandise, groceries, etc.

For one hour each night we are presenting a stage show —FREE —featuring local talent—something new, something different at each performance and hilarious fun for everybody,

So as not to interfere with the business of merchants, strict traffic or transportation facilities, we have arranged to operate our Karnival on the Market Square. In so doing we believe you will be afforded greater accessibility and more suitable accommodation for the many patrons who will not want to miss this outstanding Karnival.

It hardly seems necessary for us to remind you that the proceeds from this event will be devoted to our Welfare work, which is centred in that most worthy cause, the health, happiness and well-being of the less fortunate Kiddies in our community.

May I take this opportunity to thank you for your most generous support in the past and to bespeak your wholehearted patronage of our efforts on July 16 - 17 - 18.

Yours sincerely,

MARK VANNER, President,
BELLEVILLE KIWANIS CLUB INC.

Howard Hughes Builder of XF-11 Injured in Crash

Los Angeles, July 8 (AP) — Howard Hughes, movie maker and builder of airplanes, clung precariously to life today in hospital after the crash and explosion of his latest creation, the XF-11, unofficially reported to be the fastest long-range craft ever constructed.

The twin-engine monoplane crashed into three houses and a garage, causing property damage estimated at $100,000 in a Beverly Hills residential district late yesterday, with Hughes alone at the controls on its maiden flight.

Hughes, with the assistance of an unidentified marine sergeant, staggered from the wreckage, was hustled to Beverly Hills emergency hospital, and transferred from there to Good Samaritan Hospital for surgery. He was placed in an oxygen tent. Doctors said he had a 50-50 chance to survive.

Twenty-five minutes before the crash, Hughes radioed that he was having engine trouble. He said he was going to try to make an emergency landing on the Los Angeles Country Club course. That was the last message from him.

With a terrific "swooshing" noise, the XF-11, designed for army reconnaissance photography plunged onto a rooftop, bounded onto another roof, smashed a garage, and struck another house, setting all afire, before virtually burying itself in a vacant lot. Its fuel tanks exploded and flames licked the plane, which cost hundreds of thousands of dollars to build, to a blackened skeleton.

One of the witnesses to the crash was actor Dennis O'Keefe, who said the plane was flying very low, making a terrific noise, just before it plummeted.

The XF-11 was the second plane to be rolled out of the hangars at the Hughes plant in the last month. Two weeks ago Hughes' $20,000,000 flying boat, largest aircraft in the world, was moved from Culver City to the harbor for final assembly. It will be test flown late this summer.

Hughes held the world's attention for nearly four days in 1938, when he set a globe-circling record of 91 hours and 14 minutes.

Pacific Islanders Will Get New Deal

By JACK HOLDSWORTH
(C.P. Correspondent)

Canberra, Australia, July 8 — (CP) — After more than three years as a theatre of war, New Guinea and Papua are returning to normal. Both territories are administered by the Australian government. New Guinea as a mandate and Papua under a proclamation.

During the war, they were in use both as Japanese and Allied bases, and were the graves of thousands of Americans, Australians and Japanese killed in the long island campaigns.

Allied and Japanese aerial bombing and shell-fire destroyed many valuable copra and rubber plantations, and some of the other big industries, such as gold-mining, suffered from the effects of war.

Most of the white population was evacuated, but many of their homes, mission stations, business offices were wrecked. Many natives were killed, and some of their villages destroyed.

When the war ended, the islands continued under military control until a joint New Guinea-Papua civil administration was set up by the government last October. Its job was to start a rehabilitation program, a big task because of the immense area covered, the scattered population, and the military garrisons left in some areas.

Papua covers an area of about 90,500 square miles and New Guinea has a land area of about 93,000 square miles.

Pre-War Population.

Before the war, New Guinea had a white population of nearly 5,000, and a native population of about 660,000. Papua had nearly 2,000 whites, and about 275,000 natives.

There are no reliable figures for the effect of the war upon these estimates but, allowing for natural increases and decreases, they are not believed to have been greatly changed.

Six months after beginning its rehabilitation program, the administration reports that 1,000 whites are back in the area, and that the number of Japanese residents in prisoner of war compounds is down to 60,000.

The natives, who went back to their villages after the war, to rest and live on the equivalent of war gratuities, now are getting ready to work.

Plentiful native labor is available, but transport to move them from their villages to the job is short.

For the natives, the government proposes a "New Deal." The proposals include a 44-hour week, improved rations, an interim minimum pay rate of three dollars monthly, with rations, issues, housing and medical care.

Directors of public health, agriculture, public works and education have been, or will be, appointed, and a school has been set up in Australia to train administrators.

JAVA INTERNEES EVACUATED BY LAND, SEA AND AIR

Squadron 31, R.A.F., recently moved 1,000 internees from Central Java to Batavia and Semarang in the course of five days. Altogether there are about 30,000 people to be moved by land, sea and air. Air priority is given to those too young, too old or too ill to be transported by other means. Difficulties were encountered due to the suspicious attitude of the Indonesian authorities when they objected to the arrival of an ex-BLA Dakota, still bearing BLA markings, which resemble a Dutch flag turned on its side. The evacuees, mostly Dutch and Eurasians, will shortly leave Batavia and Semarang for Holland. The evacuees are strapped in the Dakota and settled down for the air trip to Batavia. For many of them it is their first experience of air travel.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

(By The Ottawa Staff of the Canadian Press)

Prime Minister Mackenzie King's announcement in the Commons this week that the appointment of High Commissioners to London, Canberra and Pretoria hinged on some diplomatic transfers, started a new speculation on who would fill the important vacancies.

His emphasis on a program of transfers was generally taken to indicate that the big job in London would go to a civil servant—or career diplomat—and not to a political appointment as previously had been rumored.

This would mean that L. B. (Mike) Pearson, ambassador in Washington, and former second in command in London, would seem the logical man for Cockspir St.

It is known that the External Affairs Department is anxious to retain the services of Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, now on leave in Canada from Australia, and it is possible that Mr. King will try to persuade him to accept the Washington appointment.

There have been no rumors on the South African appointment.

VETERANS:

The Commons appears to be heading into further debates on veterans affairs. They will be watched closely because the last one—on Soldier Settlers' Debts — erupted in a crossfire which dragged the internal operations of the veterans committee to the floor of the House.

Among three subjects of which Veterans Minister Mackenzie has given notices of resolutions for the immediate future is at least one which might stir a renewal of the acerbity.

It is the veterans' committee's report on the Pension Bill. It was on that bill that the government first rolled in what Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (P.C.-Nanaimo) called "the mobile reserves" to defeat amendments the Progressive Conservatives had put through earlier over slim Liberal forces.

The official opposition rankled long and bitterly over that method and that defeat.

Meanwhile, hopeful of completing its business July 23, the committee has come upon another bill which might well rank as the most important of the session. It provides for partially government guaranteed bank loans for veterans to establish business.

Dr. D. B. Finn, former Deputy Fisheries Minister who has joined the food and agriculture organization, is reported to be slated for a post of deputy secretary-general with that important group that will work closely with the economic council of U.N.O.

Clash Between Govt. and Lords Appears Certain

London, July 8 — (CP) — A long expected clash between the Labor government and the House of Lords appeared imminent today as a highly controversial issue came before the Peers — the case of the Friendly Societies.

Lord Beveridge, Sir William before his recent elevation by the King to the Peerage — has asked the Lords to reverse the action of the House of Commons in excluding the private, non-profit insurance groups from the government's extensive new social insurance system.

The Times of London said recently it was "probable" that the Peers would concur with Lord Beveridge, Liberal author of the "cradle-to-grave" security plan, in what many newspapers have described as a test whether private institutions can survive under Socialism.

The Friendly Societies, with more than 8,000,000 members, are demanding that they be made "government agents" in the National insurance program, which will provide low cost medical, unemployment, old age and other benefits for "duchess and poor man alike."

The Labor government excluded them, however, despite a pre-election pledge that they could come under the plan. James Griffiths, Minister of National Insurance, explained the change of policy by saying it had been decided that the problem of administration would be too great.

Labor party leaders have threatened to curb if not wipe out the few remaining law making powers of the Lords of they obstruck Labor's program.

The Friendly Societies, some of them 200 years old, have enlisted the support of Anthony Eden and other prominent Conservatives in a high-powered campaign to make themselves a clear cut major issue.

BASEBALL RULES

INTERPRETED by BILL GORDY

BALKS (Continued)

The following infringements will be declared a balk by the umpire:

7. If the pitcher takes up his position without having the ball even if he makes no motion to pitch or not, or if he takes a position off the mound and feints to throw the ball in the batter's direction.

8. The pitcher must not at any time make any motion with either his arm, shoulder, hip, knee or both without immediately throwing the ball to the batter.

9. After the pitcher has taken up his proper position on the mound with both hands holding the ball in front of him, he is not permitted to remove either hand off the ball unless in the act of throwing the ball to the batter or to the bases.

10. If the umpire thinks that the pitcher's act of moving out of position in order to dry his hands, rub the ball or any other reason is not legitimate.

11. If the pitcher either drops the ball intentionally or accidentally in throwing to the batter or to the bases. If there is no one on the bases at the time it is not a balk.

12. If the umpire calls a balk the ball immediately becomes "dead" until the runner or runners reach their base or bases.

B. Fairley, Manager of Hamilton Charles Softball Team, Draws Indefinite Suspension by Assoc.

Players Reinstated After Committee Learns They Were Under Impression Game Played at Belleville Was Only Exhibition Affair

By G. H. C.

Hamilton, Ont., July 8 — The Ontario Amateur Softball Association sub-committee at a special meeting held in the Royal Connaught Hotel here Sat. afternoon indefinitely suspended B. Fairley, manager of the Hamilton Charles Softball team, and after long deliberation reinstated players suspended two weeks ago pending full investigation of charges that the Hamilton team used players under assumed names in the Ontario junior championship softball series last October.

The titular series resulted in a defeat of the Charles team by the Belleville Columbian Squires in two straight games, 5-0 played in Hamilton and 11-3 played in Belleville.

At the conclusion of the lengthy meeting, Fairley was ordered placed under indefinite suspension and will not be allowed to take any part in softball affairs.

The executive ruled after hearing lengthy evidence that players of the Hamilton Charles team be reinstated due to the fact that they were under the impression that the second game of the series played in Belleville was an exhibition affair, and was not the second game of the championship playdowns.

Had no Voice

The Belleville team which it was brought out at the probe had no voice in the laying of charges against the Hamilton squad, were awarded the junior provincial title by default.

The entire roster of Hamilton Charles players and officials were present and questioned in camera after an open discussion. Manager Fairley told the executive that he had informed Belleville officials that the game was an exhibition affair, although advertisements appearing in the Belleville newspaper pointed out that the game was the second of the championship series.

The Hamilton manager could not recall giving the line-up of his team for the second game at Belleville to the official scorer, a Belleville newspaperman present at the hearing. "I gave my line-up to a young man about nineteen," he asserted.

Identified Player

The scorer present identified a Hamilton player as a "trick" pitcher who relieved the starting hurler in the third innings of the second game after the ultimate champions had scored nine runs in the first two innings. The pitcher in question was identified as a player named Cardini, but who played, according to the boxscore of the game as "Pidsadny".

Hamilton officials could not recall giving this name to any scorer, but it was pointed out that the Hamilton line-up must have been issued by that team's officials.

Prior to the promulgation of the release of the committee's findings, the players involved were reprimanded with warnings of what the body's punishment could have been if the findings had been of a different nature.

Present at the meeting were W. L. Alguire, chairman of the sub-committee, of St. Catharines; F. R. Feaver, O.A.S.A. secretary, Hamilton; D. G. Smith, Toronto; W. C. Thrasher, Hamilton, members of the committee and Herbert Champion, past president of the Association.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Hamilton — (Saturday)— Ask a taxi-driver in this Ambitious City of centennials and strikes, to drop you off at any place where a strike is in progress, and he'll look at the sun, comment on the weather, and mildly yet cautiously inquire if the next block will do.

• • •

Our own particular Jehu was a bit careful and loquacious when we hopped the cab, mentioned the Hamilton Spectator, and leaned back to rest, after that jumpy train ride from the banks of the Moira.

"Gee, boss," he muttered, "I was up there an hour ago and 150 guys was milling about the place as though they was goin' too tear it apart. I'll drop you off the next block. Howzat?" "Howzat" was alright but there was little or nothing doing when we arrived at the imposing offices of the fourth estate. A few pickets were patrolling the pavements outside but a busy Saturday morning crowd appeared to be more interested in the raucous cacophony of a merry-go-round across the street which was part and parcel of Hamilton's noise-making paraphernalia for the week-long Centennial which ended yesterday.

Ran into "Paddy" Conklin of the famous Conklin Shows in the Royal Connaught Hotel. "Paddy" was fingering a roll of $1,500 which by and by he handed to a gentleman "for the kiddies." Just a gift to help some kids out on a summer camp holiday. Elwood Hughes, Canadian National Exhibition prexy was there, and told us the CNE will be the biggest and best ever come 1947.

The sub committee of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association in their probe of charges alleging the Hamilton Charles junior team used players under assumed names in the game in Belleville on Oct. 8 last, and which as far as Belleville was concerned was the second game of the championship series for the provincial junior title, accepted the view that the players involved were under the impression that the game mentioned was an exhibition tilt.

• • •

The players had a two-week suspension lifted after the argumentative smoke had cleared, but B. Fairley, manager of the Charles team, had an indefinite suspension tacked on him.

The charges against the Charles squad apparently originated in Hamilton for officials of the Belleville Columbian Squires, who in the findings were declared junior champs "by default", knew nothing of the affair until OASA officials started to dig up evidence from the Belleville end of the affair.

• • •

Just what would have happened had Charles won the title was not aired, but there would likely have been plenty of aroma elevated from the Belleville end. Or what do you think?

In any event after hearing evidence, the Sub Committee was of the opinion that the onus lay on the Fairley shoulders and not those of the players, and acted accordingly. The committee told the players what naughty boys they were or could have been and pointed out what punishment can be meted out if such a thing as playing under assumed names happened.

Fairley, could not recall giving this desk the lineup which allegedly included the names of players which do not appear on their certificates. Claimed it was a youthful lad of some eighteen tender years.

• • •

It looks as though the moral of the whole thing is for managers to demand and see certificates of players joining in championship or other games—and also to carry their own certificates with them.

• • •

Officials here stated that the game was advertised as the second in the series for the junior championship, and was played as such. It had been already postponed from the previous Saturday, and Fairley declared that bus transportation had been arranged costing $145 and it was too late to make any other arrangements. The committee apparently took the angle that the players were not cognizant of the fact that the game was anything but an ex. affair, and played it as such.

• • •

At that, Campini, or Pilsadny take your choice, treated the Belleville softball faithful to an exhibition of trick hurling in between arguments, so mebbe the boys were right after all.

• • •

However, Columbian Squires to all official intents and purposes, now go on record as having won the game by default. It is quite probable they would have won in any event, as they looked to have the edge on the Hamilton team both here and in the Ambitious City.

• • •

Phones were humming here yesterday regarding a meeting of the Belleville Softball Association to consider a protest alleged to be entered against the Army and Navy Flashes team for using players by the name of Hook and Mallory last week. As a member of the executive this desk had no advice as to any meeting of protest and Exec. member Harry Rollins stated likewise. Prexy Al Hitchen was out of town and Secretary Harry Knott was likewise missing from the city. More about that later.

Moose Matthews RCAF Flyers and "Lefty" Whitman's SWACOS tangle in a baseball joust at the Alemite Field tonight and the plane lads tell us they are out to break this win streak of the service club. Should be a topflight pastime with the umps calling for the start of festivities around 6.30. Tomorrow night SWACOS safari out to Batawa to meet Bill Easton's nine in another league tilt.

• • •

According to the schedule Frank Sedore's Flashes journey to Mountain View for a Belleville Softball Association game tonight, and the maroon and yellow are out to increase that win margin.

WEST END "Y" WINS TRACK MEET

Hamilton, July 8 — (CP)—Athletes from Toronto's West End Y.M.C.A. carried off team and individual point honors in Saturday's Canadian track and field championships here.

Toronto West End garnered 46 points to take the team title, and the next best, the Montreal police team, was way behind with 10. Toronto police and McGill University tied for third at nine points each.

The individual honors were taken by West End's W.H. Brown, winner of the broad jump and javelin throws for a total of ten points.

No Canadian records were broken, V. Sandford and West End took 10.3 seconds in the 100 yard dash final, and the 220 final went to D. McFarlane of Western University in 22.5. Walter Fedorik of Hamilton won the five-mile race after a ding-dong struggle most of the route with the veteran Scotty Rankine of Preston, Ont. Rankine tired in the last mile and Ab Morton of Galt overtook him to place second.

Behind the three-hit pitching of Bill Leader, Guelph Maple Leafs scored their second win in 18 starts, defeating Kitchener Panthers 6-2 Saturday in an intercounty senior baseball game.

Leader hurled Guelph to their only other win. M. Knarr, starting for Panthers, was knocked from the box in the second inning, and was relieved by Harvey Willis, who gave up nine hits and was charged with the loss.

London Majors trounced Waterloo Tigers in the other intercounty game, 14-6, for their 14th win against three losses this season. Bill Wagner, the London hurling age, pitched five-hit ball until the eighth inning when Waterloo broke with a four-run outburst.

In the Nickel Belt Baseball League, Coniston retained its lead by eking out a win over Creighton in extra innings 14-12. Until the seventh it was Creighton's game. But five hits off Lefty Stelmakowitch, good for seven runs, gave Coniston the break and they tied it up at 12-12 in the ninth.

Fort Erie won its first game of the season defeating Hamilton 12-8 in a Niagara District Senior Baseball League game Saturday. They had to call old-timer Shorty Seebach to the rescue in the sixth after Hamilton scored three runs and had two on base. He squelched the visitors' rally and allowed only two more runs in during the rest of the game.

Kimberley Clarks took firmer grip on first place in the Niagara District League following their win over Houcks. Paced by the eight hit performance of Stan Rogala the Americans used the breaks to their advantage and overcame the Houcks one run lead in the seventh to win 3-1.

The Kibitzer

An exception does not always prove the rule. It proves how good it is to know the rule. Beauty of knowing a rule is that it helps you recognize a deviation.

Rule is that an honor lead is top of a sequence (except king from A K with others). King lead shows Q J or Q 10; queen shows J 10 or J. 9; jack shows 10 9 or 10 8; ten shows 9 8 or 9 7.

From four cards or more without a sequence, rule is to lead its fourth best. Therefore, a small card lead is assumed to be from a suit in which leader has exactly three higher.

Usually unfavorable is a lead from three cards or less when it has a face card not in sequence. But times are when such a face is led. Rule reveals it is an exception and tells you what it means.

Suppose partner leads a jack and you see the ten elsewhere. You know from such evidence that he has not led from the top of sequence. What can he have in that suit?

It would not be fourth best. Because the only three higher are A K Q. With such a combination, the king would be led from sequence.

The jack is not with three or more smaller cards. Because the lead would be fourth best from such a holding. So, it must have been the highest of a short suit of three or two; or a singleton.

Partner in west leads heart jack when hearts are as shown here:

NORTH
♥K 9 3

WEST ♥J 4
EAST ♥A 10 7 5

SOUTH
♥Q 8 6 2

You see the ten in your own hand. So, the jack is not top of a sequence. And it must be from a suit of less than four. So, it tells you that south has the queen with at least two more.

Unless north plays the king, you will not go with the ace. Let south win with queen. When someone leads that suit to you again, you will take two tricks with ace and ten.

Put down one and carry two.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 8 (AP) — Paramount Alumnus Arturo de Cordova is back in Hollywood, but not to re-enroll at his alma mater. He found he can get richer making pictures south of the United States-Mexican border.

The Mexican star is here to visit some of his old haunts and to arrange for the making of "Don Juan Muietta," for the newly formed Eagle-Lion Company.

De Cordova, who starred in "Frenchman's Creek" and "Incendiary Blonde," returned to Latin American films with no tears on his part. Not only is he netting more money per picture down south, but he also has lined up some interesting deals which would make Hollywood's tax-weary stars pop their eyes. One of these calls for Arturo to make a film in Argentina—for free. However, on completion of the film, the actor will have exclusive ownership and distribution of the picture in Mexico and the United States. All this coin will be dropped politely into Artruro's lap.

Artruro said that Mexican-made pictures cost approximately one-third as much as the United States product. Their extras receive $3 a day compared to an average $10.50 here. Stories in completed form usually do not cost over $10,000, while they might run up to $200,000 or $300,000 in Hollywood.

However, the stars, who are few in number, reap high salaries and contribute less income tax than their northern cousins.

Success note: Dane Clark recently flew via luxury airplane to New York. When he came to Hollywood a few years ago he hitch-hiked. .. It never fails. On one of the hottest days, Rita Hayworth and six ballet dancers had to perform under blazing lights — carrying flaming torches. .. If all the gags built around Errol Flynn's picture, "Cry Wolf" were laid end to end, none could be printed, anyhow.

HAL NEWHOUSER AND BOB FELLER READY FOR GAME

Will be Starting and Second Pitcher in All-Star Game at Boston Tuesday

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

National League partisans, already aware their favorites will enter tomorrow's all-star contest in Boston against the American League's best on the short end, must have experienced that sinking sensation today. If any National Leaguers nursed any hope that the junior circuit's pitching twins, Cleveland's Bobby Feller and Detroit's Hal Newhouser, would not be "right," that must be dispelled by now.

Feller, already named by American League All-Star manager Steve O'Neill as his starting pitcher, began poorly yesterday, allowing two runs in the first frame, but picked up steam as he went along and whipped Chicago White Sox 3-2 for his 15th victory of the season. The Indian fireballer whiffed six batters to raise his season total to 190 in 179 innings. The Sox, behind Eddie Lopat's two-hit twirling, won the nightcap 5-0.

Newhouser, expected to hurl the middle three frames for the Harridge clan, turned in a five-hit performance in blanking St. Louis Browns 3-0, in a single fray. It was his 16th triumph of the season, tops for big-league hurlers.

Spud Chandler, the choice to twirl the final three frames for the American Leaguers, did not fare as well, yielding five hits and three runs in six innings to the Athletics as New York Yankees and Philadelphia divided a doubleheader. A five-run rally in the seventh enabled the Yanks to win the opener 7-3, but the A's won the second 4-1, as young Bob Savage outhurled Chandler for his first victory of the season.

Slugs Out Four Hits

The Yankees' Charlie Keller, one of the big guns in the American League's attack, slugged out four hits including his 18th home run and drove in four runs while Joe DiMaggio hammered a double in his only time at bat. The Yankees' star centrefielder pulled a cartilage in his left knee sliding into second and was carried from the field. He will not be able to play in the all-star contest.

The Red Sox increased their first-place lead over the runner-up Yankees to 7 1-2 games by taking the measure of Washington Senators, 11-1 and 9-4. Thumping Theodore Williams, who looms as the key man in the American's all-star lineup, led with four hits in six official trips to the plate.

National League fans can point with pride to the splendid pitching performance turned in by St. Louis Cardinals' Howie Pollet, who may be the choice for starting pitcher. The youthful southpaw yielded three hits as he shut out Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0, in the nightcap of a doubleheader for his ninth victory of the year and his fifth in his last six starts.

Gain Full Game

The Cards also won the opener, 4-3, to gain a full game on the front-running Brooklyn Dodgers, who now lead by five as a result of their split with Boston. A ninth-inning two-run rally gave the Braves a 3-2 victory in the opener but the Brooks came back to win the nightcap 4-2.

Helped by all-stars Johnny Mize and Walker Cooper, New York Giants downed Philadelphia Phillies twice to wrest sixth place from their opponents. Mize drove out two hits and Cooper three as the Giants clubbed out a 10-2 second game decision after Mickey Witek's two-run homer won the opener 2-1.

In a single encounter, Cincinnati defeated Chicago Cubs, 6-2, with rookie outfielder Eddie Lukon, clouting two homers to drive in five runs. Johnny Vander Meer went all the way for his fifth victory.

NEWARK BEARS ONLY ONE GAME FROM 2ND PLACE

Toronto Leafs Lose a Doubleheader on Sunday in Montreal

(By The Associated Press)

Whatever the reason — whether the home stretch gives them a bit of extra pepper or whether it in the castoffs they pick up from the New York Yankees parent club — Newark Bears have become noted for their late-season finishes in the International League.

The Bears, seemingly off to another late rampage, now are one game out of second place, with a chance to wipe out that margin when they play the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs tonight. That they can handle the Chiefs they demonstrated yesterday by picking up the marbles in a doubleheader, 4-3 and 9-0.

The Bears took the opener the hard way, coming from behind in the ninth to score two runs on an error and three hits. One of those was a pinch-hit single by manager George Selkirk of Huntsville, Ont., that drove in the tying marker.

In the nightcap, Walt Dubiel made it simple for his batting mates by setting the Syracuse batsmen down with four safeties.

Montreal Royals, meanwhile, were continuing along their first-place path, turning back Toronto twice, 2-0 and 5-1. Cy Buker won the first game on five-hit pitching, the six walks he gave being balanced by four Montreal double plays that kept his record and the bases clear.

Buffalo Bisons also swept their bargain bill with Rochester Red Wings 2-1 and 3-1. Ed Mierkowicz was the hero of the first game, offensively with a fifth-inning double that drove in the clinching run, defensively with a peg from centrefield that killed the tying run at home plate. Right-hander Art Houtteman thus was saved his 10th victory of the year. Another righthander, Rufe Gentry, pitched a five-hit second game.

The other Sunday bill saw Jersey City and Baltimore split. The Little Giants were outhit, 12-8, but made their safeties count to take the first game 5-3, losing the nightcap 6-0.

Byron Nelson Knocks Eight Strokes off Par

(By The Canadian Press)

Coming from behind in the final round of the tourney yesterday, Byron Nelson of Toledo knocked eight strokes off par at Columbus, O., to capture the $10,000 invitation Open golf competition with a 276. He was two better than Ed Oliver from Wilmington, Del. The latter turned in a sub-six score for the round but his efforts were not enough.

After pacing the field during the early stages of the contest, Ben Hogan of Hershey wilted in the heat to wind up with 283.

Holman Williams, the American Negro middleweight, was not good enough in his fight in Paris last night with Marcel Cerdan, the French champion taking the 10-round decision.

Don Budge of Oakland, Calif., had little trouble yesterday at Philadelphia in disposing of Welby Van Horn in three sets for the Middle States pro grass courts tennis honors before 2,500 fans.

An American welterweight from Ohio, Jimmy Ainscough, was outpointed in every round by Lauri Stevens, South African champion, in their 10-round match at Johannesburg last night.

Frankie Parker of Los Angeles yesterday defeated Bill Taloert of Wilmington, Del., in straight sets to take the singles championship of the National Clay Courts tournament at River Forest, Ill.

In a return cricket match with the Indian tourists at Manchester Saturday, Lancashire registered 406 runs for the innings of Cyril Washbrook and Ikin contributed 108 and 139 respectively.

Montreal, July 8 — (CP) — With the field thrown wide open by Tommy Gorman's resignation from his Montreal Forum spot, there is plenty of speculation about his successor and much seems to be favoring Frank Selke.

The former Toronto Maple Leaf executive is well liked around these diggings, and the French-Canadian press has a warm spot for him because he always gave the Habitants a break when he was churning out his publicity on Toronto's Carlton Street.

It's a wide open race, though, with Lester Patrick getting a prominent mention. Bax (Montreal Star) O'Meara, musing over the report that 25 applications for Gorman's Forum job poured in during the first day after the announcement, and apparently none from a newspaperman, comments it "must be something of a record."

Tennis Training

Now that Canada's junior tennis players are having an exclusive tournament uncluttered by older and more seasoned stars, Canadian racket hopes may be on the make.

The youngsters who try out in the meet at Ottawa next week will include this country's Davis Cup stars of the future, and there is no better time than now to get them started on the right track.

As sponsors of the tournament have pointed out, it's too much to expect the younger players — unless they really are brilliant beyond their age and experience — to compete against seasoned ball-wallopers in the grind of tournament play.

Given two or three years of that, and the results won't be disappointing when Canada stacks up against other nations.

The four-year-old Busher, owned by Louis B. Mayer, has been top-weighted at 126 pounds for the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup race at Inglewood, Calif., July 27. Main Chance Farm's knockdown, winner of the Santa Anita Derby, was favored with a mere 112 pounds.

New York, July 8 (AP) —Attention Card fans: Twenty four years today Branch Rickey put a rookie named Eddie Dyer in as a pinch-hitter for Heinie Mueller of the Cardinals against Brooklyn...Four days later, Dyer made his National League hit, a pinch double, against the Phillies, and July 29,1922, Eddie made his pitching debut, relieving Lou North...This July Dyer still is a rookie manager in the National League and his Cards really are feeling the pinch... On the pessimistic side, it might be worth noting among the anniversaries that Eddie didn't win his first pitching victory until Sept. 9, 1923.

Only One Swim Record Broken At Hamilton Meet

Hamilton, July 8 (CP)—Only one Canadian swimming record was broken Saturday at the Hamilton Centennial invitation swimming meet when a junior men's relay team from Victoria set a new 200-yard relay mark of 1.44.7 minutes.

Irene Strong, of Vancouver, added her second title of the meet by taking the senior women's 100 yard free style event. Another Vancouver girl, Norah Kirkpatrick, won the senior women's 100 yard backstroke title in 1.17.8.

The easterners came into their own in the diving competition when George Athens of McGill winner of the British Empire title in 1932, piled up a total of 140.166 points against his nearest opponent, Frank Johnson of Hamilton, Ontario title winner of last June.

Vaccine Saved 2,000,000 Lives

Johannesburg, July 8 (CP) — Vaccine sent to Russia during the war, saved at least 2,000,000 Russian lives. This fact was revealed recently by Dr. E. H. Cluver, Director of the South African Institute for Medical Research.

In the early stages of the war, the Consul-General for Russia approached him and asked for 5,000,000 doses of anti-typhus vaccine. At that time South Africa had produced about five doses, on a merely experimental basis. Through a generous grant from the South African Medical Aid for Russia Fund, the Institute set up the necessary laboratories to produce the vaccine.

Would Curb Gaudy "Ads"

London, July 8 (CP) — Government control of unsightly outdoor advertisements is planned in Britain in future, and legislation to that effect will be introduced by Lewis Silkin, Minister of Town and Country Planning, told the Incorporated Society of British Advertisers.

Outdoor advertising had served a good purpose, he said, and had a great influence on the public, but it must not be allowed to spoil the amenities in either town or country.

In writing controlling legislation, the government was considering how it could be administered without interfering with advertising activities, he said. In the meantime advertisers should do what they could to prevent the spread of unsightly outdoor advertisements.

FAITHFUL

BY MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 1

The dress was a shimmering sheath of gold. It lay on the bed and next to it was a pair of small gold sandals.

"You shouldn't have bought it, Mother," said Iris. "You know we can't afford it."

Mrs. Wade, a tall fine figure of a woman with shingled white hair, looked at her stepdaughter with defiant eyes.

"And how do you suppose we are ever going to afford to live better if you are not dressed well to meet men with money? You're a foolish girl, Iris. I've put all my faith in you. I've been a good mother to you."

Iris lowered her eyes. "I know and—I'm grateful."

When Selina Wade looked at her stepdaughter, she saw her not in the severe, tastefully selected but inexpensive clothes that Iris wore with her own grace and distinction. Selina Wade saw her in magnificent furs and jewels that belonged to a girl of Iris's rare beauty.

Mrs. Wade was a handsome and socially ambitious woman who had in her youth impulsively married a young man of no ambition who had an infant daughter. For years after the birth of her own children, Eve and Tommy, Selina had scraped together a mere existence, thinking her dreams of social power forever lost. But when Iris showed signs of being a beauty and Eve's rich singing voice gave great promise, Selina pursued her dreams again and not even the death of her husband, who left her a pitifully small annuity, crushed her hopes.

At twenty Iris Wade, tall, graceful, with a proud head of dark hair that grew off her forehead in a brave widow's peak, dark eyes with an amazing honesty in them, and a handsome red mouth, was a beauty indeed. After graduation from high school three years before she had taken a business course, completed it in record time, and was now secretary and assistant to Dr. Louis Tracy, a prominent Baltimore physician. Selina thought it almost a catastrophe that Dr. Tracy was a specialist for women and that consequently no men came to his luxurious offices and saw Iris, crisp and beautiful in her white uniform.

For years Selina's eternal song to Iris had been, "You must make a brilliant marriage, Iris. Eve has such a wonderful voice. She deserves an opportunity to study under the best teachers. I can't give her that opportunity. But you can—if you marry a man with money." And Iris, devoted and grateful to her stepmother, and fond of Eve and Tommy knew her destiny as though it had already been written and—hated it.

In the high old-fashioned room in the cottage in Walbrook, Iris put on the gold dress. Won't it ever, ever stop, she wondered. Isn't it mine—my life? Can't I love whom I want to love, marry whom I please? Why must I be the tool of Mother's thwarted ambitions and Eve's passport to opera? It isn't fair. It isn't fair.

There was a knock on the door and Tommy came in. Iris turned around and smiled at him, loving him in spite of his shiftlessness. He was a tall boy, just eighteen, with dreamy dark eyes and dark hair, who had inherited from his father a lovable disposition, irresistible good looks and also unfortunately his inability to make money. Out of high school since the past June, he had had several positions, which lasted only a few weeks, and when he needed money, it was not to his mother he went but to Iris who had never refused him.

"You dazzle me," he said, covering his eyes with his hand and smiling boyishly. He sat on the bed and lighted a cigaret. "Where're you going tonight? Who's the new flame?"

Looking at him through the mirror, she said, "Mary North is giving a party tonight at her apartment. She's one of Dr. Tracy's wealthiest patients and she's been awfully nice to me—inviting me out to dinner and takin me to the theatre."

"Married?"

"A young widow."

Tommy grinned. "Who's the man you're going with?"

"I'm not going with a man," said Iris, screwing in rhinestone earrings. "I told Mary I might have to work overtime and I'd come in a cab. She has my escort selected, but she won't tell me who he is. It seems," said Iris, "This man saw my photograph in Mary's living room and asked to meet me."

Tommy looked at her a few moments without speaking. Then he said, low, "You're still seeing Joel Brooke, aren't you?"

Iris seemed to let out her breath. "Did you see us?"

"I saw you together at a movie downtown." He frowned. "I won't tell Mother. I promise. I remember how rotten she was to him two years ago because he's poor. Just a teller in a bank. Have you been seeing him two years secretly?"

She nodded, biting her lip. "Yes. I couldn't let him come here to see me. Mother was so—so discourteous."

"Do you love him?"

"He loves me," Iris said soberly," and needs me and depends on me." She met Tommy's eyes honestly. "I'm not a child, you know. All my life I've done exactly what Mother wanted me to do: I've never crossed her. But I couldn't stop seeing Joel because he's poor. I've never had many friends. Friends I could have made, Mother disapproved of. They weren't important enough. She likes Mary North because Mary is wealthy." Iris shook her head. "Things are awfully mixed up for me, Tommy."

"Mother's always talking about what she's done for you," he said, lifting his voice angrily. "That's all wrong. We're a burden to you. I—I can't get a job. I can't pay any board."

She got up and went to him and with a gesture of tenderness took him in her arms. "Tommy, I know what I've got to do. Mother has never shown any difference between her own children and me. She's been good to me and I see how things are with us. We need money so that you can go to school and train yourself in a particular kind of work. Eve must have money for her voice. And Mother needs some one to help with this big house."

"With how many mortgages on it!" he said. "And you, Iris, you've got to sacrifice yourself for us. Mother doesn't care about the inside of you, how you feel, what you think. She just wants the outside to be beautiful."

She ran her fingers through his hair. "It's going to be all right. But sometimes I hate myself for what she has made me—a bait dressed in clothes that aren't paid for. It's getting late, Tommy.. I've got to run along and meet the strange man who will be disappointed in me."

"Iris..I..could you.."

She laughed. "Of course," and got her business purse. "Two dollars for you. But promise me you won't go to the pool parlor. There's something about a boy shooting pool that labels him.."

"A bum. I won't. And I won't tell Mother about you and Joel."

He went out, and she put on the short black velvet wrap and pulled on the white gloves. Going to the little table by the window, she picked up a corsage of gardenias that had arrived today with no card enclosed. From Mary's friend? Who was he? She thought, pinning them to her coat. "He's probably a stout business man who will tell me his wife doesn't understand him." She left one lamp burning and gathering up the train of the gold dress went downstairs.

Eve, a small girl with straight dark hair cut like that of a medieval page, was curled up on the divan like a sleepy child.

"Oh, Iris, you look gorgeous! Did you know it was raining?"

Selina said, "Your cab is here. Now go out and be gay, Iris, and have a good time. Mary is such a charming person. Dr. Tracy won't object if you're a little late in the morning."

She kissed Iris and then sat beside Eve. Iris, pulling the coat around her slim hips, had a swift and unforgetable picture as she went out in the spring rain to the waiting cab of Selina's face, bright with hope, and Eve's clear blue eyes that seemed to implore and beg.

North Charles street was like a slippery mirror. As the cab approached a busy intersection something happened—Iris never knew precisely what— but a dozen or more cars piled one upon the other like so many helpless bugs. The brakes of the cab were applied so violently that she was thrown forward and it was several minutes before she came out of the sudden enveloping blackness.

When she opened her eyes, she was lying on the back seat of the cab and a strange man was rubbing her hands. The cab driver was standing outside in the pouring rain looking at her with troubled worried eyes.

Dazed as she was, she was always to remember this first meeting with March Christian and be grateful for the warm strong hands holding her cold ones, and the friendly dark eyes that looked at her with such personal concern. Through the mist in her mind she remembered her dress, probably ruined, the dress that wasn't paid for, and remembered Mary's gay party and the man who had sent the gardenias. Then the black void again that seemed to engulf her.

When she opened her eyes the second time, she was lying on a soft divan in a dimly lighted room—a strange though friendly room. Her temples throbbed, her face was aflame, her hands were icy.

In a moment, summoning her strength, she was up but the luxurious room whirled before her eyes and she would have fallen had not Mark Christian caught her. In time to come, his being there, his arms that caught her and lay her down on the divan when the world was spinning dizzily before her was to have a special significance.

"Lie quietly," he said gently. "You'll feel better after a while," and Iris closed her eyes, [illegible] in the presence of this strange man and in this room a curious security and safety. Everywhere she had turned for so long—at home, or to Joel and his unreasoning jealousy—she was met with misunderstanding and conflict.

Mark Christian, sitting beside her, saw tears beneath her lashes. Iris was beautiful — a promise fulfilled. During the hours he had watched her sleeping, her features, the vivid flame in her cheeks, the way her dark hair grew off her forehead, and the slim young grace of her had been made so indelible in his mind, he knew, that wherever he went after tonight he would never be free of her disturbing beauty and grace. Why—this was the reason Florida had bored him, why everything bored him because, as is so often the case, what he had been seeking was not remote but incredibly near.

She opened her eyes, actually seeing him for the first time, seeing deep-set dark eyes in a thin rugged sunburned face, dark hair, and a mouth that could be both storm and smiling.

"Feeling better?" he asked.

"My head...."

"You have a good sized bump on it," he said, "to remember me by. I apologize for being a poor nurse. I could only think of getting you out of the rain." He smiled. "I put the gardenias in water."

Iris managed a faint appreciative smile. "To remember me by." She frowned and pressed her hand to her forehead. "What happened? I don't remember.."

Psychic Oysters ---It Says Here

Melbourne, Australia, July 8 — (CP) — The manager of a Melbourne hotel had for supper a plate of oysters, four glasses of sauterne and a large helping of chicken.

"This was the first time in my life I had oysters," he said. "They gave me a comfortable feeling and I went to sleep easily.

"But I woke up saying '175,248 .. 175,248.' My wife talked me into writing to the management of a Tasmanian lottery to ask for the ticket bearing that number."

He got it—and it won for him the first prize of £10,000.

Sums Up Charges In Prosecution Of Mihailovic

By GEORGE PALMER

Belgrade, July 8 (AP)—Chief Prosecutor Col. Milos Minich began his summation in the treason trial of Gen. Draja Mihailovic today by declaring that every charge contained in the prosecution indictment had been proved irrefutably.

Minich also accused Anglo-American representatives who were stationed at Mihailovic's headquarters of instigating him to fight against Yugoslav Communists.

Minich described the activities of these representatives as "an expression of certain reactionary circles abroad which were fighting for their own interests and not for the interests of the peoples of the Balkans."

Minich said that American officers had remained at Mihailovic's headquarters as late as January, 1945, and that this gave the Chetnik leader an opportunity to maintain that he was not collaborating with the enemy.

Describing Mihailovic's activities as "a four year fight against the National Liberation Movement," Minich charged that the politicians of all the pre-war Yugoslav parties had collaborated closely with the Chetnik leader.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, July 8 — (CP)—Wide losses were showing on the Toronto exchange at noon today especially for the golds, base metals and industrials. Western Oils held fairly firm.

The heavy selling developed in the first hour as traders endeavored to appraise the effect of the return of the Canadian dollar to equality with the U. S. dollar, thus wiping out the premium heretofore obtained by sellers of Canadian commodities. By noon the golds were down nine points in the index while the base metals lost six points and the industrials more than three points. The selling was much heavier than in session of recent months, showing volume of 1,417,000 shares for the first three hours.

The gold and newsprint stocks took the widest losses, showing losses of 1½ to 3 points at noon. After the second hour, there was a marked recovery that cut the losses in spots by 50 per cent. Some of the cheaper mining prospects fully recovered.

C.P.R., Consolidated Paper, Abitibi, Lake Shore, Dome, Hollinger, Noranda, Nickel and Hudson Bay all weakened one to two and a half points.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, July 8 (AP)—Individual stocks groped for recovery today while many market leaders continued to stumble in another one of the slowest sessions for the past year.

Activity was slack from the start and trends generally a shade uneven near the fourth hour.

Canadian mining stocks were generally weak at noon on both exchange and curb while other Canadian stocks showed strength.

On the big board at noon, Canadian Pacific was up 1-2 at 19 7-8, Distillers Seagram plus 3-4 at 25 3-8, International Nickel gained 3-8 at 39, Dome Mines lost 5-8 at 23 3-4 and Hiram Walker was up 1 3-8 at 138 1-8.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, July 8—(CP)—Cattle trade was slow with prices about steady up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Hogs, veals calves, lambs and sheep were steady.

Compromise Bill Likely to Be Signed by Truman

Washington, July 8 (AP) — A prediction of presidential approval was thrown behind the compromise office of Price Administration Renewal Bill today as Senators dug in for a showdown fight over whether—and how—to revive price controls.

The word that Mr. Truman apparently is satisfied with what Democratic leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky was able to bring out of the banking committee was passed down through the banks in an obvious attempt to get it through Congress in face of the critisism voiced against the compromise by O.P.A. Administrator Paul Porter.

Mr. Porter said last week he supported Sen. Barkley's substitute for a previously approved profit provision requiring that individual manufacturers be given increases over their Oct. 1 to 15, 1941, prices to cover the average gain in industry costs since that time.

But the O.P.A. administrator intimated he didn't like other provisions of the new bill, which like its predecessor kills O.P.A.'s maximum average price order designed to keep low-cost clothing on the market and gives the secretary of agriculture final authority on taking controls off foods.

STOCKS REACT

"The best thing to do is to let matters take their natural course," said an exchange spokesman. "There will be a shake-out and then everything might clear. I think things are not as desperate in the golds as some think."

It was estimated unofficially the gold stocks on the exchange alone melted in values by at least $150,000,000.

On the Montreal exchange, the same downward trend was apparent at opening among papers, metals, selected industrials, utilities and Oils. Losses of fractions to eight points were numerous.

Papers Lower.

Price was off eight dollars in papers, Fraser seven. Smelters, Noranda and Nickel participated in a base metal slump that saw some issuer drop five points.

On Wall Street, Canadian mining stocks were generally weak at noon on both the exchange and the curb. Industrials were steady to narrowly higher, however, as some attracted bids on the idea that American holders could expect capital gains up to 10 per cent. Mining issues had to contend with the fact that Dominion producers would get $3.50 an ounce less on gold prices from the United States treasury.

At London, Canadian securities rose sharply but it was held that these increases did not represent a full adjustment to the announcement of the dollar parity. Brokers said United States interests had accumulated quantities of Canadian shares as a hedge against exchange adjustments and might seek to cash their profits.

STIRLING

War Veterans Of Village, Rawdon Township Honored

Stirling—War Veterans of World War II from Stirling Village and Rawdon Township were welcomed home at a joint reception held on Stirling Fair Grounds on Monday. A heavy downpour of rain interrupted the program during the afternoon but failed to dampen the festivities.

The program opened with a parade of Veterans, Girl Guides, Wolf Cubs, and Brownies, headed by Stirling Citizens' Band, from the High School Grounds. On their arrival at the grounds they were greeted by large crowd of citizens of the community and were officially welcomed by R. A. Patterson, Chairman.

Fred Wilson, M.P.P., Speaker

Fred Wilson, M.P.P., for West Hastings, was the speaker, and said in part:

"Almost 14 months have passed since victory in Europe was gained and the final struggle was dramatically ended last August. Whatever has happened since or whatever may happen in the future it is well to remember what might be happening now if we had been defeated. Imagine our position today if our enemies had won. There are no words that can describe adequately the suffering and calamities that would be afflicting us now. Instead of being wretched slaves without a country, without freedom and without hope, we are living today in Canada free and safe with probably the best living conditions in the whole world, because we had men such as these to put on the uniform of the King and offer their all in every theatre of the war.

"After the Flag Waving and Cheers, Parades and Official welcomes were over, let us make sure Canada is a better place in which to live. Let us see that these men are re-established in Civilian life.

No Government can do all to rehabilitate, they set up machinery, but the real responsibility rests with every individual in every community in which they live.

Any person who helps to reestablish one of these boys will not only be helping the veteran but will also be the richer himself for having done so."

In closing Mr. Wilson urged his hearers to make sure they were worthy of those who will never return.

The names of those who paid the Supreme Sacrifice from Stirling, were read by H. R. Tompkins, and those from Rawdon by Deputy Reeve, Wilfred Spencer, followed by two minute's silence. The Last Post and Reveille were sounded by W.O. 2 J. B. Furnish, of RCAF Station, Trenton.

Conference Awaits Russia's Policy Towards Germany

Adopt French Compromise To Break Parley Deadlock

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, July 9 (AP)— The Foreign Ministers Council, turning to the German question after finally breaking a four-day deadlock on the calling of a 21-power peace conference, anxiously awaited today a promised "important declaration" of Russia's policy toward Germany.

The log-jam ended last night with the adoption of a French compromise providing that only a few suggested rules of procedure be sent out with invitations to the peace conference, scheduled to open July 29 in Luxembourg Palace.

This was considered a victory for Britain and the United States, which had opposed Russian demands that the invitations be accompanied by mandatory rules of procedure.

Under the compromise, France was authorized to send out invitations today to the countries which will draft peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland.

Speculation on the nature of the "important declaration" on Russia's policy toward Germany ran from one extreme to another. Some sources said Russia planned to offer to join Britain, France and the United States in establishing a central administrative organization within a federalized Germany. Others said the Russians would denounce Britain and the United States for conducting "secret negotiations behind the Soviet Union's back."

Allies Accused by Tass

Tass news agency has accused the two western allies of engaging in private conversations on Germany to which Foreign Minister Molotov "for some reason" was not invited.

American delegation sources denied that tri-power "secret talks" on Germany were going on in Paris "to the exclusion of Russia." French, British and American coal technicians are negotiating to increase Germany's coal output, they said, but United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery has kept the Russian Ambassador, Alexandre Bogomolov, advised on the progress of these talks.

Diplomats speculating on the reason for the change in the Russian demand for prearranged, mandatory rules of procedure for the peace conference said Molotov might have received new instructions from Moscow or that the other foreign ministers might have brought such pressure to bear on him to agree to presentation of the rules as only recommendations that he was forced to yield.

Britain and the United States are known to favor a breakdown in the present rigid zonal boundaries of Germany and an end to the division of Germany into uneconomic, airtight compartments. France, Britain and the United States all seek to establish German states which eventually could be unified into a federal structure.

To Consider Austrian Question

After concluding discussions on Germany, the council is scheduled to consider the Austrian question and the Italian political situation. Then, presumably, the ministers will adjourn so that they may attend the peace conference.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, July 9 (CP)— Synopsis at 7.30 a.m.: Cooler drier air moved into Southern Ontario yesterday evening preceded by a few scattered thunderstorms in Eastern Ontario. This morning the leading edge of the cool air mass has become almost stationary south of the Great Lakes, so that the warm humid weither still prevails over most of the Eastern and Central United States. Frequent showers are occurring in Alberta and widely scattered showers and thunderstorms in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. Temperatures in the Prairie Provinces are near normal. Clear weather with low humidity should prevail over Southern Ontario for today and tomorrow.

NAZI SERGEANT POW FOUND GUILTY MUST FACE DEATH

Jury Deliberates Three Hours on Charge of Murder of Fellow Captive

Medicine Hat, Alta., July 9 — (CP) — Sgt. Walter Wolfe, 28-year-old German prisoner of war was convicted by a six-man Alberta Supreme Court jury yesterday of the murder of Cpl. Karl Lehmann, a fellow captive, in the Medicine Hat internment camp, September 10, 1944, and was sentenced to be hanged at Lethbridge jail October 16.

The jury deliberated three hours before returning the guilty verdict. Asked if he had anything to say, Wolfe replied he had followed the evidence at the trial very closely and he was fully convinced his trial had been a "very fair" one.

Wolfe, the second prisoner tried for the murder of Lehmann, said he hoped that Sgt.-Maj. Bruno Perzenowski, also convicted of Lehmann's murder and sentenced to be hanged at Lethbridge jail October 16, would "open up" and reveal the names of those responsible for the murder.

Two other prisoners charged in the case, Sgt.-Maj. Henrich Busch and Sgt.-Maj. Willi Mueller will be tried separately. Busch's trial opened at the sittings of the Alberta Supreme Court today.

Testimony given during the 6-day trial of Wolfe, had described Lehmann as a man considered a "traitor" by other members at the internment camp.

Thye, Stassen Leading Election

Minneapolis, July 9 — (AP) — Governor Edward J. Thye and his political mentor, Harold E. Stassen, were far ahead today in their fight to unseat Sen. Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota.

Thye's wide margin in the race for the Republican Senate nomination indicated he had:

1. Dashed the fifth term hopes of Shipstead, outspoken disbeliever in the United Nations and such international dealings as the proposed $3,750,000,000 credit to Britain.

2. Strengthened Stassen's hand in his quest for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination on a personal platform off all-out international co-operation.

More Forest Patrols, Lookout Towers, Reduced Hazards Are Recommended

Toronto, July 9 (CP)— The Save the Forest League today recommended formation of additional patrols, closing of forest areas in acute fire danger periods, elimination of fire hazards, a 50-per cent increase in the number of lookout towers and improved fire-fighting equipment to expand the care and protection of Ontario forests.

The recommendations were contained in a brief prepared by John C. W. Irwin for presentation to Maj.-Gen. Howard Kennedy, recently-appointed Ontario Forestry Commissioner.

The League suggested increased patrol on foot or by boat or aircraft in areas frequented by tourists, and more severe penalties for starting fires carelessly or deliberately. It advocated a jail term without alternative fine in many cases.

Also urged was extended use of fire weather prediction services "which have been almost ignored until recently..." Burning of brush outside the fire season, even at "considerable expense" to the government, "is to be preferred" to the risk of fires arising from the burning of brush by settlers, the brief concluded.

KING MAHIDOL'S DEATH THOUGHT NOT AN ACCIDENT

From Physicians To Pageboys Witnesses Agree it Was Case Of Suicide or Murder

By STANLEY M. SWINTON

Bangkok, July 9 (AP) — Exactly a month has passed since palace attendants discovered young King Ananda Mahidol dead from a bullet wound in the head, yet the mystery surrounding the royal tragedy appears no nearer solution than the political crisis it engendered.

Hundreds of Siamese ranging from rickshaw boys to minor royalty flock daily to the justice ministry, where commission dignitaries are conducting an exhaustive investigation.

Only one fact definitely has emerged from the torrent of testimony—the death was not an accident, as the first communique said.

From physicians to pageboys, the witnesses agree it was suicide or murder.

Twelve of the 20 members of the medical commission which conducted a post mortem held it was probably murder. But the majority of Siamese, Americans and British observers consider it was suicide, since only two attendants and the queen mother had access to the royal bedchamber in which the body was found and their activities are believed fully accounted for.

The investigation also disclosed the death gun — .45 calibre — was discharged while not more than two inches from the king's forehead and may have been pressed against his head. This is considered to support the suicide theory. The king had a neurotic fear of crowds, which his position forced him to face almost daily.

The king's death shocked the Siamese people, but the bitter political struggle growing out of the unexplained circumstances of the death has begun to assume more importance than the death itself.

The political faction opposing Premier Pridi Phanomyong has openly charged it was murder. Its members have circulated pamphlets and apparently also are responsible for rumors declaring Pridi either was directly responsible or is concealing the true circumstances.

Pridi has struck back with a series of repressive moves which are reported to have disturbed American and British diplomats here.

The National Assembly has been ended and severe press censorship invoked, resulting in suspension of the English language newspaper, Liberty, and one Siamese paper. Former Police General Adun Detcharat, who is considered a Pridi henchman and the Siamese strongman, was appointed commander-in-chief of the Siamese army.

A prominent Democratic party assemblyman has been arrested for sedition and a police communique said further arrests were planned.

Partition of Palestine Must Not be Rejected As Possible Solution

—Weizmann

By CARLTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, July 9 (AP)— Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Jewish agency and world Zionist president, said today that partition of Palestine into separate Jewish and Arab states "must not be rejected as a possible solution" of the Palestine problem.

The elderly, nearly blind Weizmann held a press conference for some 100 Jewish and foreign newspapermen, at which he said:

"Had the mandatory government (Britain) proceeded immediately to implement the positive recommendations of the (British-American Committee) inquiry report, despite some of its objectionable features, peace and quiet would have reigned in this country."

Asked what he meant by "objectionable features," Dr. Weizmann mentioned recommendation No. 3 in the report which held that the final state should be neither Jewish nor Arab.

"There are many Jewish people and much public opinion everywhere favoring partition as a solution of the Palestine problem," the Zionist leader added.

He referred to the Jewish war record and the charges against the mufti of Jerusalem of collaborating with the Axis forces.

"And now," he continued, "the mufti lives in a palace in Egypt, and Moshe Shertok, who recruited 25,000 young Jews for Britain's armies, is behind the bars in the Latrun detention camp."

Referring to Prime Minister Attlee's declarations that both Jews and Arabs must disarm before the report would be implemented, Dr. Weizmann termed it an "impossible condition."

CANADA SUGGESTS PLAN OF PROJECTS FOR COMMISSION

Percy Molson Urges That Projects be Classified According to Priorities

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, July 9 (CP Cable) — A move to get the United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization's "preparatory commission" down to serious business was made by the Canadian delegation today when Percy Molson of Toronto, a member of the Canadian delegation, urged classification of suggested U. N. E. S. C. O. projects according to priorities laid down in a Canadian-sponsored schedule.

"We have been discussing general principles, but unless we agree on suitable procedure, we may lose our way," Mr. Molson told the Commission, now halfway through its eight-day session. "We need a method of procedure which will most readily avoid the danger of generalization and lead us with the greatest possible dispatch to the successful conclusion of our task."

Schedule

As headings under which the projects could be calssified for priority, Canada suggested:

1. Proposals to advance reconstruction and rehabilitation of educational systems destroyed by war;

2. Facilitation of operations either already under way or contemplated by governments and other bodies in educational, scientific and cultural fields;

3. Promotion of schemes of immediate importance, which U.N.E.S.C.O. is unable to undertake itself, by bringing them to the attention of member governments and private institutions, thus taking the initiative without taxing its resources;

4. Plans for which U. N. E. S. C. O. itself may wish to assume full administrative and financial responsibility.

"By placing these in the lowest classification for the moment, by maintaining a true sense of proportion, U. N. E. S. C. O. will inspire that universal confidence which must be the foundation of lasting success," Mr. Molson said. When chairman Dr. Esther Brunauer of the United States delegation asked whether Canada desired to move a formal resolution and in effect change the whole proposed procedure for the conference, Mr. Molson said no, adding that Canada merely was suggesting a way to operate more effectively.

Dr. Brunauer said the Commission's project would be examined, bearing in mind Canada's suggested priority plan.

POLYMER RUBBER PLANT PRODUCING ABOVE CAPACITY

Hon. C. D. Howe Says Corporation Has Proved Itself Successful Enterprise

Ottawa, July 9 (CP)—Polymer Corporation, the government-owned synthetic rubber plant at Sarnia, Ont., now is producing 100,000,000 pounds of rubber annually—18 per cent more than its designed capacity, Reconstruction Minister Howe announced today in a review of the company's annual statement for the year ended March 31.

Mr. Howe's statement said the Corporation during the last year "proved itself as a successful enterprise, capable of standing on its own feet without government subsidy," and added the plant was preparing long-range plans for reduction of costs, expansion of markets and additions to its facilities.

Demand for Sarnia-made rubber was at "the highest level in the history of the company, yet all essential Canadian demands are being met. No one is yet in a position to foresee how long this extraordinary demand will be maintained indefinitely."

Turning Out Four Types

Although the plant a year ago was producing only one type of buna-s rubber, it now was turning out four types, plus three types of buna-s latex. Meanwhile, further research at Sarnia, at the National Research Council and at seven Canadian universities, indicated the plant "will be able to produce tailor-made types of synthetic rubber for specific purposes."

Turning to appointments in the Corporation, Mr. Howe announced that D. W. Ambridge, President of Polymer, had agreed to continue in that capacity and would assume the additional duties of chairman of the Board of Directors. J. R. Nicholson, managing director and treasurer, had become vice-president and managing director.

Accepts With Regret

Mr. Howe said he accepted with regret the resignation of W. R. Campbell, Windsor, a director since the company's inception.

New directors appointed were L. C. McCloskey, Galt; H. J. Carmichael, St. Catharines; former co-ordinator of production of the Munitions Department and H. Mero, Windsor. Recently it was

TAXATION RELIEF NOT SUFFICIENT SAYS OPPOSITION

Govt. Criticized For Large Expenditures And Not Encouraging All-out Production

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 9 — (CP) — Two opposition want - of - confidence motions in the government, backed up by a wealth of verbal criticism, were before the Commons today as the budget debate swung into its second day.

Party spokesmen held the floor yesterday as the debate got under way and the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. groups moved amendments to the main motion criticizing failure to provide more taxation relief and stimulate all-out production.

The Progressive Conservative amendment, moved by J. M. Macdonnel (PC — Muskoka-Ontario), opposition financial critic, expressed regret that the budget provided no tax relief until 1947 and gave no indication of any serious attempt to eliminate extravagance and that government policies were discouraging production.

The C.C.F. motion, moved by Angus MacInnis, (CCF-Vancouver-East), criticized the government for failure to increase income tax exemptions sufficiently, to provide for public investment to assure full employment, to provide for social security measures in its offer to the provinces and to recognize co-operatives as non-profit making organizations.

TAXATION RELIEF—Page 12

Sees Little Hope Renewed Concordat

By LARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, July 9 —(AP)— The provisional government's differences with the Roman Catholic Church were spotlighted today by Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski's statement that high-ranking prelates in Poland had failed to condemn those responsible for a recent pogrom in Kielce in which 41 persons were killed.

At a press conference the Premier named Cardinal Sapieha and the Bishop of Kielce among members of the hierarchy who, he said, had refused a government request that they appeal to the country to prevent anti-semitism, rioting and acts of violence by underground organizations.

"If the church would openly condemn murders and internal strife, such as at Kielce, it naturally would help," the Premier said.

The Premier indicated that he saw little prospect of renewing a concordat with the Vatican, saying that "we would like to renew it, but the Vatican still recognizes the Arcazewski Government in London."

German Private Banker Gives Views on Germany's Finances

Berlin, July 9 (AP) — Germany today owes twice what the country is worth in industrial, agricultural and prosperity resources. Our financial situation is bad—but not so bad it can't be saved.

Our chief problem is to cut down the whole indebtedness of the Reich. Leaving out the question of war damages and reparation payments, that indebtedness amounts to 400,000,000,000 marks.

(This is roughly $40,000,000,000 at the present level of the mark, but in German terms the figure would be much larger.)

We think this indebtedness must be reduced four-fifths, bringing it down to 80,000,000,000 marks.

How can we reduce this vast debt? We could do it perhaps by a controlled inflation, but this is dangerous and impossible at present under the present divided government structure.

Some bankers—I among them—believe it can be done only by capital tax. Every German must yield four-fifths of his capital—whether it be in the form of money, industrial shares, bonds, buildings, farms or homes.

Such a tax would take away 80 per cent of what I have left of my fortune.

It couldn't be done overnight. It would take from 10 to 20 years. An individual could pay up perhaps 10 per cent of the tax at once, and give notes to the state for the rest.

Such a tax would have to be made effective soon for if the present liquidation of private property in the Russian-occupied eastern zone continues for another year our present concept of property rights will have been destroyed.

During the war Russian troops looted all cash and securities from the banks. They have since liquidated the banks themselves. Old accounts simply were wiped out, and depositors have lost hope of ever getting anything back.

This procedure wasn't followed in the British and American zones, where private banks were permitted to continue in operation, and old as well as new post-war accounts are honored.

Our banking situation is difficult. But if a compromise could be effected between the policies in the eastern and western zones, and the real financial position of the country made clear to the people, measures then could be taken to put Germany on a sound footing.

3,000 Electrical Men Walk Out During Night

Tuna Fishermen on Coast Want to Share Profits

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Canada's troubled labor picture was further darkened today by strikes involving more than 3,000 Ontario electrical workers who went on strike late yesterday and during the night to boost the country's total of workers idle in walkouts well over the 30,000 mark.

The latest strikes, called by the United Electrical Workers of America (C.I.O.) over demands for a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase, the 40-hour week and vacations with pay, affected plants in Toronto and Welland and increased the number of industrial disputes now affecting the Dominion from Quebec to the Pacific coast.

At 4 a.m. E.D.T. today, 1,200 workers went on strike at the Canadian Wire and Cable Co. plant in Toronto, only a few hours after 1,300 walked off their jobs at the Electro Metallurgical Company of Canada's Welland plant.

Earlier, at the Amalgamated Electric Corporations plant at Toronto, about 700 members of the same union struck, joining 4,000 electrical workers already on strike at the Hamilton plant of the Canadian Westinghouse Co.

Approximately 100 tuna fishermen on the west coast joined the striking ranks late yesterday when they walked off their boats in a dispute over the basis of sharing profits with the Fishing Vessel Owner's Association. At the same time it was announced that a possible tieup in the pilchard fleet, involving about 800 fishermen and tendermen, was likely.

May be Difficult to Settle

Also in British Columbia Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, acting as an industrial disputes commissioner, started efforts to get 2,500 striking hard rock miners and their employers together but there was some belief the lower United States price for Canadian gold as a result of return of the Canadian dollar to par would add to difficulties of a settlement.

From Quebec there were reports that some of the 6,000 Montreal and Valleyfield textile workers on strike since June 1 were drifting back to their jobs.

The Windsor area, scene of strikes at Chrysler Motors, Truscon Steel and Canadian Industries, Ltd., involving more than 5,000 workers, faced possibility of further trouble when 400 workers at Bruner Mond Ltd., in nearby Amherstburg voted in favor of strike action to enforce wage-hour demands of their union, United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.).

Rubber Workers Still Out

There was no indication of an early settlement in the 10 Ontario rubber plants where some 11,000 workers are on strike and the United Rubber Workers (C.I.O.) at Kitchener announced mass picketing would start July 15 at the four plants in that city.

Meantime from Toronto came word that Hon. Leslie Blackwell, Ontario's Attorney General, was to make a test case out of picketing activities of members of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) on strike at the Anaconda American Brass Co. in nearby New Toronto. It was expected the case would determine the length to which picketing might be legally carried on in the province.

Organizer Fined

Yesterday, union organizer Ben Doherty, described by police as a picket captain at Anaconda, lost his second decision when he was fined $25 on a charge of obstructing police after a $15 fine on an assault charge 10 days ago. Counsel said he will appeal.

In the test case to determine what is lawful picketing, the court granted an adjournment until July 15 of criminal code charges dealing with picketing against Doherty and Jack Stewart, I.M.W. officer. The test case was being directed by Attorney General Blackwell.

Apart from a clash at the Anaconda plant there has been little indication of trouble in the current outbreak of labor disputes, but yesterday in Toronto 400 striking fur workers had differences among themselves about the viewpoints of the A.F.L. union which called the strike and a C.I.O. union which had obtained a new contract. Four strikers were arrested after a scuffle.

There was no sign of a break in the dispute between the International Typographical Union (A.F.L.) and newspapers of the Southam group.

Tomorrow the Canadian Congress of Labor wage committee meets in Hamilton to map further plans in the Congress drive for higher wages and shorter hours. One of the top objects will be the situation in steel, where July 12 is the deadline for a strike decision.

Mrs. Frederick Niven of Nelson, widow of the author, will attend the ceremony and J. Murray Gibson, honorary president of the Canadian Authors' Association, will address the gathering. The ceremony will close with E. P. Dawson reading Niven's poem "The Last Will and Testament."

Mr. Niven, born in Valpraiso, Chile, in 1878, died in Vancouver after living for many years in the Kootenay area of southeastern British Columbia.

Palo Alto, Calif., July 9 (AP) —Police Chief Gordon R. Davis of Stanford University discovered a new wrinkle in collegeboy economies. One of his policemen stopped a student driving backwards, Davis said, and received this explanation: The car was rented on a mileage basis and the student was driving backwards because the speedometer did not register in reverse.

One Belleville man and one Trenton man were charged with operation of a motor vehicle while intoxicated and were sentenced to jail terms with their licence suspended for three months. Two other residents were sentenced to jail terms for one month and for three months for second and third offence drunk charges.

Following three years active membership of the organization one of them as a member of the executive, Mr. Virgil G. James of The James Texts was elected chairman of the Ontario District of the Stationers' Guild of Canada at the annual meeting held recently in Niagara Falls, Ont.

The honor is a signal one for Mr. James, inasmuch as the Ontario division is regarded as the key district to the Dominion. Other chairmen elected were R. W. Wright, Nova Scotia; A. L. Colpitts, New Brunswick; Lucien Hetu, Quebec; The Prairies, Charles Haben, Saskatoon, and Karl Warwick, British Columbia.

The annual meeting, the 13th of the Guild, attracted upwards of two hundred members of all sections of the trade who came from every principal centre of population. Great Britain and the United States were also represented. The annual was held in the General Brock Hotel.

Mr. James was also honored with the chairmanship of the important business session at the noon luncheon held on the opening day of the convention.

During the two-day session the leaders in the stationers' trade discussed manufacture, distribution, and selling problems of today and took a long glance at future prospects. One of the speakers at a banquet attended by members and their wives was Captain Norman Rawson, Hamilton, well-known as an after-dinner speaker here, whose ready wit and broad outlook challenged his listeners to keener understanding of world problems.

Bloody Fighting In Central Luzon Takes 155 Lives

Manila, July 9 — (AP)—Bloody fighting in Central Luzon has resulted in 155 deaths in new clashes, military police officials reported, and Col. Mariano Castanega, the Provost Marshal General of the Philippine army, threatened to use "the full force of the military" to stop the strife.

Military police said at least 1,000 Hukbalahap (armed peasants) battled with them in Santa Cruz Barrio (township) near Tarlac, and that the fighting left at least 100 peasants and three police dead. The noon-to-midnight battle virtually razed the barrio. Most of its farm animals were killed Gov. Angel Tadeo said. Each side blamed the other for starting the fight.

In other clashes, these casualties were reported by the police:

Near La Paz: Seven peasants and three police killed; five police wounded.

In scattered, running fights in Tarlac, Nueva Ecija and Pampanga provinces: thirty-eight Huks, three military police and one town policeman killed.

Col. Castanega told a press conference: "The Republic has completed plans to defend its sovereignty from any subversive move from within, and should any lawless bands carry out their reported plans to overthrow the government or rise up in arms, they will meet the full force of the military."

Morrison Assails Tory Newspapers Of Great Britain

London, July 9 — (CP)—Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, said last night that the "suppressions, misrepresentations and inventions" of what he called "great Tory newspaper combines" were "a disgrace to journalism."

"One of the elements of the modern press I am especially unhappy about," Mr. Morrison said in a speech before the Suburban Co-operative Society, "is the Kemsley gramophone chain of over 20 newspapers which includes many formerly independently controlled provincial newspapers."

Viscount Kemsley, the publisher, whose chain includes the Daily Graphic, the Sunday Times and the Sunday Chronicle, said he probably would publish a reply.

The deputy premier's speech was concerned mainly with the Labor government's legislative program, of which the Conservative press has been critical.

Mayor to Extend Invitation To Viscount Alexander Of Tunis to Open Local Fair

An invitation to His Excellency Viscount Alexander of Tunis to open the Belleville Fair on September 23rd will be extended in the near future by Mayor Frank Follwell, Fair Board Secretary Erle Denyes announced today.

Feeling that this year's exhibition will be the biggest and best in its history, fair officials were of the opinion that one of Canada's outstanding men should be present to conduct the opening ceremonies. Mayor Follwell was asked to extend the invitation to His Excellency and he readily consented.

Merchants of the city are justifying their faith in the exhibition by a generous donation of special prizes, Secretary Denyes said. Among those received from the city thus far is $100 from the Belleville Association of Hotel Proprietors.

While the city has not been entirely canvassed the response to date marks the same if not better spirit of co-operation and generosity on the part of those contacted.

Parking Areas At Rear of Stores To Be Supervised

Supervised parking areas to the rear of Front Street stores, particularly to the rear of the Kresge entrance will be given a trial by the local Junior Board of Trade as a measure to relieve traffic congestion on Front Street it has been announced by committee members of that organization.

Already large "L's" inviting Front Street traffic to take advantage of the new supervised parking at the rear of stores, have been painted on the pavement at the Kresge store alleyway entrance and it is expected supervision of parking will commence in the near future. Parking attendants will have a special booth with telephone to further facilitate their service. The parking service will be free.

Merchants along Front Street have been entirely co-operative in assisting the Junior Board of Trade to inaugurate the parking service, it was stated. Official approval of city council was granted at the last meeting of city council.

Inauguration of the supervised parking service is one of the first projects to be attempted by the recently organized Junior Board of Trade and is considered to be a practical step to help alleviate a difficult parking situation in the city, and lend a feeling of security to motorists leaving articles in cars.

To start supervision of parking will be carried out on Saturday, while if conditions warrant it is intended to provide the same service on other days of the week.

Digging Out Bomb In Old London Takes Months

London, July 9 — (CP Cable)—The current spell of warm weather is complicating the task of Royal Engineers striving to reach "Satan's little brother" — an unexploded bomb for which they have been digging for nine months.

The bomb fell in 1940 in the yard of a tar distillery about 50 yards from the bank of the Thames in the Silvertown area. It's only 30 feet below ground and its tail already is visible, but the seepage of water permits work only at low tide — a two-to-three-hour period daily. The warm weather now has reduced the progress of the digging to six inches daily because the tar which thickly coats the surrounding ground melts in the sunshine and oozes into the pit. Every member of the bomb disposal squad has been treated medically for blister from the hot tar.

The bomb is only 250 pounds, but thousands of man hours have been spent on it. Much special equipment is required, including a pump which filters tar and sand from the water at the bottom of the pit.

Meanwhile, at Chalfont Saint Peter, in Buckinghamshire, a disposal squad has discovered after three months' excavation that what they thought was a concealed bomb was only a buried bag of nails which registered on the squad's detectors.

Cobourg, July 9 (CP)—James Campbell, 79, who has been chasing fires for 50 years, was guest of honor at a dinner given by the local fire brigade, of which he is chief. The reception was so warm he decided not to retire this month as he had planned.

Horse and Buggy Theft Charged Against Boy

That wheels of progress do actually turn backwards at times was demonstrated in Belleville one day last week when a Sidney township farmer reported to the local police station that his horse and buggy had been stolen from the rear of a local restaurant.

The horse and buggy went missing for nearly a day before it was recovered by members of the local police force. The horse and buggy had been taken the police said by a local juvenile who during the period of his illegal ownership was treating his friends to rides about the city.

Sequel to the horse and buggy theft was scheduled for Tuesday morning's police court, but proceedings were laid over until a later date.

Five Montreal youths, members of an Air Cadet squadron now attending summer camp at Mountain View air station have been reported as missing from the station by officers in charge. The youths disappeared without permission of officers over the week-end and local police have been requested to keep an eye out for them.

TRENTON

Driver Charged After Accident

Trenton — On Friday last a truck owned and operated by Mark Tripp, 158 McLennan Ave., Trenton, was proceeding west on King Street and went to make a right hand turn into his driveway when a taxi travelling west on King Street tried to pass the truck on the right side and both collided. The taxi was damaged on the left front and rear fenders and left front door. The truck was damaged on the grill, front fender and bumper. The taxi was driven by John A. Richardson, 30 Mercia Street.

Charged After Accident.

On Friday last George Pearson of Trenton damaged his car to the extent of $200 and police charged him with careless driving after an accident on Front Street. Pearson was travelling north on Front Street at a fast rate of speed. When opposite 507 Front Street, he went to pass a car ahead and had to cut in on the car he was passing to avoid a car proceeding south. A girl on a bicycle was going north just in front of the Pearson car and the driver pulled his car to the left side of the road to avoid striking the girl. The left front wheel of his car caught in the loose gravel at the side of the road and the car went out of control, turned over three times and finally ended up on all four wheels. James Arnold McClean, age 19, of 687 McDougall Ave., Windsor, a passenger in Pearson's car, was injured on the left arm and a cut on his back caused by flying glass, requiring four stitches. The driver was uninjured.

Dr. Blakslee and Charles J. Symons Honored by Rotary Club for 25 Years' Work in Aid of Crippled Children

Mr. Symons Receives Ontario Association Certificate for Long Record

Choosing newly elected President Bert Howard's inaugural meeting as the auspicious occasion, members of the Rotary Club on Monday presented Rotarians Dr. Van Blakslee and Charles Symons, members of the Crippled Children Committee with handsome gifts in token of appreciation of 25 years faithful and unselfish service to the less fortunate children of the city and districts.

Entirely unaware that he too, was to be a recipient of the tangible appreciation of his club colleagues, Rotarian Symons formally presented Dr. Blakslee with a handsome fly-casting rod, complete with case.

Seconds after he had made the presentation, Rotarian Symons was presented by Rotarian Newton Thompson with a framed certificate given "for distinguished service to humanity for 25 years" by the Ontario Association for Crippled Children, Toronto.

Scarcely had Rotarian Symons recovered from the surprise of this gift, than Rotarian Thompson then presented him with a beautiful Gruen watch, a token of appreciation of his fellow members of the club for services exceptionally well rendered during his tenure as chairman of the Crippled Children Committee for a quarter century.

Over 800 Cases

Prior to the presentation to Dr. Blakslee, Chairman Symons outlined to the newer members of the club the activities of the crippled children committee. "If the club takes the case it is immediately turned over to the doctor," he said.

"Over eight hundred cases have passed through the hands of the committee since its inception twenty-five years ago, and not in one single instance did 'Van' (Dr. Blakslee) complain," he said. "No matter what time of day or night we called him, we always got the same answer, 'Send them up right away'. Not once over that long period of years, did he ask us to postpone or delay the visit."

Turning to Dr. Blakslee, he said, "It is my privilege to present to you this slight token of the club's appreciation of your services, not as a matter of payment for what you have done but to show that we appreciate what you have done for the crippled kiddies."

"I have received more than I have given," stated Dr. Blakslee in a brief address of appreciation of the gift. "What little I have had to do for the crippled children's committee has been a pleasure. If this club and the children have gained anything by my services then I have been more than paid. It has been a pleasure to work with Charlie, the late Bert Boyce, Billy Deacon and many others associated with the committee. They have always been and always were congenial and friendly and it is due to that that the work of the committee has gotten along so well. They did not advertise their efforts to the public, and I think that was the best policy."

President Howard added his thanks to those of the club and turning to lighter vein asked that Dr. Blakslee present Rotarian Symons with the first fish caught on the new rod.

Surprise Presentation

Then came the suprise of the meeting. Rotarian Newton Thompson, to Charlie Symons' surprise and visible consternation presented him with a certificate. "I feel," Rotarian Thompson said, "that Charlie Symons has rendered more service to any service club than any other man in Belleville."

Handing him the framed certificate, he said, "I am happy to present this to you. You deserve it. And we hope you are spared many more years to carry on your good work for the crippled children, for they love you. There must be a place in Heaven for you for the Good Book says 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, My children Ye have done it unto Me'."

Rotarian Thompson then presented "Charlie" with the Gruen watch on behalf of the Rotarians. "Charlie" visibly surprised stated that "for once I am at a loss to say anything. I thought I was doing something today by bringing 'Van Blakslee here and now—well—I'm just plain 'buffaloed'."

He thanked the club for the gift, and stated that he had intended asking the club to get someone else in his place, but when asked to retain office, "I couldn't refuse. When a fellow sees the wonderful results of his efforts, he doesn't need any other kind of appreciation."

President Howard, who had arranged his committee heads at the head table outlined some of his plans for the coming year also thanked Rotarian Symons for his efforts and hoped he would carry on for another 25 years. "You have been a Godsend to these children. That is Rotary's message to you," he said.

Scotland Yard Wants Recruits To Combat Crime

London, July 9 — (CP)—Scotland Yard appealed today for recruits to combat one of Britain's heaviest homicide waves as the number of unsolved deaths in recent months was boosted to 21 by the finding of two more bodies.

One of the newly discovered bodies was that of a woman—believed to be Miss Doreen Margaret Marshall, 21, a former Wren, of Middlesex, boosting the number of feminine victims to 7 in the last four weeks. The seven have been unusually attractive women or young girls.

The body was discovered yesterday half hidden by bushes at the foot of a hill three miles from Bournemouth. Miss Marshall, missing for five days, had been staying at a hotel in the fashionable seacoast resort, and was last seen clad in an evening gown at a swank champagne supper with a male escort.

A few hours before the Bournemouth discovery, the partly burned body of William Lucas, 50, was found in an isolated cottage near Knighton, Radnorshire, North Wales. The last available Chief Inspector of Scotland Yard's understaffed homicide squad was assigned to the case.

Meanwhile, George Neville Heath, handsome former R. A. F. pilot who was arrested last Saturday at Bournemouth, was charged yesterday with murder in connection with the death of prtety Margery Gardner, movie extra whose nude body was found in a London West End hotel June 22nd.

Police searched a wide area of southern England for the strangler of little Sheila Martin, 11-year-old Fawkham schoolgirl, who was killed near her home Sunday.

The Daily Mail reported that 20,000 volunteers were needed to bring British police forces up to their full strength.

Gold Bars, Jewels Worth $400,000 Found on Liner

The Hague, July 9 — (Reuters) — Gold bars, jewels and currency worth $400,000 were discovered on board the Dutch liner Klipfoentein yesterday before it sailed from Batavia, Java. They are alleged to have been smuggled on board by two gold dealers who melted the buried valuables during the Japanese occupation and now sought to clear the treasure to safer regions. About 100 people were detained during the investigation.

PICTON

Transatlantic Flights Popular In County Town

Picton, July 9 — Two Picton people have just completed trans Atlantic flights. S. G. Lockyer returned from a three weeks' visit in England on Sunday, travelling via Newfoundland to Montreal. The trip from Scotland took 15 hours and proved uneventful. Mr. Lockyer said that the food situation overseas is serious, when considered from a Canadian point of view and that he found fruits and vegetables sold in the cities to be of inferior quality at high prices. Food conditions are better in Scotland.

Mrs. David Taylor, who joined her husband in England eleven months ago, was a passenger on the second flight of one of the new Constellation aircraft which inaugurated a twice-weekly trans-Atlantic service between Britain and New York. The trip was made in nine hours, from Wembley, England, to New York. She came on to Malton by air and home by train. Though the aircraft ran into a severe storm, there was no cause for apprehension. Mr. Taylor, formerly with the RAF here, left England last Thursday by boat for Canada.

Mr. Lockyer's son, Flt. Lt. Chris Lockyer, who has been overseas a year, sailed Sunday for Canada.

Mr. Cooper will seek the trophy again at the August 5 regatta here. A very large entry of United States and Canadian boat racers is expected.

Rev. T. K. Ferguson of Winnipeg was guest speaker at St. Mary Magdalene Church, Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George Waggott marked their 49th wedding anniversary on Sunday. They were married in Picton. After many years' residence in Edmonton they returned to their native town in 1939.

Clash of Labor And Lords Averted

London, July 9 — (CP) — A long-expected clash between the Labor government and the predominantly conservative House of Lords was averted yesterday when the Peers defeated a motion by Lord Beveridge to include the Friendly Societies in the government's new social security system.

The House of Commons, on the government's insistence, previously had voted to exclude the private non-profit insurance groups.

The House of Lords had been expected to support Lord Beveridge despite a threat by Labor party leaders that they would curb — if not wipe out — the Peers' few remaining law making powers if they obstructed Labor's program.

The Friendly Societies, with a membership of more than 8,000,000, have been demanding that they be made 'government agents' in the national insurance program which will provide low cost medical, unemployment, old age and other benefits.

POLYMER RUBBER

announced that A. P. Mechin, formerly of St. Clair Processing Corporation, which has been taken over by Polymer, had been appointed manager of the Crown Company. He would continue in that capacity.

Production during the year ended last March 31 totalled 22,392,000 pounds of butyl — the type of rubber used in manufacture of inner tubes—78,268,000 pounds of buna-s, and 1,050,000 pounds of buna-s latex. Cumulative total for buna-s in all forms from the formation of the company to the end of March was 179,475,000 pounds.

The statement

"During the year Polymer Corporation reached an agreement with two private companies, Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., and Monsanto (Canada) Ltd., for the purchase of these companies of a total of 1,000,000 pounds of styrene per month for the manufacture of polystyrene, a plastic base. Dow Company now is erecting a $1,000,000 polystyrene plant adjacent to the synthetic rubber plant and the Monsanto Company is erecting a large plant at Lasalle, Quebec.

"These two contracts will yield substantial revenue to Polymer Corporation and will result in additional employment at Sarnia."

In the year ended March 31, the corporation spent $865,166 for new facilities. Additional commitments for such facilities total $991,772. The new construction included a pilot plant costing $299,947 and a new tower for the recovery and concentration of butylene costing $167,383.

Visiting Canadian Centres

Canada's Governor-General, Viscount Alexander of Tunis and the Viscountess Alexander are rapidly coming to know Canada by contacting her people in their home communities. Just latterly he has been in Regina and Calgary which is a long way from his home in Ottawa. He has reached the heart of a number of communities already and Canada by the time his term of office closes will no doubt have had the great opportunity of welcoming to every community the great military leader and his gracious lady.

Lord Alexander is giving tirelessly of his time and so is Lady Alexander and the members of their family too must rapidly be getting to know Canadian ways.

The service they are rendering the Dominion is appreciated by Canadians. For the people the Governor-General has the appeal of his great record as a soldier of Britain and democracy. He has the contact which has already bound him to Canadian hearts on account of his association with Canadians in the Second World War, he as leader, and they as soldiers.

Fewer Weekend Accidents

While two hundred and twenty-four persons are reported to have lost their lives in the United States in the long four-day Independence Day celebration, this is far less than had been expected and even considerably below an ordinary four-day weekend period record. The National Safety Council had predicted that 450 would lose their lives during the four days of celebration while it is estimated that ordinarily 400 lose their lives in U. S. traffic mishaps during an ordinary four days including a Saturday and Sunday.

The Council had expected that 1,300 persons would die violently at the time of the Independence Day period, but there were only 495 violent deaths reported this total including the traffic fatalities; 159 drownings and 112 deaths from miscellaneous causes.

The decrease in deaths by accident is an encouraging sign and so large a number less than expected would seem to indicate that many persons are acting with every care and caution.

Constant reiteration on the subject of self-protection by the exercise of vigilance may well lead most people to act with caution and carefulness and make them ever conscious of their duty to avoid accidents. Every agency calling attention to this need of carefulness is doing a service for the nation and the individual.

Canada had a very heavy toll of death a week ago with the long weekend associated with Dominion Day. The last weekend brought reports of fifteen fatalities. Drownings last weekend and traffic fatalities numbered five each.

Plane Directs Traffic

The airplane returned to a post-war duty on Sunday when New York police used a machine to help traffic moving on the crowded highways and roads. It spotted traffic snarls, relaying the information to the police telegraph bureau so that location of jams could be broadcast to the motoring public.

Such a development comes from the multitude of inventions and devices of today. There is of course the motorcars and there are the radio and the plane. There is the service of the great modern highways. All join to provide more and more service and entertainment for the people.

Conquering Diphtheria

Britain's Ministry of Health announces that more than 200 local authorities have already decided to undertake diphtheria immunization campaigns this summer, in support of the Ministry's national drive. The object is to protect as many children as possible before the autumn and winter, which are the "epidemic seasons" for diphtheria. Nearly 6,000,000 children have been immunized since the campaign was launched five years ago. Diphtheria figures have declined in Britain each year since the Government's campaign began. Last year's total of 720 deaths was the lowest ever recorded, and only about a quarter the pre-war average.

Increased Birthrate

Figures published by Britain's Registrar General show that during the first quarter of this year about 17,000 more babies were born in England and Wales than in the last quarter of 1945. For the current quarter it is estimated that there may be as many as 40,000 more births than in the first quarter of this year. This steep rise seems likely to continue into the third quarter.

Shortcake Sacrifice

The committee in charge of the annual Strawberry Fair out in Lebanon, Ore., has notified Secretary of Agriculture Anderson that the usual mammoth strawberry shortcake, a two-and-a-half-ton feature, will not be on hand this year to delight citizens and small boys of a strawberry-conscious town, where berries grow as thick as the evergreen timber of Linn County. It has been decided to sacrifice the big cake as part of the community's effort to conserve food for hungry countries which not only have no shortcake but are mighty short of bread.

There is, we think, a current moral to be drawn from this sacrifice of an Oregon strawberry shortcake. For every one of us, from coast to coast, has his own "shortcake," some desired, perhaps delicious, but really unnecessary food, which could be given up for the sake of peoples who could not today, even in their hungriest dreams, conceive of a 5,000-pound, berry-crowned cake.

Lebanon's committee, it is reported, has received Secretary Anderson' thanks. No comfortably-fed New Yorker, of course, could expect to receive thanks from Washington — or from Europe or Asia, a piece of pie or a slice of cake. But we believe it can be said that the thanks, unheard, unseen, will be there just the same. Some of it will fall like crumbs, perhaps, from the lips of some undernourished youngster who, thousands of miles away, will gratefully munch the equivalent of that "shortcake" unmade, uneaten, in Manhattan.

—New York Herald Tribune.

The Summer Bachelors

The town just now is full of the species of male humanity known as Summer Bachelors — heads of families who have recaptured for a time the fine free careless rapture of their single days.

Their experience takes a fairly familiar course. Leaving his family at the cottage the Summer Bachelor drives back to town and to his empty house thinking of the joys of recovered freedom, the golf he will play, the work he will do in his garden, the occasional game of poker, the quiet evenings of serenity undisturbed, the delectable meals he will make of all the things he likes best to eat.

And undoubtedly for a few days the program does meet most of his expectations.

But disillusion is on its inevitable way. Getting his lonely meals and washing up the dishes becomes a bore — dirty dishes tend to accumulate. The house grows dusty and begins to take on an air of unkemptness. The Summer Bachelor realizes that bed-making is an art he never mastered. He begins to get his dinners down town, and presently his breakfasts too. He cultivates friends who might ask him out for a meal. He plans weekends with his family and counts the weeks until their return. Next year he will anticipate his temporary freedom with just as much eagerness, but for the time being he has had enough.

The fact is that a married man is spoiled for the life of a single man and nobody knows it better than the temporary bachelor who is honest with himself.

—Ottawa Journal.

MEN AND A BOY

Boy, ere you have wandered far
You will find, of men, there are
Two distinctive types and each
Will its methods try to teach.
One will say: 'Twon't change your lot
Whether you are true or not;
That it is by luck or chance
Men to posts of trust advance,
And 'tis folly to do more
Than the task you've bargained for.

Next, the other type will tell:
Triumph comes by doing well;
To the place with larger pay,
Honor surely points the way;
Glory never crowns the shirk;
Men's esteem is won by work.
Debt is something to be paid;
Kept must be each promise made;
Never more of you they'll ask
If you fail the lesser task.

* * *

Boy, which type of men to trust,
Very shortly, choose you must.

50 YEARS AGO

JULY 9TH., 1896.

The saw-logs gave the water main in the river a shove which moved it a foot or more down stream and made a bad bend in the line. Men are at work today repairing the damage.

An early morning union prayer meeting will be held next Sunday morning, July 12 from 6.30 to 7.30 o'clock in Bridge Street Methodist Church Sunday School rooms. This prayer meeting will be held at the same time as that to be held at Washington, D.C., in connection with the International Christian Endeavor convention.

Mr. Samuel Wood, Dundas Street, left today for England.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pearson and family left today on a visit to the Old Country.

Mrs. Charles Lockery of New Haven, Conn., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Wickett, in this city.

Bishop Oxnam Says Methodists Refuse to Identify Gospel With Any Economic System

Columbus, O., July 8 (AP) — Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of New York told Methodist war veterans here last night that Methodists "refuse to identify our gospel with an economic system, whether Communist, Socialist or Capitalist."

Criticizing what he termed a summons by "religious leaders" for a "holy war" on Communism, Bishop Oxnam said:

"There are some who see in the 'holy war' an attempt to win so-called big business to Roman Catholic support, since the attack on Communism is interpreted by some as an espousal of capitalism. It should be abundantly clear, however, that Rome is not standing for capitalism. It is, in fact, supporting political movements in Europe that mean its overthrow."

"It is hard to understand the insistence that Rome proceeds from moral principles on these matters," he said. "Its prestige, property and power appear to be the decisive considerations."

Bishop Oxnam, President of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, spoke on the fourth and final day of the conference of returned veterans with Methodist Bishops.

He questioned the motives of religious leaders who, he said, "summon us to a 'holy war' on Communism."

"Had the religious leaders now summoning us to war on Communism attacked Fascism with equal vigor, the present 'holy war' could be understood as a continuance of the struggle against totalitarianism in all its form," he declared.

Old Country Letter

During the evening hours husky working men used to enter London taverns, plunk down a sixpence on the swilly bar counter and say: "'Arf of bitter Miss please"—in full, confident tone.

Now it is "bitter and lemon please" in an almost apologetic voice.

It is not that working men like bitter and lemon. Most of them hate it but due to the current beer shortage publicans are forced to eke out precious supplies by serving each customer about two inches of beer mixed with mineral water. Only minerals fit to mix with beer are lemonade or ginger beer—but lemon is the more "popular".

Many London taverns as well as pubs in Birmingham, Manchester, Sheffield and Nottingham now are operating on what used to be Sunday hours — noon until 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Those pubs fortunate enough to get by without introducing minerals serve only half pints in the hope of discouraging customers from drinking too much. The effect is doubtful, however, as a "regular" will order a half-pint for himself and another for a hypothetical friend.

Beer supplies in nearby London suburbs are no more plentiful than in the city. Numerous taverns close all day Monday and thirsty visitors are confronted with such signs as: "Sorry, you had it over the weekend. Don't come back till Tuesday."

In the Isle of Purbeck, Dorset, one of Britain's most famous beauty spots, death lurks on the heaths and beaches but holidaymakers consistently ignore warning notices.

Within an area of 14 square miles, large signs printed in black and red on white ground, warn the public to keep out and tell it of unexploded shells, bombs and grenades liable to detonate at the slightest touch.

Yet automobiles are parked in the lee of these warnings and visitors wander through the undergrowth at the risk of treading on death at every step. Curiosity already has killed three schoolboys in the area.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

THE ADOPTION ACT

Belleville, July 5

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

We noticed in the Ontario Intelligencer an advertisement "Child to Adopt." At times we have considerable difficulty in having adoptions consummated due to lack of proper forms and other legal procedure not being complied with. For the information of prospective adoptive parents and to avoid disappointment we would like to call attention to the Adoption Act R. S. O. 1921 and subsequent amendments.

All adoption cases must pass through the hands of the Children's Aid Society and recommended by them. It is also necessary that a child remain in the adoptive home for two years before the adoption can be completed. If the child is born of married parents consent of both father and mother must be obtained, if the mother is single her consent is sufficient. In cases where the child to be adopted is over 14 years, it is necessary that he give consent.

Those who take children for adoption privately and who do not make proper enquiry, very often find themselves in a difficult situation. Sometimes proper consents have not been obtained and parents of child cannot be located, in other cases child has not been registered.

We herewith give a few quotations from the Adoption Act.

"It shall not be lawful for any applicant or any parent or guardian except with consent of the Court to receive any payment or other reward in consideration of the adoption of any infant under this Act or for any person to make or give or agree to make or give to any applicant or to any parent or guardian any such payment or reward." Section [illegible] Children's Adoption Act."

Further, an adoption Order shall not be made unless certified in writing by the Provincial Officer.

We will be glad to give any information or assistance in regard to adoptions and will be pleased to answer any questions asked.

Yours respectfully,
Children's Aid Society
T. D. Ruston,
Superintendent.

Missing Men Not Lost at All

Toronto, July 9—(CP)—Reginald Cottle, 45, and Bert Webb, 65, Toronto men who were reported missing last week in woodland country 140 miles northeast of here, returned home today and said they hadn't been lost at all.

Mrs. Cottle said her husband and his friend ran into a series of car troubles which, combined with their desire to do "a little fishing" resulted in their disappearance."

They set out June 30 from Washago, 80 miles north of here, in a 12-year-old car on which they carried a home-made boat.

Mrs. Cottle said the men had tire trouble, a clutch breakdown and a broken spring. They had been unaware that police were searching for them.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. HARDNESS OF WATER AND GOITRE

I have lived in two iodine-deficient regions, writes G. M., namely, Basel, Switzerland, and Pitney, Vermont, both predominantly limestone regions. Where I now live, on the Ohio river, there is no goitre or at least it is not so common as it is (or was) in Basel and Putney. But in the country districts, only a few miles back from the river, people use well water that is very hard, when they haven't cistern water. Our well showed 45 mg. magnesium and 63 mg. calcium per liter, and we have suspected iodine deficiency in our stock. May not the magnesium in drinking water upset the phosphate and therefore the calcium metabolism? We have wondered about that and tried adding phosphate of soda to the chickens' drinking water, results that looked good for a while but were certainly not corrective.

(D.E.M.)

From way back this belief that the hardness of drinking water has something to do with the prevalence of goitre has been general among physicians as well as the laity, but careful investigation and precise chemical tests of drinking water in regions where goitre is common have failed to substantiate it.

Although other causes may contribute to the development of goitre, the chief cause is iodine deficiency — insufficient iodine (or iodide) in the food, drinking water or, in the inland regions where little or no mist or spray from the ocean reaches, in the air.

As for the effects of drinking hard water, there are many popular misapprehensions about that, too — such as the notion that it causes kidney stones, hardening of the arteries, "uric acid", rheumatism and let us leave unmentioned what else.

Whether the calcium in water (hardness is due to salts of calcium and salts of magnesium) is assimilated and used by the body as the calcium in milk, peas, beans, greens etc., is, I don't know and I cannot find any record of scientific investigation to determine whether such calcium is used by the body. One investigator inferred that children registrants for military service and disability claimants in communities having very hard drinking water were much better off than those using soft drinking water as regards softening and decay of the teeth — but this observation was made long before we had learned that fluorine in the water may be an important factor of preservation of the teeth, so it is worthless now — like so many earlier studies and observations and conclusions in the field of nutrition and health.

If the tap water is satisfactory in taste, I prefer it to any other, provided, of course, that the local health department does not condemn it.

For the pamphlet "The Iodin Ration", ask for it and inclose stamped self addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Unhappy Baby

He is now a year old, and ever since the day he was born he has had trouble with his bowels. Now his mother has to use a syringe every day.

(L. B.)

At our house mother insists on the children taking milk of magnesia, almost every day to keep their bowels . . .

(Mrs. E.H.W.)

Answer—Nothing of the sort is in the least necessary or beneficial to the baby or to older children. On the contrary such interference is invariably harmful. If the baby gets a fair deal in diet there will be no excuse for giving any physic or enema. If the older children are simply let alone they will never need any such unnatural treatment. How to protect the baby against the ubiquitous fishwife and her castor oil, magnesia and whatnot you will learn by studying the Brady Baby Book. The prevention and correction of constipation in older children or adults is described in the booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene." For either booklet send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope. You must name the booklet you want in writing. I do not take time out to puzzle over clippings.

Dandelion

A says dandelion tea or soup is good for you no matter whether you are sick or not. B says if you are not sick you should leave dandelion alone.

(H.W.M.)

Answer—Dandelion tea or soup is good for you regardless. Dandelion greens, too, if the dandelions have not been polluted by dogs or other animals. Dandelion is an excellent source of vitamins A, B-complex, C, calcium, iron.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What bird has claws on its wings?

The fledglings of the hoatzin (pronounced "hoe-AT-sin"), a peculiar species of bird native to tropical South America, have a pair of well-developed claws on each wing and they climb among the branches of the trees like a quadruped, using the claws as hands or fingers with which to grasp twigs or other objects accessible.

The adult hoatzin — the name is native to South America and is sometimes spelled "hoactzin" and "hoazin" — is a long-tailed, crested bird, which appears to be as large as a small pheasant but which is actually much smaller. It lives in the dense growths along streams and around lakes in Brazil, the Guianas, Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru and Bolivia, feeds in small bands on various plants and builds a nest of loose sticks in trees and shrubs in the vicinity where other birds of the same species are nesting.

The young are hatched naked and they soon leave the nest and scramble among the branches by means of their feet proper, the claws on their wings and the bill.

These wing-claws are regarded by scientists as survivals of the most primitive method of progression among birds. The Archaeopteryx, the earliest fossil bird ever found, apparently used its anterior digits or "fingers" in much the same way as the young hoatzin does. Generally, it may be said that the two claws on each wing are homologous to the thumb and forefinger on the human hand. What is strangest of all about these birds is the fact that the fledgling sheds its claws only a few days after it begins to use them.

So different is the hoatzin in structure that scientists had great difficulty in classifying it. It was finally designated the sole species in the genus Opisthocomus, which may be regarded tentatively as a suborder of the pheasant family.

Although not primarily a water bird, it can swim. In British Guiana this species is known as the "stink-bird" or the "stinking pheasant," because it feeds largely on a kind of arum, which gives the bird a disagreeable musky odor.

The hoatzin is also peculiar in that the eyelashes are set in a bare space around the eye.

Kiwanis Fresh Air Camp Fund

Belleville schools closed last week, in the midst of a severe heat wave, and a lot of children, whose families could afford it, were on their way to lakes, beaches or camps.

There are a lot of children in Belleville, like the one pictured here who, through no fault of their parents, must spend the summer in the city. Some three hundred of these youngsters will spend a few days at Roblin Lake Fresh Air Camp which, as you know, is operated by the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

But the Kiwanis Club are asking the help of Belleville citizens, who, through donations, will make a health giving vacation possible. Think what a vacation would mean to children whose sleeping quarters might be a stuffy, airless attic; whose playground is the hot, dusty and dangerous street on which they live, and where they are a definite hazard to motorists, to say nothing of the chance of their being maimed for life, or even killed.

Your contribution to the Kiwanis Fresh Air Fund, will make possible for three hundred Belleville children, a holiday, where their food, play and rest is supervised. Camp Director Stevens and Mrs. Stevens, along with their competent staff, love these children, and are completely unselfish in the time and attention they give each one.

You may send your contribution to Bruce Lattimer, Lattimer's Drug Store, Belleville. It will be appreciated, and you will have the feeling that you have made some children happy.

Crippled Children Fund of Rotary Benefits by $1,400

The Rotary Club's share of the net proceeds of the Garden Brothers Circus which played a three-day stand here last week is approximately $1400, Secretary Alex. Nathan announced at the weekly luncheon of the service club Monday. The entire amount will be devoted exclusively to the work for crippled children, a social effort that has been sponsored by Rotary since its inception here 25 years ago.

Secretary Nathan prior to presenting Rotary Treasurer Harry Ackerman with a cheque for $1264.00 stated that more monies are forthcoming and the net amount will exceed the sum of $1,400.

The success of the circus here was such, it was learned, that Rotary will make arrangements for its appearance here again next year.

President Bert Howard at his inaugural meeting as Rotary prexy for the year voiced the appreciation of the club of the efforts of the circus committee under the chairmanship of Rotarian Secretary Nathan and those who in any way helped make the venture the success it proved to be.

Mountain View

One of the outstanding upsets in Belleville Softball Association circles of the season occurred at the Mountain View Air Station last night, when the station squad, who have been one of the loop's underdogs all season, showed a startling reversal of form and defeated Frank Sedore's Army and Navy Flashes by a 9-3 score.

The win marks the third for the air service lads and the fourth defeat for the yellow and maroon.

Ralph Campbell, a new pitcher, did the mound chore for Flashes and although he whiffed nine batters his mates kicked the ball around on what was termed "one of their off nights".

Timmy Williams was the batting hero of the piece getting a home-run and a triple in a lost cause, but the rest of the veterans couldn't do much with the Mountain View pitcher's slants.

The air force team is rapidly improving and with additional strength should make some of the upper bracket teams stretch themselves in the playoffs.

Further details of the game were not available at the time of going to press.

GOAT SURVIVES ATOM BOMB TEST

This goat is one of the animals who came through the atomic bomb test at Bikini atoll apparently unharmed. The animal was found aboard the U. S. WEDDINGS

KEHOE—SIMONDS

Queen Street Church in Kingston, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday, July 1st, at 3 p.m. when Ruby Mildred, younger daughter of Myrtle and the late Wm. Bentley Simonds became the bride of Anthony Sylvester Kehoe, of Kingston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kehoe of Cole Lake. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. M. Servage B.D., before hte altar which was banked with tall standards of pink and white peonies and ferns. The bridal march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Pearl Nesbitt L.T.C.M., organist of the church, as the bride entered on the arm of her eldest brother Murray E. Simonds who gave her in marriage. She was lovely in a traditional gown of white slipper satin made with long torso shirred at the sides and yoke of silk net ending in a cowl neckline of the satin. Her long sleeves were pointed at the wrists. The full veil of lace and net was caught to the head in pleats and spray of orange blossoms. Her only ornament of jewelry were small pearl earrings, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of red roses and bouvardia.

Mrs. Glenn Luffman of Belleville, the bride's cousin, was her matron of honor and wore a gown of peach net and taffeta made with sweetheart neckline and bracelet length sleeves, on her head was a coronet of pink carnations with shoulder length veil. Her bouquet was of pink and white roses and fern.

The best man was Mr. Jean-Paul Vezena, of Ottawa, and the ushers were Ronald Simonds of Montreal, the bride's brother, and David Walker of Kingston.

During the ceremony two delightful solos were rendered by Mrs. John Crawford, Greig's "I Love Thee," and while signing the register her solo was "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride's gift to the matron of honor was a silver glamor pin and the groom presented the best man and ushers with initialed leather wallets.

The living room was prettily decorated for the occasion with bouquets of peonies, iris and fern. The buffet table was very attractive with lace cloth and tall white and pale pink tapers in crystal holders, centred by the wedding cake and bouquets of rose and white peonies.

Fear Recurrence Of Anti-Jewish Outbreaks

By LARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, July 8 (AP) — The thousands of Jewish repatriates streaming into Poland from Russia are causing authorities to fear a recurrence of anti-Jewish outbreaks such as the Kielce Pogrom in which 41 persons died.

A government spokesman said today that armored cars and militia reinforcements had been dispatched to the ancient cathedral city of Czestochowa, west of Kielce, to prevent what appeared to be an attempt to start rioting.

The appearance of a Pole with a camel which he said he acquired from the Russians caused intense excitement in the market place of Czestochowa. The government spokesman said anti-Semetic agitators circulated in the curious crowd around the camel rider, started shouting anti-Jewish cries and distributing provocatory literature. The spokesman said prompt intervention of Polish armed forces prevented a riot.

Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, leader of the Polish peasant party, in a statement condemned the Kielce Pogrom and vigorously denied that his followers were to blame as Vice-Premier Wladislaw Gomulka has intimated.

"I categorically condemn all such acts of violence," Mikolajczyk said, "The Polish Peasant party condemns the murder of innocent citizens and follows a policy of brotherhood and tolerance for all peoples, notwithstanding their race or social position." He said his party was deeply conscious of the ways the Jews felt because "for many months, members of the Polish Peasant party have been murdered."

The false tale of a Polish boy being kidnapped and threatened with death touched off the Kielce Pogrom.

The government said hundreds were arrested in Kielce and the first six will go on trial Monday on charges of inciting the Pogrom. One militiaman was among the defendants.

Stanislaw Radkiewicz, minister of public security, departed for Kielce to investigate the Pogrom, the first news of which was released by the government last Thursday.

Fun Afloat...!

for our friends from the States

The fun they can have brings millions of visitors yearly to Ontario's rivers and lakes. Let's do our part to make their visits more pleasant than ever . . . so they'll want to return year after year!

WHAT CAN I DO? The answer is plenty! Here are some of the things anyone can do. The suggestions come from a well-known Ontario hotelman:

1. Know the places of interest and beauty spots in your district and tell people about them.
2. When you write your friends in the States tell them about the places they would enjoy visiting.
3. Try to make any visitor glad he came.
4. Take time to give requested information fully and graciously.
5. In business dealings, remember Canada's reputation for courtesy and fairness depends on you.
6. To sum it all up, follow the "Golden Rule."

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS . . . it's good business!

Worth his weight in gold! The province of Ontario profits to almost the same extent from tourist business as it does from the gold mining industry. It is up to each of us to see that it goes on growing.

This diagram shows how everyone benefits from the Ontario tourist income. Every dollar is shared in this way . . . 1, Hotels; 2, Stores; 3, Restaurants; 4, Taxes, etc.; 5, Amusements; 6, Garages.

It works both ways! They treat us royally when we visit them . . . we can't do less than return the compliment. Remember that it costs money to take a holiday . . . so let's see they get a good return for every penny they spend.

"Let's make them want to come back!"

Cobb Recounts Experience In Beating Joe Jackson For Batting Championship

Pretended He Was Mad at Shoeless Joe Jackson Towards End of Season

By RUSS NEWLAND

San Francisco, July 9 — (AP)— Tyrus Raymond Cobb's batting and base running feats alone would fill a volume of American League baseball lore.

One incident in the exciting career of the unmatched marvel of earlier Detroit Tigers' teams, however, apparently escaped the historians.

That was the time he invoked the science of psychology to beat out a rival who actually was kicking dust in his face for the league hitting championship.

It was in 1911 that Cobb spun a mental webb to entangle a challenger whose big bat that year was clouting the Georgia Peach into second place. The rival was Shoeless Joe Jackson of Chicago White Sox, generally regarded as the finest natural hitter baseball has produced.

Cobb grinned as he told the story 35 years later.

"We were getting toward the end of the season when we hooked up with the White Sox in a series. We had six games to play, including two doubleheaders. Jackson was leading me in the batting race.

"Joe always liked me. Whenever we met up he always wanted to be friendly. He would go out of his way to greet me.

No Time for Friendship

"But this was no time for friendship. I knew that Jackson would be a mark for something mysterious so when the series started I was prepared to trap him. When we warmed up for the first game, Joe came over all smiles to say hello.

"I gave him the cold shoulder, wouldn't speak and walked right by, as if he didn't exist.

"The plot worked as I had foreseen. My behavior puzzled Joe so much he went into a slump. He couldn't buy a hit, this fellow who was the greatest batter I've ever seen. Meanwhile, I hit in every game.

"After the series was over, I walked up to Joe, shook hands with him and slapped him on the back in the friendliest way. When it dawned on him he had been jobbed, he worried more and continued to press.

"This applied psychology won me the batting title that season. In spite of the slump, Joe hit .411. I hit .420.

"But he was a truly great hitter. In one game, our pitcher was instructed to throw three knockdown balls at him. After the third one, he got up out of the dirt, brushed his pants and drawled, 'That fellow sure is wild today.' Then he hit the next pitch into the stands for a homer."

N.B.A. Recognizes No Contenders For Joe Louis

Paterson, N.J., July 9—(AP)— Emphasis by promoters on high-priced tickets and record gates has left boxing with "less championship timber in most of its classes than in many years," says Abe Green of the National Boxing Association.

Greene made the statement in issuing the N.B.A.'s quarterly ratings of championship contenders — a list noteworthy this time, among other things, because it recognizes no contenders for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown. Tami Mauriello, the pudgy Bronx belter, and Jersey Joe Walcott are recognized only as "outstanding boxers," with five others given honorable mention. Of these, Billy Conn is fourth.

"Overemphasis of the box office instead of on improvement of the breed" has brought boxing to such a sorry pass, says Greene, and he promptly offers a remedy — "Forget concentration on high-priced tickets and record gates and pay more attention to giving the up-and-coming youngsters a chance."

Greene listed Ezzard Charles and Billy Fox as logical contenders for Gus Lesnevich's light-heavyweight crown; Rocky Graziano, Charlie Burley and Jake Lamotta as contenders behind middleweight champion Tony Zale; Ray Robinson as welterweight Marty Servo's logical contender (they're due to meet in August); Bob Montgomery and Willie Joyce as lightweight Ike Williams' top rivals; Phil Terranova and Jackie Graves as right behind featherweight title-holder Willie Pep; Kul Kong Young and Bennie Goldeberg as next in line to bantam champion Manuel Ortiz, and four men topped by Dado Marino as logical contenders for Jackie Paterson's flyweight crown.

BOCKWINKLE TO MEET HENNING HERE FRI. NIGHT

Warren Bockwinkle, "as good a wrestler as ever came down the pike" according to famous Promoter Tom Packs of St. Louis, will come in to wrestle Lee Henning here on Friday's mat card. Bockwinkle who at last has got Whipper Billy Watson cornered into a match in Maple Leaf Gardens this week, has been picked by Arena Manager Walt Gerow as the man most likely to give Lee Henning a beating.

Big, stalwart, and smart the "Bock" is a "wrestlers' wrestler." That is, he not only is a great crowd-pleaser, but he also rates away up in the opinion of the matmen themselves. In fact there is a strong rumor around that wily Warren is the "policeman" for World Champion Wild Bill Longson. "Policeman" in sporting parlance of course simply means a wrestler who is good enough and tough enough to take on and beat a champion's most troublesome challengers.

But whether the rumor is true or not, the fact remains that the St. Louis ace has agreed to meet Henning here and the result should be the hottest wrestling match of the season. Henning refused another match with Toar Morgan after belting the popular Lindsay lad into semi-consciousness here the other night while Toar was strung up in the ropes by one foot like a side of beef.

Although he screamed loud and long for a re-match, Toar Morgan had to be content today with a semi-final spot on next Friday's card. Morgan felt (and it appears quite justifiably) that he got a very bad break in his loss to Henning but the latter as the winner is in the driver's seat and refused another bout. So now Toar has agreed to meet Jim "Goon" Henry and will endeavor to beat the goonman as proof that he deserves to be back in there with the "Scowl" from Iowa.

In the third bout on Friday's program Pat Flanagan gets a tough test in with Leo Numa the former "Red Shadow."

Led by John Gillies' five-hit pitching, London strengthened their hold on top place in the Intercounty Junior Baseball League by defeating Hamilton Consumers 4-2 yesterday.

The third inning was Gillies' only bad frame when Hamilton made three hits to push two runs across the plate. McBride and Sonmor were Consumers pitchers, McBride lasting until the fourth. Brown, London catcher, led the attack with three hits driving in three runs.

In one of the fastest and best played games of the local season Niagara Falls last night scored a 1-0 victory over Welland Atlas in a Niagara District Senior baseball contest. It was a pitcher's battle between Johnny Worrall of the winners and Mario Comy of Atlas, with the lone tally coming in the first stanza. Worrall allowed only two hits and fanned seven.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

A special meeting of the Belleville Softball Association has been called for tonight in the City Hall Council Chambers at 8 o'clock. Team managers are especially invited to discuss the possibility of extending the present schedule which ends on July 17 to a date in the vicinity of August 1st.

• • •

An alleged protest will also be heard by the executive. It has been stated that the Point Anne squad lodged a protest against Flashes using two players, but later withdrew the cash deposit and the protest. Manager Frank Sedore, so Secretary Harry Knott informs us has lodged a counter protest against the Point Anne team for using players, the protest claims, not eligible to play under the existing residence rules of the OASA.

• • •

President Al Hitchen requests that all members of the executive be present as well as team representatives, so that these wrinkles can be ironed out before the all-important playoffs and their expected fireworks are upon the faithful.

• • •

Extension of the schedule looks like a good move from this corner especially from the Goodman Juniors point of view. The kids, according to present indications would be eliminated from the league playoffs, and would have a long period of inactivity before their playdowns start. By extending the schedule here, everybody would be kept busy until at least near the deadline.

The playoffs should not take more than two weeks to decide, unless of course the weather bloke starts kicking up his shins. There are a number of postponed games to be played in the regular schedule but the fact that the Sixardee squad withdrew from the loop a short time ago alleviates this condition to an appreciable extent, for the greater number of postponed games have occurred through this squad's inability or unwillingness to play.

• • •

Point Anne has affiliated with the OASA and will move on into the Intermediate 'B' playdowns regardless of what happens in the Belleville Softball Association playoffs. The Ox Pointers could win the league title, but in that case, the runners-up will represent the city loop in the quest for a Belleville softball title. That means that this district will have three mushball squads moving into the playdowns when that time rolls around.

CAL HUBBARD, PUGILIST

Among the collection of embarrassing sports incidents mentioned in the amusing book, "Don't Bring That Up!" is the tale of Cal Hubbard's venture into the sphere of pugilism. The massive American League umpire, all 270 pounds of him, once was watching two heavyweight fighters give a feeble imitation of the Manly Art of Modified Murder when he disgustedly remarked, "I could handle both those guys myself." That was his first mistake. When the eager promoter asked, "Wanna try?" Cal agreed —his second mistake. So it was arranged for him to meet the winner.

The house was packed for the bout. For two rounds the huge Hubbard hammered the pug from pillar to post, and at the end of the second round the professional fighter was so battered that he hardly could find his way to his corner. But neither could Cal. He had pounded himself into a state of exhaustion as he wabbled back to his stool on Leon Errol legs. He just had left sufficient strength for one gesture, a feeble wave to his second to toss in the towel. From then on Cal confined his fighting to ball players, all of it verbally.

Nicky Sero, whom we always rated as one of the best shortstops in any diamond game in these parts of Ontario, hasn't forgotten the old cunning. Last night at the Alemite Field the ex-soldier, who hasn't donned a baseball mitt since 1939 went back into the old spot and came up with as nifty an exhibition as one would want to see. He fielded the position flawlessly and with Walt Gerow, Jr. pirouetting around first base, formed one of the best defensive combinations the SWACOS squad has dished up to their admirers this season.

"Chuck" Barriage, the old maestro who has gone in retirement so many times he should have a medal, turned in a spectacular hurling performance and pitched the Stewart Warner gang to a sparkling win over the league-leading RCAF Flyers. He spiked the Flyer batting guns and held them down to one run and three hits, and that is a standout performance for a youngster. 'Chuck' thoroughly deserved to win—and he did.

The defeat was the second for the Flyers who have seven wins to their credit and are perched on top of the loop ladder. Inside info says the Flyer squad will be away on a recruiting tour and will also go to Niagara Falls before playing in the National Baseball Congress in Toronto in late August. Seems as though they should make some arrangements with the league executive here anent their absence.

Napanee's hard-fighting, hard-playing baseball squad who are yet to get on speaking terms with the breaks, dropped a close decision the other night to the Batawa squad 8-7 after leading the Shoemen up to the seventh innings. Harry started on the mound for Batawa but the Napanee bats got to him for four runs in the fifth to assume the lead after they had tied Batawa in the third. Bata rushed "Smoky" Smith into the breach and that gentleman promptly handcuffed the locals for the rest of the pastime.

• • •

Lefty Whitman and his SWACOS trek to Batawa tonight to take on "Smoky" et al in a scheduled game while tomorrow night at the Alemite Field, Moose Matthews and his rampaging Flyers from Trenton take on the Napanee squad. This is a postponed tilt.

OFF THE SPORTS TRACK

Then there is the one about the cub reporter out west who was being constantly reminded by his city editor to "Be brief. Always be brief."

So the cub turned in this one. "James C. Gilligan looked up the shaft in an office building to see if the elevator was coming down. It was. Age 33."

George Polmater Meets Goulding In Main Bout

George Polmanter has lined up a pretty big job for himself for Wednesday night when he climbs into the ring against Oshawa's Bill Goulding in the five round main event at Hume Arena. Goulding is a tough boy with lots of steam in both hands. He proved this on the card held in Hamilton in connection with the centennial celebrations by chilling Hamilton's "Nick" Poppa in the second round.

Local fight fans know that Poppa is regarded as one of the best in the province and if Goulding can put him away, he'll make things pretty interesting for the local pugilist-promoter.

Polmanter has been doing very well of late too. In recent weeks, he has won two decisions over Trenton's "Jiber" Ellis which is no mean feat, to say the least. Trenton fans are after another Ellis-Polmanter "go" but this is not likely to materialize for another week or so.

In the semi-finals, a four-rounder, "Jerry" Downes of Belleville, will meet "Baldy" Hardsands of Oshawa. Downes hasn't had much luck with the Oshawa boy in the local ring, dropping two very close decisions, however, the two fought to a five-round draw in Oshawa last Thursday night, hence, the re-match. If Downes paces himself properly, he should take the measure of the Motor City lad, but in their two previous meetings hereabouts, Downes has gone all out in the first round or two and then was too tired to follow it up. The local lad has been working hard lately and should be in the pink of condition for Wednesday night's battle.

In the preliminaries, Belleville's "Pete" Calbury will tangle with Oshawa's Fred Harding, Ross Soules of Belleville will meet Harry Goulding of Oshawa and Belleville's Cecil Anderson will trade punches with Bobby McPhee of Oshawa.

In all, there will be eight good bouts. Some battlers from Brockville are expected to round out the card. The full card will be announced tomorrow.

Beau Jack Scores Technical Knockout Over Sammy Angott

(By The Canadian Press)

Beau Jack, the onetime Georgia bootblack, scored a technical knockout over Sammy Angott last night in the seventh round of a rough and tumble bout at Griffith Stadium in Washington.

The two former world lightweight champions who boxed to a draw in New York two years ago, fought as if the world championship again were at stake. Nothing appeared to be barred as they wrestled, pushed, slugged around the ring and through the ropes a half dozen times.

Angott, 31, spotted Jack six years and this difference began to tell in the fifth round. He did not answer the bell for the seventh and his seconds said he suffered a leg cramp from kidney punches in the fifth and sixth rounds. Angott claimed the blows low but the referee took no action.

A total of 10,343 spectators paid a gross gate of $41,028. Jack weighed 142, Angott 143.

Owned by W. H. Herbert of London, Ont., and driven by Clint Hodgins, the two-year-old pacer Mr. Herbert pulled a surprise win in the first division of the $9,750 Village Farm Stake in last night's harness racing at Roosevelt Raceway, Westbury, N.Y. The Ontario horse paid $74.40 for $2 in the pari mutuel wagering.

Signed yesterday by Brooklyn Dodgers, outfielder Joe Tepsix, all-round athlete at Penn State College, made his first appearance with the team last night in an exhibition at Three Rivers, Que., when he registered one hit in three times up. Dodgers defeated the farm club 6-2.

In his second fight in the United States since returning from England, Danny Webb, 128½, of Montreal, scored a sixth-round technical knockout over Lew Transparenti, 131, of Baltimore, in a scheduled 10-rounder last night at Coney Island, N.Y.

With 137 strikeouts to his credit this season, southpaw Cliff Chambers of Los Angeles in the Pacific Coast League was bought yesterday by Chicago Cubs, to report next spring.

Grand Circuit racing opened yesterday on the "kite" track at Old Orchard Beach, Me., with Athlone Hall accounting for the odd heat of the feature, his fastest time being 2.09.5. Dale Bumpus was the surprise winner of the 2:12 Bar Pace.

Holder of the National League record of 148 passes which he set last season, Ed Stanky of Brooklyn Dodgers has already walked 77 times with the National League schedule half completed. The American League record of 170 was set by Babe Ruth in 1923.

DAWES BLACK HORSE BREWERY

Lesson No. 1031,
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Tricky leads are part of the equipment of every clever bridge player. Let me show you one. Only for your amusement, of course. Not for you to make a practice of.

You will remember, no doubt, that standard rule says the proper lead from a sequence is the top. From a sequence with Q J, lead the queen. From a sequence with J 10, lead the jack. Remember?

The idea is that the lead of a queen shows the jack and denies the king. The lead of a jack admits the ten and denies the queen. The lead of a ten promises the nine and denies the jack.

Knowing this, take a case where the trumps in a deal are as in these hands

NORTH
♥K 7 4 2

EAST

SOUTH
♥A 10 9 8 6

Suppose west led the jack instead of a correct lead of queen. Only as a hoax, mind you. Declarer will assume that west does not hold the queen. He will think east has it.

If he figures that way, he will let the dummy king take that first trick. Dummy will return a small trump. When east plays low again, south will finesse the ten and west wins with the queen.

It is a clever swindle. And permissible under the laws of the game. Nor is a player considered unfair for executing it. To the contrary, he is complimented when it works.

But just because you know it, don't go underleading sequences. In trumps, partner is not likely to have ace or king. But such leads in side suits can ruin your partner.

Even with the knowhow, be careful not to be careless with any deception. When falsecarding, pick your spot. Never when there is a chance of fooling your partner or baiting a trap for him.

If at all, try stunts only at irregular intervals. Then the hoax is not so easily spotted in time. Hitten where they aint.

Hollywood, July 9 (AP)— The difficulties of being married to a movie queen are described by Richard Ney.

The young war veteran has severed his connection with MGM where his wife, Greer Garson, is top star. The reason for his departure is typical of many actors who have returned from the war:

"I would have to move in on some of my contemporaries who took over during the war years.

"That would undoubtedly mean a fight. I'm one guy who likes a good fight, but I'm afraid Greer might be involved and I wouldn't want that."

So Ney is now free-lancing and currently appearing opposite Peggy Cummins in "The Late George Apley."

"The Drunkard" staggered into its 14th year Saturday night and it appears that the hardy perennial will be enduring the delirium tremens as long as tourists continue to reach these shores.

The mossy anti-liquor play, first produced by P. T. Barnum in 1843, was sprung on Los Angeles audiences in 1933 when Ray Milland was playing callow juveniles and the "Lost Week-End" wasn't even a one-day drunk. With the added inducements of refreshments and an after-show, it has been playing nightly through earthquakes, floods, depressions, war and peace.

Dixie Walker Has Highest Batting Average

New York, July 9—(AP)— Dixie Walker carried the highest individual batting average into the major leagues' 13th all-star game at Boston today.

The veteran outfielder of Brooklyn Dodgers, despite dropping four points during the last week, entered the all-star contest with a lofty .368 mark.

Mickey Vernon, lefthanded clouting first baseman of Washington Senators, sported a .364 average, top figure among the American League contestants in the star-studded battle at Fenway Park.

Johnny Hopp of Boston Braves displaced Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals as runner-up to Walker in the National League with a .363 mark as Musial slipped to third with .350.

Thumping Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox also dropped from second to third in the Harridge loop, yielding his former berth to teammate Dom DiMaggio Including games of Sunday, DiMaggio was batting at a .349 pace while Williams was moving at a .347 gait.

Following Williams were Charley Keller of New York .328; Johnny Bernardino, St. Louis .319 Hank Edwards, Cleveland .318; Vern Stephens, St. Louis .310; Bobby Doerr, Boston .340; and Luke Appling of Chicago and Johnny Pesky of Boston .302.

Fourth place in the senior circuit was held by Johnny Mize of New York Giants with a mark of .341. Trailing Mize were Pete Reiser, Brooklyn, .330; Pee Wee Reese, Brooklyn .319; Red Schoendienst, St. Louis .311; Tommy Holmes, Boston, and Frank McCormick, Philadelphia .304, and Del Ennis, Philadelphia .303.

Underdog National Loop Team Hopeful of Upsetting American League Favorites in Game

Contest Will be Played in Boston Before 33,000 Paid Admissions

By BOB CAVAGNARO

Boston, July 9 (AP)—An underdog but hopeful National League team took the field today against a highly favored American League aggregation in the first post-war all-star baseball game between hand-picked players of the rival major leagues.

Upward of 33,000 fans paid a record of $105,000—the previous high was $98,002 in 1935— for reserved seats in Fenway Park, home of the powerful Boston Red Sox, for the 13th inter-league classic which found the American Leaguers 3 to 1 betting choices. The teams were scheduled to square off at 1:30 p.m. E.D.T. with the Nationals first to bat.

Bobby Feller, Cleveland Indians' sizzling strikeout pitcher, and Chicago Cubs' veteran righthander, Claude Passeau were slated to pitch the first three innings.

Manager Steve O'Neill of the world champion Detroit Tigers and leader of the American Leaguers, planned to use his twirling star, Hal Newhouser, and then Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler of New York Yankees for the final three innings. O'Neill's reserve mound staff included Mickey Harris and Dave Ferriss of the Red Sox, and Jack Kramer of St. Louis Browns.

Manager Charlie Grimm of Chicago Cubs and the National Leaguers, kept the Americans in the dark about who would follow Passeau, but the consensus was that Rip Sewell of Pittsburgh and Howie Pollet of St. Louis would get the calls. Also, he had Brooklyn's Kirby Higbe, Boston's Mort Cooper, Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell, and Chicago's Johnny Schmitz in the bullpen for emergency summonses.

Feller to Start

The Americans were confident that Feller would have the heat turned on when second baseman Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals, the first National hitter, planted his feet in the batter's box. In three games since the inter-league series started in 1933, Bob struck out nine and tied the mark established by Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, formerly of New York Yankees.

Boston Red Sox players dominated the starting lineups. Four—centrefielder Dom DiMaggio, shortstop Johnny Pesky, leftfielder Ted Williams and second baseman Bobby Doerr — were named from among owner Tom Yawkey's gang which has set the pace in the American League from the start of the 1946 season. Doerr, bothered by a split finger, was a slightly doubtful starter. DiMaggio, Pesky and Williams batted in that order. They were followed by the Yankees' home run star, Charley Keller, in the cleanup spot, and then Doerr.

Standing Eight to Four

This array of powerful sluggers calculated to enable the American League to increase their domination of the series, which stands at eight victories for the Americans to four for the Nationals. The National Leaguers won the last game, 7-1, played in 1944.

The National League wasn't without its sluggers and clutch hitters. It boasted a powerful long distance hitter in New York Giants' first sacker, Johnny Mize, and its leading batter, Dodger Dixie Walker's timely hitting has been a big factor keeping the Brooks ahead of the Cardinals.

Some of the stars chosen for the classic won't see action due to injuries. The Dodgers' shortstop, Pee Wee Reese, turned up with a chipped vertebra in the neck from a spill he took Sunday. On the same day Yankee Joe DiMaggio tore a cartilage in his left knee. Also, the Dodgers' Pete Reiser, with a sprained right shoulder, and Eddie Miller of Cincinnati, with an injured right hand, were among the missing.

LEAFS TO RUN HOCKEY SCHOOL

Toronto, July 9—(CP)—Heat waves dances outside Maple Leaf Gardens yesterday as Conny Smythe went into a huddle with Hap Day to send out invitations to 22 promising hockey prospects to report to Toronto Maple Leafs hockey school at St. Catharines Ont., Sept. 17.

The school, a Maple Leafs innovation, is being held a week before the main training camp opens and thhe National Hockey League manager and his trainer hope by that time to have sized up the hockey hopefuls they have been gathering from far and wide during the off season.

"It will be an interesting experiment as we have not yet had an opportunity to see many of those who have been invited in action," said Smythe. "We have had a lot of amateurs on our lists and the school will give us a chance to see if they are ready for professional company."

CHUCK BARRIAGE HURLS 3-HITTER TO BEAT R.C.A.F.

Swacos Administer Second Defeat in Ten Starts to the Flyers

Unable to fathom to any extent the offerings of "Chuck" Barriage, SWACOS righthander, the league leading Trenton RCAF Flyers went down to their second defeat in ten starts at the Alemite Field Monday night in one of the best baseball games seen here this season. The score was 2-1.

Barriage, backed up by an airtight fielding display by his mates in the field handcuffed the service gang and held them to three hits for one run over the seven innings route. He struck out three and walked the same number, but was never in serious difficulty at any time.

Trenton started their pitching find, Curtis, who hurled a sensational game the other night in his first appearance on any baseball mound, but he was yanked at the end of the third innings and replaced by Gibb, another righthander. The winners nicked Curtis for three hits for two runs in three innings but Gibb held them to a brace of clouts and no runs for the remainder of the pastime.

But the damage was done and Barriage went on to win by a close margin.

Scored Lone Run in Second

Flyers scored their lone run in the second when Garbas who had walked and was sacrificed to second by Lebofsky galloped home on Robertson's singing double to centre field. Curtis struck out and Holdershaw grounded out to end the rally.

SWACOS got their only scores in the same innings when "Lefty" Whitman poled out a triple that bounced three feet over Moose Matthews head in right field and scored on catcher Jimmy Lee's lone error of the games. Titus who got on by virtue of the same error scored the second marker when Barriage singled sharply to right field.

Sero and Gerow, SWACOS shortstop and first baseman scintillated afield with their fine defensive work. Whitman paced the winners attack with his triple, Gerow got a double and Titus, Barriage and Elliott contributed singles.

Robertson smashed out a double and single for two of his teams three hits off Barriage. Holdershaw, first baseman got the other one.

Halifax, July 9 (CP)—Sporting feuds, as a particular form of ballyhoo, are as old as the hills themselves, but there's a slightly refreshing—if not underhanded—touch to an exchange of verbal potshots between sport columnist Ace Foley and cartoonist Jack MacMellon.

The point of controversy is a natural—umpires—and the odd part of it is that the feudsters work on the same paper, the Halifax Chronicle. What's more they work on the same page.

Foley didn't like it when MacMellon, up in one corner of the page, patted the Halifax Baseball League umpires on the back. Said MacMellon in his satirical drawing on the baseball scene: "The umpiring in the last four games has been practically perfect."

Said Foley from across the page: "I hope he has the sense to take cover when the fans see that one.

MacMellon, his pictorial efforts with 1,000 words each (by Confucius' measurements) made the best of the advantage gained by the newsprint shortage.

Ace was the subject of his art display a few days later. Samples: The nurse fainted when Ace was born; the stork should have been arrested for bringing dope into Canada; Foley has picked only one winner in his career —then half the world didn't give Conn a chance anyway; as a child he had the instincts of a good sports reporter—tying cans to dogs, and has been tying cans to athletes for more than 20 years now.

The feud goes on.

Fulla fight fans:

Mark Sydney down as a hot sport centre. With its population of 30,000 the crowd of 6,500 for the recent Joe Pyle-Frankie Conti fight was something to talk about. In proportion to population a city the size of Montreal would have to show about 70,000 fans to equal Sydney's turnout.

ROYALS ARE 10 1-2 GAMES IN FRONT OF THE FIELD

Squabble for Three Remaining Playoff Berths Now Only Interest

(By The Associated Press)

With Montreal's Royals 10 1-2 games out in front and apparently well on their way towards their second consecutive International League pennant, interest in President Frank Shaughnessy's triple-A circuit now is centred on the squabble for the three remaining playoff berths.

At the moment, Syracuse and Newark are waging a terrific struggle for second place. The Bears, by virtue of their 7-6 victory over the Chiefs last night, have moved into the runner-up slot by one percentage point.

The fourth-place Buffalo Bisons, who dropped a 5-1 contest to the seventh-place Rochester Red Wings, are only one point ahead of Baltimore Orioles and three games in front of sixth-place Toronto.

Southpaw John Mikan yielded only five hits in hurling Rochester to its triumph over Buffalo. Shortstop Eddie Joost paced the Red Wing attack on Ted Gray and Denny Horton by batting in three tallies on a homer and a double.

The Royals stretched their winning streak to six games by beating Toronto, 4-2. Montreal broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth frame by scoring twice but Manager Bill Norman of the Leafs protested the contest.

In the eighth, Les Burge of the Royals belted a long drive which centrefielder Ellis (Cot) Deal hauled down. But the brilliant rookie ball hawk of the Maple Leafs crashed into the light tower and dropped the ball, allowing Burge to reach second.

Herman Franks then walked and Red Durrett rifled his third two-bagger of the game to right to score Burge with the deciding run and put Franks on third. Franks scampered in with Montreal's final tally a moment later as Earl Naylor field out.

The scheduled contest between Jersey City Giants and Baltimore Orioles was postponed because of rain.

BIG MONEY ERA CAME IN FIGHT 25 YEARS AGO

First Million Dollar Gate in Boxing Recorded When Dempsey Knocked Out Carpentier at Jersey City

By FRANK ECK

New York, July 9 (AP)—Twenty five years ago New York reported the first million dollar gate in boxing. It was on the night of July 2, 1921 that Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier drew receipts of $1,789,238 in their world's heavyweight championship Battle of the Century at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, N.J.

Only three other title battles surpassed that figure—Dempsey's two losing struggles with Gene Tunney and the recent Joe Louis-Billy Conn fight.

The Dempsey-Carpentier bout, the first of the immortal Tex Rickard's great fistic extravaganzas, drew 91,000 fans. Dempsey's share was $300,000. He won when Carpentier, a French light heavyweight, was counted out by Referee Harry Ertle in the fourth round.

It was a right to the jaw followed by a left to the jaw that flattened the game little Frenchman.

The heavier Dempsey was an overwhelming favorite to retain his crown. At the outset it looked like we might have a new heavyweight champion—light heavyweight size as Gorgeous Georges scaled but 172 pounds.

Carpentier almost upset the 188-pound Manassa Mauler from Colorado in the second round. He threw a right hand punch to Dempsey's jaw. It landed and Dempsey went back on his heels. Dempsey was wading in at the moment and the blow caught him flush on the jaw. Boyle's Thirty Acres, built especially for this fight, reverberated from the din created by the vast crowd.

End Came in Fourth

In the third round, Dempsey tore into Carpentier like a wild man and continued a relentless two-fisted attack until the finish in the fourth session.

After the fight, it was rumored that Promoter Rickard, in a visit to Dempsey's dressing room before the bout, had asked the champion to "carry" his lighter adversary. Veterans who observed the fight still insist Dempsey could have stopped Carpentier as early as the second round.

The knockout of Carpentier was the 14th in succession for the Manassa Mauler over a period of almost three years.

Jack won the title when he flattened big Jess Willard in the third round at Toledo, O., July 4, 1919, for his 11th consecutive kayo. This does not include two exhibition bouts and the chilling of two sparring partners on the same day in Denver, Colo., in 1919.

Dempsey, one of the most popular champions in the Golden Era of sports, lost the title to Gene Tunney, Sept. 23, 1926, in Philadelphia. The following year he attempted to regain the crown in Chicago, but Tunney, aided by the famous long count when Dempsey was slower than slow getting to a neutral corner, again won the decision over the 10-round route.

Dempsey will be 51 on July 24. Carpentier, proprietor of a cafe in Paris, was 52 last Jan. 12.

FAITHFUL

BY MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER 2

"My luck that I was riding by," he said, smiling down on her from what seemed to Iris towering heights. "I saw a scared taxi driver with a fainting girl. He was quite willing that I should kidnap you. Don't blame him too much. He probably didn't want to lose his job, poor chap. If you feel well enough to go home now...."

She sat upright. "I think I should call my hostess and explain why I failed to appear at her party."

Mark's mouth lost its sternness and was all amusement.

"I have called your hostess. Our hostess, I should say."

"I don't understand," said Iris.

He looked at her soberly. "Mary said that her party was not in vain since we have met, Miss Wade. Fortunately the photograph in Mary's living room is an excellent likeness."

She was like a bewildered child for a moment. Then she laughed quietly, "Oh, I see, now. You're ....the man who sent the gardenias."

"I'm Mark Christian, who came back from Florida because Mary told me Iris Wade was a poem."

"And now," said Iris, 'you find that the poem faints and has a bump on her head."

He tossed his cigaret in the fireplace and sat beside her.

"Then let us call you an animated, very human poem, Iris."

A mysterious smile he did not understand suddenly curved her mouth. Iris was thinking, "How delighted Mother will be when she knows it is Mark Christian. He's rich, handsome, and brilliant. A man of the world. His polo is world famous. Well, Mark," Iris thought bitterly, "What place are you going to have in my twisted affairs? Are you going to bring me the happiness I've never had or add more misery to my present unhappiness?"

He brought her sparkling wine, and while the cool spring rain beat against the windows Iris spent two of the most interesting hours of her life, feeling as natural and as unaffected with him as she felt with Tommy. Two hours, she was afterward to think, that were apart from and above the torturous life in the house in Walbrook, and the secret forbidden hours with Joel, and the long days in Doctor Tracy's office and the endless stream of rich ailing women.

With keen perception he knew, when her eyes surveyed the quiet room with the deep chairs and soft lights, that Iris did not spend her life in such pleasant surroundings. Mary had said that Iris was poor and had a wretched life at home. Mark admired her attitude of gayety, knowing how disturbed she was beneath it. Susceptible as he was to beauty, and certainly Iris was beautiful, as they talked he cared less and less for her loveliness and was more curious and more attracted to what lay beneath the perfect exterior. Not only beauty, he thought, feeling a little ashamed, but ideals and tenderness.

"I think," she said at last, "that you had better take me home now."

"And tomorrow have Louis Tracy do something about your head."

"You know Dr. Tracy?"

"Quite well. Iris, when may I see you again?"

"I don't know."

"I know," said Mark. "Tomorrow."

She was silent as he drove through Druid Hill in the direction of Walbrook. Iris thought, "How can I play the game with him—the game Mother wants me to play? I can't. I can't. Not—not with Mark."

On the old porch that seemed to creak under their weight he said, standing close to her, hatless, tanned and very tall," Tomorrow and other days hereafter, Iris. Suddenly living has become more important than business or anything else. Good night, my dear."

Inside the house was dark and damp. She walked up the steps slowly and quietly. Selina, in a dark dressing gown, came out of her bedroom.

"Iris, darling, who brought you home?" "What a perfectly elegant car!"

"That was Mark Christian, Mother."

"Mark Christian!" she cried, turning down the bed. "Why — he's...."

Iris took off her coat and stood by the window.

"He's wealthy and handsome and from one of the best families in Maryland. And he's a gentleman in every sense of the word."

Selina looked up. "I don't mean to nag you, Iris. I mean it for your own good. I know what it means to be poor, and I want only the best for my children. I want you to marry some one who is worthy of you. Iris, you can find love and luxury in the same man if you're wise."

And she was to remember those words also in time to come.

When the gold dress was in the garment bag and the gold sandals were neatly placed in a box, she turned out the lamp on the dressing table and walked to the window. In the distance the church bells chimed the hour after midnight. Walbrook slept in the springtime; the rain rhythmically spattered against the windows; the air was fragrant with new budding things.

In the stillness, silently reverently, Iris prayed to be faithful to the old love. "Keep me faithful to Joel who needs me and who has nothing to offer me. Am I foolish when often he's unkind and sulky? Mark would never be unkind and he'd never be possessive and threatening. But Mark has had and can have everything from life he wants. Joel has only me."

Dr. Louis Tracy was a tall middle-aged man with thinning dark hair, merry dark eyes, and a blunt professional manner.

When Iris came into the office at the Medical Arts Building the next morning, he said, "What happened to you? Let me see your head," and when she took off her black hat, "Nasty bump there. Family squabble?"

She laughed and told him the story.

"Mark, eh?" he said, smiling. "What superb taste you have in men, Iris! No woman could have done better than to select a street crossing he happened to be driving past. And he's handsome enough to cure any woman's headache, be she sixteen or sixty. Come to think of it," he went on, chuckling," you ought to make a fine looking pal, you and Mark. Fate, my dear little Iris, practices a subtle art."

She hung up her black coat and said, "You're always trying to marry me to somebody."

"And lose the best secretary I ever had? Nonsense. My patients have often told me they'd follow any directions I'd give them to have a complexion like yours. You're an advertisement for health and clean thinking."

He was smoking his pipe when she came from the dressing room wearing her white, uniform. When she saw him brooding, his forehead wrinkled, his mouth grin, she knew there had been trouble in his home again. She went to her desk and started to open the mail.

Not looking at her, he said, "A physician is supposed to understand people. I don't understand Annette. I've never given her any reason to be jealous. My work and my home are the only things I've cared about. I've worked like a fiend to build up this practice so that I could give her a nice home and an enviable position in society. "Now," he said, lowering his voice, "she accuses me of being in love with you."

"With me?" Iris asked, looking up startled.

"Oh, it's insane. There's nothing to it. I'm not in love with you. I look upon you as the daughter I might have had. And you know that our relations have been strictly professional. I suppose it's because you're young and Annette is no longer young. I'm sorry, Iris. I didn't intend to worry you about this."

She folded her hands. "You may as well tell me. I've noticed that Mr. Tracy has been cool to me lately."

"As if you haven't enough on your mind already! I know. Putting two and two together, I know that your home life is unbearable and that the young man who calls for you sometimes in the evening loves you and can't marry you because he's poor. The first time I saw you, Iris," he went on kindly, "I said to myself that if you had been plain you'd have been carried and secure. Instead your eyes are going to get you into a lot of trouble. Beautiful women are always in a turmoil. But when a woman is beautiful and at the same time sensitive and gentle she has no peace. An excellent secretary that you are, no wife is going to let her husband hire you if she knows it. You have the face and figure of the proverbial homewrecker." He put his hand on her shoulder. "Pardon this unburdening of my soul, Iris. It's too bad when a wife has a faithful husband and has nothing more to do than kindle her suspicions about an innocent girl."

"If it will make it easier for you, I'll leave. With your recommendation, I could get another position."

But the words sounded weak and empty. Leave here? Leave Louis, who was friend and adviser?

"You'll do nothing of the kind." he said gently. "If I had been in love with you, I'd have fired you long ago."

"And you know by keeping me you're doing an act of charity."

"I know that a girl as pretty as you, Iris, shouldn't be thinking of bills and jealous wives. You ought to be enjoying yourself."

She lowered her eyes. "Louis, if ever I am really happy and unburdened I think it would make me light-headed and probably very foolish."

"You've never been happy, Iris?"

"I do sound gloomy, don't I?" She looked out the window and said quietly, "I take back what I said. Last night for two hours I was deeply happy."

"With Mark Christian," Louis said with finality,

All that morning, while cheerfully greeting Dr. Tracy's patients, Iris worried about Annette Tracy. Mary North phoned, asking about last night. "Darling," she said, "I couldn't have planned anything so romantic. Romantic in spite of the bump on your head. A dozen or more women I know would be willing to suffer much more serious effects just to open their eyes and find themselves in his apartment."

At lunch time Iris went out and walked up Cathedral street. The day, begun with rain, had cleared. The sun was shining and the air was cool.

When she opened the door to the office, she stopped still, hearing Mrs. Tracy's shrill angry voice shouting. "I tell you I won't be humiliated like this, Louis! Everybody knows you're in love with this Wade girl! One of your patients told me she came in and found you with your arms around her! Oh, I'm not blind.."

"Annette, please...." Louis' voice was both pleading and irritable.

"You take her to lunch and dinner...."

"When I have late appointments—yes, Business.."

No Dispute Between Paper And the Union

Vancouver, July 9 (CP)—Representatives of Local 226 of the International Typographical Union and the Vancouver Daily Province late last night concluded their public hearing into the causes of the printers' strike which has kept the paper from publishing for the last 57 days.

Both parties agreed that there is no dispute between the Daily Province and the Union.

R. H. Neelands, representing the union said he hoped the commission, which was established by government order to investigate the strike, would recommend that the Southam Company be required to negotiate a master contract covering all its newspapers, of which the Province is one.

Commission Chairman, Sherwood Lett, expressed doubt that the commission had "any right to make recommendations as to what relations should exist between newspapers other than the Daily Province."

In a written brief on behalf of the union, Mr. Neelands said the present dispute arises out of the determination of certain Canadian publishers to adopt an entirely new attitude towards features of the contract between newspapers and printers.

Features of the contract to which the publishers object are those requiring the publisher to agree that the genral laws of the International Typographical Union be not subject to arbitration.

O. L. Spencer, publisher of the Daily Province, explained that the publisher has complete discretion in matters relating to the business and publication of the particular newspaper within his own territory.

He added that he has no authority to bargain on behalf of the whole Southam group, and that if he attempted to do so, he would be repudiated by publishers of other members of the Southam group.

Developments On Steel Front Fails To Alter Threat

Hamilton, July 9 —(CP)— Developments yesterday on Canada's steel front failed to alter threat of a crippling strike in the three basic steel plants at Hamilton, Sault Ste. Marie and Sydney, N. S.

The United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.) has announced July 12 is the deadline for strike action.

There was a hopeful sign in an offer made by the Steel Company of Canada, to embrace all its employees in its two Hamilton plants. It included a 10 cents an hour increase and two weeks vacation with pay for employees after five years service, if the wage increase offer was accepted.

However, comment from union officers was unfavorable. Murray Cotterill, the union's publicity director, said the offer would be placed before the National Advisory Wage Committee of the union when it meets in Hamilton Thursday, but he said "it will not be satisfactory, as, on the basis of a 40-hour week, it is still some $3.80 lower than our objective."

This was the best offer yet made by company representatives in the wage-hour dispute involving Steel Company of Canada, Algoma Steel Corporation and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

Approximately 14,000 workers are involved, with the union seeking a minimum weekly wage of $333.60 with comparable increases for semi-skilled and skilled employees, and a 40-hour week. At Algoma this would mean a 19½ cent an hour increase.

Meanwhile negotiations are continuing between Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, federal commissioner, and representatives of the Steel Company of Canada, and the union.

Order Restored In Trieste City

Trieste, July 9 — (AP)—Order returned to Trieste today after a violent counter demonstration staged yesterday by approximately 1,000 British troops in protest against indignities suffered at the hands of Italian rioters last Saturday.

The disturbance, which was finally broken up by British military police, lasted more than an hour, during which a band of British troops accompanied by a few American soldiers marched through the Piazza Goldoni, swinging their belts and shouting insults at Italian bystanders. At one point they charged up a hill, striking out at fleeing civilians and smashing windows.

Meanwhile pro-Yugoslav leaders of a 10-day-old harbor strike, declared illegal by Allied military authorities on the grounds it has a political motive, ignored a summons to appear yesterday before a military court. Approximately 200,000 workers are involved in the tie-up.

Expect U. S. Senate To Vote to Keep Meat From Control

By JACK BELL

Washington, July 9 (AP)—The office of price administration's beleaguered supporters all but conceded today that the Senate will vote to keep meat free from any revived price controls in the United States.

Democratic leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky drove toward a test sometime tonight on an amendment by Sen. Kenneth Wherry (Rep.-Neb.) to exempt meat and poultry products from the compromise bill to re-establish the price agency.

The Kentuckian called Sen. Wherry's amendment the key issue in a campaign to keep major foods off the lists of any new ceilings that may be fixed.

As early Senate debate revolved chiefly around meat controls, Chicago reported another day of sharply higher markets Monday with cattle and hog prices generally upward.

Sen. Werry's amendment provides:

"No maximum price and no regulation or order under this act or the stabilization act of 1942, as amended, shall be applicable with respect to livestock, poultry, or eggs, or food or feed products processed or manufactured in whole or substantial part from livestock, poultry or eggs."

Sen. Wherry said he feels confident the Senate will approve the proposal because it is tired of black markets and thinks there ought to be a test in which some commodity is left free to seek its competitive price level on the market.

Three Miners Die As Truck Crashes Down Hillside

Baie St. Paul, Que., July 9— (CP)—Three employees of the O'Brien Gold Mine Company in the northern mining district of Abitibi were killed almost instantly near this Charlevoix county town last night when the truck in which they were riding crashed 100 feet down St. Antoine hill.

They were Jean Paul Begin of Val D'Or, Lorenzo Roy of Rouyn and Leo Bazinet, also of Rouyn. Returned the same night by a verdict of accidental death was coroner's jury under Dr. J. Angers of Murray Bay. Bodies of the victims will be taken by motor vehicle today to Quebec from where they will be sent to Abitibi by train.

The trio travelling from Rouyn by truck, was en route to the National Laurentide Park where some drilling awaited them. Upon reaching St. Antoine hill, just outside Baie St. Paul the driving shaft of the truck apparently failed and the driver was unable to control the heavy vehicle.

The truck missed one curb, jumped into a field, travelled several hundred feet and finally crashed into a tree stump 100 feet below a ravine.

It was disclosed at the coroner's inquest that the motor vehicle was a newly purchased truck carryng a 15,000-pound load. The speedometer, found several feet away from the destroyed truck showed 950 miles, about the mileage between Rouyn and Baie St. Paul.

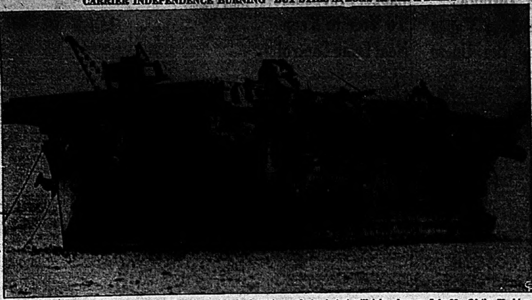
CARRIER INDEPENDENCE BURNING BUT STILL AFLOAT AFTER A-BLAST



The light carrier U.S.S. Independence, still smouldering, is shown after the destructive and powerful atom bomb had blasted the target array of 73 ships anchored in Bikini lagoon. Although battered by the force of the atomic blast, the carrier still remains afloat. The second atomic test will take place on July 25. Of the 73 ships, five were sunk, six wrecked and at least half of the total damaged, in the first test.

TAXATION RELIEF

Replies to Critics

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said there was no hope that high taxation could be avoided for years to come unless the government was jarred loose" from the money monopoly system it has persisted in following in public finance.

Other speakers included Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes V.C. (PC-Nanaimo), John Probe (CCF-Regina City), Gordon Isnor (L-Halifax) and Robert Mayhew, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Ilsley.

Replying to some of the opposition criticism, Mr. Mayhew said personal income and corporation tax reductions over the last two years represented a decline of $600,000,000 in revenue and argued that this should provide some inducement.

The new exemptions on personal income taxes would be higher than those for any other English-speaking country and would mark the three-quarter mark on the way to return to pre-war exemptions. No responsible government could agree to lift them any higher at this time.

Two Provinces Accept

At the House opening, Mr. Ilsley announced that two provinces, which he did not identify, had accepted "in principle" the Dominion's offer of a new financial agreement as outlined in the budget. One other province had requested clarification.

The House gave first reading to a bill which would extend the life of the National Emergency Transitional Powers Act of 1945, under which a number of wartime controls were continued.

In moving the Progressive Conservative amendment, Mr. MacDonnell characterized the budget as a thing of "unreality"—unreality in its deferred tax relief, in the facing of deficits and in failure to accentuate production and make an all-out attack on "the citadel of extravagance."

Called Shot-gun Substitute

He described Mr. Ilsley's offer of a new financial agreement with the provinces as a "shot-gun substitute" for consultation compromise and agreement, and argued that substantial tax relief could not be brought about until the government tackled successfully the problem of reducing wartime expenditures. The budget failed to give definite stimulus through tax relief for business and individuals.

Mr. MacInnis, moving the CCF motion, termed the reduction in personal income taxation "appalling" and said the budget gave no indication that the government was prepared to prevent the country's ecenemy from sliding back to where it was in the 1930s.

"It cannot be said too often that the taxes one pays must be measured in terms, not of the amount paid, but of the amount left after the person has paid his taxes," he continued. "If an individual has paid only a dollar he has paid too much if he has not enough left for himself and his family to live in decency."

Mr. Lowe described the budget as a "great disappointment" and said the government should have raised the income tax exemptions to $1,200 for single persons and $2,000 for married. The people would be unable to "replenish their deferred needs for many years to come, if at all."

The government had failed to reduce its spending and was piling up a national debt which never could be repaid by taxes alone. A new financial technique should be adopted.

Many Appreciate Cut

Mr. Isnor contended the average Canadian appreciated the tax relief offered in the budget and said some did not realize that many thousands of those in the lower income brackets would be relieved of paying income taxes next year while others would find their taxation liability reduced.

He suggested Mr. Ilsley consider the possibility of eliminating the tax on jewelry, which many jewelers across the country regard as a discrimination, and said he would have further suggestions to make on the soft drink tax when the budget resolution came up for study in committee.

Gen. Pearkes said the Federal Government was deriving more revenue from the British Columbia lumber industry than that Province of British Columbia itself but was doing practically nothing for the industry. Ceiling prices for lumber were below production costs and only export sales kept the industry from bankruptcy.

Mr. Probe said the government had taken no steps to stimulate all-out production and argued that Canadians were being denied the goods they needed through export sales. Imports and exports should be controlled on the basis of domestic needs.

IF YOU SOMETIMES FIND TELEPHONE SERVICE SLOW...

There's a Reason!

When your telephone call takes longer than you think it should, please remember —

There's a critical shortage of telephone equipment all over the country—in fact, all over the world!

In order that as few applicants as possible may have to wait for service, we are connecting more telephones than our central office equipment was intended to handle. It is heavily overloaded. Our operators are doing their utmost to complete calls with a minimum of delay, but slow service on some calls is inevitable.

Manufacturers of telephone equipment are working night and day to catch up on civilian needs after having had to devote all their output to war purposes. Intricate equipment takes time—both to manufacture and to instal.

We are confident that our subscribers will be indulgent if service is slow on some of their calls when they reflect that the prime reason is that we are trying to serve as many applicants as we possibly can.

We ask your tolerant cooperation until we are able to clean up this difficult equipment shortage situation.

Big Four Ministers Resume Debate On Future of Germany

Bevin Expected to Urge Some Sort of Federalization

By LOUIS NEVIN

Paris, July 10 (AP)—The Big Four Foreign Ministers, although still enmeshed in a bitter debate on the future of Germany, bent their efforts today toward final adjournment by this weekend.

The Ministers ordered their deputies to have ready by Saturday the final drafts of peace treaties with Italy, Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Finland. Diplomatic sources said this meant the council might approve the treaties Saturday afternoon and adjourn either at that time or on Sunday.

The council, which yesterday heard another sharp clash between State Secretary Byrnes and Foreign Minister Molotov— this time on the German question — was called into session this afternoon to resume discussions on Germany.

British Foreign Secretary Bevin was expected to urge, with United States support, that some sort of federalization be provided for Germany, which now is divided into four occupation zones.

Byrnes-Molotov Clash

The clash between Messrs. Byrnes and Molotov occurred when the American statesman urged adoption of his proposed treaty to guarantee disarmament of Germany for 25 years.

Mr. Molotov described the suggested pact as "wholly inadequate" and asserted it did not insure against the rebirth of militarism in Germany. Mr. Byrnes countered with an accusation that Russia had violated the Potsdam agreement by making excessive levies against German industry.

Other developments yesterday included:

The ministers asked the United Nations to postpone its next meeting of the General Assembly in New York from Sept. 3 to Sept. 23, to allow diplomats adequate time to attend the 21-power peace conference in Paris July 29;

France sent out invitations to the various countries to attend the peace conference;

German Reparations to Russia

Mr. Molotov raised the question of whether Russia would receive $10,000,000,000 in reparations from Germany, claiming that this amount had been promised at Yalta. Mr. Byrnes replied that the figure had been mentioned at Yalta only as a basis of discussions, and that Mr. Molotov was aware of that fact.

By RELMAN MORIN

Paris, July 10 — (AP) — For the majority of the correspondents who reported it, the Foreign Ministers' Conference has been a profoundly depressing experience. For the people of Europe, it was much worse than that.

A very great distance, greater than the empty void between two planets, lies between the Paris of this conference and the rest of the continent. It is the distance between the world of words and the world of flinty fact.

I have just returned to Paris from a trip across Europe. Conditions in all but a few countries are bad. The people of all countries need — even more than bread and shoes — hope.

They need a promise, a future that holds something better than clearing rubble and eying gutters for cigaret ends and children asking for food. The present, at best, is difficult. To millions, it seems pointless.

A Dane, gazing in the direction from which the Germans came, said to me, "All you want is to work and to be able to enjoy what you earn. It seems too much to expect."

A Finn said: "We were the invaded, not the invader. But we will not be heard at the peace conference. What can we look forward to?"

The Conference

In every country, you hear this question: What answers have come from the conference?

The by-product has been more important than any of the products. There has been another and heavier collision between the United States and Russia. No further doubt exists that the purposes and policies of the two countries at least are sharply different, and probably antipathetic.

If that is bad news for Americans and Russians, it is even worse for the Swedes and Frenchmen and Belgians.

The basis for the peace with Italy is resented in some countries as "too soft"; the Italians condemn it as "degrading." There is an agreement to internationize the city of Trieste — and both the Yugoslavs and Italians already have served notice that they only await the moment to cancel it, by force. The demarcation of the Franco-Italian border has angered the Italians and disappointed the French.

Gamble for Time

These are all words. The facts are that Europe's political problems are almost as timeless as its topography.

It is as though the four ministers, by conferring, could move the Alps to another site or reverse the direction of the Rhine. A boundary line only can be changed on paper, not in fact.

So what the four ministers have done is what statesmen have always done — gambled for time.

UNRRA SUSPENDS ALL SHIPMENTS OF FOOD TO CHINA

La Guardia Acts On Accusations Made By Staff Members Against Chiang's Govt.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, July 10 — (AP) — Diplomatic authorities predicted today the ambassadorial assignment given 70-year-old John Leighton Stuart, veteran Presbyterian missionary, will bolster Gen. George C. Marshall's struggle to unite China's Communist and Nationalist factions.

These officials expressed more cautious optimism, however, in speculating on either the speed or degree of success which Gen. Marshall and Mr. Stuart may achieve. Some said China's problems appear to be piling up rather than dissolving.

The latest development in the tangled situation came almost simultaneously with President Truman's nomination of Mr. Stuart as envoy to Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek's government.

UNRRA Director-General Fiorello H. La Guardia - announced that effective at noon yesterday all shipments of badly needed relief and rehabilitation supplies — except emergency foods — were being suspended. He acted after more than half of UNRRA's 400 staff members in China had accused, Chiang's government of failing to get the materials from China's ports to the millions in the interior who needed them and contended that some relief goods were being diverted for political ends.

Mr. La Guardia's action was one of the most drastic ever taken by UNRRA. It cut off shipments to China of farm machinery, fertilizers, fishing boats, trucks, steel rails, locomotives, clothing and textiles.

Say Reds Halt Deportation Of Germans

Vienna, July 10 (AP)—Russian authorities were reported today to have halted their announced deportation of native Germans and other non-Austrians from the Soviet occupation zone of Vienna.

No reason was given by the Russians for the abrupt cessation, said to have occurred Monday when deportees waiting in a railroad station were told to return home.

There was some speculation that the halt was merely temporary and was called because the camp at Melk, where the refugees are housed pending shipment to Germany, was filled.

Vienna, July 10 —(Reuters)— The Austrian parliament today voted 161-4 in support of the government's protest against the Russian action last Saturday in taking over German property in the Russian zone as reparations.

The chancellor, Dr. Leopold Figl, told a special meeting of parliament: "We want to build up a free Austria not only for ourselves but also for the peace and progress of the whole of Europe.

RocketScientistsSearch Pacific, U.S., Caribbeanfor2,000MileTestingGround

Washington, July 10 (AP)—If you think things are crowded in your neighborhood, pity the United States army ordnance people.

Rocket scientists have outgrown the white sands proving ground in New Mexico, where they are testing guided missiles with a potential range of 200 miles, and are now searching the United States, the Caribbean and Pacific areas for a 2,000 mile test ground.

The army ordnance department, announcing yesterday that such a search is being made by a joint army-navy commission, indicated their next need will be a private planet of their own, about the size of the earth.

That was when they said that long-range planning forecasts the "ultimate range of guided missiles to 20,000 miles—weapons capable of circling the globe."

These scientists told a reporter that their dream rocket will circle the earth in about an hour and a half, at a 200-mile altitude.

It was explained that the globe-rocket likely will be a series of rockets discharged in succession in the air. Thus the one that gets back to home plate would be the great-great-great grandson of the one that took off.

Could such a rocket carry a passenger? "Yes, in time," came the unhesitating reply, "when rockets are modified with pressure chambers so that men can stand the high altitudes, the changes in altitude and the terrific speed."

Eleven Men, One Woman Charged as Responsible For Pogrom at Kielce

By LARRY ALLEN

Kielce, Poland, July 10—(AP) —The trial before a high military court of 11 men and one woman charged with touching off the bloody July 4 pogrom in which 41 Jews were killed is scheduled to be concluded by next Tuesday.

The defendants were accused yesterday, at the opening of the trial, with direct responsibility for the riots. The prosecution said it would produce evidence which would warrant the death penalty.

The government charged that the woman, Antonina Biskupska, and one of the men, Edward Jurkowski, led a mob which stoned the homes of Jews. Four other defendants are accused of attacking and killing a Jewish woman and beating and killing a Jewish child.

Government investigators testified that Henryk Blaszckzk, an eight-year-old boy whom they described as a "tool" of Fascist reactionaries, had confessed he had lied in starting a rumor that he had been kidnapped and threatened with death by Jews.

The rumor was said to have touched off the pogrom.

In Czestochowa, Catholic Bishop Teodor Kubina issued a statement late yesterday condemning the Kielce incident and declaring that "all reports of ritual murders" in Poland were false.

14,117 DESERTERS IN THE DOMINION AT PRESENT TIME

Of the Total 5,819 Are General Service Personnel and 8,289 Conscripts

Ottawa, July 10 (CP)—Almost a year after VJ-Day, Royal Canadian Mounted Police and members of the Provost Corps are continuing the search in Canada for army deserters and absentees —now numbering 14,117. Of the total 5,819 are General Service personnel and the remainder 8,289 are conscripts.

The most recent figure on the number of "draft dodgers" still unaccounted for was given last November by Labor Minister Mitchell when he said the total was about 10,649.

Official statements have repeatedly indicated there will be no general amnesty, but a study of decisions handed down by military courts of various types show that there had been a relatively high percentage of commutations and mitigations of sentences.

Recently Defence Minister Abbott announced that in Canada between Jan. 1, 1945, and May 1, 1946, there were 4,964 army court martial convictions for desertion and 3,756 for absenteeism.

Many Sentenced

In that period, 7,710 were sentenced to detention, 686 to imprisonment with hard labor, three to imprisonment without hard labor, 34 to be reduced in rank, 500 to be discharged with ignomy, three were dismissed from the service and three officers were cashiered.

Absenteeism became a mass movement in the Christmas period of 1944 when 7,800 infantry reinforcements failed to report for overseas draft. The mass desertion of N.R.M.A. troops occurred following passage of an order-in-council conscripting the first draftees troops as overseas infantry reinforcements.

On Jan. 20, 1945 it was announced that 6,300 draftees were still listed as absentees and on April 6, 1945, there were 4,082 still at large.

A defence headquarters spokesman has repeatedly said that the end of the war would see no change in the army's policy of tracking down the deserters and bringing them to trial.

One Man Shot In the Holdup

New York, July 10 — (AP) — One man was shot to death and four others, including a patrolman and a former United States Army sergeant, were wounded early today in gunfire which followed an attempted holdup at a West 47th Street cafe.

Police identified the dead man as Solly Moss, of the Bronx, business agent for Local 10 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union (A.F.L.). Officers said he was shot when he inadvertently brushed one of the men as they advanced toward the bar.

The patrolman, Arthur Green, and the former army sergeant, John Healy, 30, of New York, were shot during a pursuit of the robbers, who fled after shooting Moss. Two of the trio were wounded and captured, while the third escaped.

WILL MEET ILSLEY ON TAX RELIEF FOR GOLD MINES

Proposal Will be to Ask for Increase in Allowance of Depletion

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 10 (CP)—J. A. Bradette, Liberal member of parliament for Cochrane in Northern Ontario, said today that he was seeking an interview with Finance Minister Ilsley to see what could be done to extend tax relief to Canadian gold mines to offset, at least to some extent, the loss they are suffering because of the higher valuation of the Canadian dollar exchange.

An Association of Prospectors and Mining Developers, meeting in Toronto, also has asked the minister for an appointment and Mr. Ilsley told them he could confer with them here Friday.

Mr. Bradette said he planned to ask other members of parliament who represent ridings with gold interests to join him in pressing for relief to gold mines. They include J. L. Gauthier, Liberal member for Nipissing, David Gourd, Liberal member for Chapleau, Walter Little, Liberal member for Temiskaming, and a number of members from Manitoba and British Columbia.

Rodney Adamson, Progressive Conservative member for York West, also will be asked to the meeting. Mr. Adamson said in the Commons yesterday that the government's "drastic" action would have harmful effects on the Canadian mining industry, particularly gold mines in Northern Quebec.

Curtailment Feared

The move would curtail prospecting for gold and base metals and would bring about a decrease in investments in prospecting and developing, he said. This money might be hoarded and lost or it might be invested in things which would increase inflationary pressures.

Some people said the government should bonus mining. This was defeatist talk, but he did believe the government should assist the industry by establishing a "free" market for gold in Can-

Details of Fight With Black Bear Are Revealed

Sudbury, July 10 — (CP) — Details of the fight between 19-year-old Alice Brabant of nearby Azilda, and a bush country black bear that tried to break into a lonely prospector's cabin 100 miles north of here were revealed today as the girl prepared to leave hospital.

The girl was flown to hospital here after she had lain unconscious for nine hours on the floor of the cabin following the encounter.

Her employer, Charles Clement, discovered her plight when he returned to the cabin Saturday night from an expedition to stake gold claims. Huddled beside her was Clement's four-year-old son, Ronald.

The boy awoke and saw a black bear inside the cabin, Clement related. The girl took two shots at the animal.

"On her second shot, the lock of the rifle flew back and hit her in the face, knocking her out. In the instant before the rifle lock hit her, she saw the bear fall over. By the time I got back, the bear was nowhere in sight."

Laborer Does Not Think Germany Will be Rebuilt in His Lifetime

Berlin, July 10 — (AP) — I believe it impossible that Germany will be rebuilt in my lifetime.

We haven't enough tools or materials to work with. Half the skilled workmen in the Reich would emigrate tomorrow if they were promised jobs elsewhere — in Canada, the United States or South America.

I am a plumber, married, with a seven-year-old daughter and a five-year-old boy. Before the war I had my own plumbing business. I had enough work and enough food. I had no political interest. I still have none. Don't know whether democracy would be good or bad for Germany.

Because I had a heart ailment I was not called as a soldier but given a job in a war factory in South Silesia. I was made a soldier three months before the war ended, and was kept prisoner by the Russians for five months. We were treated kindly, but there was little food.

When I returned to Berlin I found my wife had been compelled to spend all our savings while I was away. I went to work for the Americans because I could get more food.

I work for 48 hours a week and get for that 70 marks ($7) and one meal a day. That would be enough wages except that I must pay 20 marks a week taxes.

That leaves only 50 marks. So my wife has to work as a charwoman for 20 marks a week.

We live in a little wooden house which has no light, no running water and no gas. To get wood for cooking my wife and I and the children go every evening and Sunday to the forest.

Because of the shortage of materials, the rebuilding of our country is very slow. If we had the materials there would be plenty of work for us all.

I have no real hopes for the future for myself. My only other hope is for my children. I would like to earn enough to send them through school. They deserve a better life than I have had.

Plane on Flight From Goose Bay To Chicopee, Mass.

Bodies Terribly Mangled, Debris Spread Over Area

Holyoke, Mass., July 10 (AP) —An army B-17 bomber flying from Goose Bay, Labrador, to Westover Field, Chicopee, Mass., ploughed into 1,200-foot mountain top in a light rain and haze Tuesday night, killing 25 persons —the entire crew and all pasengers.

The Westover Field public relations office said the dead included four army crew members and 21 passengers, comprising United States army and navy and coast guard personnel.

The public relations officer said some of the bodies were mangled beyond recognition. The leg of one was found in a tree and pieces of other bodies were scattered over a wide area.

Parachutes found near the scene indicated some attempted to jump.

The bomber exploded upon impact and a second blast apparently blew the big craft apart. The explosions set fire to trees in the area, but rain averted a forest fire.

The plane was overdue at Westover when it crashed. Army officials said the four-engined ship was a "stripped" B-17, the armament having been removed. Regular passenger seats, however, had not been installed.

Westover reported that the plane radioed 10 minutes before it hit that everything was "fine" and that it would be in within 10 minutes. Nothing was heard from it again until the army received word of the crash.

Aided by crews from Westover, police and firemen labored through the night to extricate bodies. A mile-long walk up the steep rise from the nearest point accessible by vehicles increased the task of reaching the scene.

The army placed a cordon around the approaches when more than 700 persons lined the section. Many of them had seen the craft explode from an amusement park near the base of the mountain.

Robert Hodash, Northampton correspondent for the Springfield, Mass., Republican and an Associate Press representative in that area, was one of the first to reach the scene.

He described it as "a gruesome spectacle" with some of the bodies "horribly mangled," trees knocked down across a wide strip, others singed by fire, and wreckage scattered over hundreds of yards.

Carrying Servicemen Home.

The converted Flying Fortress was carrying the homeward-bound U. S. servicemen from Gander, Newfoundland.

Army rescue forces who struggled up a steep, cobblestoned road, reported that by daybreak they had recovered about 20 bodies and had taken them to Holyoke funeral homes.

Five bodies were believed still in the smoking, charred wreckage that was spread in small pieces over the quarter-mile square area.

Typical "GI" mementos of home-coming dotted the charred ground.

There were personal snapshots, obviously of parents, wives and sweethearts. A gold wrist watch, that somehow had withstood the shattering crash, glittered among the ashes, its hands stopped at 10:30, the approximate time of the crash.

There also were navy pea jackets, burned shoes, wallets, blankets, and several letters. Army officials said the letters were destined for the United States from the overseas service men.

Westover airfield officials said identification of the dead would be impossible for an indefinite period.

A Westover field army investigating board was due at the scene later in the day.

Film Lovelies Unable to See Howard Hughes

Los Angeles, July 10 —(AP)— Two film lovelies, Lana Turner and Jane Russell, have tried without avail to reach the bedside of the stricken Howard Hughes, whose newest plane cracked up with him at the controls Sunday.

Miss Turner, who has been seen at Catalina Island, Palm Springs and other vacation spots recently with the handsome film producer and airplane builder, was weeping as she left Good Samaritan Hospital. She arrived unnanounced at the hospital, asked permission to see Mr. Hughes, and was told that his condition was so critical no visitors were permitted.

Miss Turner stayed on at the hospital for several hours and was upset and crying when she left for home. Some Hollywood reports have it that she has told friends she and Mr. Hughes might marry, and that she had gone so far as to plan her trousseau.

The voluptuous Jane Russell, star of Mr. Hughes' newly-released movie production, "The Outlaw," arrived at the hospital yesterday, and she, too, was refused permission to see Hughes.

Dr. Verne Mason, who said he had been Hughes' physician since he was a youngster, said his patient had not suffered a skull fracture, as was feared. He said the left lung, crushed and punctured as the plane crashed, now was functioning but that Mr. Hughes' condition was still critical.

Man is Held In Brutal Killing Near Bournemouth

London, July 10 (CP)—Scotland Yard indicated today a multiple murderer might have killed Doreen Marshall, 21-year-old beauty whose nude and mutilated body was found near the exclusive south coast resort of Bournemouth, and that the man already is under arrest.

"We are not looking for anyone," said Superintendent F. W. Carter, in charge of the Marshall case—perhaps the most brutal killing in Britain's worst crime wave of the century. At least six women and two small girls were among the murder victims.

Police declined to name the person suspected of killing Miss Marshall, whose throat and body were slashed under a cliff called "Lover's Leap" during a midnight thunderstorm.

The killer draped her black evening gown and yellow swagger coat over the body and apparently pawned a watch she was wearing. The watch has been recovered from a Bournemouth pawnshop.

Miss Marshall disappeared a week ago after a champaign supper with a man in a Bournemouth hotel.

In other cases, Elizabeth O'Brien was arrested in the slaying of William Edward Lucas, 49, whose body was found in his cottage scullery in the lonely Welsh village of Rhos. She was his housekeeper.

Joseph Henry Marshall, 30, a laborer, was charged with murdering Kathleen Lindsay, 18, at the Marne Hotel in London. Prosecutor William Lewis said the man signed a statement saying he smothered her with a pillow while he was "silly with drink."

Arthur Robert Boyce, 45, a painter, was charged in London Police Court with murdering Elizabeth MacLindon, 41, former housekeeper for King George of Greece. She was found shot to death last June 14 in the fashionable Chester Square home which she was preparing for Princess Catherine, sister of the Greek monarch.

Build $16,000 One-Roomed Brick School in Sidney

An early start on the construction of a new $16,000 one-roomed brick school for S.S. No. 2 Sidney township to be built in the "Irishtown" district to the north and west of the city, is expected to be made, it has been learned.

Tenders for the construction of the new building have been called, the lowest tender being Gungras and Gauthier of Trenton, whom, it is expected, will be awarded the contract.

The new school will be of standard design of solid brick construction and will have full basement with hot air furnace. It is intended that construction will commence around August 1st and barring lengthy holdups for lack of materials will be completed before 1947. W. A. Watson, Kresge Building, Belleville, is the architect for the new school.

Cramped conditions at the Avondale school where children for mthe "Irishtown" district would normally go, led to plans being made for the construction of the new school. For the past several years a number of public school pupils from this district have been transported by bus to attend classes in public school near Trenton.

Girls' Sponsored Garden Plots Are Inspected

On Friday and Saturday, July 4th and 5th, the Bonarlaw, Cooper - Remington, Plainfield, Stirling and West Huntingdon gardens of the Girls' Home Garden Clubs were scored by Miss Elsie M. Irvine, Home Economist, and Mr. Harry W. Burns, assistant agricultural representative for Hastings County.

The gardens showed that considerable care in planting and cultivation had been placed upon them. They were scored on a basis of general appearance, correct size of plot and arrangement of crops, freedom from weeds, diseases and insects, cultivation and care of plants, and approximate yield.

The next meeting of the Home Garden Clubs will be held in August at which the girls will receive instruction on improved methods of cooking and canning the produce of their gardens.

Izvestia Makes Charges Against Britain, U.S.

Moscow, July 10 (AP) — Izvestia declared today that the United States and Britain had employed United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration food to exert "political pressure" on countries aided, and charged that the purpose of Herbert Hoover's recent world-circling famine tour was to spread "anti-Soviet propaganda."

The government newspaper, in an article written by S. Gorodetsky, also quoted "foreign progressive circles" as saying that reactionaries in Britain and the United States were using U.N.R.R.A. as a means of "political blackmail." This so-called "blackmail" was compared with what was described as "atomic politics" in the United States.

The article said that, although U.N.R.R.A. relief was distributed through a special inter-governmental organization, "however, as a matter of fact, this organization is nothing other than an apparatus of the United States and England."

Hoover's tour was described as "a clear illustration of the political aims pursued by reactionary circles in America and England in the realm of foodstuffs and supplies." The newspaper said the tour was "for open anti-democratic, anti-communist, anti-Soviet propaganda."

Izvestia charged specifically that the western powers used foodstuffs to "support reactionary groups ruling in separate countries or as a means of pressure on democratic governments in the interest of reactionary circles."

The article said that the recent bill passed by the United States House of Representatives, providing that American correspondents must be free to report the use of U.N.R.R.A. funds, was a sample of "political pressure."

City Employees Niagara Falls N.Y. Take Holiday

Niagara Falls, N.Y., July 10—(AP)—Approximately 600 city employees took what a union official called a "vacation" from their jobs today in support of demands for wage increases and the city council was summoned to emergency session to consider the controversy.

Edward F. Wood, President of Local 138, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (A.F.L.), said "there is no picketing, no demonstration. We're just simply taking a little vacation." He added that certain essential services would be continued.

Mayor Stephen A. Lamb and City Manager Orville C. Butler informed Wood that the city council would meet with union officials before noon in an effort to reach a settlement.

Meanwhile, the union agreed to continue the service at water department stations, the sewage disposal plant and the incinerator and pick up garage at hospitals, convalescent homes, hotels and retaurants.

Wood said the workers voted last night to take the action after refusal of the city council to act on requests for wage increases of five to 25 cents an hour and a revision of the pay scale of employes in certain work grades.

Mixed Jitney With Brighton Club Enjoyed

An excellent social evening of bowling was enjoyed at the local greens on Tuesday evening when Brighton Bowling Club journeyed to this city to enjoy a mixed jitney. The president, George Pauley, was the prime mover of this visit and the invitation extended had the hearty approval of the Brighton and Belleville clubs. The rinks were so arranged that Belleville and Brighton bowlers were intermingled and everyone enjoyed the good natured banter that was flung around.

Smith Langdon of Brighton was the high two-game winner and had for his rink Mrs. Edith Robson and Alfred Thompson. Charlie Hyde guided the second two game high winners with a rink of Oscar Morrow and Mrs. Clela Gilbert. Cyril McBride with Mrs. McBride and George Stewart were third with two games high. Tommy Caton, Mrs. Morley Simpson of Brighton and Claude Tice were winners of the one-game high and Lorne Lockwood of Brighton, Mrs. Wonnacott and Gordon Edwards were second one-game high. L. E. McLean, Mrs. Ben Maybee of Brighton and Tom McMullen had the no-win low record.

The women of the Belleville Bowling Club served a delightful buffet lunch of crackers and cheese, cake and coffee to the visitors in the clubhouse at the conclusion of the games. Mrs. Morrow of Brighton thanked the Belleville club for their hospitality and hoped the visit could be repeated some time in the future. Raymond Zufelt, George Watkin and Cyril McBride conducted the draws for the two games and did a most excellent job.

Aliens Enter U. S. Illegally at Rate Of 2,000 a Day

Miami, Fla., July 10 — (AP)—Since the end of the Second Great War, millions of aliens have turned their eyes and hearts toward the United States and now are pouring into this country — illegally — at the rate of 2,000 a day.

That is the estimate of United States Attorney General Tom Clark, who said that of the 60,000 who entered this country unlawfully in a month, 30,000 were arrested by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, perhaps better known as the Border Patrol.

The Border Patrol, a part of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, has increased its staff in the southeast from 50 agents in 1938 to 110.

These men, highly-trained and well-equipped, patrol 60,000 miles a month in the area between the eastern boundary of Louisiana and the northern boundary of S. Carolina. This area ranks next to the Mexican border in the number of aliens arrested.

The aliens picked up in the last six months, either unlawfully in this country or attempting to enter, included criminals, stowaways, smuggled aliens and the riff-raff of many countries.

Deserting seamen of every nationality form the largest group of illegal entrants in the southeastern states. Large numbers of aliens of many nationalities come into the country illegally from Mexico. Agricultural workers, brought into the country by the War Manpower Commission, who desert their jobs form another group of illegal entrants.

HERO OF CRASH

Master Sergeant William Lloyd Durkin, of the U. S. Marine Corps above, has proved himself a hero. He braved fire and exploding gasoline to dash into the wreckage to drag critically injured multi-millionaire Howard Hughes from his smashed airplane near the Beverly Hills, Calif., Country Club golf course. The plane, an experimental powerful twin-engined craft smashed into houses bordering the golf course and exploded, setting fire to the buildings.

WILL MEET ILSLEY

ada and removing all restrictions on the import and export of gold.

In an interview, Mr. Bradette said:

"I have had talks with a great number of mining heads in my constituency and I consider they are all taking a reasonable view of the situation. None of them plan to close down, even though for the time being they may have to operate at a loss. They will go on hoping for the best."

Oppose Idea of Subsidy.

He added big mines were opposed to anything in the nature of a subsidy. They wanted extension of the depletion allowance, given because every ounce of gold mines produce reduces their reserves and eventually wears out the mine. In recognizing this, the government allows a deduction of 33 1-2 per cent from their net profits on which federal taxes have to be paid. It also allows deductions of 20 per cent to shareholders on dividends from mines in figuring their income taxes. New mines are allowed three years exemption from taxation after they start producing.

The proposal will be to increase this depletion allowance. While Mr. Bradette fixed no definite figure, other sources have been suggesting it be increased from 33 1-3 to 50 per cent.

Before the Canadian dollar was brought to par with the United States dollar, the mines were paid $38.50 an ounce for gold by the mint. Now it is $35.

The practice of the larger mines, Mr. Bradette said, was to mix low grade ore with the higher grades balancing the grades to maintain a reasonable profit. With the price down they will have to reduce the amount of low grade ore used and the mines will be exhausted that much sooner.

"The mines have co-operated thoroughly with Mr. Ilsley," Mr. Bradette said. "Early in the war when American dollars were scarce he asked them to produce all the gold they could and they stepped up production. Then after the Hyde Park agreement and American dollars became more plentiful they were forced to reduce production because of lack of priority for manpower and machinery."

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Labor Gov't And House Of Lords

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

This is a parlous time for the scarlet-and-ermine robed members of England's House of Lords and it therefore is important to note that these predominantly Conservative legislators have just sideswiped a fresh and dangerous crisis in their feud with the New Socialist government which is in the midst of a far-reaching program of nationalization.

Socialist leaders have been threatening to curb or eliminate altogether the few remaining prerogatives left to the Lords if the latter interfere with Socialist plans. Recently along came a red-hot issue which British newspapers have been saying would provide a test whether private institutions can survive under the Leftist regime.

This issue involved the action of the House of Commons in excluding non-profit insurance groups from the government's new social insurance system. These include the "Friendly Societies," having 8,000,000 members. The Lords yesterday had before them the question of whether they would challenge Commons by reversing this measure — and if they did make such a move it was certain there would be fireworks.

It was a dangerous moment for the House of Lords — and they decided that discretion was the better part of valor. They voted to let the Commons measure stand.

The Commons can override anything the Lords do, but the Lords can delay legislation up to two years by obstructive tactics, and the Labor government — with only four years of life left before a new general election — can't afford to waste that much time.

Should this case come to a showdown in which the government actually would decide to strip the Lords of remaining powers, the majority presumably would be achieved this way: the socialist majority in the Commons would pass a government measure emasculating the Upper House. The Prime Minister then would serve notice on the Lords that if they don't accept the inevitable he would request the King to appoint enough new Socialist peers to ensure passage of the measure in the House of Lords.

That sounds far-fetched, but there is precedent for it. In 1911 Herbert Asquith, Liberal Prime Minister, jammed through the Legislature the Parliament Act which rendered the House of Lords all but impotent, merely by threatening to have enough new peers appointed to pass the measure.

Actually the House of Lords serves a useful purpose despite its lack of legislative authority. Its membership includes some of the greatest minds in Britain, and it serves as a vastly important balance wheel for the Commons. If the Lower House makes a mistake, the Lords are likely to catch it.

Only a fraction of the membership of the Upper House bothers to participate in affairs of state. There are some 809 Lords entitled to sit in the House, but most of them rarely, if ever, show up.

Teachers' Strike Enters 5th Month, Not Settled

By MICHAEL ROONEY
Canadian Press Correspondent

Dublin, July 10 (CP)— School rooms are vacant and children on prolonged holiday in Dublin as the strike of 1,200 city teachers enters its fifth month without signs of settlement.

The teachers have listed five issues as the cause of the strike. They are seeking:

1. A common scale for all teachers—primary, secondary and vocational.
2. No sex discrimination.
3. Abolition of the present "rating" system on which salaries are based.
4. Revision of pensions.
5. Application of Northern Ireland scales for marriage and rent allowances.

The strike to date has cost the Irish National Teachers' Organization £100,000 ($400,000) but a "war chest" is being maintained by 10,000 Eire teachers outside Dublin who contribute one-tenth of their salaries weekly.

There has been no approach to a settlement since the early days of the strike when Archbishop M'Quaid offered to arbitrate. Education Minister Derrig said then, however, that the only way in which the strike could end would be for the teachers to return to work.

Speaking at Sligo, J. Sweeney, of the I.N.T.O. central executive committee, said: "We don't want charity, we only want justice, and we will not compromise without it. We are told the country cannot afford an extra £500,000 for teachers' salaries, but over £100,000,000 can be found for planes, luxury hotels, rural electrification and carriage-ways and so on—not forgetting the national stud."

J. Beattie, Secretary, Northern Teachers' Executive, told another meeting at Lifford, County Donegal, that from a financial standpoint the teachers could carry on for two years.

SYMBOLIZING PHILIPPINES LIBERTY

Her eyes raised to the Liberty Bell and her tiny hands clutching the flag of the Philippines, three-year-old Darlene Purugganan, of Philippines ancestors, symbolizes the birth of a new Philippines republic. After the islands' 400 years of bloody struggle for freedom, the Philippines realized liberty.

AS CHILE'S PRESIDENT IS BURIED

The mortal remains of President Juan Antonio Rios leave the government palace at Santiago, Chile, on a gun carriage covered by the nation flag and flanked by a guard of honor from the army and navy. Walking immediately behind the caisson are Vice-President Alfredo Duhalde and the three sons of the late President. Crowds stood silently in the streets and all the mourners including the press photographers bared their heads as the cortege went by. It was a sad day in Chile's history.

THOUGHT SUICIDE WAS PART OF GAME

Shown with their aunt, Mrs. Blanche Grunelle, who took charge of them after the tragedy, are Michael, 7, and Joan Grunelle, 10, who saw their father kill their mother and himself, and thought that their parents were playing a new kind of a game. The children were playing in a Los Angeles, Calif., trailer court when they saw their dad, C. Angelo Grunelle, walk to the clothesline, where the mother was hanging out the wash. He shot her in the head with a revolver and then turned the gun on himself, putting a bullet through his head.

UNRRA SUSPENDS

May be in Tough Spot

Some persons here suggested that Mr. La Guardia's action might have the incidental result of putting Chiang Kai Shek in a tough spot politically, particularly if the suspension last long enough for his critics to make political capital out of it.

This would be specially true of Mr. La Guardia carried out his threat, also made public yesterday, to cut off even the food supplies unless they are distributed to UNRRA's satisfaction.

Cheng Pao Nan, representative here for the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, expressed surprise at what he termed Mr. La Guardia's "unilateral action." He denied that there has been an accumulation of UNRRA goods in Shanghai or other Chinese ports.

The Chinese Embassy urged that no "hasty conclusion" be drawn from the UNRRA staff reports from Shanghai.

To Testify in Camera

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, chairman Kenneth McKellar (Dem.-Tenn.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee told a reporter the Chinese dispute would come up for consideration today during Mr. La Guardia's scheduled testimony behind closed doors on a $465,000,000 final UNRRA fund.

The difficulties over the UNRRA program in China dramatically spotlighted the situation with which Gen. Marshall and Ambassador Stuart are confronted in their unification efforts.

Behind the scenes the difficulties are even greater, for officials here report moves by both Nationalist and Communist Extremists to try to force American withdrawal so that they can fight out their dispute themselves.

Mr. Stuart, born in China of American parents and a missionary there since 1905, was named by the president to take the post formerly held by Maj.-Gen Patrick J. Hurley. He is regarded as acceptable not only to top Chinese government leaders but also to the Communists.

COURT HAS OWN IDEA

Lindsay, July 10 — (CP)—The decision for the court was between two maxims: "Finders keepers, losers weepers," or "ignorance is no excuse for not knowing the law." The decision was in favor of the latter so William Hall was found guilty of taking $450 belonging to Douglas Mintz, a war vet friend, operating a taxi at nearby Kinmount. Hall claimed he found the money. The court had its own idea and remanded Hall until Friday with an opportunity of making restitution.

Owen Sound, July 10 — (CP) Robert Cripps of Hanover is in hospital with head injuries suffered when an automobile he was driving Monday night plunged over a 30-foot embankment just west of here. His companion, Armond A. McIntyre of Hanover, suffered a back injury.

Schacht Entertains Crowd

Boston, July 10—(AP)—Baseball comedian Al Schacht, who amused yesterday's 34,906 all-star crowd with his pregame antics, turned over the $300 fee paid him by Boston Red Sox to a fund being raised to aid families of the victims of the Spokane club's bus accident, it was learned today.

TEN SPEAKERS

disclosed that the current copper-colored five cent pieces are being withdrawn from circulation by the chartered banks because they are almost indistinguishable from one-cent pieces.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, tabled a file of correspondence to support his claim that cards sent members of parliament on behalf of the Income Tax Payers' Association had in some cases been forgeries. The cards were in support of a campaign for the taxation of co-operatives.

Criticism of the government for making co-operative taxable was one of the highlights of Mr. LaCombe's speech on the budget debate. He said the government should not let profiteering capitalists dictate its policies.

Mr. Blackmore dealt with the question of Canada's sugar situation and he urged the government to give the sugar beet industry "plain commonsense treatment." Canada, he said, should strive to become self-sufficient in the matter of sugar so that she would be free from the dictates of other nations. To date the government had shown favoritism to the large sugar cane industries.

Criticizes Action.

Mr. Adamson said the government's action in raising the Canadian dollar to parity with that of the United States would have a serious effect on the Canadian mining industry, forcing low-grade gold mines to close and others to curtail operations. The move, aimed at preventing inflation, possibly would bring about deflation.

Mr. Marquis called for better treatment for agriculture. He urged that the government increase grants for the agriculture high school and the Dominion Experimental Station of Ste. Anne De La Pocatiere, Que., both in his constituency. He called for higher wages to agriculture scientists and experimental farm workers and urged that obsolete war equipment suitable for farm work be placed at the disposal of farmers.

Wants Aid For Education

Mr. Knight, a former school teacher, asked for Federal moral and financial aid to education. This aid could be given without interference with provincial jurisdiction over education. He suggested that financial assistance could be given through the provision of scholarships for most brilliant students across the country.

Mr. MacNicol suggested that steps be taken to promote production of iron ore in Canada as a means of fostering prosperity. At present, Canada did not produce anything like the quantity of iron ore that she needed. Much of it had to be imported from outside the Dominion to the Dominion's disadvantage. With increased production Canada would have great opportunity for expansion in the next half century.

Mr. Farquhar expressed the hope the government would pay no heed to the requests of big business for the lifting of restrictions on ceiling and floor prices. He advocated permanent floor prices to keep farm prices firm and prevent them from fluctuating from one extreme to the other as they did after the First Great War.

Mr. Jackman dealt mainly with the tax changes in the budget and charged the government with putting the "lid on production" by not offering the incentive necessary for peak production. Income tax reductions were "niggardly."

The thought of wearing a heavy, cumbersome hearing aid—of being "wired for sound", as she put it—repelled her. Then, in near despair, she attended a demonstration of a different hearing aid. It was the Acousticon "Super-Power" Unipac*, world's smallest, lightest, most powerful hearing aid.

An Achievement

This age is one of speed, efficiency and progress. The proof was recently given through the courtesy of the publisher of the great London newspaper and of the director of Public Relations of Trans-Canada Air Lines and the C. N. Railways, W. S. Thompson, C.B.E., who had forwarded a copy of The London Times to the editor of the Ontario Intelligencer. This issue, published on Dominion Day, was carried to Canada to arrive in Montreal the same day and was delivered a few hours later in Belleville.

This achievement speaks for the narrowing of the bounds of the world, and heralds a day of intense interrelationship of nations in the trade of the world.

Six flights weekly in each direction between Britain and Montreal are made by the air service, while there is accommodation for ten passengers and loads of mail and express.

The London Times possesses a charm for Canadians and of course for those who have come out from Britain to live in Canada. The printing is a perfect example of the typographic art, and the paper used is very fine. To read it must bring a thrill to the heart of a former resident of the British Isles. Its news covers a vast range of interest, so much that is characteristic of British life. The Court Circular holds its place in the news which is thoroughly up to the minute for it tells the story of the exploding of the Bikini bomb. One of the characteristics of the British press is the perfection of the illustrations.

It gives an impression in its news columns of the life which the people of Britain live in these post-war days. There is plenty of space to sport and it has its leaders for which The 'Thunderer' has so long been famous.

Archeology and the Museum

Retirement of Dr. C. T. Currelly as director of the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto after thirty-five years of service serves to draw attention to the service such a museum gives and how the archeologist helps to interpret history. The Royal Ontario Museum is an institution of great value to this country and Dr. Currelly has had a big role to play in its development. He himself in his early years was associated with exploration in Egypt, Sinai and Crete and he was the discoverer of the tomb of Aahmes and the Cow Goddess and Shrine at Deir el Bahri.

A museum serves the growing interest of the people of this age in the history of civilization and the progress of man from age to age. In the past few years the world has seen history made on a grand scale in the Second World War in the passing and fall of Germany through the attitude she assumed towards the world, the course of history and the rights of other states.

Archeology which delves into the ages after civilizations have largely passed, some of them for many thousand years, must always have for a great number of people an enduring importance because it indicates the rise and fall of civilizations and cultures.

The archeologist has a field of intense activity in which to work. Not so many years ago there were the rich discoveries in ancient Egypt of the tomb of King Tutankhamen, which thrilled the world. Of more recent interest is the finding of part of a Roman city buried under southern Britain, the revelation coming as the result of the blitz during the recent war. Finds and indications of conditions in the period of time when the Romans built their city are of historical interest. The world knows the story of the revelation of the life in the first century of the Christian era, as shown in the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneaum through the great disaster of the eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A.D. These are but samples of the inspiration archeology develops. It reveals something of intense value for mankind is always interested in what his predecessors have done, and how they have lived their lives.

So a museum can bring to the public of today insight into the lives and customs of the people of say, ancient Rome or Athens. Such a museum as the Royal Ontario Museum is in possession of treasures from many ages of history. There are the utensils, the dress and the weapons of people of the imperial city of Rome whose part in the development of civilization and cultures of modern Europe has been of no mean order. To see the relics of two thousand years ago gives an insight into the influences which helped to develop the modern world.

A museum, while revealing the past, is able in the natural sciences like biology and zoology and in the history of the rocks to give a great background of scientific fact to modern thinking.

The museum becomes one of the great agents of education and the archeologist is able to serve in a very real way his own and succeeding generations.

Pastime of Placidity

Advertisements in America's newspapers and displays in shops convey the cheering assurance that croquet, that recreational modest violet, half-hidden amid a tangle of more spectacular sports, is far from waning. Although its tourneys are accorded scant recognition by the press, a surprisingly large number of persons continue to spend afternoons or evenings among the stakes and wickets, says the Christian Science Monitor.

How Thoreau would have enjoyed croquet! But he was one for woods rather than lawns. Its leisurely tempo, as contestants carefully study angles and weigh consequences, is strongly reminiscent of chess. And, like chess, it requires a concentration so complete that the cares of the day are crowded out, and in their place came relaxation and peace of mind. Although many more exciting games (like hockey and polo) stem from it, croquet, largely unchanged from France to England during the reign of Charles I, pursues its placid way.

In a harried world where atomic energy and jet propulsion soon may figure largely in daily living, croquet may come to be even more appreciated — and useful.

Required Learning

Notwithstanding that it came from an admittedly interested group — the Inter-Collegiate Institute on the United Nations —it is a good suggestion that a course on how the United Nations works, be made compulsory in all American schools and colleges. Institute should know.

It scarcely needs saying that the more widely the United Nations is understood, the better for all of us. General public understanding and comprehension of this intensely important world experiment is a type of support, a source of strength, which cannot be foregone. Something more than a vague awareness of U. N.'s existence and its difficulties is demanded of us all.

We hope the schools and colleges of the nation carry out this idea.

—Christian Science Monitor.

Newspaper Facts

According to a recent release the new Government Central Office of Information in Britain will spend £900,000 ($4,005,000) on advertising in the newspapers this year.

Most people are conscious of too much monotony in their lives these days. Monotony is a shackle that every man can strike off himself. Do something different, even although it is only a small thing. Try lunching at a different place, going home by a different route. Talk to different people. Stretch your mind. Escape sometimes from "the sweet security of streets." Next week-end, plan an expedition to an entirely new spot. And carry it out, says an editorial writer in the London Daily Express.

All men are by nature equal, made all of the same earth by the same Creator, and however we deceive ourselves, as dear to God is the poor peasant as the mighty prince.—Plato.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1946, Edgar A. Guest)

"'FRAIDY CAT!"

"Grandpa's just a little old
For the water when it's cold.
So when 'Swimming time!' they cry,
'Not today!' is my reply.
As a swimmer, grandpa's not Quite the healthiest of the lot.

"Even as a little lad,
'Twas the 'shivers' that he had.
Swimming turned his lips to blue,
And his teeth would chatter, too.
Never could he quite contrive
Very gracefully to dive.

"As a 'belly smacker' he Struck the water noisily,
Very much to his regret,
He's not fond of being wet.
Just three minutes in the lake,
And his body starts to shake.

"On the shore he must recline,
Though you shout: 'The water's fine!'
It's the bitter truth, and grim,
Grandpa doesn't like to swim.
Hey, you children, none of that!
Don't you call him ''fraidy cat!' "

London Letter

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 10—(CP)—Three harp raps on ancient oak panelling, an overpowering hush, the entry of the Lord Mayor of London in scarlet robes and . . . another session of the most famous criminal court in the world—The Old Bailey—was under way.

A few formal words were uttered. The Lord Mayor and the recorder left the court and Mr. Justice McClure, chief commissioner to the city of London, carrying the traditional posy of flowers, took his seat in the big oak chair directly underneath the perpendicular sword of justice. The first prisoner, a spare dark young man in a shoddy blue suit, charged with robbery, entered the capacious dock accompanied by three uniformed policemen.

An elderly woman barrister in wig and gown rose to open for the prosecution. . . .

The Old Bailey has been known as the central criminal court since 1834 but the new building, which replaced the old sessions house adjoining Newgate Prison was opened in 1907.

Famous criminals have entered these doors and departed by another — men like Dr. Crippe, Palmer, Thompson, Bywaters, Hatry and Kylsant. Recently Dr. Alan Nunn May, the scientist, was sent to prison for 10 years on a charge of communicating atomic secrets to a foreign agent in Canada.

The Old Bailey was three times bombed during the war and once a high-explosive bomb shattered the Newgate-Street end of the building. Throughout the fiery blitz the gilded figure of justice stood unscathed with outstretched arms on the dome but Number Two Court was ruined while three other courts were littered with fragments of glass, plaster and wood.

During the war years women barristers came to play a larger part in the Old Bailey trials and they are more in evidence now than before 1939. Judges treat them as they would male lawyers, with deference and respect.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Kitchener, July 10 (CP) — Joseph Rumig of nearby Petersburgh yesterday pleaded not guilty to a charge of indecent assault and was remanded until Friday. He previously pleaded guilty to a charge of assault.

Rumig was arrested June 18 after a Woodstock, Ont., girl working here was found on the highway near New Hamburg, Ont., suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries. Police said they believed the girl jumped from Rumig's automobile.

REVERSE DECISION

Ottawa, July 10 —(CP)— The Veterans Committee of the Commons reversed yesterday an earlier decision to require foreign veterans to become naturalized citizens before getting Canadian discharge benefits.

On the motion of Lt.-Col. R. H. Winers (L-Queens - Lunenburg), it defeated by a vote of 12-9 a revised version of that earlier decision which would have at least required those veterans to show intention to become Canadian

Dollar Parity

New York, July 10 —(CP)— The Wall Street Journal said Tuesday in a dispatch from Washington that official Washington has begun to be haunted by the spectre of a new "currency war," with foreign countries seeking to mark the United States dollar down to bargain prices.

The financial daily said that the action of Canada in revaluing the Dominion dollar to par with the American dollar led to uneasiness that other countries might take action to increase the value of their own currency in terms of American dollars and thus reduce the cost of American goods they buy.

The newspapers said Great Britain also would like to depreciate the dollar in terms of her own currency, that Sweden has begun to talk of raising the value of its krona and that Latin American delegates at the recent Savannah, Ga., monetary conference complained of the high cost of United States goods.

Claims Relief Supplies Being Wasted in China

By SPENCER MOOSA

Shanghai, July 10 —(AP) — More than 250 out of 400 United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration employees in Shanghai messaged Director-General LaGuardia yesterday that valuable relief supplies in China were being wasted, were deteriorating and were being stolen "while the starving continue to starve and the needy remain without."

The message said it was their considered judgment that the Chinese government was improperly handling UNRRA supplies and services.

It asserted the Chinese government's failure to provide adequate funds for the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation Administration crippled the operations of projects in many regions and was a prime reason why "supplies pile up in warehouses, undelivered to the needy and hungry."

Kaltenbrunner's Lawyer Makes Him Squirm in Dock

Nuernberg, July 10 —(AP)— Ernst Kaltenbrunner, chief of the German secret police, squirmed in the prisoner's dock yesterday when his lawyer declared him guilty of crimes and atrocities committed while serving under Heinrich Himmler.

The lawyer, Kurt Kaufman, told the International Military Tribunal:

"This man suffers a great deal under the uneasiness of his conscience. Kaltenbrunner is guilty; but he is less guilty than he appears."

Kaltenbrunner, a tall hawknosed policeman, succeeded Himmler's Gestapo assistant, Reinhard Heydrich, after that "Hangman of Czechoslovakia" was assassinated. The Germans avenged Heydrich with the destruction of the Czech village of Lidice and the murder of its men over 16.

Kauffman pleaded that Himmler always had the last word and issued the decisive orders; that concentration camp conditions never were reported in detail to Kaltenbrunner; that in the Nazi setup, Kaltenbrunner was "but a small wheel."

Sears Sleeps Well On First Night In Police Cells

Windsor, July 10—(CP)—Ronald Sears, 18, who Monday was arraigned on two charges of murder and three of attempted murder arising from Windsor's sensational "slasher" investigation, slept well at the Essex county jail, jail officials said Tuesday.

He was remanded Monday until July 15, when Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey will ask that a date be set for the preliminary hearing.

Sears is in a regular cell block at the jail and was visited briefly Monday by Major James H. Clark former speaker of the Ontario legislature, who was engaged as defence counsel by Sears' father.

Major Clark said he had seen Sears for 10 minutes and talked briefly with him.

"The guards told me they didn't think I would have much luck in talking to him and they were more or less right," he said. Mr. Awrey and Major Clark said they expected Sears will undergo a psychiatric examination.

GROWTH OF THE CLINIC EVIL

It is a matter of simple good faith and honesty that a physician practices under his or her own name. I can find no specific statement of this principle in the Code of Medical Ethics, but probably the farmers of the Code did not believe it necessary to state such a principle.

In recent years however, the "clinic" evil to change the practice of medicine into something very different from personal service. The group plan under which several physicians in different fields of practice associate closely together, as by sharing a common waiting-room and the general expenses incident to practice and perhaps in a limited partnership, but each retaining his or her individuality, is unobjectionable, so far as I know. But the moment such a group decides to avail itself of the lure of the name "clinic" it is quacking it, I contend I am in a position to know that there are a good many credulous souls who betake themselves of a "clinic" for advice or treatment just because the "clinic" is so well advertised and not because they know or wish to consult any particular physician who may be connected with or employed by the "clinic."

Further it is my belief that Sec. 2, of Chap. I of the Principles (as the present regime call it) of Medical Ethics of the American Medical Association, in reference to clinics is vague and weak because the authors hesitated to question the ethical propriety of the big shots who have gained fame and fortune by playing the "clinic" racket for all it is worth. This section does say that "the ethical principles actuating and governing a group or clinic are exactly the same as those applicable to the individual"—but with a wink to the big shots in the "clinic" racket, to assure them that this is intended merely to keep the lowly rank and file in line.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Teeter-Totter

Please describe the teeter-totter method of resuscitation of the drowned, is it the best method for use in an emergency? (C. W. E.)

Answer—No. The Schafer manual prone-pressure method is the best in an emergency. The correct technique (as given by Schafer himself) is described and illustrated in the First Aid to the Injured, the authorized textbook of the St. John Ambulance Association, and in "How to Breathe" the No. 21 booklet in the Little Lessons in the Ways of Health series—No. 21 mailed on written request if you inclose twenty-five cents (U.S.) and stamped self addressed envelope. Beware of the so-called Schafer method taught by Red Cross instructors—it may rob the victim of the chance to survive if a hand or anything else is placed under the victim's head.

Ambitious Young Couple

We are a couple 61 years old, working and we want to keep right at it. Have you any advice that might help us keep our pep? (Mrs. S. A.)

Answer—The pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks" may—well you how—it is available on written request if you inclose stamped self addressed envelope. It is particularly important for you living in the Great Lakes region, to be sure to get your Iodin Ration.

Sleep

Is five hours sleep sufficient to maintain good health? (E. M.)

Answer—Depends on age, season, physical activity. Infants need 20 hours, young children 15 hours, children in their early 'teens ten hours, youths nine hours, mature adults eight hours, elderly folk six or seven hours. People who play, exercise or work hard require more sleep than those who get little exercise, never play and do only white collar work. Children require more sleep in winter than in summer, physical activity being the same.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did the thistle become the emblem of Scotland?

Tradition says the thistle became the national emblem of Scotland as the result of an incident during the wars between the Scots and the Danes.

Just when the incident occurred is not known for certain. Some writers place it in the eighth century, while others place it in about 1010 during the reign of Malcolm II. The Danes, it is believed, were finally driven out of Scotland in 1040, about the time Duncan I was murdered by his kinsman Macbeth, who seized the throne and reigned about 16 years.

According to the most usual version of the legend, the Danes planned a surprise night attack on Sterling or some other castle, but the sleeping Scots within the castle were suddenly aroused and warned of the attack when a member of the Danish advance guard, creeping along noiselessly because barefooted, stepped on a thistle in the moat and uttered a cry of pain.

A modification of this legend ascribes the thistle incident to the 13th century when King Haakon IV of Norway invaded Scotland and was defeated in 1263 by King Alexander III of Scotland at the battle of Largs on the River Clyde.

Whether or not legend is true, the thistle as the heraldic emblem and seal of Scotland is very ancient. The thistle figures prominently in the Scottish order known as The Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle, which among British orders of knighthood ranks second only to the Order of the Garter and the membership of which is restricted to royalty, princes of the blood and 16 knights.

"Nemo me impune lacessit," meaning "Nobody attacks me with impunity," is the motto of Scotland as well as of the Order of the Thistle. Tradition says the Order was founded in 1187 by King Achaius of Scotland in commemoration of a bright cross he and his ally, King Hungus of the Picts, saw in the sky the night before a victory over the English under Athelstan. If this tradition is true the Order is one of the oldest orders of knighthood in the world. It appears to have been refounded in 1540 by James V of Scotland, restored in 1687 by James II of England and Scotland only to collapse in the Revolution the following year and established once more by Queen Anne in 1703. Throughout its long history it has remained a distinctively Scottish order of knighthood.

Although there is a prickly plant known as the Scotch thistle, the species of plant represented on the seal of Scotland and the insignia of the Order — a collar of three golden thistles — has never been positively identified.

61 Canadian Soldiers A. W. L. In Continent

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Brussels, July 10 —(CP) — Only 61 Canadian soldiers on the records as being absent without leave, are still "on the loose" in Northwest Europe and by September most of these will probably have given themselves up or been apprehended by the special Canadian provost section which remained behind to do the job.

In addition, 10 or 15 other Canadian deserters are thought to be living as civilians in Europe, their records stolen, lost or mislaid.

None are believed to be of a desperate criminal type. Indeed, only a few Canadian deserters during the war years took seriously to crime — notably two gangs which gave headaches to military and civil police from the Riviera to the Hook of Holland.

The gangs have now been rounded up and are awaiting trial but their names will not be disclosed until charge sheets are completed.

One gang, with about 10 members, was rigidly disciplined by its leader. Under his guidance it roamed through France, Belgium and Holland for months, stealing cars and carrying out armed holdups and numerous thefts.

The Canadian total of A.W.L.'s is much lower proportionately than either the United States or British forces in Europe.

Officers estimate that when the war ended there were about 700 Canadians on the Western Front and in Italy who were then A.W.L. for periods of from a few weeks to a year or more.

Of the men at large Capt. E. V. (Nick) Carter of Vancouver, commander of the special provost section, said:

"Most of them probably deserted — and some even jumped their drafts for home after they got through the repat camps in England — because they had girls on the Continent they wanted to marry, or wives they wanted to stay with until the wives were repatriated too. Most of them are likely in Brussels and Amsterdam.

"Then we have some fellows A.W.L. who married without permission of their commanding officers but they will be coming back soon for they can't get their wives back to Canada under the repatriation scheme until they get permission."

One of the favorite hangouts for deserters was the French Riviera.

"In the last month or two we've been getting a lot of good tips about deserters and they've been coming to us on their own in increasing numbers," said Capt. Carter. "I guess they decided Canada wasn't such a bad place after all to live in."

Gottwald Regarded As Czech Counterpart To Premier Stalin

By JAMES DEVLIN

Prague, July 9 —(AP)— Klement Gottwald, the new columnist premier of Czechoslovakia, is regarded by his supporters as the Czech counterpart of Stalin.

Like the Russian leader, the 49-year-old Gottwald exhibits a calm, unruffled disposition and his manner of speech is deliberate and direct.

He was chairman of the Communist party and vice premier, with a record as an implacable foe of Fascism, when President Eduard Benes called upon him to form a new government after the Communist triumph in Czechoslovakia's first post-war election.

Gottwald draws on his own experiences as a farmboy, and wood-working apprentice in championing the workers. At 16 he joined labor organizations and the Social Democratic youth movement.

The Red revolution of October 1917 in Russia impressed him as pointing the way to possible unity of the working classes. The next year, while employed in a Moravian wood-working factory, he became a leader of the Left Wing of the Social Democratic party.

An early opponent of Fascism, he wrote a series of articles on its dangers prior to the Hitler putsch of 1933. He supported the cause of the Spanish Loyalists. A Czech battery defending Madrid was named in his honor.

When Hitler centred attention on Czechoslovakia with demands upon the Sudetenland, Gottwald agitated for defence of the republic. After Munich, he and other Communist leaders fled to Moscow.

During the Second Great War, he broadcast from Moscow and helped organize underground activity against the Nazis. He was one of the authors of the Kosice program, which laid the basis for Czechoslovakia's present nationalization experiments.

BARBER SUFFERS RAZOR SLASH

Toronto, July 10—(CP)—Raymond W. Cook, 57, a barber, is in hospital with a razor slash across his neck and police said they believed he received the wound in an altercation with another barber. Investigators said they believed Cook and a companion fought with razors early yesterday after drinking together in the barber shop in West-Central Toronto where both are employed.

Thinks Rifle Girl Was Using To Shoot at Bear Backfired And Struck Her in the Face

Sudbury, July 10 (CP)—Her lip torn so badly that she could talk only with difficulty, 19-year-old Alice Brabant of the Sudbury district settlement of Azilda yesterday took a pencil and scrawled out the story of a fight with a bear that menacs her employer's two children. The girl was flown to hospital here.

Charles Clement of Sudbury said he had been staking old claims near Biscotasing, 100 miles north of here and had left Miss Brabant in charge of his two children in an isolated cabin. In his absence a black bear apparently broke into the cabin.

Clement told Dr. T. P. Dixon of Sudbury that when he returned to the cabin Saturday morning he found Miss Bradant, unconsciaus, lying in a pool of blood on the floor. Sleeping in their cribs nearby were the two children.

"Miss Brabant's lip was badly torn and two of her teeth were knocked out. The rifle she was using to shoot at the bear must have backfired and hit her in the face.

"She asid she fired two shots at the bear. She saw it fall and that's all she remembered. When Mr. Clement arrived there was no sign of the bear."

Residents said the black bears of the north country seldom attacked humans although they frequently broke into trapper's cabins and damaged food caches.

Four employees held up, LEFT to RIGHT, Ben Noble, Ray Lesperanen, Fred Figg, all of Windsor, Ont., and Fred Nestor, Amherstburg, Ont., were unable to give alarm. AS BRITISH LEAVE THE CAIRO CITADEL

These German prisoners of war are engaged in a detail for which they were well-prepared by the book-burning practices of Adolf Hitler. They are burning books and papers for the British before the Tommies move from the historic citadel in Cairo, Egypt, which they had occupied continuously for 64 years. After negotiations the British handed the fort over to troops under the green and white standard of King Farouk and moved back to the Suez Canal military barracks. This picture was made at a furnace built into one of the thick citadel walls.

WHERE MILLIONAIRE FILM PRODUCER CRASHED

Here is where multi-millionaire air enthusiast, film producer Howard Hughes smashed with his powerful experimental XF11, twin-engined photographic plane which he was test flying. Hughes apparently tried to land on the nearby Beverly Hills, Calif., Country Club golf course when trouble developed in the air speedster's landing gear. The plane smashed into two houses and a nearby garage. Gasoline tanks of the plane exploded, engulfing the wreckage in flames. One of the houses — which burned to the ground — can be seen here with wreckage of the plane in the foreground. Hughes, who was taken from the blazing wreckage and rushed to a hospital, is said to be in "critical condition."

IVANHOE

Vacation School, Ivanhoe, Closed

Ivanhoe — A very successful Vacation School was closed at noon Friday at Ivanhoe instead of in the evening in order to give the children wishing to do so an opportunity to attend the circus in Belleville. A decision was reached early in the week to the end that all scholars would attend the circus on Friday afternoon and attend the school until noon of that day.

Including the leaders and helpers there were twenty-three families represented at the school; a total of forty-three persons, thirty-three of whom were scholars. Fourteen scholars had a perfect record of attendance, two missed just one session of the nine held. The following sixteen boys and girls received certificates: At Beulah — Betsy Tinney, Annie Crookes, Eleanor Reid, Yvonne Brant, Bonnie Brant, Mary Bertrand, Helen Bertrand, Glenn Reid, Carol Reid, Barbara Fowler; at White Lake — Clive Kingston, Eric Ash, Alexander Ash, Campbell Ash, Ray McMillan and Bernard McMillan. Others who attended less than eight sessions were: Mary Blight, Billy Blight, Lloyd Blight, Darwin Benson, Jean Benson, Ellen Mitz, Larry Mitz, Carlyle Rollins, Wayne Shaw, June Holgate, Jean Reid, Jackie Wood, Joyce Reid, Jimmie Reid, Delbert Reid and Barbara Benson.

The total sessional attendance was 229. The highest on one day, twenty-nine and the lowest twenty. The average attendance was almost twenty-six.

The following ten persons acted in the capacity of leaders and helpers: Mrs. Milton Shaw, song and hymn leader; Mrs. John Wallace, memory work and Bible study; Recreation, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lovibond and Miss Muriel Prest; Secretary, Mrs. Harry Lovibond; Treasurer, Mr. Harry Lovibond; Sewing, senior girls, Mrs. J. F. Everson; Raffia work with senior girls, Mrs. George Wood; the junior girls were led by Mrs. Ernest Woods; Woodcraft for all boys, Mr. Harry Lovibond, Mrs. William French and Rev. J. F. Everson.

Every family represented was presented with a bunnie cut by the minister out of plywood. Certificates were granted on the basis of attendance, punctuality and satisfactory work. All articles made were to be left at the school until the last session. An offering, which totalled almost five dollars, was received each morning. Half of this was given to the "Save the Children in Europe Fund" and half to "The Vacation School Extension Fund." On Sunday evening a quartette of the Vacation School girls sang, "At Work Beside My Father's Bench," "This is My Father's World," and "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus." During the regulation church service, Mr. Harry Lovibond on behalf of the Vacation School staff, made a presentation to Rev. J. F. and Mrs. Everson as a token of their appreciation of their tireless and painstaking effort in behalf of the children of the school. Much credit is due the parents of the areas concerned for their loyal co-operation which made the school the success that it was.

The people of Ivanhoe pastoral charge enjoyed a real treat on Sunday when they had the privilege of hearing at each of the appointments, viz. Salem, Bethesda and Beulah, the Rev. George Nickle a native of Madoc township who began his pastorate on this field exactly fifty years ago last Sunday.

Mr. Nickle, who is of Irish stock, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Nickle, was born on a farm eighty-four years ago. He began work as a local preacher of the former Methodist Church in 1888. Two years later he was specially ordained and stationed at Apsley, having been received as a probationer for the ministry. He was received into full connection in 1895. His services on Sunday were very much enjoyed as he outlined "The Spiritual Experiences of Peter." He met friends at each congregation who had been his parishioners fifty years ago. Mr. Nickle said, "The church still goes marching on because of the loyalty of such people." The services were in charge of the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Everson.

GOOD MANNERS

How The Bride Should Sign Her Name

You're a "Mrs.." now? Of course you're proud of this shining new name of yours, yours "to have and to hold".

And you should be so proud of it that you know how to use it correctly, how to sign it correctly. The rules about signature-forms are few, simple, logical, and easy to learn. But every rule is most important, for the way you sign your new name is a tattletale about whether or not you know what's what. So please make up your mind, here and now, that you will not be one of the legion of married women who go through life never knowing how to sign their letters correctly.....and, alas, never taking theh trouble to find out.

Let's talk together about those new names of yours. Yes, I mean "names" for there are two: (1) your formal name and (2) your informal name. And there are times and places for using the formal and the informal names.

Let's say you were Mary Rose Smith before your marriage. You married John Bliss. Your formal name is now Mrs. John Bliss. This name is not your signature.....it is the name you present for another person's information. You use "Mrs. John Bliss" on your visiting cards or informals, or on letter-paper engraved or printed with your name and address. You use it when you give your name for delivery of purchases or packages. When you register in a hotel. When you give your name for church or club membership. When you send a formal third-person invitation, or write a formal acknowledge of an invitation for example, replying to an invitation to a formal wedding reception. And this is the information-name you write, in parentheses, under your signature to a business letter.

Your informal name is Mary Smith Bliss. (Or Mary Bliss, if you drop your maiden surname. Or Mary S. Bliss, if you want to use an initial for your maiden surname. And it is this informal name that is your signature.

You will write three kinds of letters. Each has its proper form of signature.

The first kind is the letters you write to your close friends. Naturally, you sign these letters with your first name only, as you always have done.

The second kind are the ones you write to people whom you don't know very well, but do know your formal name. For example, a note to a newly-acquired friend, or to a member of a club whom you know only slightly. This "in-between" kind of letter you should sign like this:

Sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Bliss
(or Mary Bliss)
(or Mary S. Bliss

Now comes the third kind of letter: business letters, professional letters, and social letters to people who do not know your formal name. This kind of letter demands both forms of your name. First, you sign your informal name, your signature; and then, in parentheses, below and to the left of your signature, you write your formal name. This addition of your formal name in parentheses is either (1) so that the reader will identify you, or (2) so that the reader will be informed how to address a reply to you. For this kind of a letter, this is the correct signature:

Very truly yours, (for business letters)

Very sincerely yours, (for others), Mary Smith Bliss.
(Mrs. John Bliss)

Warning: Never sign a letter, any kind of letter, "Mrs. John Bliss", never "Mrs. Mary Bliss", never "Mrs" anything.

Yes, you'll be proud if you know how to sign your new name correctly. And your John will be proud of you if he knows that you know how to sign correctly the name he so proudly gave you "to have and to hold"....and to "honor" by signing it as it should be signed.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Perfume Is The Final Touch

Sweet odors have always have had a potent influence. Scents and perfumes are distinctly individualized, and certain one are adapted to one's personality. The shy, retiring girl cannot or should not use the same perfume as the exotic beauty. Violet or mimosa for the first lassie; fashionable, striking, blends for the dashing girl, who can get away with them. Foretted odors are more intriguing, more haunting than most of us realize. Some of them act powerfully upon the imagination, imparting a sense of romance and elegance. That they are the moral boosters, we all know. A new frock, a new perfume, and a woman can look her dearest enemy in the eye.

Two toilet aids that help a woman to posses a mysterious charm are eye shadows and perfumes. Both have subtle means of attractivness. Both must be selected with care and intelligence. Shadows applied lavishly destroy the purpose for which they were created. Too strong scent gives the impression of lack of taste, if not vulgarity. Whenever you go shopping for either one, prepare to take your time. Pause and consider. The shadows should be tried out; hence the best place to get them is at a cosmetic bar

In using perfume, a woman should try to attain a suave and subtle result. Considering costs at the present time, she should practice conservation; the best means of doing that is to use an atomizer. After the bath and a thorough rubdown, so the flesh is not moist, spray the neck and shoulders. The warmth of the skin will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate. Only the delicate floretted aroma will remain.

Spray the lining of your hat, the lining of your purse. It's a quaint idea to spray the hems of your evening frocks. When you dance there will be pleasant little waves of fragrance. Never tip up the bottle on an article of your wardrobe. You may leave a stain and you will be wasteful.

If you sample too many perfumes, you will be unable to make a reasonable choice

When selecting a perfume, keep in mind that your olfactory organs will soon be sated, be in no condition to decide which scent has the greatest appeal. If you sniff bottle after bottle, your, poor nose will be unable to make reasonable dedicision. Unless a perfume excites you, seems extraordinary delicious, don't buy it. Too many women make selections according to popular taste. Unless an item seems sweet to you, it is not suitable for your personality.

Be careful when applying scents. Your nose will easily become accustomed to it; if you use it lavishly, it may seem overpowering to other people.

Fashion Flashes

Stepping out to the smartest places are lovely evening frocks of cotton. One of the season's successes is a formal dance dress with a high neck, slim bodice, full skirt. It is of pink cotton embroidered all over with self-cording in an intricate scroll design.

It's nice to have several cotton frocks to see one through the summer. Nice for town is a dress of luggage tan cotton, buttoned to below the waist, and with an embroidered scalloped line from the embroidered curved keyhole neckline to the hem. Short sleeves, too, are beautifully embroidered, as are the pocket flaps on the skirt.

Top off a simple or an elaborate dinner dress or suit with a sleek, feather-trimmed little hat. Black satin is the favorite fabric for these little hats, made on head-fitting lines, and trimmed with fine feather fancies.

A look at the beaches discloses the increasing popularity of black for swim and play outfits. Black jersey, with touches of white, makes a bra-and-shorts swim suit, and there is a loose, hip-length coat of black spun linen with similar white trim to complete the black study.

Lovely lingerie is coming into the stores in better variety and quality now. Delightful for a trousseau is a set of gown and bed-jacket, both of white crepe, with rows of blue smocking at the neckline the short sleeves and waist of gown.

One detail that always marks the print frocks of fine design is the cut-out applique. A beautiful red and white poppy print on black crepe, has cut-outs of the flowers forming neck detail and also edging the short sleeves. Loose poppies are attached to a shirt pocket flap.

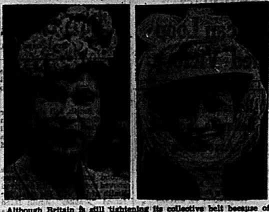
WASH-DAY TIP

If a new clothes line is boiled for a few minutes in soapy water before being used, it will become softer and more durable.

HATS FIT FOR QUEEN OR COMMONER



Although Britain is still tightening its collective belt because of food shortages, it has sped away from austerity in fashions. Hats particularly, have turned to pre-war gaiety. Here are two of the newest. At left Princess Elizabeth, who will one day, barring unforeseen and unlikely incidents, be Queen of England, in a neat little floral chapeau which she wore on a visit to a British film studio. At right, a professional model in a glamorous straw creation decorated with small flowers and framed in voluminous white veiling, a reminder of motoring days of old.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Das a Happy Wife For 15 Years—Now She's Disillusioned

When a man and woman have weathered the inevitable storms of married life for 15 years, and been happy doing it together, you'd think there'd be every reason to believe they'd have a still happier time of it for the next 15, wouldn't you.

But life is often contrary, and refuses to work out along any such logical lines. And what a person seems to have every reason to believe, isn't necessarily what he or she gets, by any means.

A sad example of this comes in a letter from a wife upon whom disillusion struck, after 15 years of happiness, like a bolt of lightning out of a clear blue sky.

It came she writes, one evening five years ago, when she told her husband that she would have to have a serious operation.

"I was shocked," she says, "to hear my husband say that he no longer loved me, and that he did not want to be burdened with with either a sick or a healthy wife."

From that time he ignored her: never asked how she was meeting the problem of regaining her health, which fortunately improved without the operation, and began to leave her alone several nights a week on the pretext of having to work, although he sometimes came home "obviously intoxicated."

"He told me, she goes on to say, "to find outside interests. But I have very little time for such things during the week, since I go to business and must keep up with household duties at the same time. Then on weekends, which would be the only time I would have for outside interests, my husband expects to be made comfortable and to have special things to eat — he does his gadding about on week-days —and that takes all my spare time."

Because she is still very much in love with her husband, and wants to give the situation every possible chance to work itself out, she has "waited five years to see what the outcome would be, but things get worse instead of better. He still comes and goes as he pleased. If I go out on Sundays, he does not approve, and it only makes things unpleasant.

He has not taken me out in the evening to have fun in over two years, and because of all this, we have lost all our mutual friends. If I made plans for the evening he would say he was sorry but he either had home work to do or had a meeting to attend. Recently I found out quite by accident that these evenings are not always spent at work. I have never wanted to believe there was another woman, and when I ask him he gets very angry. But I have told him I was now beginning to believe it.

"Maybe I'm wrong, but to me it looks as though I am being bullied by a very selfish man and that I had better get wise to myself.

"A Discouraged Wife"

And I think you have arrived at exactly the right conclusion. Five years is plenty long enough to be bullied by a selfish man, and it's high time you put an end to it.

You've probably argued about the situation with your husband hundreds of times, so why not make up your mind to act instead of argue? Just tell him once and for all — and as quietly and pleasantly as you possibly can manage — that since he wants you to develop outside interests, and since he himself is obviously doing so, you've decided his advice is good and you're going to take it. But that it will mean you won't always be home weekends to make him comfortable and cook for him, and you'll be out some evenings, too.

Then put the plan into effect, and go out with your friends and have some good times. Stay overnight, or over the weekend with one or another of them occasionally. And don't discuss the matter any more. Be as cheerful and pleasant as you can when home, but don't pamper your husband. Try to ignore his grousing.

Such a program as this may precipitate a crisis in the situation, and force you to a dedecision whether you will continue to put up with your husband as he is, or leave him and make a better life for yourself. But what if it does? Whatever you decide eventually to do can't be any harder than what you're putting up with now.

BLUE GRASS BEAUTY

When the cream of womanhood parades for the title of "Miss America for 1946" in the pageant of beauty and talent at Atlantic City, N.J., this year, Patricia Alden Fenton, ABOVE, will carry the banner of "Miss Louisville." The 19-year-old high school graduate wants to win the title; not for honors, movie contracts or the other usual reasons, but to get the $5,000 that goes with it as a college scholarship in order to continue her art studies.

Asks for Increase in Effort

Prague, July 10 — (AP) — Communist premier Klement Gottwald, in his first address to parliament, said today that recent deportations to Germany are Hungarians from Czechoslovakia presented a loss of 500,000 workers and that the people must double their efforts to make up for the loss. Production, he said, must be increased by 40 per cent.

The new premier said that nationalization of industries, which government officials say embraces 70 per cent of all industrial production, now is complete.

7—Should a fair hit ball hit a base runner or umpire before it is touched by a fielder, it shall be considered a dead ball.

In all preceding cases, the ball that has been declared dead and not in play will be considered "in play" only when it has been returned to the pitcher who is standing in his position and the umpire declares "Play".

If a fair hit ball is touched by any person not in the game, all runners will advance two bases. If, however, a fair hit ball in fielded and in the act of trying for a put out a fielder throws wild into the stands, and it rebounds on to the playing field the ball shall be considered dead. On this play, bases will be awarded to the base runners at the discretion of the umpire.

REESE, REISER OUT OF LINEUP FOR THE DODGERS

Brooklyn Heads West for Long Tour With Record None Too Good

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The journeys of the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers into the western sections of the National League haven't met with much success so far this season. The outlook for Leo Durocher's Brooks is even darker today as they head for a third invasion of the west which opens at Chicago tomorrow.

Boasting a five-game lead over St. Louis Cardinals, the Brooks have won only nine of 20 games in their previous trips to Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis. They will have a tougher task this time if their brilliant shortstop, Pee Wee Reese, remains out of action long with a chipped neck vertebra suffered at Boston Sunday.

On their home grounds where they return July 23, the Dodgers have won 29 out of 38 contests while on the road they have managed to take only 19 out of 36.

Following their three-game series with the Cubs, who they've beaten six times in 11 contests, the Brooks move to St. Louis, winners of five of eight meetings with Dodgers. The Cards, winners of their last five games, open with New York Giants under the arcs tomorrow.

In the American League, Boston Red Sox, who lead the New York Yankees by 7½ games, will begin an 11-day stay at Fenway Park, where they have captured 31 contests, tied one and lost six. They start with Detroit Tigers who have not beaten the Sox in six tussles in Boston.

Cleveland Indians will be the first western club to pass thru New York, tangling with the challenging Yankees in a night game, while Chicago White Sox battle the Senators after dark in Washington and St. Louis Browns scuffle with the Athletics in Philadelphia.

Williams and Newhouser Standouts in American Loop All-Stars' Lopsided Victory

National Leaguers Crushed Under Powerful Hitting and Swell Hurling of the Winners

By BOB CAVAGNARO

Boston, July 10 (AP)— The National League could be thankful today that it won't have to face both Ted Williams and Hal Newhouser in the 1946 baseball world series.

That was the only consolation the senior circuiters got out of the annual inter-league all-star game yesterday when American League's superior pitching and overwhelmingly more powerful hitting crushed the National Leaguers under a 12-0 score.

Both sides used 21 players in the so-called dream game—a nightmare, for the Nationals—yet it was the performances of Detroit's great pitcher, Newhouser, and the Boston Red Sox' mighty belter, Williams, which stood out in the most lop-sided victory and gave the Americans a 9-4 lead in games in the 13 years of the series.

Collects Four Hits

Williams easily was the more outstanding of the two. In five trips to the plate against the best but hopeless efforts of four National pitchers, tall Ted collected four hits—two homers and a brace of singles—and a walk. He scored four runs and batted in five.

That spectacular demonstration produced the following all-star individual records for the Boston slugger: Most runs scored in one game; most runs batted in in one game; 9 runs batted in in total games, and most home runs, three, in total games.

Williams also tied two records. First, his two circuit drives equalled the mark set by Arky Vaughan in 1941, and his four hits tied the record Ducky Medwick set up in 1937.

Cleveland's Bob Feller had the Nationals tamed by the time Newhouser relieved him after the third inning, following Manager Steve O'Neill's pre-game plan for the star twirlers.

Strikes Out Three

In fact, Bob helped himself to a record before Newhouser mystified the Nationals with his slants. Feller struck out three to increase his all-star strikeout total to 12, three more than the old high in all-star play. Feller yielded singles to Walker Cooper and Johnny Hopp.

Newhouser was even more effective than the illustrious Clevelander. He fanned four and gave up one hit—a single by Peanuts Lowrey of Chicago Cubs, for the Nationals third and last hit in the game.

When Newhouser retired, Jack Kramer of St. Louis Browns took over the hill and didn't take anything for granted. He pitched hitless ball the last three innings, although he gave the only walk of the game insofar as American pitching was concerned.

By comparison, four National pitchers, Claude Passeau, of Chicago; Kirby Higbe of Brooklyn; and Rip Sewell of Pittsburgh, Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati, were shellacked for 14 hits, and yielded four walks.

Grabs Batting Honors

Williams, of course, grabbed the batting honors in his native Fenway Park, which was filled with 34,908 customers who paid a net of $89,071. Vern Stephens of St. Louis Browns was runner up with a single and a double for two runs batted in.

Charlie Keller, the New York Yankees' home run specialist, touched off the batting and scoring fireworks with a smash into the rightfield bullpen, driving in Williams from first base, in the first inning.

With the Americans leading 8 to 0, Sewell took over the National pitching labors in the eighth. Famed for his "blooper" ball, Sewell lobbed one of his specialties at Williams with two on base and Williams powered it into the rightfield bullpen for his second homer.

A portion of yesterday's receipts was donated to the families of the nine Spokane, Wash., baseball players killed in a bus accident recently.

MAXIE PEOPLES' SACOS DEFEAT GOODMAN JRS.

Last Year's Ontario Champions Coming Along Fine for Another March to Title

Maxie People's SACOS softball squad, behind the good hurling of long Jim Hunter defeated the much-improved Goodman Juniors 10-4 in a scheduled Belleville Softball Association fixture at the Fair Grounds Monday night.

Hunter held the kids to six hits for four runs, one of them a round-tripper by Jerry Moher, who had a field day with his war club getting a double and a single besides his four-bagger. Hunter walked three and struck out seven.

Al. Adams on the mound for the Juniors steadied down after a shaky start in the first innings when SACOS scored five of their ten runs but after that scattered the SACO hits over the eight inning route. He struckout five and walked three.

The winners after their five runs in the first scored another in the fourth; two in the fifth and singles in the 7th and 8th. Goodmans got to Hunter and his mates in the second innings for a brace of markers; got another in the fifth and scored their last tally in the eighth.

Jack Wardhaugh, Goodmans infielder banged out a four base hit as did Reid for SACOS.

Goodmans are improving as they go along and by the time the playoffs roll around should be in good shape for that important march down the championship trail.

The teams:

SACOS—Woods, cf; Barriage, lf; Henn, 2b; LeBonne, 1b; Reid, rf; Sword, ss; Wardhaugh, 3b; Temple, c; Hunter, p.

Goodman Juniors—Wardhaugh, 3b; Haggis, rf; Adams, D., 1b; Al Adams, p; Rollins, 2b; Moher ss; Green, c; Culkin, cf; Donovan, lf.

Score by innings:

SACOS ...	500	120	11x—	10	9	1
Goodmans	020	010	010—	4	6	2

Umpires—Cornell, plate, Scott, bases.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

(By The Canadian Press)

Having a marked aptitude for blowing large leads in the last inning, London's Saphires stifled their generous leanings last night at Labatt Park before Simcoe Stars could score more than two runs and went on to win 8-3 in an inter city league fixture.

Saphires came up with good steady fielding which, with some power slugging by Yvonne Traver, was enough to overcome a rather unsteady Simcoe team. Although outhit by eight to nine, the London sluggers, aided by 3 disastrous boots, bunched their power in three innings, the third, fourth and fifth to give them the victory margin.

The Kimberly-Clark team of Niagara Falls, N.Y., strengthened their hold on first place in the Niagara Senior Baseball League in Welland, Ont., last night by defeating Welland Atlan Steels 6-2.

A defensive crack-up in the Welland infield in the fourth gave the visitors three runs. They scored again with a home run in the sixth and twice again in the seventh.

In Kingston the Vics set the Nylon team down with five scattered blows Monday in registering a 3-1 victory. Vics' pitcher Wayne Conner fanned the first four men to face him and registered 11 "whiffs" through the close contest without issuing a single free pass.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

This is one not only for the Belleville book of baseball but perhaps one for the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association.

Ernie Smith, tall righthander of the Stewart Warner entry in the Belleville Senior Baseball League, last night pitched a seven-innings no-hit game and lost to Batawa by a 2-0 score.

Errors by his mates in the second innings when Batawa shoved over two tallies deprived Smith of the win. His rival, the famed "Smokey" Smith faced him in the most thrilling pitching duel not excepting the Thornbury-Batawa series last year, ever seen here, allowed one hit, and won his game because SWACO infielders bobbled in the clutches.

Tall Ernie had the Batawa hitters eating out of hand all the way. He struck out 6 and walked but one. His mates played airtight baseball behind him with the exception of the fateful second when Fitzpatrick's mad throw to the plate behind an error by Rowbotham sent the winning runs across the plate.

From then on it was all Ernie. Despite the fact the "Smokey" fanned 15 and turned in a chore that was expected of him, the honors go to the Stewart Warner hurler for an exceptional job.

• • •

The Belleville Softball Association at a special meeting of the executive called last night took into consideration the alleged ineligibility of certain players brought to its attention and in view of the evidence and circumstances, passed on the Ontario Amateur Softball Association the right to decide the matter.

• • •

Protests on the part of the Army and Navy Flashes, which did not live up to O. A. S. A. regulations were thrown out by the executive, but certain phases pertaining to the protest were included in a reference to the parent body. The decision of the O.A.S.A., it was ruled by the executive, will be handed down to the teams and players involved, and the Association here will abide by that decision.

• • •

Other highlights of the meeting were that pitchers of all teams will wear black trousers. It was stated that some teams have their pitchers dressed in black pants but with colored stripes. This was ruled out by the executive, and henceforth pitchers of all squads will wear all-black pants, or in other words no stripes on the side of the aforementioned trews will be permitted.

• • •

Another ruling of the executive last night was that no team can play in the future, or in other words another game, until certificates signed by the secretary of the league have been granted, or that the team has the sanction of the umpire-in-chief, Harold Bawden.

• • •

Since the withdrawal of the Sixardee team from the Association, the executive decided to award all games postponed by that team as wins for the scheduled opposition with the exception of the first two games played. These games resulted in a win for the Goodman Juniors and a loss by Mountain View.

• • •

Suggestions that the schedule be extended to August were turned down by the body and it was resolved that the present schedule be played out and arrangements made for postponed games. As matters stand now the schedule will finish on July 24. Playoffs will start immediately.

• • •

Playoff arrangements completed by the executive reveal that the first and third teams and the second and fourth squads will play off for the Belleville Softball Association championship. These games will start on July 26, but prior to that another meeting will be held to make final arrangements.

• • •

The schedule was revised with the acquiescence of representatives of teams present and it appears in another column of this page. It is hoped the schedule will be finished by July 24 and playoffs will commence two days later.

• • •

Four squads of the Belleville Association will go on down the OASA championship trail. Point Anne has affiliated for the Intermediate "B" group; Mountain View in "C", the Belleville loop champions in "A" and of course, the Juniors. So this district will be well represented in one place or another.

• • •

If that all star "classic" at Fenway Park, Boston, can be judged a criterion, then the National League pennant winners will have as much chance to cop this year's world series as the last nag this desk placed his dinero on has against Assault with a half-mile handicap.

• • •

The experts were right. The American League pitching and batting stood out like a platinum blonde at a southern camp meeting while the Nats waved bats in a futile effort at the joint servings of M'sies Feller, Newhouser and Kramer. It was the American League's day, and they enjoyed it to the full.

• • •

The powerful war bludgeons of Ted Williams, who poled two home runs, one off the 'balloon' ball of Rip Sewell, and Charley Keller, sent the bleachers into paroxysms of delight with their booming attacks on the National League hurling.

• • •

"Rip" Sewell furnished the large crowd with a bit of pitching entertainment when his rare balloon ball was cocked for three hits, one of them a towering homer that dropped into the mitt of a team-mate in the American League's bull-pen, from the club of Ted Williams. That was the first time in its history that the Sewell ballooner was hit out of a park for a circuit ride.

• • •

Tonight at the Alemite Field "Moose" Matthews and his R.C.A.F. Flyers will be out to avenge that SWACO defeat of Monday night, when they take on the Napanee squad in a postponed tilt. At that the Flyers will have to be in top form, for this Napanee squad is getting stronger every day and although they may not be pennant winners they are liable to upset the aspirations of some of the potential champions hereabouts. They lost a close one in Napanee the other day to Batawa and had the pastime been the usual seven inning affair would have emerged winners over "Smoky" Smith and his gang.

SACO softball squad meets the up-and-coming Mountain View team at the Fair Grounds tonight, and this may go down on the books as a classic. The boys from around the Mountain furnished the biggest upset of the softball season here on Monday when they defeated the Sedore Flashes 9-3. They have added considerable strength to the squad and are getting better every game. It should be worth seeing.

Here is Warren Bockwinkle, the St. Louis ace wrestler who has trailed champions, yet being one in his own right, so long that they call him a "policeman." The Bock, who is a headliner in his own right, is after the scalp and crown of one Whippah Billy Watson and states he will take on Lee "The Scowl" Henning here Friday night just as a workout. "That guy is supposed to be tough," smiled the St. Looey Bock, "but I'll show him Friday what a real he-man can do to little scowling toughies like him."

"Yeah," came back "The Scowl," flinging back his hair until it crackled and snapped like bull whips, "who is this bird Bockwinkle. Never heard of him. But if he is twice as tough as he thinks he is, he'll be twice as easy as Morgan, Hanson and the rest of those guys I have defeated here all rolled into one. He'll go home singing "My Mammy Done Tole Me" and he'll wish he'd listened to what he was told after I get through with him."

So it looks like a hot time in the old town Friday at the Hume Arena when these bosom pals clash. On the same card is Jim "Goon" Henry who will tangle with "Toar" Morgan in the semi-go and Pat Flanagan and Leo Numa. Looks like a smart card all round. Tickets are on sale at Cook's Tobacco Store and the first bout gets under way at 9 p.m.

Ernie Smith, Swaco Hurler, Pitches No-hit Game But Beaten by Batawa 2 to 0

Fitzpatrick's Error on Throw to Plate Allows Two Runners to Score

If there is such a thing as a Belleville Baseball Hall of Fame, tall Ernie Smith, righthander for the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Belleville Senior Baseball entry has the choice of seats.

For the big fella Tuesday night at Batawa, bested morally, the famous "Smoky" Smith, Shoeman southpaw star, by pitching a no-hit game—but lost the decision by a 2-0 count.

Smith, in what is perhaps an Ontario record, held the opposition hitless for the duration of the seven-inning pastime, struck out 6 and issued no walks, but lost the game through his mates' bobbles.

His namesake "Smoky" on the mound for the Shoemen, had a more imposing strike-out record, whiffing 15 and issuing one pass. But his mates were powerless before the slants of "brother" Ernie and thereby lies the tale.

It was strictly a pitchers' duel from start to finish, with the Smith brothers wielding the hurling rapiers.

Brother "Ernie" retired the Batawa side one-two-three in the first innings. Brother "Smoky" struckout three in his half plus an error to make things equal.

Came the second—and history. Spencer, Bata third-baseman went out, Rowbotham to Gerow. Ernie clipped Aquino, Bata catcher with a fast one. That gave him a life at first. He stole second. Solmes copped first on Rowbotham's error. "Smokey" Smith went to the plate and Fitzpatrick bobbled his bid for a hit, threw wildly to the plate and two runs came in. And that was that.

But La "Smoky" was invincible. He let down the city batters in order and only in the second when Walt Gerow who got the lone SWACO hit off him, did the visitors threaten. Ronsky got on by virtue of Normand's error and Walt sent him along with a single. But "Smoky" threw up some steam and the side was retired.

Vancouver, July 10 —(CP)— The hotshot of the young British Columbia racing season is Baby Broom, a six-year-old bay stallion bred in Alberta and owned by H. A. Shepherd of Medicine Hat, Alta.

The horse, by Brooms out of Leap Year, made its Vancouver debut by beating the $25,000 Mafosta in a $1,500 feature race over six furlongs. There were reports the stable had remarked that Baby Broom was entered for the feature in error.

But it was no mistake when trainer Harold (Spud) Murphy sent Baby Broom into another $1,500 feature and the stallion won again. This time the Alberta horse cracked the 20-year-old Lansdowne record for a mile and 70 yards. The new record is one minute, 42 1-4 seconds, 2-4 seconds better than the mark established by Ike Harvey.

There was some thought before the season opened that with the bigger purses offered by the just-established B. C. Turf and Country Club, the American horses would take most of the prize money at Lansdowne. It hasn't worked out that way though.

B. C. Owners have found they can compete with the higher-priced horses from California and in doing so have uncovered a recipe for breeding winners. The recipe is—by Gallator out of Joyism. In two days three products of this combination proved winners.

The family's victories began when Ladner Sim, a 200-year-old filly, beat The Scarlet Hope. The next day a full sister, Ladner Maid, trounced a field of three-year-olds and returned $17 for $2 winning tickets. Two races later the full brother of these, Ladner Lad, a five-year-old, got under the wire first and paid $31.10 for $2.

The Kentucky-bred Gallator is by Gallant Fox, holder of the record for most money won in a single year until Assault came along to unseat him this season.

To make a deceptive lead or discard is known as falsecarding. A falsecard is simply a deliberate breach of a recognized custom in play with intent to mislead an opponent.

Usually, a falsecard lead does much more harm than good to your side. Because it misleads your partner, too. More often than not, it fools your partner more than it does the declarer.

When you lead a small card, partner may use the rule of 11. He gets a count on the cards from your correct lead. Your falsecard is likely to ruin his defence and disposition.

Of course, you may have a partner who knows nothing and pays even less attention. In that case, a falsecard may be good. It may upset declarer without making a dent in your partner.

Let me show you a falsecard stunt that is sometimes pulled. I am not advising you to use it. But it is good to know what may be going on in the mind of a wily partner or opponent.

You remember, of course, the rule of lead from four cards or more without a sequence. Lead fourth best; don't lead away from an ace or a king against a suit contract.

With spades as trumps after the north dummy bid diamonds, the diamonds in the four hands are as shown here:

NORTH
♦A J 8 5
WEST ♦K 9 4 2
EAST ♦7 3
SOUTH
♦Q 10 6

Suppose west leads diamond nine. You can see it is a falsecard. But declarer can not. He may get the impression that it is a singleton or from a doubleton. At least, there is a chance that he may.

This could fool him into thinking east has the king. It could influence his immediate plan of play. He may even get scared and run with dummy ace at once. It could happen.

There is a time and place if you know when and where.

ALL-STAR TEAM MAY PLAY SERIES WITH NEGROES

Bob Feller of Cleveland Indians Getting Team Together

New York, July 10 — (AP) — Plans for a post season exhibition tour with an all-star squad from both major leagues facing a picked team of the country's finest Negro ball players were announced today by Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians' hurling ace.

Feller said he tentatively had lined up a cast of the majors' top performers. The mound corps probably will include Hal Newhouser of Detroit Tigers, Spurgein (Spud) Chandler of New York Yankees and Jack Kramer of St. Louis Browns.

Infielders slated for action are Ken Keltner of Cleveland; first baseman Mickey Vernon of Washington; shortstop Phil Rizzuto of the Yankees; shortstop Eddie Lake of the Tigers and Jerry Priddy, Washington second baseman.

The proposed outfield would have Charlie Keller of the Yankees, Jeff Heath of the Browns, Sam Chapman of Philadelphia Athletics and Stan Spence of Washington. Walker Cooper of the New York Giants and Rollie Hemsley, Feller's old battery mate now with Philadelphia Phillies, are the probable catchers.

Feller said most of the players have agreed to the tour but some still need permission of their club officials.

Three of the Negro aces who will oppose the All-Star aggregation are Leroy (Satchell) Paige, long considered one of the top pitchers in baseball; Jackie Robinson, first baseman now with Montreal of the International League and Josh Gibson, a catcher noted for his great arm.

The proposed transcontinental trip would open in Cleveland on one of the first three days in October and probably would visit Buffalo, New York and 14 other cities.

Many Records Beaten and Tied In All-star Game

Boston, July 10 (AP)—Five individual records and two club records were set and five others tied in yesterday's baseball game between the American and National League all stars at Fenway Park. In addition the crowd of 34,908 contributed to the largest paid gross receipts for a single game, $111,338.

Boston's Ted Williams accounted for four new marks, tied two and helped his team set two others. Bobby Feller, Cleveland's fireball pitcher set one while his opposing starting moundsman, Claude Passeau of Chicago Cubs, tied another. The American League's 12-0 victory was the most lopsided score of the 13 meetings.

Records set:
1. Most runs batted in, one game—Williams, Red Sox, five.
2. Most runs batted in, total games—Williams, nine.
3. Most runs scored, one game—Williams, four.
4. Most home runs, total games—Williams, three.
5. Most strikeouts—total series—Feller, Indian 12.
6. Most runs scored by team, one game—American League 12.
7. Most home runs by team, one game—American League, three.

Records tied:
1. Most home runs, one game—Williams, Red Sox, two.
2. Most hits, one game—Williams, four.
3. Most losses by pitcher: Passeau, Cubs, two games.
4. Most hits by team—American League, 14.
5. Least hits by team—National League, three.

HUGHES HOLDING OWN

Los Angeles, July 10 —(AP)— Howard Hughes' fabulous luck held good yesterday.

Ron Mansfield Tackles Smith In Semi-Final

Local fight promoter George Polmanter has had to think and work fast this week for his semi-final "go" for tonight's card at Hume Arena has caused him no end of trouble. When the card was first lined up, the semi-final fracas featured Oshawa's "Baldy" Hardsands and "Soup" Whitney of Trenton. Something went wrong with the arrangements however, and Polmanter had to find a suitable substitute for Whitney. Belleville's "Jerry" Downes, who earned a five-round draw with Hardsands in Oshawa last Thursday seemed the logical choice and the bout was arranged.

In a tune-up Monday night, Downes suffered a cut eye which required three stitches to close. Once again, Polmanter had a headache. The pay-off came when he received a call from Oshawa saying that Hardsands had also received a training injury and would not be able to appear.

All is not gloom however, as Polmanter did manage to secure a very tasty tidbit for the next-to-main spot. Ron Mansfield of Belleville will meet Oshawa's "Al" Smith in a four-rounder. Mansfield has always, been a crowd pleaser in Belleville. His willingness to wade in and mix it has won him countless friends in the district and his many followers will be glad to know that he is finally fighting in one of the feature bouts.

Smith is a good boy. He fought here two years ago and, from all reports made a mighty fine showing. He is certainly no setup for the local boy.

Received With Interest

The local fight fraternity is viewing the main "go" between George Polmanter and Oshawa's Bill Goulding with much interest. Goliding has been going great guns of late which is evidenced by the fact that he chilled Hamilton's "Nick" Poppa in the second stanza of their bout last week. By the same token, Polmanter has been fighting his best lately all of which should make for a very interesting "go".

The preliminaries should be good. Belleville's Ross Soules will tangle with Harry Goulding of Oshawa; Pete Calbury of Belleville will take on the classy Oshawa youngster, Fred Harding; Trenton's "Soup" Whitney trades punches with "Bud" Henry of Oshawa; Belleville's "Fighting Joe" Wilson will meet Oshawa's Grant MacIntyre. Bill and Cecil Anderson will do a brother act against two opponents from Trenton who as yet have not been named.

In order to permit the district sports fans to take in their favorite ball game, the first bout will get underway at 9 o'clock. Looks like a mighty fine card.

BILL EMMERICH HOTTEST PITCHER IN INT. LEAGUE

Playing With Tail-End Club He Has Racked Up Six Straight

(By The Associated Press)

One of the hottest pitchers in the International League at the moment is Bill Emmerich of the tail-end Jersey City Giants.

The 26-year-old righthander, whom the Jerseys obtained from the parent New York Giants on option late in May, has chalked up six straight victories.

Emmerich, who was drafted by New York from Rochester Red Wings after the 1944 season, lost three games before climbing on the victory wagon June 15 with an 8-1 win over the Red Wings. He followed up with a relief win over Buffalo and then hurled successive shutout triumphs over Rochester and Toronto and a 4-3 win over Baltimore.

Last night the six-foot moundsman, who won four games and lost four for New York last season, turned back the Orioles 13-3, before a crowd of 30,000 at Baltimore. He allowed only five hits as the Giants staged an eight-run eighth inning rally that was highlighted by a two-run homer by Bob Thomson.

Syracuse ousted Newark from second place by downing the Bears, 6-3. The Chiefs broke a 2-2 tie by counting four times in the ninth on three bunts, a single and two errors.

Buffalo Bisons reached the .500 mark and strengthened their grip on fourth place by taking both ends of a twin bill from Rochester 5-3 and 8-5.

Vic Wertz paced the Bisons to victory by clouting three homers, one in the opener and two in the nightcap, to bat in six tallies. In the first game, Hal Manders turned Rochester back with five safeties and blanked the Wings after the first inning.

Montreal Royals Earn 5-5 Tie With the Dodgers

(By The Canadian Press)

Minus some of their best players—who were taking a drubbing along with other National Leaguers in the all-star contest—Brooklyn Dodgers held their farm club, Montreal Royals, to a 5-5 tie in an exhibition contest at Montreal last night. The Internationals Leaguers, who seemed somewhat awed by the offerings of their parent club in the early innings, loosened up as the game wore and came from four runs behind at the end of the second inning to score two runs in the third and another pair in the fourth.

Big scores were rolled up yesterday in the concluding stages of first-class cricket matches played in Britain. Five teams topped 400 runs and Vijay Merchant of the Indian team and D. Brookes of Northamptonshire each scored double centuries.

Del Cameron reined the bay mare, Miss Castle, owned by Cleo Young of Timmonsville, S.C., to a double victory in the eight-bar Grand Circuit program at Old pace, featured race on yesterday's Orchard Beach, Me. Her 2.06 3-4 for the first heat was the fastest mile raced in Maine this season.

Material Witness In Fatal Shooting Held at Kingston

Kingston, July 10 — (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police Tuesday picked up Jack Irwin, 19, of Kingston, and said they would hold him as a material witness in connection with the slaying early Monday of Richard Morgan, 27, of Kingston.

Irwin was said to have accompanied Morgan on a trip by truck to the home of Gerald Smith, 22, who lives in the vicinity of nearby Bath. Morgan later was found dead, a bullet wound in his back.

Smith, quoted by police as saying he fired the shot which killed Morgan, after Morgan tried to break into Smith's house, is being held on a nominal charge of vagrancy.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, July 10 —(AP)— If movie producers look more worried than usual these days, it may be because Frank Capra is again at work. Other directors may adopt his habits and cause film-making costs to soar.

The Italian-born director is a stickler for exactitude. In his pictures he always has rain, snow or some other meteorological disturbance that will present a problem for accuracy. In his present "It's a Wonderful Life" he ordered a snowstorm. I saw several blocks of an imitation New York town covered with enough gypsum to build a dozen houses.

Capra dislikes working at his home lot, R.K.O., because "there are too many people." He rebels against onlookers and once even expelled from the set N. Peter Rathvon, head of R.K.O.

When I saw him at work, he was conferring with James Stewart and Donna Reed on how she should break the news that she was going to have a baby. They bandied suggestions for almost an hour.

Next fall the Bob Hope radio show will be without the throaty tones of Frances Langford. The Lakeland, (Fla.), gal is leaving the comic and starting a show all her own.

"I'm sorry to leave Bob because we've had a lot of fun," she said on the "Beat the Band" set, "but I'll be happy to have some strings behind me."

She said she had argued long with Bob for a fiddle or two to accompany her songs. "Ginny, Dinah and the other girls have them," she complained. But Robert said nay, he liked things as they were. Meanwhile, said Frances, she battled the brass.

But come this fall, she can have all the violins she wants. As well as much more money for singing on the air lanes.

CHAPTER 3

"Business!" she scoffed. "Always business. I suppose now you're one of the highest paid physicians in Baltimore, I'm not young enough for you any more—nor pretty enough. Don't forget that it was my money that set you up in these offices. My money from my mother! Louis, I won't be humiliated before all my friends...."

"And I won't be interrupted in my work by false accusations," he retorted sharply. "Why Iris? Why don't you pick on my patients? I'm old enough to be Iris's father."

"But you won't deny you like her."

"Of course I like her. She's a marvelous girl, working to help her family. She's uncomplaining and generous." He paused and said for Annette's comfort. "It might interest you to know that Iris met Mark Christian last night, and in comparison with a dull, middle-aged, overworked physician Mark is...."

Annette laughed. "As if Mark would lower himself to be in love with your stenographer. Why—he can marry anybody."

With a feeling of sickening disgust Iris closed the door quietly and walked to the end of the long marble hall. "Oh, I am so weary of people accusing me, misunderstanding me. Always there is something wrong about me. Now my job—that I thought was so secure. No, I will not cry. If I had cried all the times in my life I've wanted to cry, I should have spent most of my life in tears. No, don't cry."

When she turned she came face to face with Annette, exquisitely dressed in a dark spring suit, twin fox furs across her shoulders and with her blonde hair sleekly waved. How ironic it was that Annette radiated some delightful perfume when behind the closed door her thoughts had been so ugly and false! She swept past Iris arrogantly without even a nod of recognition.

Louis was standing by the window smoking. Iris smiled.

"It's going to be a clear day after all," she said with forced casualness.

"Stop stalling. I saw you through the mirror, Iris, I'm terribly sorry."

She lowered her head to control her trembling mouth.

"I told you I could get another position."

"That would be an admission of guilt." He shook his head. "Why does she pick on you?"

"Because I'm defenseless — because I have no weapons of power and money. That's why, Louis."

"It's rottenly unfair." He put his hands on her shoulders again. "Annette calls this making love to you. Look at me, Iris." She lifted her head and looked at him. "You're only a child. I do love you—as the daughter I never had. We're going to go on working together and being friends. What she said about Mark wasn't true. It hasn't been long ago since I heard him say that he'd marry the woman he loved if her father were a janitor in his office building. Mark Christian is a man of quality. Iris and you're a woman of quality. And quality is the thing that counts."

At five o'clock that afternoon when she stepped into the outer office two men got up. Iris looked wonderingly from dark, tall Mark Christian to blond Joel, and in this important moment of decision she did not know to whom she would go first.

Joel's suit, old and pressed so many times, and his worn shoes made Iris' heart ache for him at the same time defiantly rebel at Mark's handsome tweeds and the air of wealth and leisure about him. Selina's constant talk of rich people had instilled in her a hatred for wealth, knowing so well what it meant to be poor herself and being keenly conscious of the poverty of others.

They saw her very differently, the two men. To Mark she was as lovely as a gift, her face flashed, her dark hair close to her face, and one eye half hidden under the jaunty black hat. Joel saw her through the rising mist of his jealousy, now loving her beauty, now hating it because he feared in time it would separate them.

Mark, ever diplomatic, broke the dramatic silence.

"Is Dr. Tracy in, Miss Wade? I'm dining with him and Mrs. Tracy and I stopped by...."

Iris looked at him in profound gratitude, her eyes saying in the brief moment when they met his, "Thank you. How is it you realize that if Joel knew you had come for me, I wouldn't have a pleasant minute all evening with him? You do know. You know so much, Mark."

"Dr. Tracy is in his office," she said quietly. "Won't you go in?"

"Thank you."

When Mark had gone into Dr. Tracy's office, Joel asked, "Who is he?"

Iris gave a nervous little laugh and put her arm through his. "That's Mark Christian, dear. I didn't know you were calling for me tonight."

"You're going to dinner with me."

"But you can't afford it, Joe."

Putting his old hat on his head, he said, "Oh, yes I can. But you probably won't think the place is good enough—after Christian."

"Let's not argue. Please."

"Don't you think I know he came for you? You've probably been out with him. It was clever of him to say he wanted to see Dr. Tracy. Clever but not clever enough," and for a time at least she was spared the harsh unkindness of his voice as the elevator stopped for them.

Louis was drying his hands on a towel. Mark stood in the doorway of the immaculate white room.

"If it were anyone except you," said Louis, "I'd tell you to stay away from Iris and let her have peace. People bring her only trouble. Men in particular. Be honest, Mark. What does she mean to you? A pretty face to amuse you for a time? Don't play with Iris. She doesn't deserve it."

"I have played a good bit, I admit," said Mark, frowning at his friend. "But I won't play with Iris. I came back from Florida because Mary told me about her. I value Mary's opinion. During the entire trip I thought of nothing but a girl I had never seen—Iris. Last night, watching her as she lay on the divan until her head cleared, I knew that my playing days were over. But I don't think she likes me."

Louis lifted his brows. "She's faithful, too faithful, to the boy you saw out there. She'll never admit it but she isn't in love with him. Love has become pity. A lot of women don't know the difference. Iris is too fine to spend her life giving her affection to people who need her and for whom she feels sorry. She ought to have some one to lean upon, some-one to make her happy. If you can't do that, don't see her again."

"Then I shall see her again," said Mark. "Her ideas are all distorted. Apparently she's wasting herself on people who had no idea of her worth." He smiled at Louis. "Take off the white coat, old man, and drop the professional air. We're going out to drink a toast to Iris."

"And what will the toast be?"

Mark grinned. "I'm going to marry her. And it's not a pleasant thought, is it, that I've got to make her untrue to herself before I do."

"That," said Dr. Tracy grimly, "is a big order, my boy. It isn't just Iris with whom you're involved but several parasites who live on her."

* * *

The small restaurant was crowded and the voices of many people mingled with the feverish music. Curtly Joel gave the order to the waiter and then, turning to Iris, set cold, accusing blue eyes upon her.

"I've done nothing," she said. In her voice was a plea to make these forbidden moments pleasant. "Don't look at me as if I've done something terrible. Joel, don't be unreasonable."

"You've been out with him haven't you? I saw the way he looked at you. And you call me possessive! He looked at you as if...."

"Please don't talk so loud." She felt the blood surging to the surface of her face as a man at the next table turned his eyes from his evening paper to them. "This is not the place...."

"What do I care if people hear us?" he cried. 'You don't know what it means to play the game fair! I guess," he scoffed, "your mother made you do it. That's a good excuse You're engaged to me!"

"But I'm not married to you," said Iris. "I have played the game, as you call it, fairly. We've been over this so many times before. Don't you ever think I want to be happy when I'm with you? We never go anywhere that we don't argue about the same thing. In movies, in restaurants, on street cars. For a year I've never left you that you weren't angry. You don't trust me, Joel."

"I don't trust the men you go with. Pardon," he smiled sarcastically, "the men your mother makes you go out with. Do you think that a man like Christian has any serious intentions with you? When he marries, it will be to a woman of his own class."

"There are exceptions," she answered, putting her hand over his. "We're both class prejudiced, Joel. We hate them because they're rich and we're poor. They were born rich. We weren't. We can't hate them for their birthright."

"I haven't been out with another girl since I met you. You can't say you haven't been out with other men. I won't lose you, Iris, without a fight."

"But I've told you every time—told you everything."

"You haven't told me about Christian."

"I was at his apartment last night and...."

"His apartment!" he shouted as the waiter put their food before them.

People turned and stared at the angry boy and the humiliated girl. Iris felt her strength desert her and tears start in her eyes at the sea of strange faces, some amused at the scene, others concerned. With shaking hands she picked up her purse and gloves and it seemed an eternity before she reached the door. Outside she stopped a moment in bewilderment and then hurried down the street, feeling that even people on the street knew of the ghastly scene from which she had fled.

On the corner Joel caught up with her. Under the pale glow of the street lamp she turned to him. "You have hurt me before with your temper and jealousy but you've never humiliated me before a room of people! Have you no pride, Joel? Aren't you aware of anything but your selfish desires." Yes, I went to Mark's apartment last night. I was in an automobile accident and he took me there. My hat covers the bruise on my forehead. But you wouldn't wait for an explanation! Oh, no! You had to come to your own ugly conclusions." She drew away from him. "Until you can respect me, don't try to see me again."

She turned abruptly and crossed the street and did not look back at him. For an hour she walked in dark unfrequented streets, fighting for control over hurt and shame. The thought of going home to Selina's questions, Tommy's failure and Eve's lovely but often nerve-wrecking voice practising added to her misery. Iris thought, "It is springtime and I should be walking in it and loving it. But I can't even think of it for all the things that seem to be pressing together inside of me."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the outside of her mail at breakfist this morning, saying, Well, low and behold, Here's something from the Fadeaway Soap Flakes Company Well, I'm not going to get excited, William, I dont believe in counting my bridges before I come to them, and I haven't the faintest inkling of a hope that I've w onthe 5 thousand doller prize, she said.

Meening for her answer in the contest for people to write in and tell why they like Fadeaway Soap Flakes, and pop said, By the way, what answer did you send in?

Why, I decided to put it in the form of a rime to make it more original, because originality is suppose to be the deciding facter, ma said. Here's what I wrote—I like Fadeaway Soap Flakes, because with a minimum of labors, my laundry always terns out so much whiter than my naybors. How do you like it, William? she said, and pop said, It rimes, all right.

I wouldn't even faintly dreem of what I could do with 5 thousand dollers, because such a thing is laffably impossible, ma said. Even one of the 5 doller consolation prizes would far exceed my wildest expectations. I mean anybody that doesn't expect anything cant very well be disappointed. Oh well, I might as well open the envelope from idle curiosity, she said.

Which she did, reeding the letter inside and saying, Well of all the stupid senseless things. Listen to this, William, Dear Mrs. Potts, Your entry in the Fadeaway Soap Flakes contest has been receeved and will receive due consideration. Well who ever heard of anything so asinine. Why do they imagine I'd submit an entryj in the ferst place if I didn't think it would receeve due consideration? Really, William, I mean really, I ought to write and tell them I wouldn't even wash a dog with their silly flakes, she said.

And she tore the letter up and ate her grapefruit diet mad.

Says German Pow Set up Nazi-like Conditions

Vancouver, July 10 (CP)—Mike Sekora, an official of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO-CCL) last night told the Vancouver Labor Council that 150 German prisoners-of-war have instituted Nazi-like conditions on a logging operation near Clearwater, B.C. and that a state of open drunkenness among the prisoners prevails on the interior town's streets.

The I.W.A. representative said the citizens of the area are up in arms over the matter, particularly because they claim the Germans are receiving $2 a day for work which ordinarily would go to the town's unemployed.

He told the council, which decided to send details of the conditions and a protest to Federal Labor Minister Mitchell, that the government had promised removal of the Germans by May 31 but failed to carry out such action. He said the prisoners are supposed to be employed only in logging camp and that a promise to that effect to Clearwater residents had been broken.

Sekora claimed the town's workers had also refused to take jobs in the logging camp where the Germans are employed because the prisoners are in the majority and have their own "leader or little Fuehrer."

Harold Pritchett, District President of the I.W.A., said the prisoners "conduct their Nazi activities right in camp."

Woman Labor M.P. Hates Hats, Avoid Royal Garden Party

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 10 (CP Cable)—Miss Grace Colman, Labor member of parliament for Tynemouth, "hates hats" and did not go to the Royal Garden Party at Buckingham Palace Tuesday because she was told by the Lord Chamberlain's office that hats must be worn.

Miss Colman, a cousin of motion picture star Ronald Colman, sat through a debate on colonies in the House of Commons while other women members went to the party, the Royal family's biggest "at home" since 1939. When the other women returned they told her they had seen one woman without a hat and no one had objected.

Tall and fair, Miss Colman said today the only hat she owns is one she bought in 1941 to go to church on a special occasion. This hat was suitable for November but not for a garden party in July.

She says she has worn it four times.

"It is a small felt," she said. "The plain fact is that I hate hats—no one can say that they are ornamental."

In the House of Commons women members or spectators in the galleries are not required to wear hats.

Kept Vigil by River For Drowned Grandson For Eight Months

West Elizabeth, Pa., July 10 — (AP) — Old Morgan Lewis' 8-month vigil by the riverbank for the body of his drowned grandson, ended today. The swirling Monongahela River, which had stubbornly resisted efforts to locate the boy despite dragging and blasting, yesterday finally yielded the body of Charles Lewis, Jr., 14. Lewis, 70, had kept watch by the river since the boy and four companions drowned last November. "When Chuckie's been laid to rest then I can rest."

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA DESCRIBED TO KIWANIANS

Ex-Squadron Leader Barnard Phipps Tells of Visit to British Possession

"If the many friends that I made during my stay in the Union of South Africa represent a fair cross section of the people I have every confidence in saying that they will soon find satisfactory solutions to their present problems and will build a nation which will have a place in the sun, figuratively, as well as literally." So said Barnard Phipps, ex-squadron leader in the Royal Air Force and presently engaged with the London Life Insurance Company in Picton, when he addressed the Kiwanis Club of Belleville at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte on Monday. Mr. Phipps spent two years in South Africa with the Royal Air Force after spending almost three years at the R.A.F. station at Picton.

"Approximately 80 per cent of the population of South Africa makes its livelihood from farming and agriculture. Generally speaking however, the land of South Africa is not too suitable for cultivation. Although relatively unsuitable, the land is being cultivated."

"It is the tragic story of the dust bowl all over again with the farmers cashing in on the fertility accumulated over centuries by nature. In 1944, Dr. Bennett, the American soil conservation expert, visited the Union and carried out a very comprehensive survey on the extent of soil erosion. His report to the government stated that, unless drastic and immediate measures were taken, South Africa would be a desert within 30 years."

A Big Problem.

"How the problem will be tackled, I don't know," said the speaker. "It is certainly a very big one. The smaller farmers are very conservative and regard preventative measures such as contour ploughing and the planting of windbreaks, with very grave suspicion. The situation calls for really drastic measures on the part of the central government, similar to those taken in this country and the United States before any substantial progress is made against this danger which threatens to starve South Africa out," opined Mr. Phipps.

"As in this country, there are two official languages, English and Africaans. About 60 per cent of the Europeans in South Africa speak Africaans in their homes and the remainder, English. Unlike Canada, where the second language is confined to a fairly well defined area, both languages are spoken throughout the country, with the possible exception of Natal."

A Mixed Tongue.

"Africaans is a mixed tongue and was developed by the earlier settlers of Dutch descent. The language has absorbed many English, French and even some native and Aasiatic words and is rapidly developing a literature of its own," continued the speaker. Full bilingualism is necessary for government appointments and the second language must be taken and passed for matriculation."

"Having been only a visitor in the country, I naturally hesitate to make no comment on the very thorny question of Union politics," continued Mr. Phipps. "The machinery of government is almost identical with our own land, at present, the United party, headed by Jannie Smuts, is in office and the Nationalist party in opposition. The main bone of political contention appears to be whether the Union should be in closer or looser association with the other nations of the Commonwealth."

Native Problem Involved.

"The native problem in South Africa is far too involved for me to make any pronouncement on it, but it did strike me that if only some way could be discovered to pay the African a good living wage, then a very large and lucrative market for South Africa's infant secondary industries could be developed. Today, a large proportion of the African population is below the bread line. Particularly is this the case with the urban native who has to wear European clothes and also has to spend a large part of his meagre wages from the location or native town to his place of work."

"The real livelihood of the country is gold. That singularly useless metal which is won from the earth with great ingenuity, labor and risk of human life and then promptly buried in another large hole on the other side of the border. Be that as it may, gold is still the life blood of South Africa and the Rand mines, in addition to making a substantial contribution to the cost of government, pay for the importation of many forms of manufactured goods that are necessities to a modern civilization."

Very Rich in Resources.

"South Africa is very rich in natural resources," concluded the speaker.. "Coal, iron, waterpower, in fact, all the raw materials necessary to modern machinery, with the exception of the skilled labor without which, all these natural riches are valueless. It is on the training of skilled labor that the future of the country depends, because, by their very nature, gold mines are a wasting asset and it will be necessary to provide some substitute, for their earning power against the future."

The speaker was introduced by Dr. Reg. Anderson and thanked on behalf of the club by Bill Miller.

President Mark Vanner acted as chairman and reminded the group of their Kiwanis Karnival next week and asked for the full support of all members.

The sing song was under the direction of Harold Carruthers with Bill Navin at the piano.

U.S. May Suspend Famine Relief Buying to Fall

By OVID A. MARTIN

Washington, July 9 — (AP) — Unless price controls over meat are re-established, the government may suspend its famine relief buying until fall when livestock marketings normally are greater.

This possibility was disclosed today by an aide of agriculture secretary Clinton P. Anderson who said the administration does not want to bid against American consumers. The official said privately the government feared such buying would boost meat prices in the United States far above present levels.

Before the Office of Prime Administration expired July 1, the government bought an average of more than 25,000,000 pounds of meat weekly during the first half of 1946 to help fill a foreign commitment of about 1,500,000,000 pounds for the full year.

Heretofore, Federally-inspected slaughterers were required to set aside a portion of their output for the government at ceiling prices. The government was taking between 10 and 15 per cent of the beef, about 40 per cent of the pork and 50 per cent of the lard.

The set-aside requirement was suspended when price controls expired. The government had hoped, however, that O.P.A. would be re-established soon and the set-aside orders re-instated.

Driver Burned To Death in Fire

Toronto, July 10 — (CP)—Basil Canning of Toronto Tuesday was burned to death when the transport truck he was driving careened off the highway near Oak Ridges, 15 miles north of here, snapped a telegraph pole in two, crashed into two trees and burst into flames.

Police said the truck's collision with the pole threw a transformer to the ground. The truck and its load of groceries were aflame almost immediately.

Rumors Denied Shoe-Shine Boy Heard of Plot

Windsor, July 9 (CP) — Rumors that a shoe-shine boy in Amherstburg, 15 miles south of here, overheard six gunmen plot yesterday's $11,910 robbery at Bob-Lo Island in the Detroit River were denied today by Joseph Kilka, 48, proprietor of the shoe repair shop at which the boy works.

The rumors are reported to have started on Bob-Lo Island after Ontario Provincial Police had spread a dragnet through Western Ontario in an attempt to catch the men who held up four employees, blew a safe, and cut telephone lines and punched holes in boats to cover their escape.

Kilka said flatly that the boy had nothing to do with the bandits.

Police said today no new trace of the gunmen was revealed by yesterday's investigations. Two abandoned rowboats were found on the Canadian mainland opposite the island. One contained a .22 long rifle cartridge and the other had oarlocks padded with rags. Police said one, of the boats was identified as the property of Joseph Reil.

FORECASTS PRICE CUT IN IMPORTED GOODS

Toronto, July 10 (CP)—George L. Watt, executive member of the Canadian Importers' and Traders' Association, predicted yesterday that the Canadian-United States dollar parity move will result in a definite reduction in prices of imported goods.

It will, however, take at least a month for the full effect of the parity rule to be felt, he said.

Governor of Ankara Prov. Shot

Ankara, July 10 — (AP) — Governor Devzat Tandogan of Ankara province was found shot to death in his mansion Tuesday. The case was reported unofficially to be suicide. Three hours after his death, the official Anatolia Turkish news agency had not mentioned the shooting, a fact that suggested governmental concern. Tandogan had been governor 17 years.

TOURISTS MEAN EXTRA INCOME FOR GEORGE...

but... CANADA'S TOURIST BUSINESS IS YOUR BUSINESS TOO . . .

AND it's mighty big business . . . Last year tourists spent more than one hundred and sixty million dollars in Canada. This year, with millions of American visitors expected, that figure may well be surpassed. It means extra income for you, for every Canadian. Tourist money gets around. It flows to every part of the country.

This year particularly we must make sure that our friendly visitors enjoy themselves, that they'll carry back good reports of our hearty hospitality. Then they'll come again— and their friends will come—and Canada's tourist industry will continue to be a source of ever increasing prosperity through the years.

Here's what we're telling
OUR GOOD NEIGHBOURS

Your Canadian Travel Bureau, formed to protect and promote your interests in Canada's tourist industry, is running advertising in leading U.S. newspapers reminding American readers of the beauty and diversity of Canada's tourist attractions. At the same time it is tactfully reminding them that in view of travel and accommodation difficulties this summer, they will be wise to make reservations ahead.
